FREE LOVE IS HISSED.

Advocate is Forced to Sit Down.

"Town Meeting" on Divorce Reforms in Chicago Is Nearly Disrupted.

Demand for Immediate Revision of Marriage Laws Finally Voiced.

Judge Insists that the Nuptial Contract Is Sacred Heritage of Race.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Hisses and shouts of disapproval that drove an advocate of free love from the floor all but broke up the first "town meeting" for the discussion of divorce reform, held at the Hotel La Salle this afternoon. But the remarks of the advocate of "no-marriage," only served to show how general was the demand of the public for a revision and reform of divorce and marriage regulations.

The programme outlined by the Illinois Commission on Marriage and Divorce, involving the passage of immediate legislation, was unanimously adopted. Resolutions adopted indorsed the proposed reform measures and called upon the general public, irrespective of creed or politics, to take part in the movement for wiping out the evils attending easy divorce.

"ORIGINAL" VIEWS.

[illegible] Quitman, who said he was an attorney and author with offices at No. [illegible] West Washington street, was the man whose original views on the divorce and marriage question sent a tremor of excitement through the hall. Quitman, who had been endeavoring all afternoon to obtain the recognition of Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh, the chairman, finally arose and began talking without recognition.

"While you all are talking of making divorce more difficult to obtain, I would suggest that you look at the more important question—that of making marriage more difficult," he began, talking rapidly. "I would make marriage more and more difficult, until it finally had been done away with altogether.

"All this movement is backed by the churches, anyway. The marriage contract is a civil contract, and when the two parties involved desire to break it they should be permitted to do so. The only divorce that should be recognized is the divorce that is obtained through the consent of both parties. The failure of the courts to recognize this fact causes the lying, perjury and general deception that now involves the obtaining of a divorce.

"I am thoroughly convinced——"

GROWING STORM.

Whatever the speaker's thorough conviction may have been, he was not permitted to get it out of the mental machinery that produced it, as the growing storm of hisses had increased to such volume by this time that he could not be heard. He was compelled to sit down without giving further publicity to his thought.

YIELDS SEAT TO A WOMAN.

President-elect Wilson in Role of a Gallant on a Train.

[A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PRINCETON (N. J.) Feb. 22.—The next President of the United States gave up his seat on a train today to a woman who was standing in the aisle. She was not near him, at that, but at the other end of the car when he spied her, arose, bowed and beckoned for her to take the seat he had vacated. She smiled, thanked him and took it. Gov. Wilson made the trip here from New York on an accommodation train. A holiday crowd was aboard and he stood for nearly an hour till the train reached Rahway. He was hardly settled down in his seat when he saw the woman standing and promptly surrendered it.

San Quentin Penitentiary Orchestra Renders "La Marseillaise."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN QUENTIN (Cal.) Feb. 22.—For their Washington's Birthday holiday the prisoners of San Quentin were entertained by one of the world's greatest dramatic artists. On a rough stage in a corner of the prison yard, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt and her company of French players presented her son's tabloid play, "One Christmas Night."

Two thousand prisoners, including a score of women and five men under sentence of death, watched the performance. The high walls checked a chill wind from the bay and brilliant sunshine warmed the huge audience. Although the play was in an alien tongue, the prisoners followed eagerly the moving story of the gay young vivandiere who saved the French noble and his wife and child from the revolutionists.

PRISONERS CHEER.

Just before the curtain rose, the prison orchestra, struck up the "Marseillaise." Instantly the prisoners rose and uncovered their heads. When the actress appeared they applauded enthusiastically, and at the conclusion of the play they waved their caps and cheered.

The play had ended just right. The emotional plea of Mme. Bernhardt, as the warm-hearted daughter of the regiment, had softened the heart of the commandant and the prisoners were "paroled."

TESTIMONIAL BY RUEF.

An impressive scene followed the play-acting. A tall, gray-haired prisoner, a Frenchman, stepped from the wings and bowed to the actress. He then read, in French, a testimonial from the prison inmates, written by Abe Ruef, the political boss convicted by the San Francisco graft prosecution.

"Today, for an hour," the old Frenchman read, "these stone walls have faded away. For an hour your great art has made us free. Our hearts have been touched by the woman, the actress and the play. We extend to you our grateful thanks."

Mme. Bernhardt smiled graciously on the old man and his fellows. When she left the stage she carried with her the testimonial.

CRIMINALS AS SUPERS.

A number of prisoners took the part of "supers" in the performance and their appearance as soldiers caused much delight among the audience. Among the hundred or more visitors who witnessed the play were Warden Johnston of Folsom prison and members of the State Prison Board.

RAKER AFTER "PORTSMOUTH."

Has Promise of Naval Affairs Committee for Historic Naval Vessel as Gift to California.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] Representative Raker said today that he had the promises of the Naval Affairs Committee to turn over to California the historic naval vessel Portsmouth. There will be some expense on account of repairs on the vessel and the Navy Department has refused to meet these, not having money available for the purpose.

The ship will doubtless be preserved at San Francisco as a naval relic of historical interest to California, where the ship was stationed when the control of the State passed from Spain.

BIG FORTUNE AWAITS HER.

MISS MORGAN MAY INHERIT FIFTY MILLIONS.

Illness of Financier, Who Is Reported Much Improved, Revives Speculation as to the Probable Distribution of Half-Billion-Dollar Estate Among Four Children.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, whose recent illness has started speculation as to the division of his immense fortune, will not need to worry over the high cost of living when she finally comes into actual possession of her share of the estate.

Just how much this will be is a matter of pure speculation, but a fairly accurate outline may be drawn by inference. The latest estimate of the personal fortune of J. Pierpont Morgan is given at five hundred millions. His son, John Pierpont, Jr., is rated at four hundred and fifty millions, and Mrs. H. L. Satterlee, one of his daughters, is understood to be assured of thirty millions, aside from her personal fortune, which is considerable.

It is reasonable to assume that Miss Anne Morgan will share equally with the other heirs, not taking into account her present personal fortune, which undoubtedly mounts into millions.

There are four children, three daughters and one son, in the Morgan family, and eleven grand-children, among whom will be apportioned the five hundred millions, personal fortune of J. P. Morgan, and with this will go his interest in many great industries that are constantly adding to the golden hoard.

The lowest estimate of Miss Anne's share is placed at thirty millions, this being the figure allotted to Mrs. Satterlee by the best informed, when she married. Since that time, however, the Morgan fortune has grown rapidly, and a more correct estimate of her share would be fifty millions outright. Undoubtedly, the same amount will pass to Miss Anne. She is deeply interested in the condition of working girls and women and contributes heavily to their cause.

REPORT MORGAN MUCH BETTER, YET, RELATIVES ARE WORRIED

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROME (Italy) Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. John Hurlbert and Mrs. Lee, cousins of J. Pierpont Morgan, who reside here, deny that the financier is seriously ill. Mrs. Lee receives cablegrams almost daily from Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, who is with her father in Cairo, Egypt. Mrs. Lee said today that she had received word that her uncle had completely recovered from what she called a slight attack of indigestion.

"Mrs. Satterlee cabled to me," she said, "to invite Dr. Bastianelli, who had attended Mr. Morgan here, to join him in Cairo, and he consented. Owing to the existence of two doctors of the same name, brothers, one a surgeon and the other a physician, an erroneous report was spread that Mr. Morgan had summoned the surgeon."

Other friends of Mr. Morgan here say that he did not have indigestion, but suffered a slight apopolectic stroke, and that a recurrence was feared. The impression is that Mrs. Lee's optimism is well founded. She was calm and spoke convincingly. However, she was somewhat worried, as even a slight indisposition causes apprehension in the case of a patient more than 70 years of age.

Maryland Man Who Announced on the Streets that President Taft Is Also a Marked Man Is Arrested by Secret Service Agents in Denton.

DENTON (Md.) Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] Announcing on the streets that he had been given divine power to kill; that President Taft would be "removed" and that other men in high places in the government and elsewhere were "marked" for tragedy, Isaiah Clark, a man of some property and of excellent family, for several days attracted attention. A secret service officer from Washington captured him today and Clark was locked up. It was stated Clark has sent telegrams to Washington predicting Taft's death and indicating Wilson would be killed a few minutes after his inaugural.

FEAR RAID OF SUFFRAGETTES.

CHILDREN OF CABINET MINISTERS GUARDED.

London Authorities Take Extraordinary Precautions to Prevent the Little Ones of Great Personages from Being Kidnaped by Militants.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Fearing that the militant suffragettes are planning as they did once before, to kidnap children of Cabinet Ministers, the police are taking elaborate precautions to protect the young ones. It is denied that there is any plot to kidnap the Ministers themselves, though the report was widely spread.

The plot against the children involves Lloyd George, who has a daughter 10 years old; the Winston Churchills with two small babies; Mrs. Lulu Harcourt, who has two young daughters, and Sidney Buxton, president of the Board of Trade, who has a baby boy. The houses of these children are guarded day and night.

EVER SEE A "BLOW OUT?"

Chicago Prosecutor Obtained Some Direct Information on the Language of the "Arson Trust."

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Systematized efforts employed by members of the alleged "arson trust" were disclosed today by witnesses examined by Assistant State's Attorney Johnson. They explained to him that in arson circles incendiary fires are placed in both classes, "blow outs" and "flashes." A "blow out" is a fire which destroys both the building and its contents. A "flash" only burns the contents.

The witnesses said the "firebugs" could regulate fires by means of the distribution of gasoline. When a "blow out" was decided, gasoline in large cans was placed throughout the building in order to cause an explosion. When a request to burn the contents of a building was made, gasoline would be sprinkled over the stock.

"In some cases the insured did not want their buildings burned because they did not have them heavily insured," Prosecutor Johnston said in explaining the evidence given him by the witness. "At these times the insured would tell the firebugs to burn only the stock, because that was insured for more than its real value."

RUSH ARMY TO BORDER

Four Thousand Men on the Way.

Thirty-five Thousand Others Are Made Available for Foreign Service.

Force Large Enough to Seize a Mexican Port Is Being Mobilized.

Whole Issue of Intervention Is to Be Left to the Incoming President.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The United States government is perilously near intervention in Mexico.

Orders issued today dispatching the Fifth Brigade of the Second Army Division to Galveston, Tex., have a dual purpose, the first to be prepared to rush troops to Mexico City and the second to warn the Mexican people, Huerta's followers and the men opposed to him, that the anarchistic conditions existing in Mexico must cease.

The action of the administration is the result of cablegrams and telegrams received from Ambassador Wilson and from Consuls throughout the southern country.

These show there is little hope of general acceptance of the government established by Huerta and Diaz, but that, on the other hand, fighting will continue with consequent danger to Americans and American interests.

SPECIAL CONCERN.

Of special concern is the fact that communication between Vera Cruz, a port on the Gulf of Mexico, and Mexico City shall not be interrupted. It is of prime importance for the safety of Americans and other foreigners in the capital that this way be kept open.

There are three battleships at Vera Cruz and they can be reinforced within two days, but in order that an impressive demonstration may be made it is deemed desirable when action is taken to land a detachment of such size that it will deter Mexicans from inaugurating an attack.

In short, what the administration is aiming to do is to prepare for a demonstration and thus escape the shedding of blood.

The forces which will be available for service are the brigade along the frontier under command of Gen. Steever, the First Brigade, stationed in the vicinity of New York, and other forces. The total strength available for immediate service in Mexico is 35,000 soldiers, marines and bluejackets.

WILSON ADVISED.

Through trusted agents, though not directly, the President-elect is understood to have expressed his interest in the situation and has placed himself in a position to acquire specific knowledge as to all the details before he comes to Washington, March 3.

THE TROOPS INVOLVED.

The troops comprising the Fifth Brigade and their stations are as follows:

Fourth Infantry, headquarters Companies A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H and machine gun platoon, Ft. Crook, Neb.; Companies I, K, L and M at Ft. Snelling, Minn.

Seventh Infantry, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Ninth Infantry, Companies A, B, C and D at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.; Companies E, F, G and H at Ft. Sill, Okla., and headquarters and Companies I, K, L and M and machine gun platoon at Ft. Meade, S. D.

Twenty-eighth Infantry, Ft. Snelling, Minn.

Fourth Field Artillery, Ft. D. A. Russell, Wyo.

Company of engineers from either the Second or Third Battalion of Engineers to be selected by Maj.-Gen. Carter at Chicago.

Co. D, Signal Corps, stationed at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Field Hospital No. 3 and Ambulance Company No. 3 at Ft. Leavenworth. So organized, the Fifth Brigade will be a complete unit able to take care of itself or to join with other forces to form an army division.

Already the Third Regiment of Cavalry is at Galveston so that Gen. Smith's command will have scouts and mounted soldiers to harass the possible enemy.

Marching orders have not yet been telegraphed to the Twenty-seventh Infantry stationed at Ft. Sheridan. That regiment has been instructed to be prepared to move and will be given final orders the moment such action is deemed advisable.

So with the four companies and machine gun platoon of the Fifteenth Cavalry at the same post, the Twenty-sixth Infantry stationed at Ft. Wayne and Ft. Brady, Mich., and the Twenty-eighth Infantry at Ft. Snelling. Within a few days the Second Cavalry Brigade, consisting of the Fifth and Ninth regiments also will be sent to Texas.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—About 4000 soldiers were ordered today to Galveston, Tex., and vicinity, the nearest seaport adapted to the embarkation of troops for Mexico. They are not under orders to proceed to Mexico and it is the expectation and the hope of the administration that it will not be neces-

MADERO'S WIFE PLEADS IN VAIN.

Huerta Gives No Assurance of Husband's Safety.

More Peaceful News from Disaffected Districts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—Francisco I. Madero's wife stood before Gen. Victoriano Huerta, the provisional President of Mexico, and pleaded today for clemency for her husband. She left the National Palace with no assurance for his safety, and she was forced to forego the consolation of conversation with the imprisoned ex-President, whose guards are enforcing rigidly the order of incomunicado.

Gen. Huerta treated the downcast, frightened woman with every courtesy, but he explained to her that in view of the investigation to which ex-President Madero would be subjected, his fate was in other hands, intimating that Congress would probably render the final decision.

From the State of Coahuila and other northern parts in Mexico where the rumors of dissatisfaction with the new administration are rife, more reassuring news reached the capital today.

Gov. Carranza of the State of Coahuila, who joined hands with Emilio and Raoul Madero, brothers of the deposed President, is said to have been unable to increase his following.

Gov. Villareal of the State of Nuevo Leon, father-in-law of Gustavo Madero, who recently was shot to death at the capital, has relieved the situation by resigning from office.

The most active trouble with which the government has to cope is being caused by groups of southern rebels. One band of 400 men today entered the village of Ozumba, on the Inter-Oceanic Railway, and looted and burned the public buildings. A force of Federal troops, sent from Amecameca, was repulsed, though the government losses were only slight. Further reinforcements have been sent from the capital and a second effort to dislodge the rebels will be made.

To an emissary of the provisional government the rebels said they would recognize the government when it had adopted the plan of San Luis Potosi as revised in Tacubaya. This revised plan is that which sought a year ago to place Emilio Vasquez Gomez in the Presidency.

MULE PACK TRAIN LEAVES FOR BORDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—Pursuant to orders received last night from Washington, a pack train including sixty-five mules, in charge of fourteen men, was dispatched from here to Galveston, Tex., at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

The detachment was transferred by telegraph from the control of Maj. Kenzey J. Hampton, quartermaster of the Presidio here, to the depot quartermaster, Galveston. The train carries rations for thirty days and equipment for mountain work.

The order of last night came from the Adjutant-General of the United States army, through the Secretary of War. No explanation of the proposed uses of the pack train was received and no further orders were given regarding preparations for movements of troops.

Military officials here said they could venture no opinion regarding the order.

VERA CRUZ IN LINE FOR THE NEW REGIME.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VERA CRUZ (Mex.) Feb. 22.—The reported antagonism to the new Federal administration on the part of the officials of the State of Vera Cruz was disposed of today at a conference here between Enrique Copeda, the Governor of the Federal District, and the civil and military authorities.

Enrique Copeda, on arrival here today, was met by Gen. Velasco, the military commander of Vera Cruz, and the civil authorities of this State, all of whom pledged their loyalty to Gen. Victoriano Huerta, the provisional President.

Gov. Copeda said that Emiliano Zapata, the rebel leader, probably will accept the new conditions. If he should not do so, the government will institute a vigorous campaign against him and his followers.

GEN. PORFIRIO DIAZ LOCATED AT LUXOR.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

CAIRO (Egypt) Feb. 22. — The statement published in the United States that Porfirio Diaz, the former dictator of Mexico, had returned to Cairo from his trip up the Nile is without foundation.

Gen. Diaz, who is still in his dahabeah on the Nile, replied today to a telegraphic inquiry with the following dispatch:

"Luxor, February 22, 6:45 o'clock p.m. I feel I cannot express any opinion on the Mexican situation. My absolute aloofness from the politics of my country precludes me from doing it.

[Signed] "PORFIRIO DIAZ."

The proprietor of the hotel at which he stays in Cairo is in constant communication with Gen. Diaz and declares he has not heard any expression of his intention of making an early return to Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—Francisco I. A member of the provisional Cabinet said that probably no decision as to their fate would be reached for some days.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MARLIN (Tex.) Feb. 22.—"I think the President is all right, but he does not seem to understand that if the Federal government does not protect the border with troops by Monday, the State of Texas will."

This was the declaration of Gov. Colquitt of Texas today discussing the situation along the Rio Grande.

"I am keeping in close touch with the situation on the Texas-Mexican border," added Gov. Colquitt.

Tells Advocates of Peace in New York that Continued Turmoil in the Republic Is Merely Indicative of What Is to Be Feared Later On. Army Prepared for Emergencies.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Before President Taft leaves office on March 4, he will have concentrated at Galveston, Tex., close to 10,000 troops ready to depart for Mexico on a few hours' notice. The President tonight attended a banquet of the American Peace and Arbitration League and said he was just as much opposed to intervention as he had been for two years. He is determined, however, to "lay the cards on the table" so that when Mr. Wilson becomes President, if a crisis arises, all he will have to do is to play them.

The President was plainly concerned tonight about conditions in Mexico. He told friends he saw no particular reason for apprehension, but seemed to think the continued trouble in Mexico was indicative of what was to be feared later.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—A settlement of $250,000 has been accepted by Mrs. Bessie Babcock W. Hunt, divorced wife of John Wright Hunt, the "turpentine king" who died in Dallas, Tex., in December, 1910, in return for her consent to withdraw her petition that the divorce proceedings be reopened, according to announcement made today. A Supreme Court justice in Brooklyn some months ago denied Mrs. Hunt's motion, but subsequently a higher court reversed the decision.

REBELS ON THE BORDER CLING TO THEIR ARMS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Feb. 22.—Revolutionists of Northern Mexico will not lay down their arms until a solution of the agrarian problem, reiterated today Manuel L. Lujan, former rebel agent at Washington. A telegram received today from Gen. Manuel Mondragon, Minister of War in the Huerta Provisional Cabinet, authorized Senor Lujan to treat with the various rebel chiefs and form a truce with Federal troops. After accepting an armistice, Lujan will journey to Mexico City and lay before the party in power the demands of the rebels in the north. It will be proposed to borrow some 30,000,000 pesos on the public lands of Mexico. With this loan the rebels propose to install at once a system of land grants whereby farming and ranching properties may be secured in easy payments for periods of from twenty to fifty years. By offering attractive homesteads it is hoped to dispel quickly all revolutionary tendencies, leaving no more banditti than existed before the first revolution.

The first problem, however, will be to combine the many groups of rebels scattered through border States and also to placate the Federal volunteers, former insurrectos of Madero's uprising. Lujan says that Gen. Inez Salazar, the principal rebel leader, has expressed himself as willing to await the act of those in power at the national capital. It is not clear, however, what will be the position of Emilio Vasquez Gomez, Presidential pretender, and his followers.

Antonio Rojas, a rebel general, who accepted the Gomez claims, has broken away from the Salazar group and crossed into the State of Sonora, where Gov. Maytorena has refused to accept the Huerta government.

MAY FIGHT BATTLE ON PLAINS OF TROY.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing from a port on the Dardanelles, under date of February 19, says:

"Twelve thousand Turkish troops from Gallipoli are being landed here from a constant succession of ferry steamers to resist an expected Greek landing in Besika Bay. Entrenchments already have been prepared on the historic plain of Troy. The Turkish troops are bivouacking under severe conditions, huddled around flickering campfires at night in a bitter north wind on the shelterless snow-covered heights.

"The Turkish fleet, which is always cleared for action, lies off the town."

A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Constantinople, dated Friday, says it is reported that a battle has been begun at Bulair.

Hakki Pasha, the Turkish ex-Grand Vizier, in an interview here, said he had no official mission to perform in London as a peace delegate, but that he had been sent here unofficially because he would be able to do things impossible of being done in an official capacity.

"Peace as a result of direct negotiations between the belligerents seems out of the question," said Hakki Pasha, "therefore we have addressed ourselves to Europe. We would be happy to see our business in the hands of the conference of Ambassadors. We have no interest in continuing the war, as the territory lost cannot be recovered."

THE TALE OF A REFUGEE.

Thompson Says Huerta Is a Strong Man and Inclined to Lean to the Policies of Diaz.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LINCOLN (Neb.) Feb. 22.—David E. Thompson, former United States Ambassador to Mexico, arrived in Lincoln last night direct from Mexico City. When Mr. Thompson left the capital the fight between the soldiers of Madero and Felix Diaz was still in progress. The residence of Mr. Thompson, 400 feet from the United States Embassy, was in the direct line of fire, and he believes the house was struck by not less than a thousand bullets and one shell. He found departure from the battle-swept city a difficult matter, and once outside the city itself progress was difficult, as rebels controlled most of the trains and would not allow them to be operated for passenger traffic. Part of the trip was made by ox-team wagon. When he reached Matamoras he found the rebels held the railroad from the north. A wagon carried him to Rio Grande, and at that point he was able to secure an automobile to take him to the American line.

Mr. Thompson was unwilling to discuss the political aspects of the country or its future. He served as Ambassador during the Presidency of Porfirio Diaz and his acquaintance with Francisco Madero is limited. Gen. Huerta, Mr. Thompson said, he regarded as a strong man probably inclined to policies similar to those of Diaz, from whom he received his training in military matters and diplomacy. Huerta, he believed, had a strong following. The business element of the country, said Mr. Thompson, demands peace, and probably will be loyal to the leader who can bring it about.

CULEBRA CUT SLIDES.

PANAMA, Feb. 22.—It is estimated that recent slides in the Culebra cut of the Panama Canal will cause an additional excavation of five and a half million cubic yards of earth. The total excavation of the canal is now estimated at 218,000,000 cubic yards, of which 190,000,000 cubic yards have been completed.

sary to issue orders for such a movement. The situation in that country, however, is considered such as to warrant the concentration of a force strong enough to take possession of a seaport and open the way for an invasion of the country.

It will be for President Woodrow Wilson to determine whether such an expedition shall be dispatched, although, of course, it is assumed that he first will seek the guidance of Congress. The President-elect has placed himself in a position to acquire specific knowledge as to all the details before he comes to Washington on March 3.

Up to today the War Department officials had contented themselves with the issue of preliminary orders to two brigades of troops, the First Brigade, First Division, in New York State, and the Fifth Brigade, Second Division, in the Middle West.

In the ordinary course, it would require at least eight days and perhaps longer to assemble these divisions at one of the gulf ports, ready for embarkation. It has been decided that this is a greater period of time than properly can be allowed to elapse before dispatching troops to Mexico if a great emergency should arise. Therefore it was with the purpose of saving this time that orders were issued today for the entrainment of the entire Fifth Brigade, Second Division, for Galveston, the troops being under command of Brig.-Gen. Frederick A. Smith, and comprising the Fourth, Seventh, Nineteenth and Twenty-eighth regiments of infantry; D Co., Second Battalion of Engineers, Field Hospital No. 3, Ambulance Corps, No. 3, and one Signal Corps company from Ft. Leavenworth.

THREE PACK TRAINS.

A subsequent order attached to this brigade three army pack trains, each of sixty mules, one from Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., one from Ft. Robinson, Neb., and one from the Presidio of San Francisco. Also to supply a sufficient force of cavalry to protect the flanks and reconnoiter for the infantry, an order was dispatched to Maj.-Gen. Carter at Chicago, to send to Galveston the Fourth, or Mountain Battery of Field Artillery, commanded by Col. Alexander B. Dyer, stationed at Ft. D. A. Russell, Wyo.

OTHER ORDERS.

Orders also were issued to Gen. Carter to prepare the Fourth Brigade, Second Division, for transportation to Galveston, but not to dispatch them. This comprises the Twenty-third, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh regiments of infantry, commanded by Brig.-Gen. Ramsay D. Potts.

Meanwhile, the First Brigade, First Division, comprising the Third, Fifth and Twenty-ninth regiments of infantry, commanded by Brig.-Gen. Marion P. Maus, with headquarters at Albany, N. Y., is held under preparatory orders.

The three army transports, Sumner, Kilpatrick and McClellan, now en route from Newport News for Galveston, where they are due about Tuesday next, will be joined at that port by the army transport Meade, as soon as that vessel has discharged at Guantanamo the 1200 marines she embarked at Philadelphia early in the week. This is believed to afford ample transportation facilities, at least for the Fifth Brigade.

This represents probably all the preparations that will be undertaken in the closing days of the present administration to meet any emergency in the Mexican situation.

TROOPS AFFECTED.

The regiments affected by the orders are the Fourth Infantry, Ft. Crook, Neb., and Ft. Snelling, Minn., the Seventh at Ft. Leavenworth, the Nineteenth at Ft. Leavenworth, Ft. Meade, S. D., and Ft. Sill, Okla., and the Twenty-eighth Infantry at Ft. Snelling.

These troops are in movement as nearly a week ago the division commander, was instructed to have them placed in position for immediate foreign service.

All railroad transportation facilities have been arranged; wagons have been provided; the soldiers have packed their haversacks, rolled their tents and blankets and are ready to entrain within an hour after they have received the order. It is calculated that some of the troops will begin to arrive in Galveston by tomorrow night or Monday morning, and the entire brigade should be ready to embark if necessary on the army transports Kilpatrick, Sumner and McClellan upon the arrival of those vessels at Galveston.

AS A CASUS BELLI.

A summary execution of Madero, regarded as the constitutional President of Mexico, and his constitutional advisers, without due process of law, might possibly be interpreted as demonstrating the absence of proper government in Mexico, and of the existence of a practical state of anarchy, according to some of the administration officials. However, it was positively stated today that there was no present intention of utilizing the armed forces of the United States to break up the attitude of President Taft's administration, but it will be left to President Woodrow Wilson and his Secretary of State to determine what shall be done. Meanwhile the outgoing administration regards it as a duty to assemble a sufficient military and naval force at the most convenient point of embarkation to be available if the next administration wishes to use it.

Supplementing the infantry regiments there will be attached to the expeditionary force a company of engineers from either the Second or Third battalion, in the discretion of Gen. Carter; Field Hospital No. 3, and Ambulance Company No. 3, and Co. D, Signal Corps, all now stationed at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

A sufficient artillery force has already been attached to the brigade in the Fourth Field Artillery (mounted,) stationed at Ft. D. A. Russell, Wyo. These orders should bring the Fifth Brigade, assembled at Galveston, up to an effective strength of about 3500 men. The troops will be temporarily stationed at Ft. Crockett, on Galveston Island, and the supply depot will be established at Texas City.

As infantry as a rule, cannot accomplish much without cavalry support, if the present policy of making ready for eventualities is to be pursued to a logical conclusion, today's order to the infantry probably will be followed soon by another order to Gen. Carter to assemble at Galveston the Second Cavalry Division, commanded by Brig.-Gen. Tasker H. Bliss. This is composed of the Fifth and Ninth Cavalry. The troops are scattered through Texas and New Mexico.

ACCEPT NEW ORDER.

Huerta Regime Is Finding More General Favor, According to Reports from the Consuls.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Consular reports today indicate a more general acceptance of the new order of things in Mexico. At Vera Cruz, where serious resistance was threatened, Consul Canada reports the military authorities have acquiesced and will work with the new administration. The Consul at Mazatlan reports recognition of the provisional government and Gen. Huerta by the State of Sinaloa, which also has shown signs of resistance. The same is true of the state of Nuevo Leon. But most important of all is the reported declaration of Gov. Carranza that local opposition in Saltillo has been abandoned and that he will act in harmony with the new provisional government. The only sign of discord reported today is in the outlying district of Acapulco. Government troops from the Acosta Grande region, however, have been concentrated there.

There is some doubt as to the attitude of the people of Cananea and that of the troops at Agua Prieta. There is a report of rebel activity near San Luis Potosi and a demand for the surrender of that town, but nothing to indicate what rebels these are.

Train service still is irregular throughout Mexico, though the capital is in communication with Vera Cruz. Consul-General Shanklin at Mexico City reports the Heyser family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney J. Ride, the Julio Limatour family and the Mendizabel family are safe and well.

Huerta Supporter Leaves Los Angeles With Former Mexican Consul to Assume Governorship of Sonora and to Pacify Gomez, Salazar, Campa and Other Leaders.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Feb. 22.—Manuel Mascarenas, Jr., who reached here today from Los Angeles, Cal., and made the statement that he had been appointed provisional Governor of the Mexican State of Sonora by provisional President Huerta, of Mexico, declared also that he had been authorized by Huerta to stop at El Paso, Tex., to confer with Emilio Vasquez Gomez and with Inez Salazar, the rebel leader.

Mascarenas, who formerly was a follower of Salazar, stated that he also had Huerta's authorization to attend at Palomas near the international border a meeting of lesser rebel chiefs including Campa, Rojas and Caraveo.

Mascarenas said that if Gov. Maytorena of Sonora failed to support the new government of Mexico, he would "start something" with cannon in Sonora.

Mascarenas was accompanied by Arturo Elias, Mexican Consul at Los Angeles under Porfirio Diaz, who, it was stated, had been named provisional Vice-Governor of Sonora by Huerta.

CASTRO LEAVES FOR CUBA.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Gen. Cipriano Castro, ex-President of Venezuela, left New York suddenly today for Cuba on the Ward liner Saratoga. He said there was nothing secret about his trip, that it was merely for pleasure and that he would return to New York some time in March. The general said he felt confident that he would defeat the government in its appeal to the Supreme Court from the District Court decision allowing him to enter this country.

Annual State Conference of Iroquois Clubs.

Steal of Republican Party Name Condemned.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—Democrats who met here today at the annual State conference of Iroquois Clubs found much to object to in the administration of both State and national affairs, but their criticism was not altogether destructive, and they approved a prospectus of proposed legislation, much of which was included in the State platform of the party.

After a long debate the question of free tolls for American ships passing through the Panama Canal was stricken from the resolutions, which were later adopted. The bill to subject immigrants to a literacy test vetoed by President Taft was indorsed.

The views of the conference on the present State administration were set forth as follows:

"We condemn the present State administration on the following grounds:

FIVE INDICTMENTS.

"(1.) Extravagance. (2.) Bad management. (3.) Control of the Legislature by political patronage. (4.) The unequal taxation of corporations, by which certain corporations are unjustly favored. (5.) The manipulation of the State tax assessment so that small corporations have been forced to pay a heavy tax, which was intended by the people to be paid by public service corporations enjoying special privileges."

MEASURES APPROVED.

Among the issues to which the conference gave its approval were the following: "The interchange of international peace treaties binding nations to the arbitration of national disputes and limiting their armament.

The immediate recognition of the Chinese republic.

The reduction of the tariff with especial reference to trust-controlled goods.

The passage of the anti-injunction bill recommended by the American Federation of Labor.

The enactment of a measure providing for better manning and equipment of ships.

The establishment of a government line of steamships between San Francisco and Panama and intermediate points.

Among other State and national measures indorsed were several introduced by the Democratic Congressman from California, John E. Raker. They include an Asiatic exclusion bill, the Hetch Hetchy bill giving to San Francisco the desired water rights, and the school bond bill, which provides that funds of postal savings banks may be used to purchase local school bonds.

DENOUNCE PARTY STEAL.

The present State primary law and the "stealing of the name of a political party" were condemned.

"YOU'RE WRONG" SAYS ESHELMAN.

State Commissioner Disagrees With Attorney-General.

Is Willing to Accept All Blame for Presumptions.

Dissolution of Pacific Railways in the Balance.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—John Eshelman, president of the Railroad Commission of California, flatly disagrees with United States Atttorney-General Wickersham. The variance of opinion comes in consideration of the plan for the dissolution of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroad company interests.

While examining William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific Company, today on the witness stand as to the manner in which the plans were drawn, Eshelman said he believed the Attorney-General to be entirely wrong in his opinion that, under the recent dissolution decision of the United States Supreme Court, the only way to carry out the court order was to permit the sale of the stock of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, owned by the Southern Pacific, to the Union Pacific Company.

ACCEPTED THE BLAME.

"It may be presumptious on the part of this board to criticise the Attorney-General in this matter, but assume this board is presumptious. No matter if we are, I will say that I do not think there is a thing in the opinion of the Supreme Court to justify the decision the Attorney-General has reached."

A WAY OUT.

The board intimated that the dissolution might be brought about by the purchase of the Central Pacific line from Ogden, Utah, to Sacramento, Cal., by the Union Pacific, with trackage rights over the Southern Pacific rails to San Francisco Bay, or by an exclusive lease of the Central Pacific to the Union Pacific. It was shown that the Union Pacific insisted upon the purchase of the stock, and Eshelman remarked that it seemed peculiar that the company should do so since it was not in a favorable position under the court order.

SPROULE TALKS.

Sproule said that the directors of the Southern Pacific considered it a fine opportunity to sell Central Pacific at about $123 a share, a higher price than could be had at the time for any other 6 per cent. railroad stock.

The railroad president informed the board that the plan of dissolution would do away with the Southern Pacific shops at Roseville, Sacramento and Oakland, in California, but that there would probably be an arrangement to do the Southern Pacific work in the Union Pacific shops at these points. He also said that new shops probably would be built by the Southern Pacific but did not give their location.

The witness said that the dissolution would make the Southern Pacific a direct competitor of the Union Pacific.

"The Southern Pacific hitherto has been an ally of the Union Pacific over the Ogden route east," said Sproule. "Hereafter, if the plans carry, we will be in active competition over the Sunset route by way of El Paso.

"The Southern Pacific directors were content to sell Central Pacific stock because we felt it was a good price we were receiving and besides we needed the money. We were in a predicament. The Attorney-General told us that if we did not sell he would compel us to by recourse to law and we saw interminable litigation ahead of us that would have impaired our credit. Under these conditions we could not borrow money and we've got to have it."

Sproule discussed the effect the Panama Canal would have on transcontinental railroad rates.

"If the ships can carry freight at a low rate through the canal," he said, "it will probably mean a reduction of railroad rates between the Atlantic and the Pacific. Of course, there will be enough freight left over after the ships take their share to leave us some business. The railroads will handle all the deciduous fruits and most of the canned stuffs from California.

"It must be remembered that only low rates will be mantained on the business between the coasts that will compete both ways. This is the only way the trade could profitably be carried on."

A session Monday may be necessary to permit the Western Pacific to complete its case in protest against the right of the Union Pacific to have joint use with the Southern Pacific of the latter's lines between Oakland and Sacramento.

Eshelman agreed with the attorneys that the findings of the California Railroad Commission might be presented to the United States District Court at St. Louis when another phase of the dissolution situation is called for hearing there.

CALLS IT A "LAME DUCK."

Lovett Declares the Western Pacific Is Merely Trying to Unload Its Bag of Debts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OMAHA (Neb.) Feb. 22.—"The Western Pacific is a lame duck," said Judge Lovett, chairman of the executive board of the Union Pacific, who passed through here this evening en route from [illegible] to St. Louis. Judge Lovett declared his belief that the owners of the Western Pacific were trying to unload the property on the Union Pacific and were attempting to take advantage of California conditions to force his road to take over the property.

The plan approved by Atty.-Gen. Wickersham for unmerging the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific will come up Monday before the Circuit Judges Sanborn, [illegible] and Adams in St. Louis and will be argued by Judge Lovett. He expressed a fear that in the event of the California commission failing to [illegible] the rights of the Central Pacific terminals which is part of the general scheme of unmerging the two systems the whole plan would fail.

"Owners of the Western Pacific are [illegible] before the California Railroad Commission," Judge [illegible] plan is approved by the court and the Union Pacific acquires the Central Pacific, all hope of unloading the Western Pacific on the Union Pacific will be gone. I believe it is for that reason alone that they are opposing the present plan. It is simply an effort on the part of the owners of the Western Pacific to use the California condition to further this object.

"The tracks and terminals in question belong to the Central Pacific and to the Southern Pacific and the Western Pacific has not the shadow of right or title to their use.

"I am bound to believe, therefore, they are merely trying to get the California Railroad Commission to impose terms and conditions so onerous and unjust as to defeat the plan and thus leave the Western Pacific some hope of making a trade with the Union Pacific. But that hope apparently has little basis since the Union and Central Pacific are natural connections and were built under acts of Congress as a continuous system from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean."

Judge Lovett expressed satisfaction with the general plan approved by Atty.-Gen. Wickersham for divorcing the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific and believed the Circuit Court would make a decree approving it. He departed tonight for St. Louis.

BASIS OF THE OPPOSITION.

Wheeler Says Proposed Dissolution Spells Exactly What the Supreme Court Has Forbidden.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—Charles S. Wheeler, attorney for the Western Pacific Railroad Company, indicated today before the Railroad Commission that he would base his opposition to the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific dissolution scheme principally upon the contention that its adoption would permit a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and would defeat the decree of the Supreme Court of the United States that Union Pacific stockholders cannot purchase the stock of the Southern Pacific Company.

In addressing the commision he said:

"The proposed agreement purports to give an exclusive lease to the Union Pacific of the Southern Pacific tracks from Oakland to Sacramento, via Benicia, Cal.

"This means that although the Western Pacific or any other transcontinental road were willing to buy and the Southern Pacific were willing to sell the joint use of the tracks, nevertheless such transfer could not be made without the consent of the Union Pacific.

"Judge Lovett, chairman of the board of directors of the Union Pacific, testified here that there is the same power implied in the proposed agreement for the joint use of the terminal facilities and industrial tracks. Such arrangements as all of these, are, we insist, contrary to the Sherman anti-trust law."

Wheeler pointed out that some 300 stockholders in the Union Pacific control 63 per cent. of the company's stock, while the remaining 37 per cent. is owned by nearly 22,000 individuals. A syndicate of New York bankers, headed by Kuhn Loeb & Co. has underwritten the Southern Pacific stock not taken up by the "outsider" stockholders in the two companies. These number 40,000 persons.

"Under the proposed arrangement," said Wheeler, "these Union Pacific stockholders will be entitled as a matter of right to about 29 per cent. of the total Southern Pacific stock. Starting with this, it will be only necessary for a relatively small percentage to fall to them through the underwriting syndicate in order to leave the domination of the Southern Pacific with them.

"Mr. Harriman acquired this domination with 37½ per cent. The Supreme Court formally adjudges that 46 per cent. is sufficient to control any great corporation and it is safe to say the proposed arrangement will yield at least a dominating percentage into the hands of the Union Pacific stockholders. This is what the Supreme Court has declared must not be done."

William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific, was on the stand during the afternoon.

The order, either approving or disapproving the plan submitted by the two companies for dissolution, will be made Monday night by the Railroad Commision, after another all-day hearing. The attorneys present at the meeting agreed that while the decision of the commission could not be binding as affecting any other portion of the roads than those in California, it would be submitted to the United States District Court at St. Louis where another phase of the plan is yet to be heard. The case comes up there Monday, but a telegram was sent today to Atty.-Gen. Wickersham in St. Louis asking a continuance until Tuesday. The local decision will be forwarded.

The Western Pacific will present its case here Monday on the protest made.

DECLARES MINISTER LIED.

Because Pastor Breaks Promise Not to Preach, Clerk of Presbytery Makes Public His Conviction.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

COFFEYVILLE (Kan.) Feb. 22.—Learning that the Rev. Percival Barker, at present pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church at Newark, N. J., had violated his agreement with the Neosho Presbytery by which he was not to seek employment as a minister until January 14, 1914, E. L. Coombs, clerk of the assembly, gave out today a statement that a committee of the Presbytery on January 14 last found Barker guilty of lying. A charge of forgery, investigated by the committee, was not sustained.

Upon Barker's request, and to enable him to re-establish himself in the ministry, the committee agreed to keep the findings secret, providing Barker would desist from preaching for one year. Upon discovering Barker had violated that agreement, the charges were made public.

SOLVES DEATH MYSTERY.

Soot, not Poisoned Kisses, Probably Killed Maryland Couple on Eve of Their Wedding.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CUMBERLAND (Md.) Feb. 22.—The mystery of the death of Charles Twigg and Grace Elosser in a room of the Elosser home on the last day of December, 1910, which was on the eve of the proposed marriage of the couple, is believed to have been solved. Mrs. Marshall Willison and her sister, Mrs. Pearl Mangold, the present occupants of the house in which the Twigg-Elosser tragedy occurred two years ago, were overcome yesterday by carbon monoxide gas. The two women were rescued by a neighbor, who rushed in and dragged them to the open air, where they were resuscitated.

The theory of poisoned "kisses" was one of the several theories advanced at the time of the double tragedy, but Mrs. Louisa E. Elosser, mother of the dead girl, believed it was carbon monoxide gas that had killed the two.

In the old Elosser home pieces of brick had been placed in the chimney to lessen the draught. An accumulation of soot had later completely clogged the aperture and the gas had overcome the two women.

Weather Bureau Issues a Frost Warning.

Freezing Weather Reported in Sacramento Valley.

Damage to Apricots and Almonds Slight.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) Feb. 22.—Orchardists have been advised by the Weather Bureau to smudge and use every available means to protect their trees from the effects of a severe frost which is predicted tonight.

The thermometer dropped several degrees below freezing point last night throughout the Sacramento Valley and some damage was done to almonds and apricots in blossom.

Trees which sustained the most damage were those that had recently been irrigated and were standing in damp soil.

ONLY EARLY VARIETIES HURT.

T. C. Tucker, manager of the California Almond Exchange, said today that only the early varieties of almonds, such as I.X.L. and ne plus, were in bloom at this season. No other trees have been harmed. Growers are more apprehensive of the results of frost when the trees are shedding their bloom, which will be about two weeks hence.

C. F. Howland of the Earl Fruit Company agreed with the manager of the Almond Exchange. He said the first reports of damage are usually exaggerated and expects that a fair crop will be realized.

LOVE LETTERS FILL HER TRUNK.

DETECTIVE WILL DESTROY TORRID MISSIVES.

Mrs. Vivien Lyons to Be Ordered Out of San Francisco Under Pain of Imprisonment—She Demands Effects Taken the Morning After Accidental Shooting of Widney.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] Mrs. Vivien Lyons, freed from the charge of assault with intent to murder by the refusal of Robert J. Widney to prosecute, is to be ordered out of San Francisco under pain of imprisonment for vagrancy in the event of her refusal to go.

Captain of Detectives John Mooney had an interview with her today. He declares action is based on a trunk full of letters which she had in her possession, but which Mooney now declares he will destroy.

She called for her effects, taken from her apartment the morning after she shot R. J. Widney, the real estate man. Among these effects was the trunk full of love letters, addressed to her, which Capt. Mooney declares are exceedingly torrid in their contents and phraseology.

Some of the letters, says Mooney, bear the signatures of men well known in this and other cities.

SAVED EVERY NOTE.

Judging from the number of love letters, says Mooney, Mrs. Lyons evidently made a practice of keeping every note and scrap of paper which was addressed to her. His reason for retaining and destroying the passionate epistles is to prevent all possibility that they might ever be used for blackmailing purposes.

MRS. LYONS IN TEARS.

When Mrs. Lyons asked for the letters and was refused, she lost her temper and talked to Capt. Mooney in a frank and outspoken manner. She departed in tears. Capt. Mooney thought it over, and later announced that he was going to send a detective to search for the woman, and would order her, when found, to leave the city.

She is said to have been the wife of a Denver insurance man and to have come originally from Akron, O.

COMING HERE FOR HORSE.

Oregon Man Has Hunch That His Stolen Steed Was Shipped to Southern California.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LA GRANDE (Or.) Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] To go to Los Angeles to identify a horse which he says was stolen by two young men of this valley, is the mission of E. D. Whiting of Mount Glenn.

He asserts the two men whom Sheriff Hug has under arrest took the horse and sold it to a man who unwittingly shipped the animal to Southern California.

FATAL LEAP FROM TRAIN.

Ex-Convict's Effort to Escape Arrest Reveals That Another Man's Wife Was Awaiting His Arrival.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) Feb. 22.—Jumping from a passenger train moving at the rate of forty miles an hour at Walerga, eight miles from Roseville, this morning, in order that he might escape arrest at the hands of Railroad Policeman Cornish, Wesley Frazier, alias Thomas A. Duffy, was fatally injured.

Mrs. Nona Osborne, young and pretty wife of a Lovelock (Nev.) man, was waiting for him at the Sacramento Southern Pacific depot.

Frazier had robbed H. Goodman, a Sacramento carpenter, on the train near Reno. Conductor Gascoigne telegraphed ahead to Roseville asking that an officer board the train and look for the thief.

Mrs. Osborne admitted that she was waiting here for Frazier. She said he had been sentenced to two years in Folsom from San Francisco for white slavery two years ago and had been released from Folsom a short time ago. She admitted that she had testified against Frazier in San Francisco and was instrumental in sending him to prison.

A letter found in Frazier's pocket and signed "Mamma" warned Frazier not to go to Lovelock as Mrs. Osborne did not dare go there, because her husband was there and would be likely to shoot Frazier.

SAY GOOD-BY TO RENO.

Last Social Function in the Famous Divorce Colony Is Attended by the Governor.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO (Nev.) Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] Marking what is perhaps the last elaborate social function of the Reno divorce colony, Mrs. Agnes McMurdo Silver, formerly of New York, where her husband, John Archer Silver, was professor in a university before the wife secured a divorce in Reno, tonight gave a dinner party to seventy-five guests, including the Governor of the State, Tasker L. Oddie, who signed the bill which means the abolition of the divorce colony after January 1, 1914; justices of the Supreme Court, members of the Legislature, Councilmen of the city of Reno, bankers, attorneys, city officials and others.

The dinner was held in the provincial dining-room of the colony cafe, the color scheme being lavender and white. Each lady was presented with corsage bouquets of perfumed violets. Probably the most elaborate and costly gowns ever seen in Reno were displayed. Following the dinner the party adjourned to Odd Fellows' Hall, appropriately decorated for the occasion. Here the festivities were continued for hours.

DEATH ENDS HIS GRIEF. KILLED BY A TRAIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 22.—C. M. Trask, aged 70 years, was killed by fast passenger train No. 3, on the Southern Pacific, in front of the depot at Elk Grove this morning. Trask had been grieving over the death of his wife three weeks ago and it is thought by some of his friends that he deliberately walked in front of the moving train.

HOO-HOOS TO BUILD.

At Dinner to the Snark of Universe They Discuss Structure of Native Woods for the Exposition.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At a dinner given at the Commercial Club in honor of F. W. Trower, Snark of the Universe of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, preliminary steps were taken last night for the erection of a Hoo-Hoo and lumbermen's building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915.

Present at the dinner were members of the Hoo-Hoo of this city, and the matter was discussed in an informal way with Mr. Trower, who hails from San Francisco.

L. M. Leiter, one of the most prominent and active members of the order in this district, was selected by Mr. Trower to arouse interest in this State in the project and to confer with delegates from other sections.

It is proposed by the projectors that the building contain seven or eight rooms finished in the native woods of the various States represented. Thus Oregon would display its fir, spruce and red cedar; Montana, larch; Idaho, western pine; California, redwood, sugar and white pine.

DIES ON ANNIVERSARY EVE.

Stockton Woman, Aged Eighty-eight Years, a California Pioneer, Succumbs to La Grippe.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Elizabeth Liegingar, a pioneer of this city, died this morning at the family residence after a long illness. She was 88 years of age. Death followed an attack of la grippe, the aged woman having been in a weakened condition for a year or more. When the end came, she was surrounded by members of the family. For more than a year her daughter, Miss Ellen Liegvinger, had been at her bedside.

If Mrs. Lieginger had lived until tomorrow she would have seen her sixty-fifth wedding anniversary. Mrs. Lieginger came to Stockton from Iowa in September, 1853.

Ten Own Nearly Half of California Timber Lands.

Forester Is Finding Fault With Property Tax.

Says It Forestalls Private Enterprise in State.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE [illegible]]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) Feb. 22.—Ten large corporations own [illegible] per cent. of all the privately-owned timber land in California, the [illegible] amounting to 2,443,994, according to the biennial report of State Forester Homans, issued from the State printing office late yesterday afternoon.

The Central Pacific Railroad holds 921,311 acres, the largest holding of all. This constitutes lands granted by the government as an inducement for the construction of the road. [illegible] B. Walker and associates hold [illegible] acres and lumber companies [illegible] acreage as follows:

McCloud River, 232,003; [illegible] Match, 159,499; Hammond, [illegible]; Union, 80,250; L. E. White, [illegible]; Weed, 71,458; C. A. Smith, [illegible], and Sierra Nevada, 65,880.

Regarding the taxation method [illegible] referred to forests, Homans says: "The general property tax, in its application to forest investments, should be condemned because it forestalls any effort looking toward the introduction of forestry on private holdings, but not because the owners of such holdings have been burdened more than their just share of the burdens imposed upon them through taxation."

ANOTHER UNION WITHDRAWS.

Split in Federated Trades Council Is Growing Because of [illegible] Unfair List.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With but two dissenting votes, Millmen's local No. [illegible] United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, has decided to withdraw from the Federated Trades Council.

It is reported in labor circles that the reason given by the millmen for withdrawing from the central labor body is that they are dissatisfied with the manner in which the council conducts its affairs, principally in relation to the levying of [illegible] and also handling the "unfair" list.

Up to the present time seven local unions of the building trades have severed their connection with the Federated Trades Council, the following labor organizations having withdrawn their delegations from the central labor body:

Carpenters' Local No. [illegible], [illegible] men's Local No. 1618, Cement Workers' Local No. 12, Painters' and Decorators' Local No. 487, Bridge and Structural Ironworkers' Local No. 118, Plasterers' Local and [illegible] and Glass Workers' Local No. [illegible].

OIL MAN IS MISSING.

Sacramento Business Man Disappears From Santa Barbara—Vigilant Search Fails to Trace Him.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That the disappearance of R. B. Pate, who left for Santa Barbara two weeks ago last Tuesday on business connected with oil [illegible] must be relegated to the category of unsolved mysteries is the fear of his distracted wife.

Pate, who was associated with C. M. King, a local auto dealer, left for the southern city on the date mentioned, and wrote Mrs. Pate [illegible] on the following Thursday announcing his safe arrival. The next day he telegraphed C. M. King for [illegible], which was sent and acknowledged.

Since that time no communication has been received from him by the distracted wife, and he has dropped from sight completely, although well known in Santa Barbara.

H. Evans, stepson, has been in Santa Barbara for the last [illegible] searching for his relative. He has telegraphed to [illegible], where Pate formerly resided, [illegible] but without result.

Rev. L. S. Jones [illegible] Pate was a thoroughly [illegible] man, a high Mason, and had prospects of a large fortune. His home life was harmonious and he never touched liquor in any form.

A vigilant search for Pate is being made in the Santa [illegible] under the direction of [illegible] of the missing man.

The Armour Company alleged that the indictment was invalid as it was against the Armour Packing Company of New Jersey, while the Armour Company that does business in Savannah was incorporated under the laws of Louisiana. The court held that Armour & Company has to be again served, and that Swift & Company of New Jersey never having done business in Savannah, the indictments would not hold.

WATER FIGHT PARTIALLY WON.

San Francisco May Use the Hetch-Hetchy Site.

Fisher Expected to Abide by Army Decision.

Calculations of a Century Hence Are Involved.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—San Francisco's fight for the use of Hetch-Hetchy Valley as a reservoir site was won by the city today as far as the army advisory board, on which Secretary Fisher's decision will be based, is concerned. The board declares the Hetch-Hetchy project is $20,000,000 cheaper than any other feasible project for furnishing an adequate supply of water to the city.

RECAPITULATION.

The water situation that will confront the communities around San Francisco Bay, if the plan is adopted by Secretary Fisher, as is probable within a week, is recapitulated by the Army Advisory Board as follows:

Purchase of Spring Valley Water Company, $35,000,000 to $40,000,000.

Further development of this company's system to about half the extent proposed by the company, $10,000,000.

Purchase of water systems of communities outside of San Francisco, no estimate made.

Construction of Tuolumne system as proposed by San Francisco to be extended over about fifty years, $77,000,000.

"Against the expenditures there will be developed 115,000 horse power, having an estimated capitalized net value of $45,000,000.

THE SITE.

The Hetch-Hetchy Valley is in the Sierra Mountains, within the Yosemite National Park. Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda, San Jose, Redwood, Palo Alto and other near-by communities have indicated a desire to participate in the benefits of the supply. The board's report points out that in a relatively few years practically all available water in California doubtless will be appropriated for irrigation or water-power development and it will then be possible to obtain water for municipal use only at great cost and damage to existing communities and industries.

"In making provisions for future supply of San Francisco and other bay cities," it adds, "a source should be selected if possible that is capable of supplying the needs of the communities for the balance of this century."

The board estimates the population of the San Francisco Bay region in the year 2000 at 2,632,000.

The board declares that the use of the Hetch-Hetchy Valley as a reservoir site is necessary if the full flow of the upper Tuolumne River is to be conserved, and that there will be sufficient water if adequately stored and economically used to supply both the reasonable needs of the Turlock-Modesto irrigation district and the bay cities for the remainder of this century.

ITS ADVANTAGES.

The Hetch-Hetchy has the advantage of permitting the development of a greater amount of water power than any other project.

The board adds:

"The best available sources of water supply outside of the Tuolumne River appear to be the filtered Sacramento project, the McCloud, combination of Lake Eleanor-Cherry-Stanislaus and Mokelumne (the city's apparent second choice, though largely in excess of either the McCloud or Sacramento projects), and the American - Consumnes - Stanislaus-Mokelumne projects. For a smaller supply the Eel River or the Yuba River could be used but they do not lend themselves economically to combination with other sources.

"The board believes that on account of the fertility of the lands under irrigation and their aridness without water, the necessity of preserving all available water in the valley of California will sooner or later make the demand for the use of the Hetch Hetchy Valley as a reservoir practically irresistible. The delay of a few years in transforming the Hetch Hetchy Valley into a reservoir is not of importance, and therefore the board does not think it necessary to require delaying the construction of this reservoir until the Lake Eleanor and Cherry sources have been fully developed. The proposed city regulations will be sufficient to protect the waters from pollution and tend toward the protection of and not be onerous to the campers. The board recommends, however, that the Interior Department permit to the city require the city to take other means, such as filtration, to purify its water supply if these regulations ever are deemed insufficient."

"HAPPY, HAPPY DAY." MAYOR ROLPH EXULTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—"This is the best holiday present San Francisco and the bay cities could have received," exclaimed Mayor Rolph today, when word was carried to him that the Assembly Advisory Board had recommended the Hetch Hetchy as a source of water supply. "My only hope now is that Secretary Fisher will go ahead and give us a full and unconditional permit. We want to get to work." There are now negotiations pending between the city and the Spring Valley Water Company, the present source of supply. What effect the decision of the board will have on the city's chance to acquire Spring Valley as a distributing system, the Mayor did not care to say on such short notice.

WRITES HIS OWN EPITAPH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Feb. 22.—An epitaph in Latin and instructions for funeral and burial were found today among papers left by Bishop John Joseph Hogan of the Catholic Diocese of Western Missouri, who died here yesterday. It was the bishop's wish that no flowers be used at the funeral and that the funeral be not "conducted through thronged thoroughfares, but rather through the least frequented streets of the city." The directions and epitaph were in a letter addressed to Bishop Thomas F. Lillis, coadjutor. The suggested epitaph, translated, read: "Herein are buried the ashes of John Joseph Hogan, first bishop of Kansas City. Born in the year 1829—Pray for him."

SIBERIAN FUGITIVE DEAD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Count Francis von Detling, a Russian, died yesterday in St. Anthony's Hospital. Von Detling had escaped from Siberia, where he had been exiled by Russia. His name and title were found in papers opened by the police today. He shot himself two days ago in a public park. A photograph of the dead man found among his effects was inscribed, "To my son, Ladislaw von Detling, Graniteville, Mass." Count von Detling appeared to be not in want of money. "I have found no honest person in the world," was an expression in one of four letters written in the Russian language which Von Detling wrote shortly before he shot himself. He had been living alone in this city for several months.

Robert Maher cut a hole in the board wall with an axe, took out the four blind kittens and then went on fighting the flames.

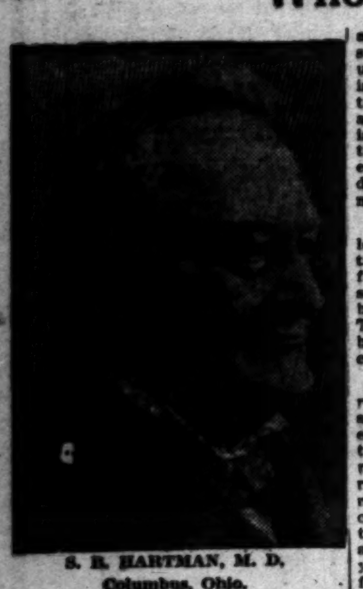
The World's Best Medicines!

Who Discovered Them, The People?



S. B. HARTMAN, M. D.,
Columbus, Ohio.

I am manufacturing five different remedies, which are supplied to the regular drug trade, for use in the home. In my writings I rarely speak of but one of these remedies, Peruna, but there are four others which I am continually prescribing.

There is, first, Manalin, which is an up-to-date laxative. Pleasant to take. If the children do not cry for it, at least they do not object to it. As a matter of fact, I know one child that actually cries for it, every time he sees the bottle. Manalin is, of course, useful in all cases where a laxative is needed. Billousness or constipation. Always at the beginning of an acute disease a full dose of Manalin is to be advised. It can be given to the youngest baby and is perfectly effective for older people. It is not drastic. Produces very nearly a natural movement of the bowels.

Then I also have the Manalin Tablets, which are similar in composition to the fluid Manalin. In tablet form they are more convenient for some people. I believe them to be the best laxative tablet in the market. They are certainly made of the very best material, and constitute a safe, convenient and effective laxative.

Then there is the Lacupia, a blood remedy. This remedy I regard as an alterative of first-class quality in every particular. It is strictly vegetable, free from the usual mineral poisons that are used in alterative remedies. It is specifically a blood medicine. Sores of all sorts, blood contaminations of every kind, are treated with Lacupia. If you have a running sore, external or internal, your blood is contaminated, by infection or otherwise, Lacupia, taken according to the directions on the bottle, is sure to produce beneficial results. In most cases it can be relied upon to entirely eradicate the trouble. In any case where it seems to fail a letter to me will be given prompt attention and I will endeavor to discover why a complete cure has not be experienced.

The Peruna I am speaking of so frequently I need not describe at length. It is my old-time catarrh remedy with a laxative element added. As it stands today it is without a rival as a tonic laxative. Applicable to all cases of catarrh, whether the catarrh is located in the head, nose, throat, or whether in the stomach, bowels or lower organs, or in the larynx, bronchial tubes or lungs, or whether in the kidneys or other pelvic organs. In all cases of catarrh Peruna is my remedy.

Besides the Peruna I am manufacturing Peruna Tablets. The Peruna Tablets contain essentially the same ingredients as the fluid Peruna. In some cases it is more convenient for a patient to be able to carry tablets in the pocket. They have been manufactured on purpose to meet such cases. I manufacture the Peruna Tablet in my own laboratory, the same as the Manalin Tablets, and I can guarantee them to be perfectly pure, free from all objectionable materials and in a condition to be readily absorbed by the stomach.

Yes, I have five remedies. First, the Peruna and the Peruna Tablets. Second, the Manalin and the Manalin Tablets. Third, the Lacupia. These are manufactured in my own laboratory and I can personally vouch for their purity and effectiveness.

It seems to me that any household provided with Peruna, Manalin and Lacupia would be ready to meet most of the ailments to which the human family is subject. Surely there are no better remedies to be obtained for the purposes for which I recommend them. There are no remedies that can excel them in composition or pharmaceutical skill. The material used in them all is the best and purest. No. 53.

GETS HISTORIC CAMP.

Department of Interior Confirms to Dr. Bullington at Oroville Title to Belden Tract.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OROVILLE, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. P. F. Bullington has received a decision from the Department of the Interior confirming his title to the property at Belden, upon which the hotel and resort and townsite are situated.

The decision ends a long standing dispute. Since the activity of the Oro Electric Corporation there, the property has greatly enhanced in value. The decision affects forty acres of land on Long Bar, one of the historic camps during the early days of California.

The land was originally located by Robert Belden, father of the present occupant, and three other partners. The partners interest was acquired by Dr. Bullington. Belden refused to pay his share of the assessments and through advertisement his share was acquired by Dr. Bullington for the delinquent assessments. The case was carried to the Land Office, where Dr. Bullington lost. He appealed to the Department of the Interior, which in the decision affirms his title to the property.

STALLS TRAINS, SNAPS WIRES.

Belated Blizzard Sweeps the Middle West.

Fifty-Mile Tempest Rages on Great Lakes.

Cold Wave Strikes Florida and Louisiana.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Middle Western States are in the grip of a belated winter storm that is doing vast damage because of its unseasonableness and the fact that it was practically unexpected. Violent sleet storms of yesterday and the day before are being followed by very high winds and blizzards, which are snapping telegraph and telephone wires, blocking elevated and other roads using the third-rail electrical power, freezing interlocking switches and thus blocking steam traffic. Fierce blizzards are prevailing tonight in Minnesota, Wisconsin and portions of Michigan, Nebraska, Illinois and Iowa. Northern Indiana also is a heavy sufferer from the storm.

RAILWAY TRAFFIC BLOCKADED.

Over the territory of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers a heavy snowstorm is raging, sufficient to delay, and in some instances entirely blockade railway traffic. The unusually high wind is causing the snow to drift badly and the roads will have to send out plows and gangs of shovelers to clear the tracks. It will be many hours before the tracks can be traversed after the snowfall ceases and there is no indication this evening of any cessation of the storm. The wind seems to be increasing and the temperature is falling rapidly, caking the drifts down into a hard mass.

FISHERMEN IMPERILED.

Over Lakes Michigan and Superior a tempest exceeding fifty miles an hour is raging. Grave fears are felt for the safety of parties of fishermen who ventured out, following the unusually mild weather Friday and who have not been located. Friends hope they may have found shelter in some cove along the shore remote from telegraph stations and will be heard from later. The fact that all wires are down lends hope that the men are safe, but unable to communicate with their relatives.

TRAVELING WESTWARD.

Snow is falling tonight in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Colorado and Canada and rain is reported in New York, Massachusetts, Florida, Louisiana and Alabama; the present storm appears to have originated in the upper lakes region and is traveling westward. There has been a drop of more than thirty degrees in the temperature over the affected district in as many hours.

DOWN TO ZERO.

There still remains plenty of cold weather in the West. Colorado six below at various stations, the same temperature prevailing over Western Canada, while North Dakota ranges from zero to four below.

The lower temperature seems also to have spread to the southeastern gulf coast country. Shreveport, La., reports a minimum of thirty-six above tonight, which is extremely close to the destruction point for the vast area of garden truck and early fruits. Lower Florida reports a drop of an average of eight degrees and rain is falling. The latter condition, however, has prevailed all of the winter, much to the disgust and discomfort of thousands of tourists who spent the winter months in the "Sunny South" which, of recent years, has come to be known as the "More or Less Sunny South," with considerable emphasis on the "Less."

LOSS IS MILLIONS.

The loss from broken telegraph and telephone wires to the railroads and to shipping from the present storm will run into millions. Just as the railroads were congratulating themselves on having passed through a winter unmarked by snow blockades, they are called upon to face enormous expense in battling for the right of way in the worst storm of the season and which is still in progress with no sign of a let up.

TRY IT! SAYS SAGE TEA DARKENS AND BEAUTIFIES FADED, GRAY HAIR

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft and Luxuriant and Removes Dandruff.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is coming in vogue again, says a well-known downtown druggist. It was our grandmother's treatment and hundreds of women and men too, are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is the most popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply dampen a soft brush or sponge with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight, and by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides prevents dandruff; itching scalp and falling hair. Here, you gray-haired folks, get busy; look years younger.—[Advertisement.

Free Love Hissed.

hand showing the depth of his feeling, answered Quitman as soon as he could bring the delegation to the meeting to order.

"Yes, the marriage relation certainly is but a civil contract under the law," he said, "but the speaker has made the great mistake that is so common nowadays. So, also, is the authority of a mother over her boy a civil one. But it is a sacred duty in both instances. The marriage relation is a sacred one—the love of a mother for her little boy is a sacred one. When you begin the discussion of the civil-contract phase of this question, you entirely overlook the sacred responsibility involved.

"I suppose the speaker would, in carrying out his free love theories, turn the children over to the State. He would expect some government institution to undertake the parentage of his children. That is the greatest mistake of this entire situation. It must be remembered that the mother who bears a child is the best person in the world to rear it. The father of a child is the best person in the world to protect and care for both."

LEGISLATURE INTERESTED.

State Senator Neils Juul said members of the Legislature were as greatly interested in the divorce discussion as the judges and ministers. He indicated that there should be little difficulty in obtaining the passage of the necessary bill at the present session.

At this juncture another man who had been endeavoring to make himself heard for an hour finally decided to begin talking without authority of the chairman. He said he was an American Indian who had studied the divorce situation in both this country and Mexico.

INDIAN'S WARNING.

"Let me warn you against making marriage too difficult, as it has resulted in something approaching free love in Mexico," said he. "Since they began making marriage more difficult down in Mexico 85 per cent. of all of the children born have been illegitimate."

Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh, chairman of the commission, opened the meeting with a plea for aid from the fathers and mothers, without whose assistance, he said, the war on the divorce evil would be a fruitless one. David R. Forgan, president of the National City Bank, was the principal speaker, and he aroused the big assemblage with original ideas on marriage and divorce. Qualifications as to moral, financial and physical standings of marriage applicants were necessary, he said.

SANCTITY OF THE HOME.

"The sanctity of the home is the most important thing in American life," said the banker. "Easy divorce is an enemy to the home. Statistics show that the divorces granted in this country last year numbered fully 100,000; that divorce is increasing more than three times as fast as the population; that the proportion of divorces to population is over seven times as great as it is in Europe, and that the proportion to marriage is steadily growing, being about 1 to 6 in Cook county."

BITTER FEELING AGAINST RYAN.

IRONWORKERS' UNION DIVIDES OVER LEADERSHIP.

Gompers Will Attend Convention of International Association at Indianapolis Presumably at Invitation of President Convicted for Dynamiting.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The convention of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Ironworkers' will be held in this city next week beginning on Monday.

Frank M. Ryan, president of the organization, who has just been released from the Federal prison at Ft. Leavenworth, will be here and will call the convention to order. New officers are to be elected and some of the ironworkers think he may ask a re-election as a vindication, but others believe he will be willing to retire if a vote of confidence is given and they say they are willing to do that. J. E. McClory, acting secretary, will be chosen for that position.

Prominent ironworkers who have expressed themselves in letters to headquarters are divided on the question of electing Ryan, many of them feeling he ought to retire and others advocating that he ought not to be forced out until his case is finally decided. It is not known what he will do as he has given no intimation of his purposes.

EAST IS OPPOSED.

It is said that there is a decided feeling against continuing him in the office and that if a fight is started he is sure to be defeated. The main fight against him is in the East and it is known that it will get very bitter, if Ryan determines to be a candidate. The ironworkers, if Ryan is turned down, will have to make an entirely new slate as all the board members, with two exceptions, are either in prison or out on bond. And the disposition is to clear the organization of all of them and start out new.

Samuel Gompers is coming to attend the convention and is expected to give some advice. Whether Ryan has asked him to come cannot be learned but it is said that he has not been invited by any of the officers here and they do not know the purpose of his visit.

BUT CLERK REJECTS LIVE BABY AS PARCEL.

New York East Side Mother Who Sought to Send Sick Infant to Southern California Then Croons to the Little One: "Please Don't Die!"

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A woman limped into the postoffice today and up to the parcel post window. Her head covered with a shawl, her mended clothes hanging loosely on her scrawny body, her back bent with hard work, she showed the indelible stamp of the East Side.

Toward the clerk behind the window the woman pushed a little bundle, done up in soft cloth and bound with strings. From the string suspended a tag on which had been scrawled laboriously "Missis Beckie Rickowitz, So Caleforna S. Vu S A."

The clerk took the little bundle and tossed it on the scales and made the careless announcement, "Ten and a quarter pounds."

He began to count out the stamps without noticing that the town of California had not been specified. The woman gave a choking little cry as she saw the bundle tossed carelessly on the scales. "Don't," she begged in broken English. "That my baby." "He born four, five days, he seek, afraid he die. Mrs. Rickowitz no live ceety. She lives out in Grass Trees. I send my baby to Mrs. Rickowitz my sis. Then Mr. Baby he no die, in ceety he die sure."

"But we can't send your baby through the mails," the clerk explained and handed the little bundle back tenderly to the woman.

As the realization came to the woman that her baby must go back to the dingy, stuffy, tenement, she broke down, crying over the bundle in her arms as if her heart would break.

As she limped wearily out on to Park Row she crooned to the little bundle: "Don't die, baby, don't die."

UNDERWOOD LOSES CONTROL.

Ways and Means Committee That Is Drafting Tariff Revision Slips Through His Fingers.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] A great stir has been caused in financial and protected tariff circles by the disclosure of the fact that Chairman Underwood has lost control of the Ways and Means Committee. No end of inquiries are pouring in on Washington from manufacturers interested in the situation.

Underwood hopes to regain control and prevent the extreme low tariff men from dominating the tariff programme when the new members are added to the committee after March 4. Three new ones will probably be added. But while Underwood hopes to get the upper hand, it looks as if he would fail and that the tariff situation in the House will be dominated by the Bryan men.

Woodrow Wilson has learned of the situation and is said to demand more concerning it.

Successful Men Are Not Victims of Drink Habit

The Demand of the Day is for High Class, Efficient Men, and the Demand is Always Greater Than the Supply.

Look into the lives of men whom you know have been so-called moderate drinkers. Are they high class and efficient men whose services are in demand? Have they fulfilled the promise of ability? How many have a successful business and happy home? How many are highly esteemed in their community? How many have succumbed to the first serious illness? Moderate drinking soon becomes excessive drinking, which causes physical, mental and financial ruin. The regular drinker is poisoned with alcohol and must have medical treatment—the Neal Treatment—which removes the craving and necessity for drink in three days, without the use of painful, dangerous hypodermic injections.

When the craving for drink becomes stronger than the will-power to resist, the drinker should take the Neal Treatment, at once, if he is to be saved from absolute ruin.

CLEANSE YOUR LIVER AND BOWELS WITH DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Removes the Sour Bile, Gases and Clogged-up Waste Without Gripe or Nausea. No Headaches, Indigestion, Constipation, Biliousness or Coated Tongue.

Foul breath, coated tongue, dull, throbbing headache, stomach sour and full of gases, indigestion, biliousness and a sallow complexion, mean that your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with waste matter; that these drainage organs of the body are obstructed; liver stagnant and stomach full of poisonous gases, sour bile and undigested, fermenting food not properly carried off.

Most of our ills are caused by constipated bowels. We all need a laxative sometimes; nobody can doubt that. The only question is, which one is the best? and that isn't a question any more. Syrup of Figs, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, must act in a harmless, gentle and natural way. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without injury. Its action is the action of fruit—of eating coarse food—of taking exercise. It is a true and effective liver and bowel cleanser and regulator.

Most folks dread physic — they shrink from the taste and after effects. Syrup of Figs is delicious, and, besides, you don't realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the clogged up waste of the system is gently but thoroughly moved on and out of the bowels without griping or weakness.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." This is the old reliable and only genuine. Refuse, with contempt, any other Fig Syrup recommended as good. They are imitations meant to deceive you. Read the label carefully and look for the name California Fig Syrup Company.

INDIAN CHIEFS SEE PRESIDENT.

Ground Broken for Statue at Fort Wadsworth.

Last Assemblage of the Redskins in Gotham.

Lighthouse for the Blind Formally Dedicated.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—President Taft, making what probably is his final public appearance outside of Washington before retiring from the White House, spent one of the most eventful days he has ever passed. Arriving here from Washington in time for breakfast, during the day he broke ground for an Indian monument overlooking the harbor, dedicated a "lighthouse" settlement for the blind after watching sightless children drill, attended a private reception of the Sons of the Revolution at the tavern where Washington read his farewell address, and spoke tonight at a dinner of the American Peace and Arbitration League, which presented him with a gold medal in recognition of his efforts on behalf of universal peace.

A band of Indian chiefs from western reservations watched the "Great White Father" overturn a patch of earth where a sixty-foot statue of an Indian warrior will arise at Ft. Wadsworth, at the spot where the "red men" signed an oath of allegiance to the United States. President Taft, in a brief speech, referred to the North American Indian as an "existing force with great and immediate and direct influence upon the settlement and development of this country by the white races."

FOR THE BLIND.

The "lighthouse" which the President dedicated is the new club building of the New York Association for the Blind in East Fifty-ninth street, of which he laid the corner-stone a year ago. Miss Helen Keller sat at the President's right. Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to Great Britain, presided. Blind Boy Scouts saluted the President as he entered the "lighthouse" and acted as his guard.

The President declared he often wondered when reading the Constitution what blind persons thought of the text that "all men are created free and equal."

"In the sense in which that is generally understood, we are not all created free and equal, 'equal in opportunity,' " he said, "and for the blind every effort should be made to bring about as near an equality of opportunity as possible."

After the President left, it was announced that he had subscribed $500 toward paying the "lighthouse" debt.

In the room of Faunce's Tavern, where Washington said farewell to his officers, the President was formally received by the Sons of the Revolution, of which Edmund Wetmore is president-general. The relics of historical interest that have been collected by the organization were inspected by the executive.

The President went thence to the home of his brother, Henry W. Taft, for a brief rest before going to the peace dinner.

Twenty-nine full-blood Indian chiefs from western reservations, bedecked in the regalia of their ranks, marched up the hill at Ft. Wadsworth with President Taft, and members of his official family.

At the crest of the hill, the highest point on the Atlantic Coast, between New York and Florida, they formed a silent group as the President upturned the spadeful of earth.

NATIONAL SALUTE.

The batteries of the fort roared a national salute of twenty-one guns at the moment the President placed his foot on the spade.

As he stepped back, Chief Hollow Horn Bear of the Yankton Sioux came forward from the group and upturned a second bit of earth with the thigh bone of a buffalo. That done, the chief replied with a speech to an address by the President.

As Hollow Horn Bear's voice died away, the Stars and Stripes were run up a great flagpole near by, to the rhythm of Indian folk songs, sung by the chieftains. When it reached the top, the band broke out with the "Star Spangled Banner."

The gathering of the Indians marked the last time, perhaps, that so many native chiefts will assemble in the East. Most of them are between 75 and 80 years old. Some of them fought against Custer, among these being Chief Hollow Horn Bear, who stands six feet, four inches tall, more than 70 years old, tall, straight as a pine tree, and one of the finest specimens of Indians alive today. White-Man-Runs-Him was chief of the Custer scouts.

Others were Chief Two Moons, 80, nearly blind and almost hidden by feathers bespeaking his prowess; and Pretty Voice Eagle of the Sioux, 70 odd, who carries in his body twenty-one bullets picked up in seventy fights and skirmishes with government troops and neighboring tribes. Distinguished groups witnessed the memorial exercises. The plan had its inception several years ago. The monument is being erected under authority from Congress, by a committee of which Rodman Wanamaker is the head.

TAFT SPEAKS.

President Taft's address was brief. "For two centuries," he said, "the North American Indian has had a right to be treated, not as a relic of prehistoric man, but as an existing force with great and immediate and direct influence upon the settlement and development of this country by the white races."

CHIEF'S REPLY.

In his reply the Indian chief said he and his companions considered themselves from this day forward, citizens of the United States.

"To the end of our days," he said, "we will encourage our children to take the advice of the white man. We ask him to join us and help us get out of the rut in which we have existed so many years."

ICE BREAKS DOWN TREES. INTERURBAN LINE BLOCKED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—The storm compelled one interurban electric line between Chicago, Elgin and Aurora to shut down for several hours. There was much damage in the parks, where hundreds of trees were broken down by the weight of ice.

STEALS MARCH ON PARENTS.

Step-Daughter of Lillian Nordica Marries Roy Atwell, a Divorced Comic Opera Comedian.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—J. Leroy Atwell, comic opera comedian, known as Roy Atwell, and Dorothy Young, 19 years old, step-daughter of Mme. Lillian Nordica, grand opera singer, confirmed today the reports of their marriage yesterday at Greenwich, Ct. The intention had been kept a secret from the bride's father, George W. Young, a New York banker, who married Mme. Nordica in 1909, but the wedding later received the banker's approval.

Mr. Atwell is 35 years old, son of a merchant at Syracuse, N. Y. He and his first wife, Blanche West, an actress, were divorced two years ago.

NEVER HEARD OF GROOM.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22. — "I hope he's a nice young man, because he certainly got a charming and capable girl for his wife," said Mme. Nordica, when informed here today of the marriage of her step-daughter. "I don't know who he is and I never heard of him," she continued. "However, I've been away from home for a month now, and that's time for a great many things to happen. I certainly wish them every joy. I suppose they'll send me a message when Dorothy has time to think of me."

Long Beach.

POMONA CHOSEN FOR CONVENTION.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS PLAN FOR NEXT MEETING.

Organization to Take Up Study of Civic and Industrial Conditions. Board of Education Disappointed Over New School Sites—Realty Board Appoints Committee.

LONG BEACH, Feb. 22.—The invitation of Ponoma to hold the next annual convention of the Los Angeles County Christian Endeavor Society in that city was accepted by the convention today.

A hot fight over the office of president developed today in the Nominating Committee, there being a determined opposition to the committee's choice of Stewart McLennon of Long Beach for the position and it was not until late that the committee made its report on officers of the convention, which was accepted.

The seating capacity of the Presbyterian Church was taxed today necessitating the opening of the Sunday-school portion to give accommodation. The morning was devoted to reports of the secretary and department heads, including the Endeavor work at the County Hospital, the floating missions at San Pedro and the benevolences. In the San Pedro missions they have a daily attendance at the clubroom of fifty sailors and longshoremen.

Among the resolutions adopted was one recommending that Endeavorites take up the study of civic and industrial conditions so as to be ready to act when action was needed. Another was an indorsement of the legislative bill providing Sunday for the one day in the week as a day of enforced rest.

The feature of the afternoon was the general conference on "Efficiency," discussion of which was led by William Shaw, general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor.

A fellowship hour and banquet this evening closed the day's session, with Secretary Shaw as the guest of honor. J. O. Smith of Los Angeles was toastmaster, and adresses were delivered by Rev. H. K. Booth and Rev. A. F. Mitchell.

Tomorrow the Endeavorites will have charge of services in all the churches and at night Secretary Shaw will install the new officers.

NEW SCHOOL SITES.

Anticipating the successful sale of its $130,000 bond issue for school purposes, the Board of Education last night received proposals for a new school site south of Fourth street and east of Alamitos avenue. Five propositions were received, ranging from $27,000 to $35,000 and were filed. The board expected to secure a site of five acres somewhere east of the Park for about $25,000. Instead the closest of the sites offered is half a mile further east than their maximum limit and the price of it $2000 more than they looked for. Bids for the four new school buildings were left unopened until an adjourned meeting Monday night.

The realty board last night appointed a committee to be known as a "Vigilence Committee," whose object will be to assist the City Attorney and Chief of Police in the rigid enforcement of the ordinance governing signboards, realty agents and licenses, with a view of protecting prospective investors from unscrupulous agents.

Appreciating his faithful services as director for five years of the Long Beach Municipal Band, admirers of Bandmaster E. H. Willey have purchased a handsome diamond-studded medal which is to be presented to him on next Thursday evening. Two diamonds set in specially-designed California poppies form the crown of the medal. A design of a bar of music, surmounted with a leader's baton, interwoven by a harp and flower wreath add to the musical motif of the gift. In the center gold plate is engraved, "Presented by Long Beach citizens in appreciation of faihtful and untiring services as director of the L. B. Municipal Band."

Barred by their by-laws from advertising outside of legitimate newspapers, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, whose members have been asked by their children to assist the High School paper, the Caerulea, by their advertising, have asked the school board to provide funds for the publication and also to establish a school of journalism as one of the courses of study of the Polytechnic School.

Celebrating Washington's Birthday three societies held their annual picnics here today. The largest was that of the Washington State Society. Everyone of the 600 who atended wore badges bearing Washington's portrait. After the picnic dinner Rev. E. L. House, an evangelist of Spokane, delivered an address and Alexander Hyer sang.

Three hundred members of the York County, Nebraska, Society gave a warm welcome to 100 visiting tourists from the old State today at the sun parlor, its third annual picnic. Speeches were made by L. W. Shuman, Long Beach; Rev. Mr. Deal and W. C. Curtis of Pasadena, and T. B. Cannon of Gardena.

One hundred and fifty attended the annual picnic of the Kewanee (Ill.) Society. Talks were given after dinner, Mrs. Robert Sheldon sang solos in the afternoon, winding up with games and an old-fashioned spelling bee.

A Woman.

CHIEF OWNER OF "WORLD" IS HERE.

MRS. JOSEPH PULITZER TO BE DAUGHTER'S GUEST.

Late Newspaper Magnate's Widow, Who Maintains His Policies and Philanthropies Intact, Will Spend Several Weeks in Southern California With Relatives.

Mrs. K. D. Pulitzer, widow of the late Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and for many years owner of the New York World, registered at the Alexandria late last night in company with Miss Macaron and a number of servants. She was met by her son-in-law, Mr. Moore, and will pass several weeks in Pasadena, the guest of her daughter, who is making her winter home in Southern California.

Mrs. Pulitzer is the principal owner of the New York World and in a measure is director of its policies. She maintains as a whole all of her husband's philanthropies, among them a large number of scholarships in the leading universities of America. Although never actively engaged in newspaper work of any character, she has a keen insight into its various departments and is also deeply interested in the work of the school of journalism of Columbia University, which in 1903 was established by her husband with an endowment fund of $1,000,000.

Because of fatigue of a journey from New Orleans to this city, Mrs. Pulitzer expressed a desire to be excused from comment on any pertinent topics for a few days at least. She is of a retiring disposition despite the public position occupied by her husband during his career.

FUNERAL TOMORROW.

Arthur Braly Returns to Pasadena With Mother's Body—Rev. Baker P. Lee Will Officiate at Obsequies.

The funeral of the late Mrs. John Hyde Braly will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the home, No. 201 South Orange Grove avenue, Pasadena. Rev. Baker P. Lee, rector of Christ Church, will officiate.

The body was brought to Pasadena yesterday by the son, Arthur Braly, who had journeyed to New York to greet his mother upon her return from an extensive tour in Europe.

Mrs. Braly's death was sudden. She contracted a severe cold upon reaching New York, which shortly developed into pneumonia, and her death followed. She was the wife of John Hyde Braly, Los Angeles banker, and was well known in Southern California, where she had many friends.

Peace Dinner.

TAFT TALKS FRANKLY OF MEXICAN SITUATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—President Taft, guest of honor at a peace dinner tonight, spoke frankly of conditions in Mexico as he viewed them and declared for the exercise of every possible effort in avoidance of intervention.

"Mexico for two years," said Mr. Taft, "has presented a very sad picture to every lover of his kind, to every supporter of popular government, to every man hopeful of establishing peace under a stable government. But we must not despair. We must not, in a case like Mexico—for it differs from the Central American republics—take such action as shall give them to believe that we are moved by selfish purposes or arouse them to opposition to us.

"We must avoid in every way that which is called intervention, and use all the patience possible, with the prayers that some power may arise there to bring about peace throughout that great country. We have to take precautions, and these have been taken.

"But I have no sympathy—none at all—and the charge of cowardice does not frighten me—with that which prompts us for purposes of exploitation and gain to invade another country and involve ourselves in a war the extent of which we could not realize, and the sacrifice of thousands of lives and millions of treasure—and then when we had succeeded, what? No, we must exercise patience in a concrete case like this."

Turning to the Panama Canal, President Taft defended his policy of arbitration of the toll question.

"The idea of our getting into a fight with England and not submitting to an international tribunal of arbitration is so absurd," he said, "that not even the statement of a reverend and senior Senator can make me understand it other than jocosely."

The President spoke at a dinner of the American Peace and Arbitration League.

Joseph H. Choate presented Mr. Taft with a medal for services in the cause of universal peace. It was given by the National Institute of Social Sciences.

TO INVESTIGATE NATIONAL TREASURY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—What may be regarded as executive sanction for an investigation of the national treasury with a view to determining ex-President Madero's responsibility for any shortage is contained in a message sent today to Congress by the Foreign Minister, Francisco de la Barra. The message was agreed upon by the Cabinet and President, and outlines the policies of the new administration.

Specifying portions of the programme, the message said that there should be an immediate investigation of the exact amount of money in the treasury. This is in direct line with the efforts of a group of Deputies who insist that the Maderos looted the treasury and should be punished.

"The revolutionary element," said Senor de la Barra in the message, "those who cherished ideals of democracy and liberty, and for those fought, will find in the new government a disposition to be frank and firm and anxious to aid in the implantation of these principals which have for their object the betterment of the condition of the citizens."

The international situation, continues the message, which may be considered delicate in some respects, though fortunately not grave, will be resolved satisfactorily because of the firmness and justice with which the Chancellory always proceeds with its affairs, and because of the cordial sentiments of friendship which the foreign governments have had and still have as a basis of their relations with us."

Respect for the lives and property of foreigners is guaranteed and to Mexicans is assured compliance with the promises made after the revolution of 1910 as far as they can be realized and are just.

CARRANZA IN LINE.

Greater reason for optimism tonight regarding the disturbance throughout the country was based on late reports notwithstanding the activities of the Zapatistas in some parts of the south. Consular advices from Saltillo are that Carranza, Governor of Coahuila, has decided to recognize the new government. He said he found the organizing of a rebel army not so simple as he had expected in spite of the nucleus of a thousand government troops.

ZAPATA MAY REPENT.

The hostile movement in Yucatan is not regarded seriously, because of the distance from the capital. It is believed that Zapata may recognize the government, but some of his men undoubtedly will continue in the field. Besides the fighting near Azumba another small skirmish occurred today near Contreras, twelve miles to the south of the capital.

TROOPS TO MORELOS.

Troops were sent from here today into the State of Morelos and it is believed that President Huerta will fill that district with soldiers.

OFFERS FUNDS TO HUERTA.

On good authority it is reported that Senor Limantour, ex-Minister of Finance, has offered to come to the relief of the government with money for its present needs.

SCRUBS STAINS TOO HARD; DIES.

AUTO MAN'S HEART FAILS FROM OVER-EXERTION.

Works for Days Endeavoring to Remove Acid Marks—"I'll Get It Off if It Takes a Finger," He Says, and Topples Over Dead, Brush Still Tightly Held.

In an attempt to cleanse his hands of an acid stain which had resisted all applications of soap and water, H. J. Neumann, an automobile salesman, fell dead with a scrub-brush in his hands yesterday, the failure of his heart being due to over-exertion.

While working around an automobile several days ago Neumann, who lives at No. 722 West Seventy-fifth street, stained his hands with acid. The stains stood out prominently and during the last three days Neumann had spent several hours attempting to rub away the spots, without results.

Yesterday afternoon he jested with one of his friends in the automobile agency about the acid stain. "I'm going to get it off if I have to rub away the finger," he said. He went to work at the wash basin, using all the preparations that were recommended as effective. For more than twenty minutes he had been scrubbing his hands when he collapsed. Before anyone could reach him he was dead.

The body was taken to Breese Brothers' mortuary chapel.

SELECTING NEW SITE.

Committee Appointed to Look About at Likely Places to Build New Schoolhouses.

VENICE, Feb. 22.—H. R. Gage, Andrew McNally and R. A. Phillips have been appointed a committee by the Venice School Board to pass upon the selection of grounds in Playa del Rey and the Tokio district. The $92,000 received from the sale of the bonds has been placed to the credit of this district and the work of selecting the two sites and the building of schools on them will be prosecuted with vigor. Gage, Phillips and McNally will be the court of last resort in the selection of sites, many of which have been offered the School Board.

SOLD FOR TAXES.

Lots on the sand ordinarily worth $5000 will be sold for from 50 cents to $1.50 on February 28, when the delinquent special assessment auction sale is held. The owners of the lots have paid no attention to the levy against their property for the purchase of a lot at Speedway and Brooks avenue for the straightening out of the first-named thoroughfare. Every lot on the strip, between Speedway and the ocean front, and from Park avenue to Windward has been thus assessed.

SHORT ILLNESS.

Mrs. James D. Simpson, wife of a prominent Venice realty dealer, passed, after a very short illness. Victoria avenue, last night, at 11 o'clock after a very short illness. Mrs. Simpson came with her husband to this beach eight years ago from Waterloo, Iowa. Besides the husband, she leaves a daughter, Marie.

She leaves a widower and three daughters, Mrs. W. H. Baker and Miss Jessie LaForce of this city and Mrs. Swinney of Bloomfield, Iowa.

"So Sudden."

MAN RINGS MANY MAIDS; ONE RINGS OFF; ARREST.

TO EVERY pretty girl he met, William Ryan would give a ring. Sometimes plain band rings were used, again it would be one set with a cheap stone, but all of solid gold. So the police arrested him last night with forty-seven still in his possession.

Ryan was arriving in town when the police arrived to meet him. He had made the acquaintance of an attractive girl on the train. As he was stepping to the platform, he assisted the girl with her baggage.

"Won't you let me give you a ring?" he asked the girl.

"Isn't that a little too serious?" she questioned.

"Oh, no," said Ryan, "just to remember me by," and, pulling out a handful of them, he told her to take her choice.

While the girl was undecided between a plain one and one set with a turquoise, Detectives Browning and Bowe from central department, put Ryan under arrest. The girl was so excited that she threw her ring at Ryan and ran. According to the information given the police, if Ryan admired a pretty waitress, or ticket-seller or telephone girl, he would give her a ring. He would have given away more, he says, but his collection consisted largely of wedding rings and the girls objected.

Ryan is held at Central Station on a suspicious charge. Jewelry found on him was valued at $500, which, the police believe, was stolen by him in Mojave. The jewelry had been wholesaled from Los Angeles by a South Broadway firm and was identified by them.

Santa Barbara.

OLD-TIME SEA CAPTAIN SIGHTS CHARON'S SHIP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Capt. Charles P. Low, uncle of Seth Low, former Mayor of New York and one of the few remaining ship masters of the old sailing-vessel school, died this afternoon at his home on the mesa.

Capt. Low has resided in Santa Barbara for forty years, settling here when he gave up a seafaring life of thirty-one years. He was born in 1824 and at the age of 23 became master of a ship. He had many extraordinary experiences. Sailing from New York he made twenty-six voyages to China and around the world seven times. His wife accompanied him on four world trips.

Capt. Low suffered a stroke of apoplexy Tuesday and because of his advanced years little hope was entertained for his recovery. At the age of 18 years Capt. Low began a seafaring life, having studied seamanship ever since he was 12 years of age. He began before the mast on the Horatio and the East Indiaman, commanded by Capt. Howland. This vessel made a ten months' trip to China. Then Low went to London on the packet ship Toronto, Capt. Griswold of the London Packet Company. Then he shipped for Rio Janeiro, then on the Houqua, Capt. N. B. Palmer, the first clipper ship out of New York to China. We was a seaman for eight years, being third mate, second and first mate and finally captain.

While captain in 1846, he experienced a most terrible typhoon in the Indian Ocean, a regular cyclone which lasted twelve hours and swept off the deck all the railing, masts and boats. The captain was washed overboard and after being twice engulfed, he caught a rope and as soon as he got his head above water he gave orders to cut away the masts and so saved the ship from foundering.

As a testimonial of their appreciation, the Atlantic, Sun Mercantile and Union Insurance companies of New York presented Capt. Low with a beautiful chronometer, with this inscription:

"Capt. Charles P. Low, late captain of the ship Houqua, as a testimonial of their approbation of his good conduct in saving said ship and cargo after having been thrown on her beam ends in the Indian Ocean, on the 6th of January, 1846, in a typhoon and nearly filled with water; but by the extraordinary exertions of the master and crew, was righted and subsequently taken by them to her port of destination, which was 3500 miles distant."

After having arrived at Honkong the captain rerigged the ship with his own crew and after three voyages up and down the coast he returned to New York. Then he took charge of the Samuel Russell, January 16, 1850, from New York to San Francisco, making the passage in 108 days, ten days faster than any vessel before had made the trip.

POSSESSION SHORT-LIVED.

Mexican Frisks Hero for His Timepiece and Keeps It Only While He's Chased for Four Blocks.

Jose Gonzales was the custodian of a $250 watch of ancient and honorable pedigree for seven minutes, or long enough for him to run four blocks, last night. A man from the Imperial Valley named Swanson, was spending a week-end at the bars, when he became over-taxed with his social whirl and leaned up against a doorway to recover. He was taking a vertical slumber when Gonzales transferred the ownership of his watch.

Patrolman Gillespie watched the operation from a secluded corner. He immediately gave chase and overtook Gonzales four blocks away. The watch was one given to Swanson by a wealthy Chinese merchant for services in China. Gonzales is under arrest.

Mr. Voigt's recent purchases for the California company represent the world's latest thought in home furnishing. He is recognized by the foremost furniture houses as one of the most critical buyers in America.

What'll Stop Sour Stomach?

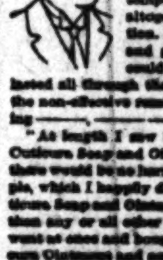
They Act Quick and Relief Is Almost Immediate.

There are some things so exactly right that to mention them brings calm and repose. And to use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets gives the stomach just that kind of lift that makes you check up one hundred per cent to the good. Particularly is this true with those who suffer with sour stomach. You feel so mean that you actually hate yourself. And yet in a few minutes these tablets sweeten the stomach, arrest unnatural fermentation, start a powerful digestive action and prevent the formation of gas.

They are composed of only such digestants as are approved by the very best of physicians.

Real, live, progressive people want to be around where the activities of life embrace whatever circumstances dictate. If a house party serves a Welsh rarebit go to it. It isn't the easiest thing in the world to digest, 'tis true, but what of it? Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will take care of you, keep your stomach in control and your dreams won't see an army of hobgoblins playing hobs with your nerves. Many physicians regularly prescribe Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for the stomach disorders of patients who are ill with some constitutional malady. They do so for the reason that these tablets are not a patent medicine and their composition is known and recognized as the most approved and most powerful of all digestants.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold and recommended by all druggists at 50c a box.—[Advertisement.



FINGERS ALL IN LARGE CRACKS

Very Painful. Itching Unbearable. Hands Bled and Pained When in Water. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured.

183 F St., Salt Lake City, Utah.—"I was subject to a skin affection, chiefly in the hands. My fingers would all be in large cracks which were very painful. The itching was unbearable. My hands also bled and pained when immersed in water and to attempt any kind of work was altogether out of the question. It was with much pain and great difficulty that I could dress myself. This lasted all through the winter in spite of all the non-effective remedies I applied including ——, ——, ——, ——, etc.

"At length I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I thought there would be no harm in trying a free sample, which I happily did. The sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment did me more good than any or all other things I had tried. I went at once and bought a 50c. box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap and the cure was almost instantaneous and I have not been troubled since." (Signed) E. W. Roots, June 28, 1912.

Why not have a clear skin, soft white hands, a clean scalp and good hair? It is your birthright. Cuticura Soap with an occasional use of Cuticura Ointment will bring about these coveted conditions in most cases when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

DENTISTRY That is Dentistry

ALBANY

Artificial teeth that fit well, look well, and wear well, and that restore the natural contour of youth to the face, are the exception rather than the rule. They should duplicate the natural teeth in color, size, and shape, and make possible the proper mastication of food, which is absolutely necessary to good digestion and perfect health.

Artificial teeth-making is distinctly a specialist's work, as a great deal depends upon the skill with which they are designed and fitted. In my office this work is done by a dentist of twenty years' experience, and in consequence is abidingly satisfactory to my patients. Dental work can be done by an apprentice for less money than by a skilled dentist who has spent years in study and practice. Cheap work is invariably worth just what you pay for it and no more.

I employ no boys or students, use only the best materials and personally guarantee every piece of work done in this office. Pay less than I charge and you will get less for your money. Pay more and you pay more than is enough. If you like my logic come into my office and let me explain my methods. I will examine your mouth without charge and tell you what my kind of work will cost.

A Good Stand of Alfalfa on Your Neighbor's Farm is A Boost For Your Own Land.

Investors are quick to realize this at Perris Irrigated Farms.

They know that where farmers are prosperous, land will go up.

These farms produce heavy and frequent cuttings of alfalfa. The soil and climate render conditions right.

Water has been developed in large volume. The high type Water Plant No. 2, recently placed in operation throws a small river of pure water at a fuel cost of only 35c per hour.

Fruits and farm products pay handsomely. Dairy stock, hogs and poultry find their natural element there.

My book tells all, and gives the personal testimony of farmers who are glad to tell how they made good there. Write for it. It is free.

These lands are only 2¼ hours from Los Angeles—only 18 miles from Riverside—close to Perris, and have their own railroad station.

The price is $150 an acre, with valuable water right. Reasonable discount for cash, or four years time. Water rights free to purchasers.

No bond issue on either land or water.

They are genuine bargains at the price and would be cheap still at a much higher price.

That's why they are being picked out so quickly.

GO SEE THESE LANDS

You can go and return in one day. It only costs railway fare, and that is refunded if you buy. I take parties next Wednesday and next Sunday. Come in and arrange to go with me.

SOCIETY FOLK HOUSEWARMERS.

Brighten Hotel Huntington With Opening Function.

Noted Publisher Here to See New "Times" Building.

Educators May Postpone Building Construction.

PASADENA, Feb. 22.—Washington's Birthday was the occasion of several social functions in the city yesterday, but there were no public exercises, beyond those at the schools. Flags were presented to the different classes by the Board of Education.

The Hotel Huntington, until a few days ago the Hotel Wentworth, which has so long been a gloomy, closed-up pile, presented an animated scene in the afternoon. The reception given there as a sort of house-warming of the large caravansary under its new name was made a society affair and many leading society people of the city attended.

The magnificence of the interior of the building was enhanced with costly decorations and there was a musical programme that was greatly enjoyed. Each of the society women who assisted in the reception was presented with a bouquet of daffodils, and tea, chocolate and punch were served.

Mrs. William Ward Spinks took general charge of the reception. Mrs. Robert J. Burdette presided at the tea tables. Mrs. Hampton L. Story took charge of the chocolate tables, assisted by Mrs. J. L. Burnes and Mrs. E. H. Groenendyke. Mrs. Harrison I. Drummond and Mrs. D. M. Linnard served the punch. Others who assisted were Mrs. Joseph Hixon, Mrs. Harry Robinson, Mrs. William Brackenridge, Mrs. Samuel Cupples-Pierce, Mrs. Eugene Hewlett and Mrs. Frank Hogan.

Several dinner parties were given at the Hotel Raymond last night. The largest was that of the St. Louis guests at the hotel and other St. Louis persons who are now in the city.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis, head of the Curtis Publishing Company of Philadelphia, which publishes the Saturday Evening Post, the Ladies' Home Journal, the Philadelphia Ledger and the Country Gentleman, accompanied by Mrs. Curtis, arrived in Pasadena in his private car Grassmere yesterday. They are at the Hotel Green and have announced their intention of remaining in the city about a week. They expect to be on the Pacific Coast the greater part of the winter. Mrs. Parson Wells of Ironwood, Mich., and Mrs. Robert Williams and Mrs. John Cutter of Milwaukee are also members of the party.

"I have been here in California before and I find things about the same as I always do," the publisher said last night. "It is a pleasant place to come. One thing that I wish very much to see is the new Los Angeles Times Building.

MAY ABANDON BUILDING.

Owing to lack of funds the Board of Education may abandon, or indefinitely postpone, erecting the proposed physical culture building which was to have been one of the group of structures comprising the Polytechnic High School. Work has not yet been begun upon it, and whether or not it will be this year is a question that is to be decided at the next meeting of the school board.

The other buildings are practically completed. The administration building, which is the largest of the group, and which will be the last to be finished, will be ready for acceptance by the board in about three months.

The Board of Education is now procuring the equipment for the buildings. This will be of the latest and most approved type.

MUST ANSWER QUESTIONS.

The necessity of those who now hold liquor permits in the city coming before the City Council to apply for new permits under the terms of the recent charter amendment will give the Council an opportunity to subject the applicants to a rigid questioning as to their fitness to have the permits, and the Councilmen have determined to exercise their prerogative. The Councilmen have already partially formulated these questions.

CITY BRIEFS.

The February luncheon of the Board of Trade will be given at the Hotel Green next Wednesday. County Assessor Hopkins will be the principal speaker.

DUBLIN A PASSIVE CANDIDATE.

South Pasadena Official Will Accept Re-election if the People Insist on His Doing So.

SOUTH PASADENA, Feb. 22.—The election to select a School Trustee for the South Pasadena city school district will be held the first Friday in April. John E. Dublin is the outgoing member of the Board of Education. Mr. Dublin's friends are urging him to permit his name to be used for re-election. As he is not anxious for the office he will not make a canvass, but will serve another terms if it is the wish of the voters of the community.

At the present time the additional buildings for manual training and domestic science are about to be constructed, together with the enlarging of the present High School auditorium, for which the recent bond issue of $70,000 was voted. Mr. Dublin with the other members of the board, E. E. Thompson and J. W. Moore, have familiarized themselves with the needs of the district in regard to these buildings, engineered the election of the bonds; also the needs for the building and the essentials in their constrction. For these reasons he is being urged to allow his name to be used for a second term. He has proved a very efficient trustee, devoting a great deal of his time to the needs of the district.

COLD AFFECTS ATTENDANCE.

Mountains Well Down in the Foothills Near Upland Are Covered With Blanket of White.

UPLAND, Feb. 22.—Owing to the cold and inclement weather yesterday, the Upland contingent attending the national orange show at San Bernardino was very materially lessened in number. Had the weather been fine, the crowd going from this place promised to be a record breaker, despite the fact that many former Iowans had planned to attend the Iowa picnic at Los Angeles on the same date.

The rainfall at the Twenty-fifth-street power-house was a bit in excess of an inch, for the last storm, and the total for the season is now just about eight inches at that point. The mountains, even well down onto the lower foothills, are covered with a generous blanket of "the beautiful," all of which bodes well for the coming season's water supply. The weather here this morning is clear, cool and bracing.

MATTER OF FRANCHISE.

The matter of a franchise for the Pacific Electric Railway, to pass through several blocks of this city, was up for discussion at the last session of the city fathers, and they had as their guest Chief Engineer Pillsbury of the electric line. There was a general discussion of a number of salient points in the matter, one of the chief of which was the matter of Upland requiring the assurance that the company's depot will be erected and maintained inside the city of Upland, at some point between Euclid and Campus avenues. Another was the assurance that a stop will be provided for at Campus avenue, by cars coming in from the east, so as to allow residents of the eastern part of the city the use of the railway for coming downtown if desired. The discussion waxed warm at times, yet withal was a friendly one, Mayor Lambrigger stating that the principal wish of all was to see that justice be done both parties, if possible. The franchise will doubtless be granted in the near future.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Ivan C. Baker, a young attorney of Los Angeles, was found guilty of speeding in this city, by a jury of twelve men, in Justice Crane's court, and was fined $25. City Attorney Swing conducted the prosecution, while Baker defended himself, with the above result. Motor Cop Hall made the arrest of Baker some time previously. Since the completion of the Tenth-street road through Upland, there has been a considerable tendency on the part of auto drivers to "let her out," at least a few notches and the police are kept busy warning first offenders, and picking up those who persistently break the laws.

Mrs. Thomas Duke of Victoria, B. C., and her sister, Mrs. George Wiley of Milet, Mich., the latter accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. John Merritt, are guests here at the home of their brother-in-law, Joseph Dundas, on West Tenth street. The two former ladies are 73 and 70 years old, respectively, and thirty-two years have passed since they had met, prior to this visit.

At the annual meeting and banquet of the Upland Y.M.C.A., officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: Owen Atwood, president; L. N. Kirk, first vice-president; Thomas W. Nisbet, second vice-president; A. H. Maxwell, secretary; W. C. Reynolds, treasurer, and Harry Plum, assistant treasurer. A number of matters of business, pertinent to the interests of the organization were considered at this meeting. A plan is being considered of disposing of the association's holdings on Third avenue to the Pacific Electric Railway interests.

SEASON'S RAINFALL.

Elsinore County Gets Plenty of Moisture in the Farming District. Mountains Snow-Covered.

ELSINORE, Feb. 22.—A hard rainstorm Friday night followed the rain of the afternoon. According to the gauge kept by George Yung at the olive factory at the foot of the mountains above Grand avenue, the rainfall has been as follows: For the storm, 1.8 inches; for the season, 7.6 inches. This measurement is somewhat larger than for the town's as more rain falls near the mountains. The farming section, therefore, gets the greater rainfall.

Snow covered Tribuca Peak this morning, and other of the higher peaks of the Santa Rosa Mountains. The weather cleared early and the scene was a beautiful one—bright sunshine, green things growing underfoot, and beyond, the white mountains.

OLIVE FACTORY NEWS.

Fifteen tons of pickled olives are being labeled this week at the factory on Grand avenue. They are in quart and gallon cans.

HONORED.

More than a hundred people braved the rainstorm Friday evening and gathered at the grammar school building to attend the programme and social evening planned by the Parent-Teacher Association. The children had decorated the rooms very prettily with pictures of the great men, flags and greenery, and an interesting programme was given in spite of the fact that many of the numbers had to be omitted.

The school children sang patriotic songs and recited and debated, and musical numbers were given by Misses Cecele and Sarah Burton, W. S. Durkin, Mrs. Earl Ellis, Miss Ruth Frothingham and Louise Dickson. The teachers led the children in playing games and apples and nuts were served to the crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Green and daughter, Hazel, arrived from Lordsburg Saturday and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Moore of Riverside street. Mr. Green was for some years an editor of the Lake Elsinore Valley Press. He is editing a Lordsburg paper at present.

WHITESIDE PICNIC.

The annual picnic of former residents of Whiteside county, Illinois, which was to have been held yesterday at Sycamore Park, has been postponed until next Saturday at the same place.

SORTS ORANGES BY MACHINERY.

WONDERFUL DEVICE SAVES LOT OF GOOD FRUIT.

Test of Invention Given by Bureau of Plant Industry and Pronounced Successful—Will Prove Profitable to Growers Is the Verdict—High School Pupils on Carpet.

RIVERSIDE, Feb. 22.—A frosted-fruit eliminator that eliminates was given a successful test at the packing-house of the National Orange Company today, under the direction of Charles W. Mann of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture.

The device is the conception of Frank F. Chase of the National Orange Company, and the cheapness of its operation promises to save the growers thousands of dollars in the task of sorting out the good fruit from the worthless in a season like the present one. Instead of the expensive alcohol bath, which is the basis of all other successful separators, Mr. Chase's device employs only a current of water.

Mann estimates that the new process will dispose of the fruit at a cost of not to exceed 1 cent a field box. This would make possible the saving of hundreds of carloads of oranges that otherwise would have to be left in the orchards to decay or else be hauled off to the dump.

The apparatus consists of a zinc-lined chamber through which a stream of water is forced by means of a four-inch centrifugal pump. The oranges are dropped one at a time into the swiftly-moving current, the sound and unfrosted fruit dropping to a greater depth than the lighter and damaged fruit.

This action of the fruit gave Mr. Chase his idea. By the use of a screen, placed horizontally in the tank, the good fruit is securely partitioned off from the frosted fruit, the current of water carrying the oranges to two different outlets. The good fruit is delivered at a point where it can be connected up with the grader and delivered to the packers.

So unerringly did the device separate the good from the poor fruit that not a single orange tested showed signs of having been damaged by frost. The fruit rejected by the eliminator proved to be worthless so far as marketing is concerned.

SUPPOSED FRATS ON CARPET.

Members of the Board of Education conducted a severe cross-examination of some of the students of the boys' Polytechnic High School last night to ascertain whether the anti-fraternity law is being violated. There is a suspicion that the "cannibals" and members of the "hunting club" are masquerading to conceal the organization of Greek letter societies. It is thought that these new titles are synonymous with the Gamma Eta Kappa and Theta Sigma societies, which flunked in March of 1909. The investigation is not yet finished.

OVER FOUR INCHES RAIN.

The weather cleared today after the storm of Wednesday and Friday, which added 1.39 inches to the season's total. Riverside city now has 4.69 inches to its credit. Other parts of the county report the precipitation for the storm as follows: Banning, 1.69; Hemet, 1.50; Corona, 1.02; Perris, .70.

NEW POLY HIGH SCHOOL.

Santa Monica Arranges to Dedicate Tomorrow New Building—City Nurse May Be Employed.

SANTA MONICA, Feb. 22.—An important event in this city, the dedication of the new Polytechnic High School, will be held tomorrow afternoon in the auditorium of the main building on Fourth and Washington avenues.

Mrs. D. G. Stephens, president of the Board of Education, will preside. After musical selections from Donatelli's Band, Rev. J. S. Lobingier will speak the invocation and Roy Jones will deliver an address on the history of local schools, as chairman of the Citizens' Committee. H. M. Rebok will then review the building of the new High School and tell what it means to Santa Monica. Arthur L. Gripp will give violin solos.

James A. B. Scherer, president of Throop Institute, Pasadena, the speaker of the day, will next be heard in an address. Mrs. Stephens will then give the "Declaration of Dedication." Frank W. Thomas, principal of the High School, will respond in a speech of acceptance. Rev. W. H. Cornett will offer prayer and the audience will then adjourn, to be shown over the new school.

NURSE FOR INJURED.

Agitation for the employment of a city nurse to supplement the efforts of Dr. F. J. Wagner, police surgeon, will probably bear fruit within the next few weeks when the City Council will be urged by a committee of citizens to appoint such a nurse. She would have charge of contagious diseases and injured citizens.

GREAT PRESERVES FOR SPORTSMEN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Attorney A. A. Moore, Jr., of San Francisco today made public that he had purchased 4700 acres of land in Madera county, twenty-five miles from Fresno, to start a private game reserve. Moore will build a big hunting lodge on the grounds and will start a large dog kennel, breeding principally pedigreed hunting dogs.

The streams will be stocked with fish, and game birds will be turned loose on the grounds. The game will not be hunted for some time, so as to give time for a big increase. The preserve will be one of the finest this side of the Rocky Mountains. Moore is the son of A. A. Moore, Sr., attorney for the United Railroads.

Bailed Out.

SURLY PRISONER FURNISHES CASH.

ALLEGED SWINDLER RELEASED BY COURT'S ORDER.

Efforts to Learn Where Money for Surety Comes from Are Unsuccessful—Police Chiefs Hold Conference to Evolve System to Ferret Out Band of Criminals.

Five thousand dollars cash, in lieu of the $10,000 bail required by Justice Reeve, secured the release last night of Lee Rial, held on a felony charge in connection with alleged race-track swindles and confidence games said to have been operated here and in nearby cities. The money was turned over to Chief Sebastian late yesterday evening and Justice Reeve immediately ordered Rial released.

The course pursued in furnishing cash bail, according to Deputy District Attorney Shannon, is not unusual in cases of this character and is done to protect the interests of the person under arrest. Should bondsmen come forward who are willing to go security for the amount fixed by the court, the prosecutor is in a position at once to summon such bondsmen before a grand jury and elicit information concerning their relations with the prisoner. Although the bail was fixed at $10,000, it is customary in this State to accept half the fixed amount if cash is furnished.

Rial, upon his release from the City Jail, where he has been confined since Tuesday, refused to make a statement of any kind. He was apparently very much peeved at his treatment and wasted no courtesy either on the police or others who sought to talk to him. He has been identified by several persons in connection with the attempt to swindle G. P. Friescz, an Illinois farmer, out of $5000 and the authorities say the case against him is exceptionally strong. Efforts to find who furnished the cash for his release were unavailing, his attorney, G. Ray Horton, refusing to say where he raised the necessary funds.

That the investigation into alleged swindling and confidence games is to be made a thorough one and that preventive measures are to be adopted by the authorities here and in the beach cities, was evidenced yesterday by an extended conference between Chief Sebastian and police heads of other cities. Chief W. H. Wood of Pasadena, A. B. Austin of Long Beach, E. E. Randall of Santa Monica, and G. M. Lingo of Venice were closeted several hours with Sebastian during which time a mutual protection plan was evolved.

The various officials determined to keep in closer touch with each other with a view to knowing just what is going on each day so far as known crooks and suspicious characters are concerned. The plan is for each official to send a man here, perhaps twice a week, to look over the situation and possibly to hold a short council of war with Chief Sebastian. On Sundays and other special occasions Los Angeles detectives under direction of Chief Sebastian, will be sent to the various beach cities to observe the work of known crooks and suspects. This plan, it is thought, will do much toward eliminating the possibilities of the "boobs" being separated from their banks rolls.

No new arrests were made yesterday in connection with the general investigation, although definite results are expected tomorrow. Two complaints will be issued and the authorities are said to be in possession of information sufficient to warrant them in pushing the matter to a showdown at once. Books and memorandums which have come into the possession of the police in connection with the latest attempted swindle at Venice, are said to have been a veritable gold mine so far as valuable information is concerned. The police are still searching for the men who were said to have operated the fake poolroom where Friescz was entrapped.

ARREST BARES PITIFUL CASE.

Family of Eight Found Slowly Starving.

Father Held for Murder; Mother Ill.

Officers Declare the Case Is Unparalleled.

Seven children, ranging from a few months to 9 years in age, became county dependents yesterday when the father, Edward Bustamontes, was arrested for a murder committed more than a year ago at Kingman, Ariz., and the mother was removed to the County Hospital in a serious physical condition. She was unwittingly the cause of her husband's arrest.

Bustamontes was arrested at his home in the rear of No. 1488 East Fourth street, by Central Station Detective Rico and A. F. Harris, a deputy sheriff from Kingman. They found the family in destitute circumstances. In bed with the sick mother were her infant and two of the younger children. The others, with scarcely sufficient clothing to hide their nakedness and keep them warm, were either playing around the living-room of the shack, or huddled close to the father, who sat leaning over a rickety stove standing on four bricks.

"We can't leave the mother and these children here in this condition," said Harris. "Something must be done for them before we take Ed to jail."

While Rico remained to watch his prisoner, Harris went to a grocery and bought the mother and children something to eat.

"This beats anything I ever saw in all my experiences, used as I am to seeing poverty," said the deputy sheriff as he re-entered the house with an armful of food.

He was instantly surrounded by the children, who clamored for something to eat. While the little ones munched on sandwiches, cheese, crackers and other things, the officer had brought, he made coffee and prepared a more substantial meal for the sick mother. The father was also furnished with food.

While the family was enjoying its breakfast, Detective Rico got into communication with county humane officers, with the result that shortly after the father was taken to the Central Station jail, the mother and her baby were removed to the County Hospital and the other children were taken in charge by humane officers.

Harris said that the Arizona officers had been searching for Bustamontes since January, 1912, when, they charge that he committed an atrocious murder, beat a fellow-countryman to death, for the purpose of robbery. Suspicion was directed towards Bustamontes when it was ascertained, it is claimed, that he had sold the horses and personal effects of the dead man.

It was thought that Bustamontes had come to Los Angeles, and the local police were directed to search for him. No trace of him or his family was found until a short time ago, when Mrs. Bustamontes went to the County Hospital for medical attention. There she gave her name and address.

This was brought to the attention of Detective Rico. Friday he visited the Bustamontes home, but the father was not there. The detective watched the house all day, and late into the night, giving as his excuse that he was a representative of a charitable organization that wanted to ascertain whether the family was in need.

When Acting Chief of Detectives Moffat yesterday learned of the straits of the family, he gave Rico money to purchase additional food and some clothing for the little ones.

Mrs. Bustamontes is not aware that her visit to the County Hospital was the first clue the officers secured of the whereabouts of her husband.

BILL TO LEGALIZE PICKETING
BILL REGULATING WIDTH AND LENGTH OF BEDCLOTHES
WHEE!! I'M A BED BUG!!

ARE YOU WILLING TO PAY THE PRICE?

THE FIRST impulse of one who reads the freak bills now pending before our progressive Legislature is to indulge in a broad grin. But the situation has a serious, and a very serious, side, especially to the taxpayers on whose overburdened shoulders it is proposed to load $52,000,000 of taxation.

The Legislature in 30 days under the new bifurcated plan ordered the printing of 7,934,000 copies of bills, which is four times as many copies as ordered by any previous Legislature in the same time.

State Printer Friend W. Richardson says that 18,737 pages of type have been set up for the present Legislature, and a grand total of 28,758,000 printed pages have been produced. This printing would make 287,580 books of 100 pages each, or one volume 3866 feet thick.

Unless there shall be public protest, evidenced by public gatherings assembled for that purpose, there is danger that some of these measures may become laws. Will it not be well for the people, without regard to their political affiliations, to assemble and give expression to their antagonism to some or all of the freak bills? The sixty Chambers of Commerce of California, assembled in San Francisco, the past week, took the lead in voicing this protest—but the people at large must be heard from.

Do you want, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Voter, the law proposed by Assemblyman Farwell of Los Angeles to bring an expert here from another State at a cost of $2000 to draft a bill for a pure-paint law, with an appropriation of $14,000 to enforce it, and $2000 per annum to a chemist to analyze the paint? Paint is not a food or a drug, and are you really interested to the extent of your part of the proposed expenditure in being assured that your neighbor is daubing his front porch, or his wife and daughter are adorning their cheeks with pure or impure paint? And if you do want such a law, is it necessary to pay $2000 to bring a man here from Yuma or from Kansas to draft it? Cannot some California knave or ass be found who will do the job?

Do you want the law proposed by Senator Lee C. Gates to establish free soup and bunk-houses for the army of loafers that would patronize them? Do you want to pay your share of the $1,000,000 or thereabouts that it is proposed to appropriate to feed and shelter men who are too lazy to work?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Gelder to fine or send to jail any hotel-keeper who places upon a bed a sheet less than eighty-one inches wide and ninety inches long? Shall no provision be made for single beds or cots to accommodate people who are only twenty inches wide and sixty inches long?

CRIPPLES' RETREAT.

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Farwell to expend about $600,000 per annum for old-age pensions so that 600 old fellows could get $1000 each, or 1000 could get $600 each or 10,000 could get $60 each or 100,000 could get $6 each? Do you believe in making California a cripples' retreat and oldageatorium?

Do you want the law proposed by Senator Larkins to imprison any newspaper proprietor who advertises in his journal any medical preparation or the card of any medical practitioner? Would you inflict this blow on cough lozenges and chiropodists?

Do you want the constitutional amendment proposed by Assemblyman Farwell of Los Angeles to empower some commissioner to be appointed by Gov. Johnson at a liberal salary to strut into the editorial rooms of newspapers and force the writers to apologize for articles printed, and write in their place other articles boosting some candidate for office named by the commissioner? Are you willing to pay your share of the salary and office rent and clerk hire of such a commissioner?

Do you want the constitutional amendment proposed by Farwell to take the election of State officers and judges away from the people and give the Governor the power of appointing them?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman McDonald of San Francisco to pay $7500 per annum to three appointees of the Governor to inspect kitchen boilers and gas ranges, and prohibit the use of bran, sawdust, or rice for the purpose of stopping leaks in boilers? Are you willing to pay your share of the salaries of these inspectors? Do you care a continental whoop whether your neighbor stops a leak in his boiler with bran at a cost of 5 cents or sends for a union plumber to stop it with spelter at a cost of $5?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Ambrose to regulate the practice of medicine? Doctors approved by the board

TWENTY WOMEN VICTIMS OF ROMEO ROBBER GANG.

Coolest Swindle of All Uncovered by Complaints to Authorities.

Pretty Widows by Wholesale Stripped of Their Funds by Organization of Soft-Spoken Lover-Wolves Who Woo, Win, Set the Wedding Day and Disappear, Leaving Near-Brides Destitute.

REMARKABLE facts touching on what may be another angle of the great swindling organization came to light yesterday with the uncovering of the cruel operations of a band of professional robber-lovers who came here six weeks ago and scattered to the close-in apartment-houses. They wooed and won and fixed the wedding days, and then they went away, leaving at least twenty women waiting at the church, broken in heart and in pocketbook.

In the crew there were several men and one woman, who was sister, rival or go-between as the case demanded. The wolves in Romeo's clothing used the softly-spoken word. They were well-dressed, mannerly, careful of their finger nails, thoughtful of the little things that please women, knew the value of flowers in love-making and the potency of the theater, the dinner and the dance.

They were thorough in their work. They charmed their victims and then took all their money, even to the small change sometimes. A number of the women have been left destitute on the hands of their friends.

All of the victims are widows and most of them are engaging in appearance. About half a dozen of the deceived reported to the police or the District Attorney. The names of a few others have been learned indirectly. Others, fearing publicity, have not complained.

Chief of Police Sebastian and Deputy District Attorney Helms give this advice to women:

"If a stranger is courting you, look up his antecedents and get his picture before you let him have any money."

One of the latest victims, according to her story, is Mrs. Adah Wiltsie, No. 1238 South Hill street, who says she yielded to the blandishments of a man giving his name as Billy Delaney and claiming to be an intimate friend of the Chief. Her confidence in him cost her a broken engagement and $1500 in cash.

According to Helms, to whom Mrs. Wiltsie was sent after she had complained to the Chief, Delaney used often to say he had just dined with Sebastian, that he would accompany that functionary to the theater that evening, and many more interesting things to show he sat near the seats of the mighty, upon occasion. Finally, after an ardent courtship, they became engaged.

He began then to tell how successful he had been in making certain investments. Mrs. Wiltsie was impressed. She saw visions of 100 per cent. profit in three days, and passed over the money, a few hundreds at a time. Delaney had it all when the wedding day arrived. But Delaney didn't arrive. He had gamboled elsewhere, very much so.

The Chief denied ever having known any such person. Helms heard the story and decided that there had been neither embezzlement nor actionable false pretenses. The only offense committed, he believes, is a breach of trust, which is not actionable. He sent Mrs. Wiltsie away without a complaint, back to the Police Station, where the Chief was asked to do something. He put Detectives Ritch and Roberds on the case. They are still working at it.

Mrs. Wiltsie met Delaney at No. 626 West Ninth street. He was attentive and shortly they were engaged. The money that Mrs. Wiltsie lost was received from her late husband's life insurance. It was all she had. Delaney didn't leave her with enough money to buy stamps. She was received in the home of a friend until she found employment.

Delaney or another member of the same alleged gang left tracks in several other houses, particularly No. 256 South Figueroa street; No. 223 South Flower street, and No. 1604 Cherry street.

Two women who were proof against the system were Mrs. May Brown, formerly of No. 901 South Flower street, but now living at the Alco Hotel, Tenth and Figueroa streets, and Mrs. G. L. Lashus of the Marcella Apartments.

Mrs. Lashus says she met Delaney at the Cornell apartments when she was seeking to buy an apartment-house. He offered to assist her in her quest but his services were declined coldly and without thanks. He was persistent, but it was no use. He didn't even get started with Mrs. Lashus.

Mrs. Brown was just as wise as Mrs. Lashus, but the former decided to play detective and just find out what the man would do if he was given a little rope. He began with some red roses and a dinner at the Lankershim Hotel. For a while he thought that he was getting along swimmingly with Mrs. Brown. She appeared to be interested and talked freely about her bank account and

FROM GREAT PAST TO FUTURE YET GREATER.

Chamber of Commerce at Annual Banquet Reviews in Glowing Words Achievements Wrought and to Come. George W. Perkins, Financier, Finds Promise and Danger in Our Commercial Future.

EXULTING in past achievements and resolving to make the new year the greatest in the history of the Chamber of Commerce, 500 members of that body gathered about the banquet tables at the Alexandria last night to felicitate the retiring officers on their work and to inaugurate the new year, with a new staff of officers, new hopes and higher ambitions.

Enthusiasm born of abiding faith in the city and the Southland was the keynote of the gathering. Cheers greeted the recital of the year's work in upbuilding the Southland and more cheers greeted the reiterated confession of abounding, never faltering faith in the destiny of the homeland, and in the chamber's office as the dynamic force making for progress. A survey of the chamber's work the past quarter century was presented as an epitome of those efforts which have gone to make Los Angeles the metropolis of the Pacific Coast. From the witty opening remarks of Chairman Sayre Macneil through the more formal addresses of George W. Perkins, financier and business man, and retiring President Osborne and President-elect Kinney, the predominant tone was optimism, born of real faith in the land and the people.

Under the glow of myriads of lights, every table flower-adorned and that of the speakers backed by an artistic display of American flags, the assembly was one that caught and held the eye. In all there were 498 men and two women present. The women were Mrs. H. W. Strong of Whittier, one of the two women members of the chamber, and her daughter. Toasts were drunk to President Taft, President-elect Wilson and to the thirty-two members of the chamber who died during the year, this last toast standing and in silence.

Introducing retiring President Osborne as a man who had done things, Chairman Macneil briefly and succinctly sketched the object of the chamber and referred President-elect Kinney to Osborne as a model to follow in carrying on the future work of the chamber. "The chamber has no excuses to offer, it needs none," said Macneil, "for it has justified the faith of its founders, and tonight but marks another milestone in its long history of uplift." Pledging his loyalty and the fullest measure of his ability to the great work of the chamber and assuring one and all that the example of his eminent predecessor would guide his every step, President Kinney brought cheers when he offered as the sole plank of his "after-inauguration" platform, the slogan, "Get-together, Stand-together, Pull-together."

ROBS PERSIAN ROYALTY TO LINE BIRD'S NEST.

l fluffy tail stolen. The bandit was appears, however, that the ged bandit is not as innocent of minal intent or as much the victim a sudden and uncontrollable ime as the circumstances of the d-up indicate. An investigation closed that the mocking bird had n making friends with Lassie for s previous to the assault and rob-

y. That it had a cold and calating eye upon the fur all the time re seems to be but little doubt.

o do Lassie justice, however, she s in no wise affected by the bland-ments of the mocking bird. Every she mounted the hill beside Mrs.
rton's home and sunned herself hours in the grass, blinking sleep-at the mocking bird that sailed soared above her, sometimes descending to within a few feet of her furry head. But Lassie is a confirmed old maid of eight winters and wasn't hungry anyway, so never a grab did she make at the tempting morsel. Her confidence that the bird was equally inoffensive seems to have been boundless.

But alas for feline trust! One day as Lassie purred in the sunshine, gently waving her magnificent plume above the herbage, there was a whir, a swoop—and an agonized yowl. Lassie leaped high into the air and fairly flew homeward, her beautiful plume minus its tip and left raw and bleeding. Like a bullet through the air flew the mocking bird, the silken price of its treachery firmly gripped in a determined bill. Two hours later its nest in the eucalyptus was soft and downy as no mocking bird's nest ever was before—or will be again, if Lassie can help it.

Lassie is the property of Col and Mrs. L. S. Judd, but resides with Mrs. Norton during the absence of her mistress and master on the desert. In addition to her royal lineage she possesses the distinction of having jilted Royal Norton, king of the Drexel kennels, and of being one of most traveled cats in the world, having crossed the continent many times in pursuit of the festive blue ribbon.

BAD CHECKS CAUSE ARREST.

Realty Salesman Charged With Passing Worthless Papers, Also Wanted at Seattle.

D. D. Ellis, 25 years old, married less than a year, and living at No. 525 Detroit street, West Hollywood, was arrested yesterday by Detective Nick Harris, on a charge of passing $175 worth of checks without funds in the banks to redeem them. In a statement made to Detective Harris and Central Station officers, Ellis, it is said, confessed he was pressed for money to meet two notes of $175 collectively.

Ellis, who is well known in local real estate circles, having been a city salesman for several large firms, passed his first check, for $5, September 7, 1912, and the last one, for $25, on the 17th inst. One of his checks was for $50, payable to Mrs. E. L. Loomis, No. 108 North Gramercy place, who gave him two of her checks for $25 in exchange. When she found that the Ellis check was bad, she stopped payment.

Ellis is wanted at Seattle, it is said. This fact was disclosed apparently by letters found in his possession. Aside from admitting it is a money transaction, Ellis refused to discuss the matter. D. O. Smith, a veteran Tacoma detective, formerly Chief of Police, is a relative of Ellis, he says.

WHERE SHALL MONEY GO?

The San Pedro Transportation Company has paid to the City Treasury its tax for the first year of its franchise, which provides the city shall receive a percentage of the gross income. The amount paid is $745. The question has arisen whether this should go to the general fund or the harbor revenue fund. The Harbor Commission believes it is entitled to use of this money, and has asked the City Attorney for an opinion.

SANTA FE PAVING.

The City Engineer is preparing plans for the paving of Santa Fe avenue from Sixth to Ninth streets. A portion of the Leonard-street storm drain system is in this street, but as the various legal steps and delays will not allow this to be completed for at least two years, the Board of Public Works has instructed the engineer to proceed with paving plans regardless of the proposed storm drain.

STUDENTS AT HARBOR.

Principal W. A. Dunn of the Polytechnic High School has been granted permission by the Harbor Commission to send groups of students to San Pedro to make surveys at the harbor. Several engineering students will go to the harbor in March.

Do you want the bill proposed by Senator Finn of San Francisco to pay criminals in the State prisons $1 per day for every working day during their confinement? Do you not think that there are thousands of hobos who would plead guilty of anything in order to get $300 per annum besides good food, clothing and lodging? Can you estimate what such a measure would cost the State? Are you willing to pay your share of it?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Bloodgood of Los Angeles to "regulate" real estate and investment companies at a cost of at least $200,000 per annum for commissioners, and to finance the odd jobs that would be created? If you have a bungalow that you desire to sell or there is a vacant lot you wish to buy are you willing to be "regulated"—and pay the cost thereof?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Roberts of Los Angeles to appropriate $50,000 per annum for five commissioners and a secretary and "extra help" to investigate wages and report to the Legislature two years hence "what they know about wages"? Do you care to pay your share of the $50,000 for your share of what the commissioners may then know or think they know?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Mouser to appropriate $13,000 "to promote education in social science and the arts." The promotion to be effected by the appointment by the Governor of three commissioners at $3600 each per annum and their traveling expenses. Will the uplift that the report of these commissioners will give you in the science of socialism and an artistic knowledge of chromos be worth to you, your share of the $13,000?

Do you want Mouser's law appropriating $1,000,000 for the erection of a California counties building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in addition to the 5 per cent. tax levied upon each county of the State by the Legislature of 1911? Are you willing to pay your share of this $1,000,000 for the satisfaction you will have in looking at this building—provided you go to the exposition?

Do you want Mouser's law to pay the State Labor Commissioner and deputies $20,000 more than they now receive to urge union laborers to contribute more liberally for the defense of dynamiters and the salary of Gompers? Are you willing to pay your share of this $20,000 in order to swell the compensation of the State Labor Commissioner and his helpers?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Morgenstern of Alameda to appropriate $3000 to send two delegates appointed by Gov. Johnson to investigate the European system of rural credits? There are, as you doubtless know, dozens of books and pamphlets to be obtained at any book-store explaining the German and French rural credit system in detail. Still you may be willing to pay your share of this $3000, in order to give two of Johnson's friends a trip to Europe.

Do you want the law proposed by Senator Brown appropriating $50,000 for five commissioners at $4800 each per annum to investigate wage and salary conditions in this State? Will it be worth to you your share of this $50,000 to learn that plasterers get $5 per day, and plumbers take a trust deed on the premises to remunerate them for putting in the water and gas pipes?

SIMPLE SILLINESS.

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Bush making it punishable by thirty days' imprisonment for a lady to wipe a desk or a table or a chair with an old stocking or a piece of a petticoat which has not first been boiled for forty minutes in a solution containing 5 per cent. of caustic soda?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Benedict creating a State Administration Board of three members to be appointed by the Governor at $4000 per annum each, whose duty it shall be to "watch other boards" and see that they do their work? Will it be worth to you your share of $12,000 per annum to know that all of Johnson's commissioners will be "watched"?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Bloodgood to create a State advertising fund to boost such portions of California as a commissioner may approve of?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Woodley to establish a board of three members at $3600 each to censor moving-picture films? Is it worth to you your share of $10,800 per annum to know that no nickelodeon throws upon its screen a single picture that would bring a blush to the cheek of modesty?

Do you want the law proposed by Senator Butler to prevent the sale of liquor except in hotels and clubs, and abolish all saloons and breweries in the State? Shall no man who is not a member of a club or a guest at a hotel be permitted to lift the liquid damnation to his lips?

JOBS, JOBS, JOBS!

Do you want the law proposed by Senator Hewitt to blow in about $100,000 per annum to provide over fifty jobs for Johnson-Lissner-Finn henchmen to do all sorts of things from cleaning spittoons down to writing editorial eulogies of Holy Hiram?

Do you want the law proposed by Assemblyman Tulloch appropriating $200,000 for a commission to superintend the State Produce Exchange and collect data concerning market conditions? Five commissioners at $6000 a year and 100 subordinate pie-biters. Will it be worth your share of $200,000 to obtain information that can be obtained every morning in the commercial columns of any daily newspaper?

Do you want the laws proposed by Farwell to appropriate $500,000 to establish a psychopathic hospital and $1,000,000 to build an insane asylum fifty miles from Los Angeles, so that when your share of the taxation that these freak and grafting laws would inflict should have stripped you of your worldly goods, you may be considered a psychopath or a lunatic and find refuge in an asylum?

Do you want Senator Campbell's law to prevent school children from wearing silk stockings or colored shirts or patent-leather shoes? Or Ryan's law "to protect the public from corporations"? Or Kingsley's law to abolish the State militia and prevent the issuance of injunctions, or the law of Moorhouse to limit the amount of gas or water that any corporation may furnish?

If you do not want any or all of these freak and grafting measures, confer with your neighbors, prepare and sign protests against their passage. Hold meetings in your precincts and counties and pass resolutions condemning these bills. The Times will publish a report of your proceedings. In the face of a prompt and vigorous protest from the people the Legislature will not dare to put these measures through.

A COMPARISON.

The following table prepared by State Printer Richardson shows the number of copies of bills ordered printed in first thirty days of each session of the Legislature:

1901	1,218,000
1903	1,376,000
1905	1,637,000
1907	1,596,000
1909	1,983,000
1911	1,887,000
1913	7,934,000

The histories of the Senate and Assembly contain 692 pages and are twice as large as at the end of any previous thirty days. The histories must be printed every day when the Legislature reconvenes and this will be a big task.

"The great volume of legislative printing, besides printing for the departments of State, as well as school book orders," says State Printer Richardson, "have taxed the State printing plant far beyond its capacity. More equipment is needed to meet the demands. But if we had more equipment where would we put it? The present building is overcrowded and is carrying as big a load on the second and third stories as is safe. A new building is needed and needed quickly. The demand for school books is twice as great as formerly and new equipment and a new building must be had if we are to do the work."

SOLID STAND FOR CITY CONTROL OF THE HARBOR.

All Los Angeles Lined Up for Struggle in Forthcoming Legislative Action on Schmitt Bill Vesting Control of Ports at Sacramento—The Real Facts Behind the Gang's Scheme—Delegations May Be Sent.

REPRESENTATIVE citizens and the civic and commercial organizations of Los Angeles will wage a determined fight during the last half of the present legislative session to retain municipal control of the harbor at San Pedro and defeat the scheme of San Francisco politicians to take control of the port from Los Angeles and place it under State management. Citizens of all classes are up in arms over the desperate attempts of the northerners to wrest control of the harbor from the city and from now on until the battle is won home rule for the hard-won port will be the warcry of every real citizen and loyal legislator. It took Los Angeles twenty years to gain municipal control of her port and she proposes to retain it at all hazards.

Measures repealing the acts by which the harbors of Los Angeles, San Diego, Long Beach and Oakland were given those cities by the State were introduced near the end of the first half of the bifurcated session of the Legislature by Assemblyman Schmidt of San Francisco. By repealing those acts Schmidt will put the operation of those four harbors upon an even footing with the San Francisco harbor, which is under State control and which it is the policy of the administration to keep under State control. NEW INDUSTRY IN ITS MAKING.

Cotton Growing Looms Large in Southwest.

Imperial Valley Crops Take Place of Imports.

Staple Well Known in Homes of the Ancients.

Standing before the cotton exhibit at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday, T. Cuyler, owner of cotton plantations in Georgia and Mexico, made the startling prediction that within a generation the Southwest will be producing $73,000,000 worth of cotton annually. Last year the cotton crop of the Southwest fell somewhat below $2,000,000 in value.

Cuyler, whose cotton plantation at Palaques, Mexico, is, perhaps, the largest west of Texas, is not only an authority on cotton and cotton raising, but is the scion of seven generations of cotton raisers. For twenty years his researches in the study of the cotton plant have carried him all over the world and he but recently returned from further researches in Europe.

Basis for Cuyler's prediction as to the ultimate high value of the Southwest's cotton crop is furnished by the recent discovery that the original habitat of the cotton plant was the deserts of the East. There it was grown under conditions that approximate those obtaining in the Imperial, Yuma, Palo Verde and Salt River valleys. Restored to like cultural conditions, the productivity of the plant may be expected to be considerably enhanced, while the amount of soil in the Southwest capable of producing cotton is almost limitless.

Cotton and cotton growing are Cuyler's twin hobbies. According to Cuyler, when Xerxes and his Persians invaded Europe they came with cotton shirts on their backs. The cloth used in Egyptian mummy cases is also cotton. Investigation by archeologists in the Far East also show that cotton was known to the ancient races of India, China, Babylonia and Assyria. Cotton cloth was also known to the Romans.

In America cotton planting was introduced by Oglethorpe's Scotch soldiers, who brought the seed with them from the Indies. As luck would have it this cottonseed was long staple cotton, and from it has descended the Sea Island cotton of today. In the South cotton has been grown under artificial cultural and climatic conditions for 200 or more years, and today the bulk of the world's cotton crop is produced in the South.

Last year the Southwest raised [illegible] bales of cotton. This year the yield is expected to be between 30,000 and 35,000 bales. In all, some 20,000 acres in California and Arizona are planted to cotton, and 10,000 acres across the line in Mexico.

The average price obtained for Southwestern cotton has been 15 cents a pound. The new Durano cotton brings 22 cents a pound and with its general planting the value of the cotton crop of the Southwest will be enhanced to the extent of $1,000,000 or more. This is assuming that the acreage is not increased.

Cotton means much for this city and, in fact, for the entire Southwest. It is recognized as the equivalent of gold by the Bank of England. It is absolute collateral. This city is the banking center of the Southwest and with the added resources offered by increased cotton production the general benefit is obvious.

Special knowledge, backed by money, is required in cotton raising. "It took us seven generations to make the negro a cotton picker," said Cuyler. "Every pound of cotton picked in the Imperial Valley is damaged to the extent of ½ cent by faulty picking. The negro picks by plucking from below. He has been educated. We have to educate our pickers and this takes time and money. But above all, we have to know cotton before we can raise it and make money from it."

TO DIVIDE OLD RANCHO.

Thousand Acres of Old Spanish Grant in Orange County to Be Cut Into Small Farms.

One thousand and twenty acres of the 3500-acre Banning ranch have been sold by Mary Banning Norris to Ryan & Bradford and H. H. Cotton. The purchasers state that the consideration and the money to be spent for improvements will total $290,000. The land will be subdivided into small farms, supplied with water, and opened under the name of Fairview Farms, with an excursion over the Southern Pacific on March 15.

The Banning ranch comprises a portion of the old Spanish grant, Rancho Santiago de Santa Ana. With the exception of the Irvine property, it has been the largest single holding in Orange county. The tract purchased covers a strip one mile wide and two miles long on a mesa two miles north of Newport Beach.

SLAUSON PORTRAIT SHOWN.

Washington Birthday Events at Playgrounds Include Presentation of Gift to Clubhouse.

Special events in honor of Washington's Birthday were given at the Slauson-avenue and Echo Park playgrounds yesterday. The programme at the Slauson-avenue playgrounds was in the afternoon, and the feature was the presentation of a large portrait of the late James S. Slauson by Mrs. Slauson. This was given a place of honor in the clubhouse, and was unveiled with appropriate exercises.

Addresses were made by Capt. H. Z. Osborne, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Miss Bessie Stoddart, president of the Public Playgrounds' Commission. Miss Virgalee Moore of the University of Southern California sang. The members of the Playgrounds Commission were present. The Hoover-street school orchestra played selections.

The affair at the Echo Park playgrounds was given last evening. The programme included drills by boys and by girls, folkdances and gymnastic exercises, with a special musical programme.

Special athletic events were scheduled for various playgrounds both morning and afternoon. At the Slauson-avenue grounds there were track events in the forenoon and a baseball game in the afternoon between teams composed of the benedicts and bachelors of the neighbor-

For Artistic Decoration

THE WALL PAPER CROWN has a distinct decorative value that should be considered in all good and worthy decoration. It breaks the monotony of wall space—gives relief to the eye by contrast—or supplies needed color to any otherwise quiet-toned apartment.

Again the Crown may repeat in a delicate manner the tints of the floor coverings and thereby bring an incongruous scheme into beauty and harmony.

The "California" shows the most critically-selected gathering of new and distinctive Crown effects to be found anywhere in Los Angeles.

—rich leather effects and conventionalized designs in various colorings for halls and libraries—fruit and floral effects for the dining-room—soft floral tones for the bedroom—a wealth of the newest Crown ideas to meet every need and every individual taste.

All who are interested in making their homes more beautiful at slight cost, are invited to visit our Wall Paper Department and see the artistic possibilities of these distinctive new creations. Definite comparison of the distinctiveness of our designs and the thoroughness of our service will convince you that we can serve you with utmost satisfaction and economy.

Some beautiful wall paper Crown suggestions are shown in one of our windows this week.

No city in Southern California will receive greater direct benefits from the opening of the Panama Canal than Torrance.

The strategic location of this solidly established industrial city with relation to Los Angeles and the harbor district has appealed strongly to big manufacturers. It has every commercial and industrial advantage.

Some of the largest factories on the Pacific Coast are locating at Torrance for economic reasons—better industrial conditions, larger and cheaper sites, highest type of workers, no saloons, pure air sanitation, high-class improvements, model schools and playgrounds—and general civic conditions planned along ideal lines.

Torrance will grow—expand—develop—beyond the fondest hopes of its founders. A famous civic idealist said recently that Torrance is America's first great industrial garden city.

Southern California is on the eve of its manufacturing era. And Torrance because of its unparalleled advantages may get the biggest share of the best industries.

Make your investment at Torrance today—and reap the reward of those who got in first in all America's manufacturing centers.

Plenty of choice business and residence property left at original opening prices. 10 per cent. cash—balance in 60 equal monthly payments.

Making a Chamber of Commerce President.

Capt. H. Z. Osborne (right,) the outgoing head of the body, delivering the gavel of office to his successor, Arthur W. Kinney. Below is George W. Perkins, the financier, who was the principal speaker.

For Greater Future.

of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., was the principal speaker of the evening. His subject was "Our Commercial Future." In a speech bristling with epigram, Perkins, introduced by Chairman Macneil as an eminent financier and a man who knew whereof he spoke, condemned legislation by the unfit, scored Socialism, and urged that we build broadly and understandingly. "We have left our question of making legislation to almost any man who could not make anything else," said Perkins, "and we demand of them correction of evils of which they know nothing. Our country is working towards a colossal success or a stupendous failure and the chambers of commerce must mix in politics, guide public opinion in business legislation, or Socialism will be a reality in the near future.

"Legislators generally have gone insane on theory and bigness with them is the crying evil. There is a hue and cry about re-establishing competition, but the rest of the world will give us competition enough, for Germany and other countries are building larger industrial units, while we are destroying ours. We have an antiquated and dangerous currency system, but we have opportunities, especially here in Southern California, and we must make the most of them and fight to victory along lines that are broad, clearly defined, and thus confound the selfish agitator, the politicians, and the yellow press."

"As to our commercial future, I am an optimist, with only one proviso, namely, that American business men will awaken from their lethargy as to the causes that are today moulding public opinion, see their duty and do it.

"In the last twenty-five years evolution has made more tremendous strides in this country than ever before in the world's history. This evolution has had at least two great branches—invention and education. We have been quick to recognize and master the new conditions created by the inventor. We have been slow to recognize and master the new conditions created by the educator.

"The two real underlying causes of progress are invention and education. Superficially, lazily, we charge our troubled conditions to the trusts, the tariff, the yellow press, the agitator, the politician, bad laws and worse lawyers.

"Any thoughtful person knows that each one of these superficial causes is full of much to be condemned; but we could no more have had, for instance, a great corporation with twenty or more branches operating in many places without the railroad, the telephone, and telegraph, than we could have a great office building with twenty or more stories operating in one place without the use of steel, cement and elevators.

AS TO THE TRUSTS.

"The only way to actually and permanently dissolve the trusts and prohibit their reassembling in some other form is to prohibit the cause of their existence, which cause lies in the myriad inventions having as their sole object the annihilation of time and space, which means just one thing—namely, consolidation and centralization.

"Many men in the business world are inclined to sneer at the idea that the people are having anything to do with the present changing conditions. Some of them say that general intelligence is no greater among our people than it was a generation ago, that the change is the result of the yellow journal, of antiquated laws and selfish agitators. If this is true, then why continue to put hundreds of millions of dollars into our educational factories?

"Take your own State of California and your great university. You are proud of it because you believe it is going to give you minds that are trained better. If this be true, then you must be prepared to meet the many new questions.

BIG FORTUNES PASSING.

"In my judgment, we are just beginning to pass out of the period of huge fortunes in this country. Heretofore, the dollar has been the yardstick of a man's success. Jones has said, 'I am abler than Smith because I am possessed of more dollars than Smith.' We have had no other goals for our business men of energy and ability. What is it leading to? It means in my judgment just this:

"We business men must more carefully study the questions the people are studying, must meet public opinion at least half way, and in advance of its action rather than fight it all the way. We business men have been wholly absorbed in making dollars. We have left the question of making legislation to almost any man who could not make anything else. Our legislatures and national Congress are full of men who are there because they have sought the job for their own pecuniary benefit, rather than because the job has sought them for the country's benefit. The business world is largely to blame for this.

"If we are to meet our commercial rivals of other countries, we must give more freely time and thought to the questions—in a bigger, broader, more generous way.

"Let me illustrate. We are just finishing the Panama Canal. It is costing hundreds of millions, and we will have hardly a ship to put through it. We will still be paying tens of millions of dollars a year to foreign bottoms to carry our stuff. What are you going to do about it?"

"Here on the great Pacific Coast you are just beginning to get into the world action. With the opening of the canal a great impetus will be given to your affairs. With the opening of China, a still greater impetus will be given. You have got to deal with these questions on a big scale. You cannot do it in small units, and, if you try, other commercial nations will whip you in the struggle.

COMPETITION ASSURED.

"There is more or less of a hue and cry going on about re-establishing competition. We need not have much anxiety about competition. The rest of the world will give us all of that we can take care of.

"If, in the next twenty-five years, we have got to fight to the finish among ourselves, and then fight to the finish with other nations, it is easy to see that we will have red ink on the balance sheet.

"I believe in conservation, but I believe in conserving the life of the child before conserving the life of the sapling. If we are going to protect fish and game, let us first of all protect child labor by uniform laws.

"On the big business problems confronting this country today, there is no body of men who should be taking a more prominent hand in these things than the Chamber of Commerce. I suggest that you start the movement of co-operation between the various Chambers of Commerce to this end. A committee of three or five from this chamber to meet a committee from the New York Chamber of Commerce, and other chambers throughout the country, could do work of inestimable value. Don't say: 'Oh, we cannot mix in politics,' for you must mix in politics, because the political questions of the day are the business questions of the day.

"Take the need of banking reform. It cannot be satisfactorily worked out until the bankers of the East, the West, the North and the South meet, confer, co-operate with each other, learn each other's views, and above all, trust each other's motives and work with a patriotic spirit to give this country, regardless of personal or sectional profit, the banking system it sorely needs.

CONFESSION OF FAITH.

"I say you must accept Socialism or government ownership, for there are only three ways out of our many difficulties; either these two, or a proper regulation and control of large business units. I, personally, thoroughly believe in regulation and control of a business, whatever its nature, when its ramifications are widespread and it employs the public's money and affects the public's welfare. Regulations and control are natural. They were here before we were. They are in the very air we breathe, for the universe itself is under the most complete regulation and control. Our forefathers adopted it for the formation of our government. I believe it far preferable to Socialism, or government ownership, for many reasons, principal among which is that it preserves to American men the right of individual initiative.

"This vast country which we are proud to call the United States of America, endowed by the Almighty with unequalled natural resources, is entrusted temporarily to our keeping. Thanks to the wisdom and the forethought and the patriotism of our forefathers in 1776, and to our fathers in 1860, we have from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the great gulf to the Great Lakes, one government, one language, one currency, one flag. An unmatched heritage is ours. Shall we be wise enough, shall we be farsighted enough, shall we have patriotism enough, to pass it on as matchless an heritage to those who are to follow us? Our forefathers sowed the seed, our fathers watched over the maturing crops. Shall it be said of us that we quarreled among ourselves because the maturing crops were bountiful beyond the dreams of man?"

CAPT. OSBORNE'S ADDRESS.

President Osborne was given an ovation when he rose to make his valedictory as chief executive of the chamber. He said in part: "I have regarded the headship of this great body as a sacred trust, and I have endeavored to maintain the [illegible] reputation which the chamber has enjoyed during the terms of my [illegible] predecessors.

"The year has been one of [illegible] growth and achievement. The secretary has handed me a list of [illegible] three events during the year that were outside of the regular and routine work. These embraced all manner of activity intended to further Los Angeles and Southern California interests. . . .

"These events do not include the regular work of the chamber.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

"In the matter of national legislation the chamber [illegible] fight in favor of free tolls through the Panama Canal for American [illegible] engaged in coastwise trade, and for the exclusion of railway-owned ships from trade through the canal.

"Mayor Alexander [illegible] requested the City Council to [illegible] delegation to go to Washington to appear before the Committee on Commerce of the United States [illegible] support of an appropriation of [illegible]000 to deepen a portion of the [illegible] harbor to thirty-[illegible] appointed Gen. [illegible] Thomas E. Gibbon [illegible] and your president [illegible] tion and the mission [illegible] with a successful [illegible]

"The chamber [illegible] urged upon Congress [illegible] affecting Southern California interests. Among these are the following:

"The location of a [illegible] in the neighborhood of Los Angeles [illegible] an appropriation for [illegible] coast-defense [illegible]

At San Francisco a lady shot and slightly wounded her mother, mistaking her for a burglar. These accidents occur with such frequency that some system should be adopted for their avoidance. Members of a family should either wear bells or not wear firearms at home.

FEET.

It is often quite droll to see how a man's feet appear to fit him. A man who has had no experience whatever in selecting feet is born with a pair exactly suited to his needs. It is too bad that men do not go on through life exercising the same judgment and discrimination they employed in making their choice of pedestals.

UNWISE SPEECH.

The coal miners of Illinois adopted the useless resolution in which a general strike is advocated in case this country either engages in war or is attacked. The biggest fool on earth is he who talks without occasion. Ouida puts it neatly when she says: "Diplomacy is sometimes good, but silence is always safe."

HARD WORK.

Ambassador Wilson seems to have had a hard time conducting his single-handed intervention for American women and children in the danger zone of Mexico City. Perhaps he is tempted to feel as did the Irish soldier upon a battlefield in the Civil War when he remarked that if he ever got out of the fracas alive he would be blessed if he ever loved another country.

HAVING HIS SAY.

President-elect Wilson has written a book. Perhaps he has written many books, but the one to which we refer is fresh from the press. It is called "The New Freedom" and it attacks the present financial system. Coming as it does on the eve of his inauguration, it is more or less a promissory note to the American people to pay one sound administration on or before March 20, 1917.

A FISHERMAN.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke very neatly summed up the true spirit of sport when he said it was to land the heaviest fish with the lightest tackle. Dr. Van Dyke is a good fisherman and a good philosopher, and for some reason these two offices seem generally to be filled in one person. His handling of the rod is as light and certain as his plying of the pen. He lands big fish on the finest of lines; he expresses his full, deep views of life in—also—the finest of lines.

A DELICATE LINE.

An official often becomes so interested in doing his duty that he makes it a personal affair and imagines he has a private position to vindicate or a grudge to gratify. Cipriano Castro wanted to enter this country. It was perfectly right for the Board of Immigration Commissioners to challenge him; but, since a court of New York agrees to his admission, we cannot see why Secretary Nagel should insist on pursuing the point to any further conclusion.

NOTHING NEW.

Every now and then the East imagines it has discovered an idea. It then begins to advertise the fact and once in a great while puts it to work. The Russell Sage foundation has been pleased to publish with pride that Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President-elect, has originated a plan to make social centers of public schools. If the young lady would like to see how her scheme would work if applied she might visit Los Angeles, where it has been in vogue for more than two years.

LEVELS.

It is rather too bad that so many levels are dead levels. One often hears it said that Boston is a state of mind, just as the "highbrow" section along Arroyo Seco is so, but the truth is that places are always the objective terms which correlate a mental station. People strike a certain plane of thought and when it gets to be a mental rut they live in some place which corresponds with it. Always and forever, off toward the skyline of thought, there tower beyond the limit of one's present mental horizon the white palaces of larger thought and better dreams. These cities of the hills are entered only by those who pass the familiar landmarks of common thinking, daring to enter new and unexplored chambers of the mind.

A QUESTIONABLE ACT.

Utah lawmakers are after the stay-at-home vote. They are determined to fine men and women $3 poll tax in case they fail to exercise their franchise. If that were done in Los Angeles the man or woman who neglected to cast a ballot would have to pay about $150 a year poll tax, as fifty elections are a modest annual number for this enterprising city. Such a law would provide a nice snap for an extra army of election clerks who would write out certificates of having voted to those who had fulfilled this public duty. We regret the stay-at-home vote, but not to the extent of approving a law so drastic and confusing as one that would penalize those who refrain. Besides, America has probably never demonstrated whether it is suffering from too many voters or too few.

UNION LABOR MISLED BY SCOUNDRELS.

Unless and until the rank and file of the American Federation of Labor shall discard the cockney convict Gompers and his cabinet from control of their organization, and amend its constitution and laws so as to radically change its purposes and methods, they will not obtain the sympathy and the aid of the American people, even in honest efforts to better their condition.

It will not be forgotten that from the time of the arrest of the McNamaras here to the end of the Indianapolis trials the leaders of the American Federation of Labor used every effort—not to clear the skirts of honest labor of the suspicion of having sanctioned these crimes—but to procure the acquittal of the accused men, whether guilty or innocent. The labor leaders made themselves busy with all the energy and power at their command levying assessments and demanding of the workingmen of the country that they provide a half million dollars to defray the expenses of defending the men accused of dynamiting. Why half a million dollars, or one-tenth of that sum. If the accused were innocent they would have been acquitted. So large a sum as was called for and contributed could only have been used for subornation or removal of witnesses and bribing of jurors.

That a labor-union conspiracy was palpably plain was fairly well demonstrated by the quick and vigorous protests registered by the "higher-up" labor leaders against the arrest of one of their brother officers, against whom the evidence was so strong as to warrant the taking of no chances on his escape, and because the arresting officers gave him no opportunity to do this the whole gang of criminals concertedly shouted "kidnaped" and in the face of the damaging facts positively declared his innocence without a trial by a jury of his peers. And when he confessed they declared that his deed was the act of a madman, for which union labor was not responsible.

The only crime which the Gompers gang recognized in the premises was the arresting of union men and giving them no chance to evade their captors.

And even after the confession of the McNamaras their counsel, Darrow, had the measureless audacity to declare that they were "not morally guilty" of anything, while another great labor leader asserted that the dynamiting of The Times and the assassination of twenty of its employees was "a mere incident of industrial warfare."

No intelligent person will be convinced that the many dynamitings throughout the country were not the result of a deliberate plot, planned by an executive officer and approved by the executive board of a national union, constituting an important wing of the American Federation of Labor, directed by a high official from the headquarters of the organization, and executed by its agents in many parts of the country who were paid from a fund appropriated by the executive board of the union to be used by the officer in charge of the conspiracy, without accounting.

The moral, physical and intellectual betterment of the wage-earning classes through organization is a most worthy object. But no labor organization can hope to long endure which has a "speck" in its core that produces results of a character that has made the record of the American Federation of Labor and its allied unions the blackest in all history.

It is folly to talk about the selection of other leaders as a complete remedy for the abuses of such an organization, for, with a written and unwritten constitution that is fundamentally wrong and wicked, the leaders have only to lead in the direction of its guide-post, which is a polluted and diseased heart and antagonistic to every fiber of twentieth century civilization. It is contrary to all precedent that an organization so constructed can ever be expected, merely by a change in leadership, to purge itself of the evils upon which it is founded. This unsound organization has already disastrously affected our whole industrial structure, and if permitted to expand its growth and power it will undermine and destroy the base of our free institutions. It does not require a philosopher to predict what conditions would be with such an institution in the full possession of its goal, and that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

EASTER FOOD.

Easter will soon be here, and it is well for those who purchase Easter goods to know what they are buying. Alfred W. McCann says that Easter eggs are made of stearic acid, carpenter's glue, glucose, coal-tar dye and soapstone.

Licorice pellets are made of lamp-black, carpenter's glue and glucose.

Baked beans are coated with shellac.

Easter rabbits, Easter chicks, and marshmallows are made of carpenter's glue, glucose, coal-tar dyes and ethereal flavors.

Candy marbles are made of coal-tar dye, glucose and soapstone.

Lime juice, canned mushrooms, dried apples, dried apricots and Sauterne wine contain sulphurous acid. Strawberry soda water contains coal-tar dye, benzoate of soda and ethereal flavor. Orangeade contains coal-tar dye.

Onion salad sold at the delicatessen stores contains one-tenth of 1 per cent. benzoate of soda, two-tenths of 1 per cent. aluminum sulphate and one-tenth of 1 per cent. saccharin.

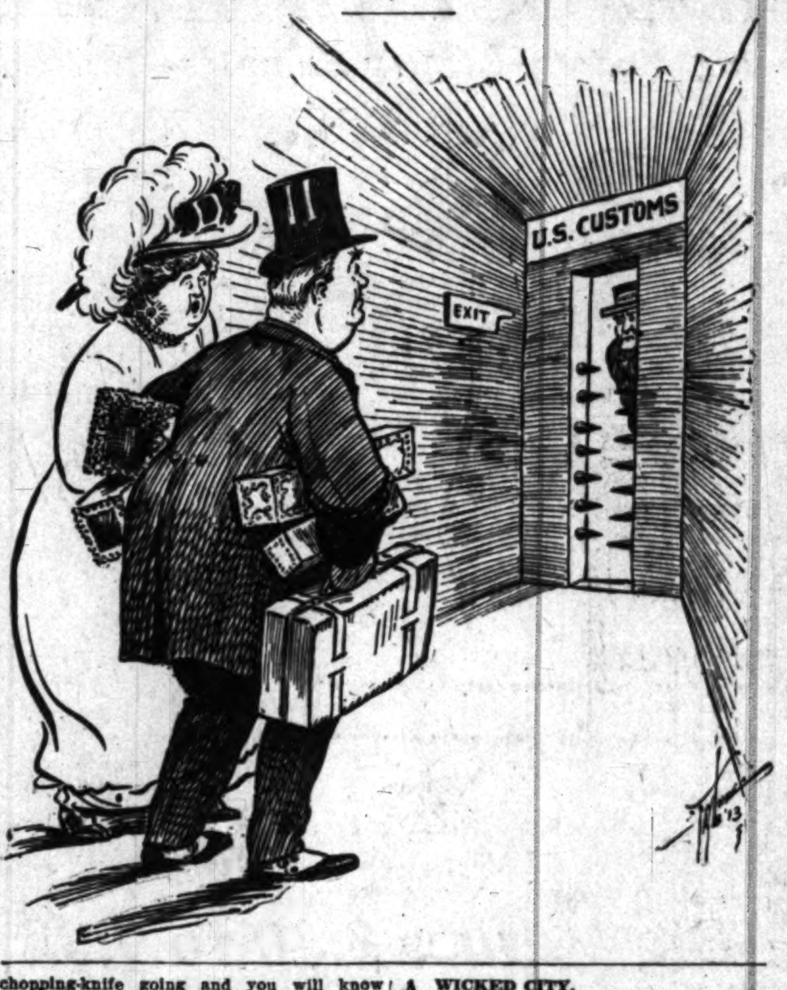
Maraschino cherries are bleached with sulphurous acid, dyed with aniline and preserved with benzoate of soda.

Sour pickles contain aluminum sulphate. The lemon pie in the baker's window has an attractive appearance that will secure a buyer. He lugs it home not knowing that it contains glycerine, glucose, oil of lemon, starch, coal-tar dye and benzoate of soda, and no lemons at all. The baker is not altogether to blame, for the pie filler from which the pie was made came to him in a barrel. The mince pie was made from mince meat containing benzoate of soda. The raspberry turn-overs contained coal tar dye and benzoate of soda.

Cut this out and paste it on the kitchen wall. She won't buy any more mince meat at the grocery store. You will hear the chopping-knife going and you will know that at dinner you will have genuine home-made mince pie such as your dear old mother used to make. Not the chemical compound you get at the restaurants, but the pie wickedly described by Charles Lamb as "moist and indigestible on the bottom, dry and indigestible on top and with untold horrors in the middle."

There will be not only Easter food to eat, but Easter hats to wear. "Look at that child's beautiful Easter hat," said a pure-food lecturer at Worcester, Mass. "The straw was bleached with sulphurous acid. The scarlet ribbon bows were colored with the coal-tar dye extracted from the strawberry soda; the blue rosette received its happy hue from the coal-tar dye extracted from a kidney pill; the lavender buds were colored with coal-tar dye extracted from the Easter confectionery, and the Maraschino cherries which added a delightful touch of brilliant color to this piece of millinery perfection contained sulphur dioxide, aniline and benzoate. It is a pure-food hat."

As It Appears To the Smugglers.



POSSIBLE SOLUTION OF THE PANAMA TOLLS QUESTION.

Senator Newlands of Nevada offers a practical solution of the Panama Canal tolls question that will commend itself to many people. The Times is not prepared to say that it might not be—all things considered—the best solution. It would keep us out of the deadfall of The Hague tribunal, and close the mouth of Sir Edward Grey.

Senator Newlands suggests that in strict compliance with the terms of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, as construed by England, the United States has a right to charge as tolls a sum sufficient to pay the cost of the upkeep of the canal, and interest on the bonds issued in aid of its construction. But to charge on this basis would necessitate a rate of tolls so high as to put us out of the running as a competitor of the Suez Canal for the Australian business, and that would suit England, which owns a majority of Suez Canal stock, and the eastern coast of Asia. A vessel from Liverpool bound for Hongkong would save mileage by going via Panama with a toll charge of $1.20 per ton. But if the Panama charge were $2 per ton it would pay her better to go via Suez.

This factor was considered by President Taft in fixing Panama tolls at $1.20 per ton. At that rate we would, until the traffic shall be doubled, lose the greater part of the amount paid for interest on the Panama bonds. Is not such loss a generous contribution to the commerce of other nations? Must we in addition to such contribution throttle the development of our own coastwise commerce for the direct benefit of the Canadian Pacific and other transcontinental roads, and the equally direct although less immediate benefit that England would receive by preventing or postponing the building of more American ships?

Senator Newlands suggests that canal tolls be levied upon all ships, American coastwise as well as others, upon the basis of the cost of the upkeep of the canal and a portion only of the interest charges, so as to make the tolls low enough to obtain a fair share of the business that otherwise might go through the Suez Canal. The amount of tolls of coastwise ships not to be paid, but to be credited on the interest but not on the upkeep fund. While this would be in the nature of an indirect subsidy to our coastwise shipping it would be a subsidy to the paying of which England would not contribute a dollar directly or indirectly.

The everlasting bedrock truth about the canal-toll controversy is that the British claim was instigated by the Canadian Pacific Company and is aided by the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific, the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe. One and a half dollars per ton remission of tolls to our coastwise ships means $1.50 per ton more freight charges on all freight going to or coming from the Atlantic Coast by rail.

Whatever course may be taken by representatives of the Missouri, the upper Mississippi and the Ohio valleys, for a Congressman or Senator from Washington, Idaho, Nevada, California or Arizona to oppose free tolls to coastwise ships is treason to the interests of his constituents.

A WICKED CITY.

The District Attorney of New York believes that the graft paid the police from one district in the city alone amounts to $250,000 a year. This is in small amounts for protection. It is probable that the killing of the gambler Rosenthal and the conviction of Becker and his tools have only scratched the surface of the demoralized condition of official New York, but it is maybe a mistake to imagine that this rottenness has been confined to the police department and its underlings. If Mr. Whitman can get any kind of backing he should go after the higher-ups. He can render no real service to his city in any other way. It may only have been a healthy skepticism which prompted the first public letters of Mayor Gaynor, following the open charge against Becker and the police. It may have been faith in his men or pride in his administration, but it could have been a guilty knowledge, and the world at large has never been convinced that this latter conclusion is not justified. If New York's higher-ups desire to stand clear in the eyes of the world let them devote themselves with better grace to the prosecution of that city's hidden vice.

UNCLE WALT.

The Poet Philosopher.

The great men come and prance a while, and do their stunts and chortle; we watch their curves, admire their style, and say they are immortal. But when they're laid beneath the grass—our memories are rotten!—before a few brief seasons pass the great men are forgotten. The shining lights who died last year from human minds have flickered, and new immortals gambol here where t'others toiled and dickered. That fame must like the rock be made if it has safely traveled adown the length of a decade and is not ripped or raveled. 'Tis given to but few to forge a deathless reputation like that of our immortal George, the father of the nation. His shining virtues still engage the orator and writer; till time shall end each passing age will make the story brighter. In countless schools we teach the youth for helpful facts inquiring, that "Washington" means honor, truth, and all that's worth admiring. In countless homes his pictured face is viewed with veneration; one man who never knew disgrace—the father of the nation. One man whose glory bears no stain—what conqueror's can match it? Beat at his white renown in vain, Time, with your little hatchet!

HARDER FOR THE WOMAN WHO WORKS.

BY JENNIE VAN ALLEN.

Theoretically it is no harder for a princess to be a bread winner than for a peasant to earn her living.

Both are women with the same physical limitation and the same exquisitely adjusted organism.

But there are conditions which have become the common heritage of working girls that are almost intolerable to the woman of culture when she first enters the ranks of the employed.

She may have the courage to close her eyes as the ghosts of happier days walk beside her; she may stifle the longing for voices that are still and the touch of hands that are crossed on pulseless breasts. She may have the grit to laugh when her heart is breaking and sing when her soul is black with woe.

But there is much that is hard to bear in the first days when she becomes a wage-earner.

From Monday morning to Saturday night it is hard to rise early when used to sleeping late. Hard to brew a cup of coffee and eat a crust of stale bread in a comfortless bedroom when used to a daintily-served nourishing breakfast. Hard to catch an early car and be jostled and elbowed by the dinner-pail brigade.

Hard to stand in line at the employee's entrance. Hard to ring the "Bundy" and know it keeps an unerring record of her incomings and outgoings. That on this bit of mechanism depends her weekly stipend.

Hard to always walk up and downstairs or ride in elevators placarded: "For Employees Only." Hard to hang her hat on a nail in a stuffy cloakroom. Hard to be known by a number instead of a name.

Hard to stand behind a counter when used to a rocker and an afternoon nap. Hard to cater to the whims of a thoughtless shopper. Hard to have half an hour at noon and eat out of a lunch-box or a paper bag.

Hard to take orders from one socially and intellectually her inferior. Hard to hear her co-workers' coarse familiarity, and harder still their bitter gibes if she holds herself aloof. Hard to bear the monotonous grind. Hard to have unjust blame and unfair discrimination. Hard to serve when she has always been served.

Hard to withstand temptation when she is tired and hungry at night. Hard to say "no" when she craves food and longs for a glimpse of the old care-free life. Hard to go back to a hall bedroom, to cook a morsel over the gas jet, to wash her clothes in a bowl and dry them in her cheerless room, to sit and sew until her sight fails. To do it days and weeks and months when back of her are memories of a luxurious life. When back of her are generations of well-bred, well-educated people, and she has known a life of ease, gently nurtured and cared for tenderly.

Yet the high-born, delicately-reared, proud-spirited woman is the leaven in the loaf of commercial life, the hidden spring that keeps the pool from growing stagnant. The women whose locks have been touched by a silver wand: whose faces bear the seal of Time, the great Engraver: the women who are brave-hearted, clear-headed, well-balanced, alert and resolute are the ballast of the business world.

Can any seer prophesy, any economist foretell what would happen if women were suddenly eliminated from business life? If every gay, inconsequential girl and every woman who is a vender of muscle and brains should go out of the factories, offices and schools. If they deserted the fields and the marts of trade. If they retired from art, science and literature and again became the keepers of the home?

The Reason She was a Climber.

This is a true story of a girl who was a dishwasher in an eastern crockery-house and demonstrates the wisdom of doing the humblest task well.

Week after week she washed the dust and straw from rare imported china where breakage would have bankrupted her. But she had "lucky hands," and after a while she was promoted to the post of duster in the salesroom. The exquisite array was more beautiful to her than any fabled art gallery in Europe and she loved every dish as if it had been human.

She began haunting the public library at night and studied china until she knew all that books could teach her of the potteries of the world. She learned the trade mark of every manufacturer at home and abroad and the study was more fascinating than hieroglyphics to the Egyptologist.

One day as she stood dusting and handling each piece with reverent care, a lady who had been idly watching her, inquired:

"Do you like fine china?"

It was the first time any cared whether she liked her work or not, and with a little gasp she cried exultantly:

"Oh, I love it! Just look at the mechanical difficulties they overcame in making this dish!"

And in the discussion that followed, the technique of pottery slipped unconsciously from her girlish tongue. They were deep in its wonderful mysteries, when the head salesman hurried up with profuse apologies.

"So sorry to have kept you waiting, but I was unavoidably detained, but I am at your service now!"

"If you will excuse me, I believe I'll have this young girl wait upon me!"

"But she is only a 'duster,' and knows nothing of china!" expostulated the salesman.

"Nevertheless, she knows enough to serve me!" returned the lady with quiet decision. "Now, my dear, you may show me the dinner set you were describing!"

With crimson face and beating heart the girl began. She halted and stumbled miserably under the critical and unfriendly eye of the salesman, but she finally forgot herself and told her story with grace and fluency. A few hours later she took a bill of sale of a thousand dollars to the desk and went back to her dusting.

That night she was called into the manager's office, who remarked genially:

"I guess you are too valuable to wash or dust dishes! You may begin selling tomorrow!"

A Flame for a Trumpet.

[Sunday Magazine:] If a vibrating tuning fork be placed in a flame, the sound is markedly re-enforced. Starting with this fact, an English scientist has devised a new form of phonograph, in which the flame takes the place of the trumpet ordinarily used. The sounds thus re-enforced are easily heard throughout a large room.

The explanation of the action of the flame is that the sound waves falling upon it change its combustion from a continuous to an intermittent form, the burning gas being thus thrown into a series of waves that are more powerful than the original sound waves, re-enforced them, and thus magnify the sound.

property that she owned. Mrs. Brown delighted Delaney by asking his advice about investing $10,000.

A CRUEL GAME.

On the evening of the day that Mrs. Brown mentioned the contemplated investment, he gave her a dinner at Brink's. On this occasion he introduced Mrs. Brown to several of his friends who chanced to be in the cafe. To one of the party whose name was given as Miss Catherine Polk, the man was somewhat attentive in the presence of Mrs. Brown. The latter saw the point and at once became jealous. The young woman, the police believe, is the professional pealosy inspirer of the coterie.

Delaney, in the meantime had changed his address. She did a little sleuthing and located him at No. 1604 Cherry street, called him over the telephone and informed him that she would be out. She went. He had gone. Mrs. Brown has not seen Billy or heard from him since. She said yesterday that she wishes now that she had tipped the police about Delaney before she frightened him so.

One of Delaney's alleged co-workers, engaged rooms at an apartment-house at No. 453 South Hope street. He registered as Frank G. Melbourne. At these same apartments there was Mrs. Maud Zickrick, a young North Dakota widow, blue-eyed and trusting. She was introduced to Melbourne in a perfectly formal manner by the unsuspecting manager of the apartments.

Melbourne at once paid court to Mrs. Zickrick, the latter says. She was here for her health and had leisure; in fact, wanted to be entertained. He had leisure, too. His clothes were of the latest cut. He was educated, much traveled, a critic of plays and knew how to order a meal at a cafe. He spoke often of his ranch in Inyo county and of the wealth of his father.

LEFT ON WEDDING DAY.

In two weeks Melbourne and Mrs. Zickrick were engaged and had set the wedding day. Then, she states, he borrowed $10 on a pretext and a few days later $25 more. She suggested that she would send home for $100 to buy her trousseau and he thought it was a capital idea and wrote the telegram for her. On the day set for the wedding Mrs. Zickrick says she gave Melbourne $45 to buy their railroad tickets to Needles, Ariz., on a wedding trip.

They were to meet at 2 o'clock on the day set for the wedding. She waited a long time, but he did not come. Then the telephone bell rang. Wild with anxiety, she rushed to it, fearing an accident had happened to him. His calm voice told her he would be there soon. He has not come yet.

Another young man whose methods connect him with the same aggregation, told Mrs. Laura Labo, of No. 740 South Spring street, that he wanted to marry her. His course as to the flowers, the theaters, the dinners was the same as those attributed to Delaney and Melbourne. He gave his name as Archie S. Holland.

One day when Archie was left alone in Mrs. Labo's office he tapped her safe for $150, she says. A few days later when the victim was riding in a motor car she saw her former admirer on the street and gave chase but while the car was detained at a crossing he got away.

ORDERED OUT.

Mrs. Sallie S. Fogarty, widow of James J. Fogarty, of No. 1223 Magnolia avenue, escaped the scheme through the prompt exercise of good sense. A well-dressed, well set up and exceedingly mannerly man appeared at the Fogarty Apartments and inquired of Mrs. Fogarty about one of the suites which was vacant at the time. He stated that he would like to move in with two nephews, both grown up, but that they would not arrive in the city for some time.

On his second call, he proceeded to make love of the most ardent character to Mrs. Fogarty, who, surprised at his action, ordered him out. He courteously asked pardon for having allowed his feeling so to overcome him and left, to return a third and fourth time and each time endeavor to propose marriage. He called over the 'phone repeatedly and insisted on his love, but Mrs. Fogarty finally informed him that unless he ceased his attentions, she would inform the police.

With that he dropped his infatuation very suddenly and was only seen afterwards on the street by Mrs. Fogarty. He gave his name as Ward and stated that he was practically out of business and retired, having acquired a fortune in real estate in the Middle West, which was more than enough to support himself and a family if necessary.

CREATURE OF THE STILLNESS.

HEARS NOT, SPEAKS NOT, BUT WRITES PLAY, NOVEL.

Los Angeles Deaf-mute First in the West to Gain Distinction as an Author—Believes Misfortune Not an Insuperable Obstacle to Attainment in Any Line.

A man who has never listened to a play, yet has written one; a man who has never heard poetry, yet composes it; a man who has missed the cadence of his mother's voice in reading of fairy tales, yet has written a successful novel, is Howard Terry of this city, the first deaf-mute in the West to publish a novel or produce a play.

A clean-cut, red-cheeked youth of 25 is Terry, whose novel, "A Voice From the Silence," has been running in serial form in an eastern magazine, and is about to be published by the Orange, Judd Company of New York, and whose play, "The Dream," is at present in the hands of a New York manager, who is considering it for production at an early date.

Terry is the son of Judge John H. Terry of St. Louis, himself a writer of considerable ability, and whose talent the son inherits. He is also a graduate of St. Louis High School, and of the University of California, where he took honors, despite his handicap.

"Strangely enough," wrote Terry, in an odd little paper and pencil interview, wherein were discussed the gifts and acquirements which are his in spite of the eternal silence in which he dwells; "the inability to hear limits the imagination more than does the inability to see. Yet I believe the deaf man who will concentrate as does the blind man naturally from the nature of his infirmity, can accomplish wonders by the cultivation of his gifts and talents."

ENJOYS THE LOOT.

Prisoner Accused of Stealing Five Thousand Cigars Puffs Smoke in Faces of Detectives.

George H. Avery passes the hours in a "tank" at the Central Station smoking cigars said by the police to be a portion of 5000 he is accused of having stolen from Al Greenewald a week ago. When arrested in San Bernardino Friday, Avery was smoking another of his alleged loot, and distributed them with a free hand to members of the train crew en route to Los Angeles with Detective Ingram.

At the "show-up" in the jail yesterday morning Avery contemptuously blew the smoke from one of the cigars into the faces of the detectives when he was pointed out to them.

The cigars were stolen from in front of Greenewald's warehouse. It is alleged that when Avery delivered some merchandise next door, he threw the Greenewald cigars into his wagon and drove away with them. How many he had sold before being arrested is not known.

Spring Styles Unordinary

This season, as in preceding seasons, the New York Store was first to announce the arrival of new Spring styles; first to describe the essential characteristics of those styles, and now it is the first to announce its complete clearance of old stocks, and its concentration on new models and nothing else. This fact holds true in every department. The selection of our stock has been carefully made. The prices have been put at points that will tempt you. The variety in each line is astounding.

WAR AGAINST WEEDS.

Public Works Board Would Prepare for Summer's Onslaught by Crew of Lot Cleaners.

The Board of Public Works wants an appropriation from the City Council of about $16,000, to wage a campaign to clean vacant lots.

An ordinance provides that this work shall begin May 16, and that the cost thereof shall be charged against the properties affected. The assessment rolls must be filed with the Tax Collector not later than October 15.

The report of the Inspector of Public Works, which the Board of Public Works has submitted to the City Council, with its request for an appropriation, says that in order to do the lot cleaning to the best advantage, the men should work until October 1, leaving fifteen days for finishing the rolls to present to the City Tax Collector.

On this basis, there would be 114 working days and Inspector Hansen recommends the organization of a force that would include two foremen at $100 a month each, for four and one-half months; two clerks at the same rate, for five months; thirty-six laborers, at $2.50 a day each, for the full 114 days, and six teams at $4.50 a day for the same length of time, with a purchase of tools amounting to $150, making a total of $15,388.

The Board of Public Works asks the City Council to take immediate action and adopt the necessary ordinances creating these positions, so that the force can be completely organized by the day on which the original ordinance requires work must be begun.

CITY CONTENDS WITH RAILROAD.

SAN PEDRO-STREET FRANCHISE IN FINAL ISSUE.

Supreme Court Asked to Adjudge that Corporation Usurps and Unlawfully Occupies Portions of Thoroughfare and that Lower Court Should Be Sustained.

City Attorney Shenk has filed with the State Supreme Court the respondent's brief in the case of the city against the Los Angeles Railway Corporation in the quo warranto proceedings on appeal there.

The city seeks to have it adjudged that the railway corporation usurps and unlawfully exercises a franchise for maintaining street railway tracks in portions of San Pedro street, and to have the defendant excluded from operating any street railway along the franchise route in question.

This case has been in the courts several years. The substantial charge in the complaint is that the Los Angeles Railway Corporation failed to complete the construction of its road within the time limit provided by the franchise ordinance, thereby forfeiting the rights and franchises conferred by the ordinance. In a prior action the Superior Court gave judgment for the city.

The original franchise ordinance provided that the grantee be required to begin the work of construction within six months and to complete the whole work within eighteen months from the date of the passage of the ordinance. Prior to the expiration of the eighteen months, the City Council granted a six months' extension.

At the expiration of this six months' extension only about one and three-fourths miles of the road were constructed, leaving about three miles on which the work of construction had not been begun, and of this, about one mile has never been constructed, while construction of two miles of road south of Thirtieth street was not begun until May, 1903, or about four years after the time fixed for the completion of the road.

The city's brief gives a recital of the various attempts of the corporation to construct this two miles of track, which brought on the litigation in which it was finally adjudged that the franchise rights had been forfeited.

Shenk contends the judgment in favor of the city operates as an estoppel and binds the corporation as to all matters in issue in the pending action and relied upon on the appeal to the State Supreme Court, save that of the plea of the statute of limitation.

Shenk also argues that the pending proceeding is not barred by the statute of limitation, as it is not an action to recover a penalty or forfeiture, but to compel the defendant to show legal justification for its occupancy of the public street with its tracks and wires, or to remove these from the street.

CITY STORE TO SAVE EXPENSES.

SUPPLIES TO BE KEPT IN NEW MUNICIPAL BUILDING.

Purchasing Agent Hopes to Have Fifty Thousand Dollar Stock Within Year—Cost System and Operating Charges—Garage, Repair Shop and Like.

City Purchasing Agent Arthur Baker passed considerable of his holiday yesterday completing plans for the municipal store that will be opened soon in the new municipal building at Pasadena avenue and Avenue 19.

At present the city's supply store is on the second floor of the City Hall Annex, and Baker has his office with the Council's Supply Committee in the front of this building. In the new building there will be ample room for arrangement of supplies in departments so that much time can be saved in handling and distributing.

From $10,000 to $20,000 is employed in a revolving fund to keep up the stock of the city's store, and Baker hopes to be able to carry a $50,000 stock within the year.

The system has been the means of effecting a great saving to the various departments, and Baker's work is commended by the Supply Committee.

A cost system is being worked out so that the proper percentage may be added to the supplies for each department to provide for the expenses of operating the store department. A charge of 5 per cent. is added to the goods when they are taken into stock. Other charges must be computed, but with the added conveniences of handling stock at the new store it is possible that costs may be still further reduced.

The new building has a double frontage on Pasadena avenue and Avenue 19. A section 40x100 feet is two stories high and the other sections are one-story.

In this building, in addition to the store, will be the municipal garage, where all municipal automobiles will be kept. There is to be a commodious machine and repair shop, oil storage, etc., and quarters will also be provided for the municipal printing plant.

It is expected that a considerable saving will be effected for the city in the operation of the machine shops and direct care of the city's automobiles. All autos will be inspected and repaired at night and a charge will be made each month to the city departments keeping autos in the garage.

HOLD ALLEGED SMUGGLERS.

Officers Apprehend Two Brothers Who Try to Sell Valuable Gems Too Cheaply.

A smuggling charge will be preferred against Rodriquez and Enrico Santana, brothers, by Central Station Detective Murphy, who arrested them yesterday as they were trying to sell a $5000 pearl necklace to a South Main-street jeweler for $1000.

The brothers told the officers that they paid $5000, Mexican money, for the pearls in Guadalajara, and smuggled them across the line at El Paso. They could give no explanation for their willingness to dispose of the gems for less than half what they said they paid for them, and at one-fifth their real value.

The Mexicans said they did not know the name of the man from whom they bought the pearls. They said he was trying to get out of Mexico because of the revolution, and being in need of ready cash, offered the string to them. The Santanas appear to be laborers. They said they saved the money from their wages. The men are in jail at the Central Station.

STOCK PROMOTER BARROW ADEPT.

ALLEGED SWINDLER SOON TO BE RELEASED.

Doesn't Mean End of Troubles, However, for He Will Immediately Be Rearrested and Brought Here for Trial—Once Affluent, Now Penniless.

Dr. John Grant Lyman will be released from McNeil's Island March 8, when his term of eighteen months' imprisonment for having conspired to escape from the custody of a United States marshal at Oakland in January, 1912, will expire. By good behavior the debonair prisoner has been able to reduce the term to fourteen months.

A certified copy of the indictment returned by the Federal grand jury in this city has been sent to Seattle, and it will be served on Lyman when he leaves the prison. He will be brought here for trial on the charge of illegal use of the mails in connection with the Panama Development Company, whose office in Mercantile Place was raided by Federal officers when Lyman suddenly left this city.

The testimony in the hands of Postoffice Inspector Webster indicates that before Lyman was arrested he had cleaned up about $30,000 on the Panama deal.

Lyman had an office in the Consolidated Realty building. Prospective buyers of shares in the Panama Development Company were referred by letter to Dr. John Grant Lyman, who was spoken of as "one of the most conservative investors in Los Angeles," and "a good judge of values" who had put a lot of money in the enterprise. Lyman, it is charged, as a "disinterested business man," would so impress desirability of the investment that tentative purchasers often hastened from Lyman's office to Mercantile Place to buy shares.

Mrs. Lyman, who has been in the East for some time, is said to be trying to raise bail for her husband, to be offered when he is brought here for trial.

The record of Lyman in the East, where he exploited a number of corporations, has been investigated by the government. Although Lyman's enterprises are declared to have netted him hundreds of thousands of dollars, his friends assert he is penniless.

During his term at McNeil's Island Lyman is said to have become an adept at trundling a wheelbarrow.

ENTER MULHOLLAND.

Mulholland, the new San Fernando Valley town, had the biggest day of its history yesterday, a large throng visiting the new townsite. Blaikie & Widney, sales agents, who were in charge of the celebration, announced during the day that plans had been completed for a garage to be built at the town and which will be of material assistance to autoists who use the boulevards that run through the new place. Several excursion trains will leave the Arcade station for Mulholland today.

NORTH END LEASE.

The fifty-three-room apartment-house now being constructed by J. B. Hunter on North Hill street at Sunset boulevard, has been leased by E. K. Albrecht, manager of the hotel department of W. Ross Campbell Company to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Hatfield, hotel keepers of Anaheim. The rental is given at $40,000 for a term of years.

PROPERTY WAR BEATS BURIAL.

Contest for Riches of Mrs. Dubourdieu Planned.

Funeral Postponed; "We'll Just Fight It Out."

Quarter of a Million Said to Be at Stake.

"We'll fight it out to see who gets the property," declared Mrs. [illegible] Gonzales, adopted daughter and niece of the late Mrs. Canaida Dubourdieu, who died Tuesday, leaving an estate valued at $250,000 and no will. The declaration of war preceded even the funeral services for Mrs. Dubourdieu, which were announced for this morning, but have been postponed until 10 o'clock Monday morning at the Plaza Church.

The immediate relatives of the wealthy French woman, including her mother, Mrs. Juana Enriquez, her two brothers, Manuel and Vincente Enriquez, and Mrs. Gonzales assembled yesterday afternoon at the Dubourdieu home, No. 640 North Broadway, to make plans for the pending contest.

FUNERAL POSTPONED.

It had been reported to Mrs. Gonzales that other relatives of her late foster-mother and aunt would begin action yesterday morning in the Probate Court to obtain possession of the estate, but as it was a legal holiday court was not open. Mrs. Gonzales says that the funeral was delayed to await the arrival of relatives from San Francisco.

Lucille and Mary Dubourdieu, sisters of her husband, claim that they have a rightful share in the estate, particularly since most of the property was acquired by their brother, who gave it all to his wife when he died.

When Mrs. Dubourdieu succumbed to heart trouble, superinduced by a cold, she left no immediate family of children. She had only a step-daughter, who also happens to be the daughter of one of her brothers, Mrs. Honerina Gonzales. The brothers and their sister, Mrs. Manuel [illegible], will appear on one side of the contest.

OF OLD FAMILY.

She was of one of the oldest families here, her father having come from Peru, in South America, to California with the Spanish soldiers. The family was intermarried and mixed with the well-known [illegible] and Avila families and owned vast grants of land, among them a tract which now constitutes the fashionable West Adams-street district, the old college property and a portion of which was located the original Calvary Cemetery. Much of this had passed out of the hands of the family when the beautiful [illegible] Enriquez married the dashing young Frenchman, Dubourdieu, who owned the first French bakery here.

Dubourdieu saved his money and invested in real estate, having at the time of his death numerous [illegible] holdings which in the aggregate are valued at a considerable sum. The property all went to his wife to the exclusion of the two sisters who had come with their brother all the way from France. During the [illegible] growth of Los Angeles has advanced values to such an extent that Mrs. Dubourdieu was able to leave her relatives at least $250,000 to contest for possession.

Not long ago she herself created quite a stir in the city when she refused to accept a city warrant for condemned property on Sunset boulevard and demanded gold. She carried $36,000 in this coin of the realm from the City Treasurer's office to her bank.

POSTAL CLERKS' JINKS.

Will Celebrate Passage of Eight-Hour Law With Music, [illegible] and Frivolity.

The two local organizations of postal clerks—Local No. 64 of the National Federation and Branch 57 of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks, will celebrate the passage of the eight-hour law this week. The latter will give a [illegible] and musical programme [illegible] evening at the Walker Theater. No. 64 will give a stag entertainment, high jinks and jollification [illegible] at Eagles' Hall. Music and a lunch will follow.

Under the postoffice appropriation bill the new rule that postoffice employees shall be compelled to be on duty not more than eight hours in any given ten, will go into effect March 4. This will do away with "swings" and will make necessary the employment of more men at the local office. If the postoffice appropriation bill under discussion by Congress does not carry this provision, the change will be in effect only from March 4 to June 30.

CLUBWOMEN'S DAIRY.

Imperial Valley Project Promoted by Local Ladies to Be Run by Sex Exclusively.

To skim the cream of life for themselves and bestow the blessings of [illegible] service upon the public, is the expressed purpose of a group of Los Angeles women, who will open soon, under the exclusive management of women, at the [illegible] Lone Star ranch, five miles [illegible] Heber, Imperial Valley, a [illegible] down-to-date dairy. The [illegible] originated with Mrs. Marie W. [illegible] a member of the Friday [illegible] Club, who, with Mrs. S. F. [illegible] organizing the company.

The ranch, which is the [illegible] which the scene of the [illegible] periments in cotton [illegible] made by Mrs. Wiles, comprises [illegible] acres of irrigated land, one [illegible] water stock to each acre, [illegible] 240 acres already are in alfalfa with six fields ready for the [illegible]. The new company will [illegible] office tomorrow morning [illegible] Consolidated Realty building.

SECOND FLOOR NEW TIMES BUILDING
FIRST AND BROADWAY ALL INVITED

"HER recipes turn out so well," said a young matron as she watched Mrs. Haffner-Ginger compounding those fish sauces at the Friday lecture.

"Really I never enjoyed anything as much as coming down here to The Times listening to these cooking demonstrations," responded her companion.

Among the interested onlookers was a trained nurse who has recently arrived here from Chicago. She wore her "blue cross" uniform of St. [illegible] Hospital and seemed particularly interested in the savory sauces. She said she would like to take a course in dietetic dishes under the direction of Mrs. Haffner-Ginger.

As there was not time to demonstrate the making of clam chowder at Friday's lecture, Mrs. Haffner-Ginger gave the recipe to the audience. Here it is:

Clam chowder—Add to the liquor of one and one-half dozen clams one can of canned tomato soup, one-half teaspoon tabasco sauce, salt and white pepper to taste. Boil, and then add two slices of minced bacon, two tablespoons finely-chopped onion, one-half cup finely-chopped cooked potatoes and two tablespoons crushed crackers. Add the clams last. [illegible] the top with a tablespoon [illegible] parsley, a dash of [illegible] and a thin slice of lemon on [illegible] bowl.

Chilis in Cucumbers?

"We used to think in the South there was a dozen chilis in every cucumber," observed the cooking expert as she prepared the cucumber [illegible] for the fish. "We thought them very unhealthy. Now we know cucumbers help to thin the [illegible] and keep us cool, they have a [illegible] value. You know our grandmothers used to think tomatoes were [illegible] to eat. We have learned better. In liver troubles, the tomato [illegible] with the lemon for beneficial [illegible] is decidedly a liver tonic."

Will Entertain Club.

[illegible] Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Haffner-Ginger will entertain at the Times [illegible] science headquarters the [illegible] Afternoon Club of Glendale, of which she is a member. There are [illegible] members of this club and Mrs. Haffner-Ginger is chairman of [illegible] science section. She will [illegible] at Tuesday's function by [illegible] T. Anderson of Glendale, who [illegible] of the club committee of [illegible] science.

[illegible] special cooking class in the [illegible] kitchen will open next Thursday afternoon, and another class will [illegible] on the same evening. All who [illegible] to join one or other of these [illegible] should notify Mrs. Haffner-Ginger on Monday.

[illegible] free lecture will be [illegible] of food value menus, com[illegible] with breakfast dishes.

As a Man Eateth, so Is He.

[illegible] in the history of the world [illegible] given so much thought to [illegible] quality of foods we eat, [illegible] value and combination," says Mrs. Haffner-Ginger. "To [illegible] this subject, to outline a fixed [illegible] diet for each individual, [illegible] impossibility, hence, the [illegible] interest taken in the subject [illegible] all classes, as they realize [illegible] is a law unto himself, each [illegible] his own physical condition and financial problem.

[illegible] that food well [illegible] served produces is within [illegible] of nearly every one. The [illegible] than any one [illegible] the status of refinement [illegible] of its occupants. [illegible] who never tires of [illegible] unvaried diet, unattrac[illegible] and I'll show you a per[illegible] of all culture—one who [illegible] do, merely to fill [illegible] stomach. And yet, I do not [illegible] spending one's entire time [illegible] of food, but would [illegible] we take up the study of [illegible] intelligently as we do any [illegible] we consider necessary [illegible].

[illegible] certain extent, all persons [illegible] that they require heat [illegible] and flesh and muscle-forming [illegible] but the error so many com[illegible] of one or the [illegible] well-proportioned diet, [illegible] mistake. What can [illegible] of an excess of any one [illegible] poison to the system? [illegible] diseased bodies early [illegible] death to the great majority. A few strongly-constituted persons can withstand the evils of poorly-selected diets, but who can say that even these favored few would not have lived longer and been happier had diet been considered?

"Now diet does not mean choice cuts of meats, tender fowl, prize butter and fruits and vegetables, though where expense does not have to be considered, it is easier to live well on the best because of the ease with which it can be prepared. But for those who wish to purchase the most nutriment for their money, the cheaper foods will be found to serve the same purpose as the higher priced, provided they are properly cooked to bring out their good qualities. Food has been estimated as that which builds tissue or supplies energy—proteins, fats, carbohydrate. But what are they, you ask? How are we to know them, and how select proper combinations?

Table of Food Values.

"I propose to furnish, as nearly as possible, a table of food values in menu form, with recipes for cooking each food. So much is being written by others on this subject of food values in a general way, that I feel that the average home-maker will appreciate a series of food value menus, though it will be impossible to proportion amounts for each individual except, perhaps to suggest that reason and judgment should be exercised, and all food well chewed. Don't overlook that suggestion—well chewed.

She's a Fletcherite.

"No matter how tender, light or delicate a food may be, let it partially digest in the mouth, and you will avoid that heavy, loggy feeling after eating. Your food will be more easily assimilated and readily converted into its proper nutritive values; you will note a firmer flesh, less soft fat—all due to the proper food, properly chewed before entering the stomach.

"On Monday I will begin a series of daily menus—breakfast, luncheon, dinner or supper. Today's list of drinks published below should be cut out, pasted in your scrap book and referred to when in doubt as to what to drink and how to make it. Every nationality will find their drink here."

Discovery of Coffee as a Drink.

The legend of the discovery of coffee as a drink is quite interesting. An Arabian dervish noticed that his goats returned home in a remarkably happy humor. He watched them closely to find out the cause of their joyfulness and discovered that they ate eagerly the leaves of a beautiful tree. He tried the effect of these leaves on himself. He was so exhilarated that he was accused of drinking wine, forbidden to them, but when he told them of his discovery his critics agreed with him at once that it was a plant sent by Allah as a substitute for the forbidden wine.

The Mohammedans use it to keep themselves from going to sleep during their long prayers. For this reason it was opposed by the priests, who tried in vain to have it brought under the prohibition of the Koran which was directed against intoxicating drinks.

As a good cup of coffee constitutes the most essential feature of a good breakfast, the making of coffee should be given careful consideration. The first important feature is the quality of the coffee; second, the pot it is made in. There are several ways of making coffee—plain boiled, drip, percolated and extracted. Whichever method is used it is absolutely necessary to observe the strictest rules of cleanliness of the pot. A new pot of any kind of metal should be scrubbed with soap and hot water, scalded and put in the sun to air. When ready to use, scald again. After using scour it well with hot water, using no soap, and with a small hair brush or a piece of cheesecloth around a wire clean out the spout. Air until used again.

If cotton or woolen cloths are used for dripping, after using rinse the cotton cloth in clear cold water, the woolen in clear warm water. Hang on a wooden peg or string to dry in the air or sun.

The important feature should be the quality of the coffee and the length of time it is roasted before using. When possible, it is best to purchase coffee that has not been roasted more than a few days, as coffee that has been roasted, packed and shipped long distances and allowed to stand on the grocer's shelves for months, loses much of its value as a beverage in the loss of the aromatic compounds, as the flavor largely depends upon the aroma being retained; therefore, I would always advise purchasing a coffee roasted by a responsible firm, which scientifically selects the grains for the flavor and strength and blending, to get the best results.

Important Feature.

Everyone should know that coffee is a stimulating drink, and when made properly, is not likely to harm anyone, but when its nature is not understood, it is often boiled into a deadly poison that fairly paralyzes the digestive organs and upsets the nervous system. Coffee contains, when roasted, about 1 per cent. caffeine, about 13 per cent. of aromatic compound developed in the roasting from the oils and fats of the green berry, and about 6 per cent. sugar (caramel.)

Caffiic acid effect, similar to tannic, is present in small quantities. It also contains a small amount of proteids, mineral matter and burnt cellulose. Coffee, unlike tea, decreases the action of the skin, accompanied by the free perspiration so characteristic of tea. It increases respiration, the action of the heart and excites the mucous membrane. This, in addition to its slightly greater food value, makes it better fitted for those in feeble health than tea, and because the skin is most active and the heart most feeble in the morning, it is primarily a breakfast drink, but should be used sparingly after a heavy dinner, drank in small quantities, preferably black with no sugar or cream.

A few coffee recipes, as the beverage should be made, and as it is made in different countries, may be of interest and value to many people; therefore, I am giving the very best recipes selected from the different methods as coffee is made in the various coffee-drinking countries.

An Up-to-Date Method.

Use a modern percolating coffee pot. Measure a heaping teaspoonful of medium-ground coffee for each cup of cold water. Put the coffee into the filter cup, the cold water in the pot; place on the fire on a special lid that comes with these pots. In from five to fifteen minutes the coffee is ready for use, according to the size of the pot and the amount of water to be heated. The automatic pump forces the water through the tube onto the coffee grounds, and it slowly percolates through the filter cup into the bottom of the pot. With good coffee to start with and fresh running water, it is impossible for the cook to spoil the coffee, as there is no chance of over-boiling or of allowing the grounds to remain in the coffee too long. The coffee retains all the aroma and flavor, and as the flavor depends so much upon the drunk in small quantities, preferably this is the main advantage of using a modern percolator.

New Orleans French Market Coffee.

Two heaping tablespoonfuls of pulverized coffee put in cloth strainer; add one-third cup of boiling water. When filtered through you will have strong coffee extract. Add enough rich hot milk to make a full cup.

Plain Boiled Coffee.

To every tablespoonful of medium-ground coffee add one cup of cold water. Let it come to a boil and boil three minutes hard; dash in about one-quarter of a cup of cold water—let it stand a few minutes; pour off into another pot that has been heated, then serve with rich cream or hot milk.

French Drip Coffee.

Use a canton or wooden flannel bag. The woolen is the best, as it prevents any of the fine particles of coffee from passing through. Measure two tablespoonfuls of pulverized coffee for each cup of boiling hot water. It requires about ten minutes to percolate. This makes "cafe noir," a very strong black coffee used as after dinner, which is sometimes taken with brandy, the latter being poured on the coffee, then ignited, leaving the spirits to burn out. Sweeten if desired, though the truly French way is to drink it without sugar.

Cafe Au Lait.

Make cafe noir and serve with an equal amount of hot milk. The best Parisian cafes serve it by pouring into the cup from both vessels at the same time.

Vienna Coffee.

Use one tablespoonful of pulverized coffee in a cloth drip bag or two tablespoonfuls of medium-ground coffee in a percolator for each cup of boiling hot water. When ready to serve add two parts coffee, one part of hot milk, a tablespoonful of whipped cream to float on top. If sugar is used put lumps in bottom of cup before pouring in coffee. This coffee is served in all first-class cafes in Vienna.

Turkish Coffee.

Use a tablespoonful of pulverized coffee for each cup of cold water; let it come to the boiling point, serve without straining or otherwise settling. In other words, drink grounds and all, no sugar or cream.

Brazilian Coffee.

Put amount of coffee in a woolen bag (Brazilian way,) on which pour the boiling water. When dripped through, serve plain. Amount used to suit the taste.

Coffee as Made in Java.

To four tablespoonfuls of pulverized coffee in a cloth strainer pour one and one-half cups of cold water (do not put on fire,) let it drain through. Pour back and drain again. To one-quarter cup of this cold extract add three-quarters of a cup of boiling hot milk. Serve with sugar if desired.

Iced Coffee.

Make a strong percolated or boiled coffee. Let it get cold; fill a long glass with crushed ice. On top of the ice put two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar and two tablespoonfuls of cream. Then fill with coffee. Stir with a long spoon and drink through a straw. Cream may be left out if preferred.

Coffee Ice.

Put two quarts of sweetened cold coffee into the freezer, turn the crank until soft and mushy, and serve in cups.

Coffee Ice Cream.

Add one cup of strong, cold coffee extract to two quarts of any good ice cream recipe. Use no other flavor and freeze.

Cafe Frappe.

To three cups of strong coffee extract add one-half cup of sugar, while hot, or more sugar if desired. When cold add one cup of thick cream. Freeze and serve in cups, and sprinkle with crushed macaroons, or leave out the cream and serve whipped cream on top of each glass.

Coffee Parfait.

Beat the yolks of six eggs very stiff, boil one cup of sugar and one-half cup of strong coffee five minutes. Pour into the egg slowly. Put on the fire in a double boiler, cook until thick. Stir until cold, then add one pint of cream whipped stiff. Mix well, turn into moulds, pack in ice for four or five hours.

Coffee Bavarian Cream.

Soak two heaping tablespoonfuls of gelatine in one-half cup of milk. Beat two yolks until thick; add four heaping tablespoonfuls of sugar; pour over this slowly, one and one-fourth cups of milk, boiling hot. Set in hot water and cook for four minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from fire and add soaked gelatine and a pinch of salt. When cold add one cup of strong coffee; mix well, and add the whites of two eggs whipped stiff, and one cup of cream that has been whipped stiff. Set in a cool place until firm. Serve with whipped cream and powdered sugar.

Coffee Junket.

Add one cup of strong coffee to a quart of rich milk; heat until lukewarm; sweeten to taste. Add one junket which has been dissolved in a little cold water. Pour into glass cups, set in a cool place until firm. Serve with or without whipped cream. Delicious and very delicate.

Froze Coffee Pudding.

Whip the yolks of five eggs until stiff. Add one and one-half cups of sugar, one and one-half cups of milk, one cup of cream, one cup of clear coffee, one heaping tablespoonful of gelatine dissolved in a little cold water, and strain. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens, pour into moulds, let it cool. Then pack in ice and freeze. Very fine.

Coffee Tapioca Jelly.

Three cups of coffee, one-half cup of tapioca, one-half cup of sugar. Cook about fifteen minutes. When cold serve with whipped cream.

Plain Coffee Jelly.

Two cups of coffee, one-half cup of sugar, one heaping tablespoonful of gelatine. Heat all together and strain. When cold serve with whipped cream.

Rich Coffee Cake.

One-half cup brown sugar creamed with one-half cup of butter. Whip two eggs, add one-fourth cup dark molasses. Pour on top three-fourths cup coffee extract (cold.) Then add one teaspoonful cinnamon, two teaspoonfuls baking powder sifted through three and one-half cups of flour. Add last, three-fourths of a cup of seedless raisins. Bake in large pan and when cold slice in layers or bake in separate layer pans. When cold put together with the following coffee filling.

Coffee Filling.

One level teaspoonful butter to one cup of hot milk. Beat two yolks of eggs until stiff; add one-half cup of powdered sugar, two tablespoonfuls cornstarch, one-half cup coffee extract. Next put on fire in double boiler, cook until thick; when cool fill cakes. Can be used in white layer cakes also. Ice with following: Add two tablespoonfuls of coffee to boiled or confectioner's sugar icing.

Spiced Iced Tea.

To each cup of cold water add two whole cloves. When water comes to a brisk boil, have ready one level teaspoonful of leaves for each cup; in a pot that has been scalded with hot water pour the spiced water over the leaves. Let it stand six minutes. Pour off and add a tablespoonful of sugar for each cup while hot. When cold add one-half teaspoonful lemon juice to each cup. Strain again through cheese cloth. Serve with cracked ice and a Maraschino cherry and slice of orange on top.

PERSONALS.

E. Seaborn Marks, mining engineer of international reputation, registered yesterday at the Alexandria from London. He has just returned from a trip to Tepic, where he is interested in mining properties, and reports everything tranquil in that part of Mexico. "There was scarcely even mention of internal strife and conditions appear much the same in various parts of the west coast region in which I visited," Marks said. He is interested in the Santa Maria Oil Fields, Limited, which controls the former Palmer Annex properties at Santa Maria, and will go there tomorrow to inspect development work.

Patrick O'Brien, the "Rocky Mountain poet," is at the Hayward. He was for years a traveling salesman, and much of his spare time was devoted to exploring the Rockies. With a natural gift of language and the heart of a boy, he wrote verse and his drummer friends dubbed him with the name that has stayed with him.

F. N. Millett, traveling passenger agent of the Northern Steamship Company, which operates on the Great Lakes, is registered at the Hollenbeck from Detroit. He is inspecting the harbors of the Pacific Coast. Capt. E. Tott, who came across the Pacific with a Chinese junk of antique craftsmanship, is staying at the Hollenbeck. He will sail in a few days for the Orient.

Dr. George T. Cress of Sioux City, Iowa, is passing a few days at the Van Nuys. He is accompanied by G. W. Hallett of the same place. Another is Dr. Thomas E. Parke, whose home is at Downington, Pa., and who is accompanied by his wife and son. A tourist party that registered at the hotel yesterday is composed of Mr. and Mrs. F. Y. Coffin and Mr. and Mrs. George E. Duffey of Chicago.

Dr. Frank Hasenkamp of Crefeld, Germany, is at the Westminster. He is connected with one of the great watering places of Germany and has been inspecting those of America. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Quirt and Dr. W. A. Peterson of Toronto are guests at the same hotel.

Dr. and Mrs. S. T. Entrich of Portland are at the Angelus. George Hildebrand, a San Francisco importer, is at the same hotel. With him came F. McN. Hamilton, an attorney.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Miller arrived at the Alexandria yesterday from Mexico. They have interests and a house near San Blas on the West Coast and are here to visit friends. Mr. and Mrs. George Moore and daughter are occupying a suite at the same hotel. Moore is a capitalist.

BURKE'S Dry Gin can be had at all stores and bars. Don't be put off with any other. "Burke's Gin is par excellence."

For Greater Future.

ment reservation at San Pedro; increase of the naval force on the Pacific Coast; increase in lighthouses and aids to navigation; appropriation to provide for experimental work to prevent damage to fruit by freezing; to provide for continuation of work by the Agricultural Department in Imperial and Coachella Valleys and in Arizona in favor of highest grades of cotton and dates; protesting against unjust reduction in customs duties on Pacific Coast products.

"By way of adding to the territory that will naturally trade with Los Angeles, the chamber has this year given much consideration to the San Juan Basin of Colorado, a territory rich in agricultural and mineral resources. It now has a population of but 41,000 people, but is capable of sustaining a population of more than 1,000,000. Its natural outlet is to the south, toward the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific lines, but its only railroad connection now is an inadequate line to the north.

The chamber last July sent a committee to examine and report upon the resources of the basin. They made a report, showing the basin to be of the highest importance.

COMMITTEE IMPRESSED.

"This committee, George H. Stewart, A. F. Naftzger and Charles Wier, subsequently recommended that your president and Charles Wier proceed East and lay the facts before the leading officers and owners of the transcontinental lines, and urging the building of a branch line from the south into the San Juan Basin. In December Mr. Wier and myself proceeded to New York, and laid these facts before Judge R. S. Lovett, chairman of Executive Board of the Union Pacific; Julius Kruttschnitt, president of the Executive Committee, and William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific; F. A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank; the representatives of Phelps, Dodge & Co., owners of the El Paso and Southwestern; E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe, and William A. Clark of the United Verde Mine.

"Mr. Wier and myself feel confident the line will be built.

"One other great project was launched by the Chamber during the year, the Arizona and California River Regulation Commission. An appropriation of $5,000,000 per year for ten years is contemplated by this project and an equal amount for the Sacramento and San Joaquin combined. The organization of the Arizona and California River Regulation Commission has been effected.

"One of the important works of the Chamber is that of dispensing the hospitality of the city. I desire to acknowledge the public spirit of the Board of Supervisors.

"Due principally to the work of the Los Angeles Convention League, a useful offshoot of this Chamber, twenty-four conventions, State and national, were held in Los Angeles in 1912. A great auditorium is a pressing necessity.

"Among the excursions in which the Chamber has participated were two to the Isthmus of Panama. Third one is being organized, to leave March 1.

NOT "CITIZEN FIX-IT."

"I have now given you a condensed and incomplete sketch of the work of the Chamber in 1912. You can see that it is comprehensive as to the present, and reaches out far into the future. Yet we sometimes hear a criticism because the Chamber has not taken sides in partisan controversies. One of the earlier presidents of this Chamber, Charles M. Wells, long since passed to his reward, in defining the proper scope of the activities of the Chamber made the following observation, the wisdom of which has been proven in an experience of more than twenty years:

"That there are enough matters to consider and to work upon where there is absolute unity of feeling among our people, to render it quite unnecessary that we should enter fields where such unity does not exist.

"The Chamber is made up of nearly 3500 men of all kinds of political opinion, religious belief and industrial occupation. The board must not needlessly offend any class of its membership.

"The great strength of the Chamber in public confidence is based not only upon its noble achievements but in no small degree it has maintained itself in public esteem by what it has refrained from doing. It has kept out of petty squabbles.

"It is a matter of profound congratulation that our prince of secretaries, whose mould was cast but once and then broken, has been fully restored to health.

"Gentlemen, you have wisely chosen as my successor Arthur W. Kinney. I have known him from his boyhood, and have long observed and admired the solid and substantial elements of his character. I predict for him a successful administration."

INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Prolonged applause greeted the introduction of the new president. He delivered a stirring inaugural speech, in part as follows:

"For nearly a quarter of a century the Chamber of Commerce has been the great dynamic agency of progress back of Los Angeles and the Southwest. It came into being from the desire to develop the resources, to herald to the world the glories of this Southland empire and to make its fame far-flung and wide.

"In all this time its policy as an organization has ever been to avoid political entanglements, cliques and factions and to serve no selfish individual purpose.

"The industrial era of the Angel City is now at hand. For the year 1912 the value of the output of our 2500 manufacturing concerns passed the $100,000,000 mark, thereby fixing out status as the industrial center of the Pacific Coast. We are now making everything from marconi to auto trucks and roofing to brass bedsteads, and we are only beginning. Already greater factory areas are being made available between the city and its harbor, and several large concerns are busy with plans and with construction work that will result in model industrial plants which will give employment to many thousands of men.

"Our Chamber has taken steps to organize an industrial bureau; this will be equipped with a well-trained force of experts and will carry on a far-reaching and aggressive campaign for industrial expansion."

"To foster commerce, our chamber labored unceasingly for the creation by the Federal government of a great port at San Pedro; for its adequate improvement by this city, it worked actively and successfully for consolidation with Wilmington and San Pedro, and as a safeguard for all time, it successfully advocated harbor ownership and control by the municipality in preference to that by the State.

"The completion of the Panama Canal is fraught with tremendous import to our people. The ports of the Pacific Coast are spending over $100,000,000 in preparation for handling the mighty commerce that is destined to come to us when myriad argosies,

'Under southern skies exalt their sails,
Led by new stars and borne by spicy gales.'

VISION OF GLORY.

"The Panama Canal will be the great restorer of American shipping. Today we carry but 10 per cent. of our commerce—foreign vessels carry the balance. The day of the refrigerator steamer will soon be at hand and our fruits and vegetables will soon be providing cargoes for a mighty fleet to the Atlantic seaboard.

"Believing that the awakening of the vast empire of China will produce results unequalled since the discovery of America, our chamber early expressed the sympathy of the American people at the assumption of republican principles by the Chinese people and by strong resolutions advocated recognition of the Chinese republic by our government.

"One subject that always evokes enthusiasm when Los Angelenos get together is our harbor, already the greatest lumber port of the world. The Almighty did not carve out for us a great harbor in the beginning any more than he did an isthmian canal, but if Heaven helps those who help themselves, our zeal and determined efforts will receive substantial recognition. Our harbor is a reality. Its annual net tonnage has increased sevenfold in the last ten years.

"A comprehensive plan has been adopted for the development of the port, to keep its facilities ahead of requirements. There are no physical difficulties in the way of making it one of the great harbors of the world.

"There are nearly thirty miles of frontage available in the outer and inner harbors which, when properly improved, will give us a freight tonnage capacity in the class with London, Liverpool and Hamburg. The Federal government has shown its faith by expending nearly $4,000,000 in the construction of the great breakwater, jetties and dredging. The city is pledged to an expenditure of $10,000,000 more in the construction of docks, wharves and approaches; private concerns are expending many additional millions, and much of the work is well under way.

TRIBUTE TO MASTER MIND.

"During all these years, triumph succeeding triumph, the master mind of the Chamber of Commerce has been that of its beloved secretary. His name is a household word and Los Angeles and Southern California owe him a debt of gratitude that we never can pay. The eminence and influence that our organization enjoys are largely due to his devotion. Let us, therefore, not await that time when his name is emblazoned in marble to do him honor, but we who yet work with him and live with him, let us honor him now. Let us pay him this small tribute of a city magnificent, opulent and triumphant—let us write and rewrite these words where all may read: 'Los Angeles' First Citizen—Frank Wiggins.'

"Next in importance [illegible] the development of our splendid harbor comes its completion of our $25,000,000 aqueduct and the proper and equitable disposal and distribution of its wealth of sparkling water from the high Sierras, and the 150,000-horse power of electrical energy developed thereby; the construction of a greatly desired modern belt line railroad, quarantine and immigration stations at our harbor; the extension of the government owned and operated steamship line now operating between New York and the canal to the ports of the Pacific; the location and establishment of a mobile military post in Southern California; the construction of subways and overhead railroads that will minimize the dangers of our congested business streets; the passage of the Newlands bill, carrying national appropriation for the storing of the wasted flood waters of the Colorado River and making them available for the irrigation of 5,000,000 acres of land that will be tributary to Los Angeles; the erection of a municipal building and modern public library that will be commensurate with the high rank of our city and in keeping with its many superb and costly private edifices; the construction of a great convention hall, the only thing lacking to make good our just claim of being America's pre-eminent convention city; the maintenance of the present protective tariff on citrus fruits which is now seriously threatened through the efforts of the Sicilian lemon trust. With 150,000 of our people directly dependent on this industry and an investment of over $200,000,000 at stake, every patriotic Californian should join in a solemn protest to Congress against any tariff legislation that will discriminate unjustly against our greatest industry; the establishment of information bureaus and permanent exhibits of Southern California products at London, Paris and Berlin for the purpose of stimulating desirable immigration at the opening of the Panama Canal and the dissemination of reliable information on California; and, last but not least, is what artists, dreamers, and all who truly love our populous and stately city have long yearned to do to make art and beauty here something more to be desired, to give life more lofty inspiration in the expression of ideals long cherished, to minister more to human needs and to the greater advancement of human welfare and to make this, our City of the Angels, the shrine of culture and the exemplar of all things beautiful."

Departing from the regular programme Chairman Macneil then called on Carl E. McStay for a talk on the new Industrial Bureau, denominated by Macneil as the most important movement for general betterment that the year had brought forth.

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

(Special Correspondence of The Times.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—The local realty men are opposing three measures now before the Legislature. They favor aliens holding land, the easy ejectment of tenants, and the burial of "blue sky" bills. Naturally the tenants will fight any legislation facilitating their being ousted.

Indicted by the Federal grand jury, eight directors of the Western Fuel Company are real mad about it. They go so far as to say that the inquisitors are "pinheads." Their lawyers insist that the charges are ridiculous. The members of the grand jury are sitting tight and they are not sitting on pins like their victims.

The proposed purchase of the water plant has caused a war between Mayor Rolph and Rudolph Spreckels. They started by writing each other and ended by sending expensive telegrams. The Western Union is profiting by the controversy and does not care how long it keeps up. James, Jr., is here and Rudolph is in New York, so there is no danger of their coming to blows.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has preferred charges against Policeman Hogan for shooting a dog that was both licensed and muzzled. It was not done in self-defense as the animal was running away when killed. The patrolman feels hurt. He has to practice marksmanship to be an efficient officer and it is much less harmful to shoot a canine than to wing a citizen.

Unless we have an election every once in a while we are unhappy. There are four coming on soon. The taxpayers hope that they will all be bunched into one. The right of the United Railways to use the outer tracks on lower Market street is to be voted on and the reduction of telephone rates is also to be decided. Police Judge Weller and Sheriff Eggers may be recalled. Enthusiasts who are rapid on progressive ideas are delighted but the people who have to pay the bills are not so joyous.

The Rev. Aked thinks this is a wicked city, but the Rev. Clampett disagrees with him. The latter divine defends our morals in a spirited manner. He says that they are no worse than those of many of the world centers and a great deal better than others. He believes that the Barbary Coast is much milder than [illegible] section in London. ANDREAS DIPPEL'S GREAT EXECUTIVE ABILITY.

Coming of Chicago Grand Opera Company Musical Event in City's History—Splendid Response to Guarantee—Enormous Task of Transportation and Installation.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

For over two years L. E. Behymer has attempted to convince Impresario Dippel and the stockholders of the Chicago Grand Opera Company that they should bring their great organization to the Pacific Coast.

On the 28th day of July, last, after lengthy conferences in Chicago, eloquent appeals and hard business meetings, it was decided at the home of Andreas Dippel, in Kaltenlutbegen, Austria, that the Chicago Grand Opera Company would appear before a Los Angeles audience for the first time on March 4.

This is a date to become memorable in the writing of the musical evolution of our city.

While there is no doubt that the abundant guarantee made by public-spirited citizens in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, San Diego and Vancouver insured the Chicago Grand Opera against any possible loss, there is another side to the story.

Artists of pre-eminent position in the operatic world, like those we are about to hear, do not have to put up with the unnecessary discomfort of 6500 miles of travel to appear before capacity houses.

If we are favored it is because Mary Garden was intent on making the western tour, as it appealed to her temperamental nature to sing "Natoma" under the shadow of the Franciscan missions where the opera was written.

It is also because we are possessed of the best theater for the purpose of presenting suitably a grand opera in all the details of orchestral arrangement, ballet presentation and scenery effects required by the great capitals of the theater world, and Manager Behymer is eloquent and convincing.

Impresario Dippel, in his westward journey of investigation, took the measure of the Auditorium with his exquisite presentation of the "Secret of Suzanne;" it won on short notice and his keen judgment induced him to come again with his whole company after having tested the ground. There is no guess about Dippel's decision.

But, while he thinks right, he also plays fair; that is the recipe for the success of his stupendous enterprise.

Bringing the Dippel organization to the Coast is a tremendous undertaking.

Three specials, with eight private and seventeen baggage cars, will land on March 3 the greatest amount of scenery, mileage of electrical wiring, costumes and appurtenances that we have ever seen here, with 100 musicians, sixty members of the chorus, forty of the ballet and an army of carpenters, electricians and property men, together with Andreas Dippel, who will lead the host of thirty-eight stars of the first magnitude.

Cleofonte Campanini, general musical director, with Marcel Charlier, Ettone Perosio, assisted by Spadoni and Rubeling, will marshal the musical forces.

Fernand Almanz, assisted by Joseph Engel, will control the stage people, with Pietro Nepoti as chorus master and Luigi Albertieri as master of the ballet.

There will also be the "Premiere Danseuse Etoile:" Rosina Galli, Premiere Danseuse Julie Hudak and a number of artists, librarians and prompters.

In this age, when the terms "efficiency" and "captain of industry" are on the lips of everyone and on many printed pages, the true significance of these words become somewhat lost through their too-common usage.

For the captain deserving of that title there are two undertakings that are worthy of his mettle: a great newspaper and a grand opera company.

Both of these enterprises call for all the executive ability, diplomacy and virility any man can have or may wish to possess.

To produce grand opera successfully, as the canons of the art demand, requires an executive ability of unusual order because no audience will suffer serious delay or discrepancy.

The satisfactory presentation of an opera calls for the earnest and intense co-operation of over 125 people at a given time and place, combined with the perfect working of a hundred intricate mechanical parts and numberless details behind and in front, the omission of any one of which would retard and often mar the performance.

The master workman, whose word sets all these delicate and intricate wheels moving in unison, must be a man of unusual make-up.

Artists come and go, more are found and can be substituted, real captains of grand opera are few in the world, and Andreas Dippel is one of the greatest.

In the operatic history of America he looms as an important figure, but will assume greater proportion in the near future.

Next November Andreas Dippel will be 47 years old; his ambition is unlimited, his training extraordinary as is his progressive success.

Before becoming the general manager of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, in 1910, he was administrative manager of the Metropolitan.

Previous to that appointment, which determined his future career as an impresario, he had been for years the most important member of the Metropolitan company, under the Grau and Conried administrations.

A tenor of commanding ability, who can sing in four languages 150 different roles of tenor, is a precious asset in any company.

But to such remarkable resources of versatility, energy and willingness to serve, he early demonstrated that he could add rare executive qualities.

He is possessed also of an unusually thorough musical education and experience and — rare, indeed, among artists—he received as well in early manhood a long and careful training in business methods.

Frederich Dippel, his sire, was a manufacturer in Cassel, Germany, who destined his son to become a banker, a training he followed as a possible occupation in his early years.

His acquaintance with Mme. Zottmayr, a famous singer of the Royal Theater of Cassel, decided him to enter upon a musical career.

At 21, after having studied in Berlin, Milan and Vienna, he was accepted as a full-fledged tenor by the Stadt Theater in Bremen. In 1900 he made his debut in America under Seidl and Thomas. His greatest role was considered his impersonation of Siegfried, and he was especially happy in Wagnerian interpretations.

So we find that Andreas Dippel knows the stage as few managers have known it. The conditions, requirements and difficulties back of the stage have no mysteries for him.

With the temperamental artists he is one of them when need be. He knows their peculiar language and speaks it eloquently, and they in turn understand and willingly obey, with some rare exceptions.

His banking experience has proved very useful to him in the intricate financial problems he has to solve, and his ability to speak in German, French, Italian or English enables him to transact all his business without the undesirable intervention of interpreters or secretaries.

He is a man of broad vision and lofty aim. In three seasons he assured the permanency of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, with strong and powerful ramifications in the East—now he is extending his artistic sphere westward to the Pacific.

The opening of Leahy's New Tivoli Operahouse in San Francisco on March 1 of this year, together with a $70,000 subscription, increased to $225,000 by the sale of season tickets, was a strong argument for Dippel's visit to the Coast; San Diego offered its new Spreckels Theater and $20,000 for two performances; Portland, $40,000; Seattle, a like amount, and Victoria and Vancouver $3000 each for one event.

Here we raised $80,000 — by the subscription of $30,000 by the Auditorium board, $5000 by L. E. Behymer and 100 guarantees of $500 each.

A really great season of genuine grand opera, presented with all the requirements exacted by Paris, Berlin, London and New York, is about to be given here.

The tremendous sale of tickets insures a generous success of this first attempt and practically insures the coming back of Andreas Dippel for next season.

People's Orchestra.

Mrs. Marie B. Tiffany, one of Los Angeles' best-known vocalists, has consented to sing for the People's Orchestra concert at the Auditorium this afternoon, filling the place made vacant by the non-arrival of music ordered for Norma Rockhold Robbins. Mrs. Tiffany was selected for the soloist for the opening concert; she will sing the first sacred number which has been heard in these concerts, using "O Divine Redeemer" (Gounod,) with the accompaniment on the great organ. Ray Hastings, organist for the Temple Baptist Church, will officiate as Mrs. Tiffany's accompanist and the innovation is sure to merit much attention from the audience.

Beginning with the first concert in March the price for seats on the main floor of the Auditorium, in boxes, loges and back of the brass rail up to the mezzanine floor, will be raised from 25 to 50 cents each. The board of directors of the Music Teachers' Association has made this change only after much hesitation, but in the belief that by so doing the present small deficit which attends every concert may be obviated and the orchestra

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY SYDNEY FORD.

Mrs. Seeley W. Mudd,

First vice-president Women's Work Society of First Congregational Church.

AFTER all, it's to be as it always has been and, may we hope, ever shall be. I mean the dues of Ebell Club and the growing membership and all. At the business meeting of the members last week, when the proposed amendments affecting the membership were discussed, the thing was thoroughly threshed out and it was decided by emphatic majority that the bylaws concerning the admission of members shall remain just as it is—entrance fee, dues, etc.—except that the fee for life membership be doubled, making it $200 instead of $100, as heretofore.

The entrance fee is $25 and the annual dues are $8. The membership of this biggest woman's club in Christendom—and the Friday Morning Club is not many laps behind—now numbers more than 1400—and they're coming in by tens and dozens. I noticed a list of forty names posted in the clubhouse the other day to be proposed for membership, and the question of housing them is a serious problem.

The first March programme will be a reciprocity and legislative day on March 3, the programme to be preceded by a luncheon, after which State legislators and interested clubwomen will present a general survey of the Legislature, discussing the present status of federation, indorsed bills, new ideas in legislation, educational measures, labor legislation and human conservation.

On Monday, March 10, there will be a musicale by local composers, the programme in charge of Mrs. W. H. Jamison. The following Monday Miss Marion Cock, who is indorsed by the Drexel Institute of Art in Philadelphia; the National Geograpical Society in Washington and the Art Institute in Chicago, will give an illustrated lecture on Sicily and the Greek Islands. Monday, March 24, Mrs. Mila Tupper Maynard, instructor of the Ebell drama section, will give some keynotes in the modern drama illustrated by scenes from two plays—Galsworthy's "Eldest Son," presented by Mrs. Zoe Ballard Fuller, and Masterlinck's "Mary Magdalene," presented by Mrs. Oliver H. Morgan.

On the last Monday in March—which falls upon the very last day of the month—Ernest A. Bachelder, craftsman, writer and teacher, whose text-books on the theory of art are used the world over, will give an illustrated lecture on "The Cathedral Builders." Mr. Bachelder is the originator of the noter hand-made tiles, having created a new movement in the principles of art and color, such as made famous the old cathedrals.

Dr. Van Dyke Tomorrow.

The lecture of Dr. Henry Van Dyke before Ebell tomorrow afternoon will undoubtedly draw a very large audience that will tax the seating capacity of the auditorium of the clubhouse. To listen to this delightful philosopher is a privilege one cannot afford to lose, and the club is fortunate in securing Dr. Van Dyke for his first public lecture in Southern California since his arrival here last week.

Dickens's Disciples Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parlee of No. 4011 Ingraham street, very delightfully entertained members of the Dickens Fellowship Club and their friends last Thursday afternoon at their handsome new home in that delightful residential section of the city which commands a wide-sweeping view of the mountains, and where so many high-class homes are being built. The charming hostess greeted her guests in full Martha Washington costume—gay-flowered gown with panniers, powder and patches and powdered wig done in the picturesque colonial style. She was assisted by Mmes. Frank C. McArthur, W. S. Adams, W. W. Brown and George Kramer, all of whom were in colonial costume.

The rooms were decorated with tiny American and English flags—tributes to the Father of our country in honor of his birthday, and to the great English novelist for which the club stands. Groups of those famous Dickens dolls which were such a feature of the Dickens Bazaar held a few weeks ago by the club, stood about in the most social attitudes, perched on piano, mantel, cabinets and sideboard. The dolls were for sale, and the treasury of the Dickens Club was made several dollars richer thereby. This fund is intended, by the way, to establish a clinic for blind babies in Los Angeles—a need which physicians say is very urgent.

The entertainment was in the form of a musical tea and delightful numbers were rendered by Miss Grace Gleeson, who has recently returned from a course of voice culture in Vienna, and who was accompanied on the piano by Miss Butler.

Miss Ollie Gish, the young blind girl who imitates so perfectly the birds in her whistling solos, came in from Whittier with her teacher, Mrs. Seamans, who accompanies her on the piano, and to the great delight of her listeners repeated the liquid notes of the nightingale and of all the bird family so perfectly that one could close her eyes and be very positive that the sweet, clear notes came from the throats of the feathered songsters themselves. Ellen Beach Yaw calls this gifted blind girl a human bird.

Then Misses Hilda and Nona Noltje sang delightfully that lovely old English ballad, "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," and Miss Dorothy Butterfield sang several solos. While the guests were gathering in the drawing-room Miss Joyce Burgess played tuneful snatches of operatic selections which floated softly through the rooms, forming a musical accompaniment to the hum of greetings exchanged among the guests.

Mrs. Charles H. Eager, president of the Los Angeles Dickens Fellowship Club, gave a most comprehensive review of Dickens, both as the writer and the man. Mrs. Eager is an earnest student of Dickens and, in her beautiful Inglewood home, has what is probably the most complete Dickens library in this country. For years she has been collecting these books which now fill a large case. Every book she can hear of concerning the great English novelist she makes haste to possess.

After the musical programme the hostess surprised each entertainer with a souvenir of the occasion—exquisite silver coffee spoons—as a mark of her appreciation, and the serving of tea, cakes and confections brought the enjoyable afternoon to a close.

The Dickens Club has reserved 100 seats at Morosco's for the "Oliver Twist" matinee on Tuesday, March 4.

Congregational Women Workers.

The officers of the Women's Work Society of the First Congregational Church recently elected for the new year include a score and more of the best women workers in Los Angeles church circles.

This particular society by the way, is famous for the things it accomplishes and is a wonderful asset to the church. Mrs. J. C. F. Attatt is the president and Mrs. Seeley W. Mudd is first vice-president. Acting on the advisory board are Mmes. F. D. McDowell, E. P. Bosbyshell, Fremont Ackerman, A. C. Eaton and Winthrop Hearsey, and those on standing committees include Mmes. E. W. Goodau, H. Cardell, Dwight Satterlee, Alex Larsen, Mary Lawrence, Charlotte Wood, Miss Sadie Lee, Mmes. R. C. Chapin, Lee Chamberlain, Monroe Amsden, Mary Porter Haines, F. Halstead, H. Roberts, H. Hitchcock, Laurie Cox, Harry Ford, L. Clendenon, W. S. Riddell, J. Hamilton, Miss Emily Peck, Miss Florence Martin, Mrs. Cweet, Mrs. Allen and Mrs. McClenon.

Friday Mornings in March.

Mrs. Everett R. Perry, wife of the librarian of the Los Angeles Public Library, will present Paine's biography of Mark Twain before the Friday Morning Club on March 21, which is the day set aside to honor the great humorist. Mrs. Perry, I am told, was prominent in musical and literary circles in New York, where her husband was connected with Astor Library before coming to Los Angeles. Howell's "My Mark Twain" will be another feature of the programme, read by Mrs. Benjamin Goldman.

The first Friday in March will be devoted to "New Standards of Living and Labor" as presented by Dr. Jessica Peixotto, who addressed the club last year. The following Friday Mrs. Nell Lockwood McCune will give a programme of Indian songs dressed in costume, and the last Friday of the month there will be a lecture on "The Wit and Wisdom of the Crayon," by W. M. R. French, who will illustrate with sketches drawn on paper in color and crayon during the lecture.

Haste Makes Merriment.

The programme was long and the speaker realized that she was exceeding her time and the words simply leaped from her lips in a perfect avalanche of oratory.

"As I was saying, ladies," she rattled on, "the foliage of the birds and the plumage of the trees in this country"—and she paused in amazement when everybody in the audience seemed seized with a convulsion of laughter.

Traveling in Germany.

The Art and Travel section of Ebell spent an enjoyable morning last Wednesday in wandering about Freidburg, Bale, and through the Black Forest of Germany. Miss Anna Beckley, the instructor, conducted the first excursion and introduced the class to Holbein the younger—one of Germany's great artists—and Mrs. Gertrude Ross gave an interesting talk about Bocklin who at 60 years of age was unknown, and at 70 his name was on every lip from the Alps to the Baltic, as the greatest landscape painter of Germany,—the man who did for German art what Wagner did for its music.

Mrs. Charles Edgar Swaine gave an interesting talk about the romance and legends of the Black Forest—the water sprites, the milk-white doe, the shepherd lad, the beautiful siren of the wild sea, the water rose, and all the rest which go to make up this chapter of fascinating myth. Not a stone but has its story in all that region. She also gave an interesting account of the people who live in the Black Forest, their industries and habits of life—a people who belong definitely to themselves, devoted to their religion, living in houses of peculiar construction in this great forest through which you can walk from end to end—90 miles long by 40 wide—its great trees growing to a height of from 160 to 180 feet and wherein the people find everything needed for their existence. One of the chief industries is building rafts for rafting the lumber down the streams to the Rhine; another is the making of clocks. Mrs. Swaine stated that 2,000,000 clocks are made annually by the inhabitants of the Black Forest, including the famous cuckoo clocks. In the ninety-two parishes which form the clock-making country, about 14,000 people are occupied in this industry—many of them women and children. The manufacture of straw hats is another industry, chiefly of women and children.

Miss Beckley announced that at the next meeting of the section, which will be on March 5, she hopes to have a lantern to project on the screen pictures illustrating German art and places of interest in Germany. She has sent for a collection of post cards for this purpose and, in addition, requested the members to bring any cards they might have in their possession of interesting places or pictures of Germany.

Fresh From Black Forest.

It was an odd coincidence that, on the car coming home from the art and travel symposium I should chance to sit beside a young woman who has just returned within the past month from a year in Germany, a large part of which was spent in the Black Forest, where her ancestors were born. She gave me some down-to-date, first-hand information that was so exceedingly interesting and apropos to the subject in hand that I pass it on.

"My ancestors came from the Black Forest," she said, "although I am a native daughter of California. While over there I slept in the little cottage in the Black Forest where my grandfather was born. It is a mistake to suppose that the inhabitants of the Forest still wear the peasant garb of old, as so picturesquely described in books—why they wear the same sort of clothes that we do"—and she wore an extremely fetching costume.

"Another point which ought to be brought out in describing the trees of the Black Forest," she went on, "is that, notwithstanding their enormous height, they are slender. Otherwise one gets the impression that they are like our California redwoods. Scarcely any of these pines are larger around than that," she said, measuring a diameter of perhaps a foot, "You see the reason is that they grew so closely together that the leafless trunks do literally make a 'black forest.' Naturally then the tendency is to stretch up to the light and so these trees shoot upward toward the light as plants do in a dark cellar—with slender trunks.

"As for cuckoo clocks," she went on, "that industry is not flourishing in these days. It was with considerable difficulty that I found one to bring home with me."

This incident only goes to show what an exceedingly cosmopolitan city Los Angeles is. Who would have imagined that, in discussing that far corner of civilization—the Black Forest of Germany—there would be found sitting in the audience one fresh from the spot and, not only that, but a lineal descendant of that fascinating region?

Friday Morning Drama Section.

At the meeting of the Drama Committee of the Friday Morning Club last Tuesday afternoon, two plays were considered—Galsworthy's latest, "The Eldest Son," and Murray's "Maurice Harte."

Mrs. Wells Smith gave a review of the first and led the round table talk. The play concerns that old, old problem of man's wrong to woman and introduces the proud family of English aristocracy whose eldest son betrays his mother's maid, whom he offers marriage—not because he loves her, but merely in an attempt to right the wrong he has done. [illegible] rises to the height of Sudermann's "Magda" and refuses to wed him.

In the discussin of the play one of the vital points was brought out by Mrs. W. F. Thurston, who, in discussing the difficulty of finding congeniality between Billy and [illegible]—the man and woman in the situation—she observed that a difference in code of manners is more difficult to cope with than a difference in religion, or almost anything else. "Different manners and different standards are worse to harmonize in different souls in the matrimonial relation," she observed. "The Eldest Son" was first brought out in London last November and one of the English reviews says it is the play of the year. It has not yet been produced in this country.

The other play considered—"Maurice Harte" is a touching little Irish play, which, in giving its synopsis, Mrs. Thurston remarked [illegible] with Lady Gregory's and Synge's plays for strength and as a picture of the people. One of its purposes is to show how, in the midst of an atmosphere of love, and duty and devotion in a family, great sorrow [illegible] from these very qualities. Giving a rapid sketch of the characters in the play, Mrs. Thurston asked Mrs. [illegible]dick of Long Beach to read the last act, which she did with excellent [illegible] brogue and tone, bringing out both pathos and tragedy with excellent effect.

The play concerns an Irish family in its maturer days—two grown sons, one so bright he has been given a scholarship for a priest's training and is expected to be ordained just in time to officiate at his brother's wedding the following day. He is the pride and joy of his family and his [illegible] priest. Although his heart is opposed to entering the priesthood, he never reveals it but, under the intense mental strain, his mind gives way at the last moment and he is brought home while his brother is trying on his wedding coat. The rain is [illegible] a few master strokes of graphic [illegible].

In closing, Mrs. Thurston, who presided in the absence of the chairman of the Drama Committee, Mrs. [illegible] as Allan Box, remarked that it is always a dangerous proposition to attempt to choose a lifework for another. The after discussion continued over the teacups as members gathered around the table.

To Celebrate Ruskin's Birthday.

The Ruskin Art Club at its Wednesday meeting continued the study of French history, the programme being in charge of Mrs. Donald [illegible]. T. M. Walker told of the reign of Philip Augustus—his ambitions, his policies, and his relations with the Plantagenets; Miss Rose [illegible] described the character and [illegible] Blanche of Castile, wife of Louis VIII and mother of the great Louis IX; Mrs. W. S. Urich presented a [illegible] the life of Louis IX, saint and king, dwelling upon the beauty of his character and the wisdom of his government. Mrs. Urich spoke also of the ancient town of Aigues Mortes, the small seaport from which Louis embarked for the Holy Land. [illegible] S. Hodgin described the chateau of St. Germain-en-Laye and the beauty of la Sainte Chapelle, considered by many to be the gem of Gothic architecture.

On next Wednesday at the [illegible] luncheon the club will celebrate Ruskin's birthday, each member [illegible]

SPRING FASHION SHOW TO SURPASS ALL PREVIOUS ONES.

The United Fashion Show, which opens on March 5, will far exceed any that has ever been held in Los Angeles. Promptly at 7:30 on the evening of the 5th the windows will be unveiled, at which time Los Angeles and all her visiting friends will eagerly crowd the streets.

Introduced as an experiment four years ago, the United Fashion Show has become an institution, and its fame has gone abroad so that many spending their winters here plan their advent and departure with regard to this event.

The idea of a united opening to replace the individual effort made by each separate establishment originated here and has been so successful that other cities East and West soon decided to adopt it. The advantages are manifold; merchandise is brought out simultaneously and patrons may thus see in one tour of inspection the season's latest models. In the old way people feared to buy lest the next opening would outrival the first display, and so they waited and hesitated and finally all purchased with a rush. In the Los Angeles United Fashion Show all the season's styles are shown and judicious selection is facilitated.

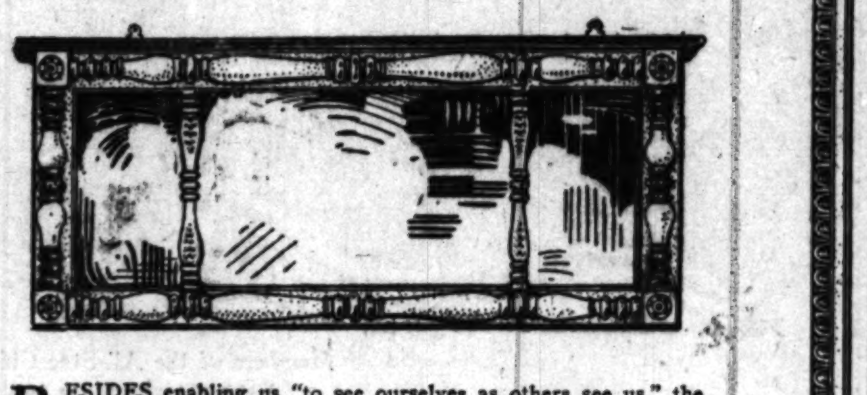
In antipication of the early season this year buyers went East early and were enabled to procure the best and most effective that the markets afford.

The modes selected by Dame Fashion for this season's garbing are the most alluring that have been seen in years. There are no monstrosities in either gowns or millinery; no hobbles nor coal scuttles nor doorway-filling hats. On the contrary the graceful, clinging gowns, the modest shapes in headwear and the distinctive styles in wraps are such as any artist would be glad to perpetuate.

The colors, too, are beautiful and on the whole becoming. With Nell Rose as the keynote throughout the gamut of pink tones and in the blues from light to darkest shades; the tints are such as bring out the best in all complexions. Even the tans and brasses have a glint of life which makes them more becoming than were the taupes and moles of some previous seasons. The variety is such, in both cut and colors, that everyone may choose something individual to her own particular style.

The United Fashion Show will continue throughout the 6th, 7th and 8th of March and the window exhibitions will be rivaled by the dress parades of models within the stores and many features are being planned which have not heretofore been seen.

THE MIRROR



BESIDES enabling us "to see ourselves as others see us," the mirror has a most attractive decorative value; and, in some sort, is an integral part of every well-appointed room.

Man has always wanted to view himself through his own eyes; and from Endymion, falling in love with his own reflection in the moonlit pool, through the ancients, whose polished disks of metal gave back their own likenesses, down to our modest selves, there has existed an innate desire "to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature."

We moderns are fortunate in the infinite variety of designs open to our selection. The artists and artificers of the world have vied with each other to produce every beautiful or utilitarian conceit to please or satisfy the exacting purchaser; with the result that we have mirrors of suitable style, material and finish for every distinctive period or homely requisite.

Our illustration of the quaint three-piece Colonial mirror, so well adapted for the vacant wall space, over mantel or sideboard, is only one of the many varied and adaptable creations we show in our large and carefully-selected stock of artistic and novel specialties, at consistent prices.

The Week's Drama.

DITRICHSTEIN IN "THE CONCERT."

BELASCO COMEDY AT THE MASON.

James J. Corbett, the Actor-Pugilist, Coming to the Empress—Pal of Evans and Sontag Tells of Prison Horrors at Pantages. Ralph Herz at the Orpheum.

"The Concert," one of David Belasco's greatest productions, will be presented at the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night. It is a comedy in three acts, adapted from the German of Hermann Bahr. Mr. Belasco persuaded Leo Ditrichstein to make the adaptation and then engaged him to play the leading part.

The chief character in "The Concert" is a great musician, a pianist, who stands so high in his chosen profession that he is adored by the musical part of the community, particularly the women.

The great musician is a temperamental fellow with a sensible American wife.

The "master" occasionally leaves home, telling his wife and pupils that he is going to give a private concert. One such trip takes him to a bungalow in the mountains, accompanied by one of his married pupils. Soon after the pair leave for the bungalow the musician's wife and the runaway woman's husband are informed of their going by a woman who guesses more than she really knows. It results in the musician's wife and the runaway woman's husband starting in pursuit of the foolish pair. Both couples arrive at the bungalow, the pursuing pair arriving soon after the runaways.

The resultant situations make a comedy. Mr. Belasco has surrounded Mr. Ditrichstein with well-known players, chief of whom in the feminine part is Isabel Irving.

Empress Theater—James J. Corbett.

James J. Corbett, former champion heavyweight boxer of the world, actor and probably one of the best known men before the American public, will be the star of the new Sullivan & Considine bill of eight acts opening at the Empress tomorrow with the usual matinee Monday.

Mr. Corbett will be heard in his latest monologue, which has won him a fortune since he retired from the prize ring some years ago, and in the course of which he relates many humorous incidents during his career as a boxer.

Also on the new bill will be the famous Grant Gardner, a blackface comedian and instrumentalist.

Pierce and Alice Maizee will offer a series of song and dance specialties of the most modern sort, full of pep and ginger.

Palmer Moore and Florence will be seen in their latest success, "A Matrimonial

The acrobatic portion of the new bill is provided by the Four Les, a quartette of European gymnasts, three women and a man.

Also on the new bill will be Campbell and McDonald, in their genuine novelty called "Bits," and the comedy motion pictures.

Orpheum.

Ralph Herz, star of "Mme. Sherry," "Dr. de Luxe," and "The Charity Girl," one of the best known and popular light comedians on the stage today, is the new headliner at the Orpheum for the week opening with the matinee, February 24. During many of his own descriptive songs will be heard for the first time.

Lolo, a little Indian maid of 16, with what is declared to be real second sight, will be another big feature of the week's bill. Lolo is from a reservation in South Dakota and seems to have a sixth sense. She reads letters while they are held in the hands of their owners; she tells which have been locked in their trunks; she does marvelous while blindfolded. Since she was 4 years old she has had this power, and J. L. Cotton, Indian agent at Pine Ridge, adopted her, and now accompanies her as manager of the act.

The Brothers, equilibrists, will present new feats in this line. Another line of entertaining will be by the Grasers, who show terpsichorean novelty, the two most artistically, they are experts in and in either are most. The novelty of the act is in the changes of costume one is puzzled to know which is man and which woman.

and Hoag, "Those French," and Welford and Roxy are the four who remain to complete the full bill, with the symphony concert and motion views. A week later "Madame Sarah" for her fortnight. The phone orders are accepted for the Bernhardt engagement and personal application is advised to those who desire good seats at this late date.

Burbank—"The Elexir of Youth."

Zellah Covington and Jules Simonsen have answered the oft propounded query: "What's so rare as a day in June" with "The Elixir of Youth," because if there is anything that is positively rare in this mundane world, it is a play with a new idea—and "The Elixir of Youth" surely brings a brand new fresh idea to the local stage.

The success that attended the first performance of "The Elixir of Youth" last Sunday afternoon made it quickly apparent that a second week of the farcical hit would be necessary and this second week will be ushered in this afternoon at the Burbank with another audience of the overflowing variety—a gathering that doubtless will find the piece just as funny—if not more so on account of a few important changes—as did the audience that first enjoyed the hilarious entertainment.

Mr. Covington, one of the authors, who plays the chief role, proves himself to be a character comedian of no mean order, and he is ably seconded and aided in his fun-making by Forrest Stanley, Hershal Mayall, Walter Edwards, Grace Travers, Selma Paley, Beatrice Nichols, Lillian Elliott, James Corrigan and others of the Burbank company.

"The Elixir of Youth" is advertised by its promoters as a grouch-proof play. It is all of that—it is easily the funniest farce that has come to Los Angeles since "Baby Mine" and "Charley's Aunt" first made their appearance.

Pantages.

The Pantages programme starting Monday matinee promises a double sensation and the usual number of vaudeville specialties.

Ed Morrell, who, as a member of the Evans-Sontag gang of train robbers, was given a life sentence to State Prison at the age of 18, and pardoned a few years ago by Lieut.-Gov. Warren Porter, will describe the horrors of prison life. He demonstrates the "inquisition" methods that were used upon him at Folsom and afterward at San Quentin. The "straight-jacket" and "derrick," two instruments of physical torture worthy of the middle ages, are used by Morrell upon his assistants, showing the methods used to force a confession from him against the other members of the Evans-Sontag gang.

The other headline feature is the Golden Troupe of Russian singers and symphony dancers, including an absolute novelty, the Balalaika Orchestra. The programme of the Golden Troupe falls into three divisions—singing, instrumental and dancing. The vocal portion includes the Uchnem and Nochenka music, seldom heard outside of Russia. The orchestra portion consists of operatic selections, and seven solo dances, national and folk, make up the terpsichorean numbers.

The costumes and scenery of the Golden Troupe are by Wasnekova, Moscow.

The programme also includes Cameron and O'Connor, the Mordo Trio, Cliff Dean and company, Elina Gardner and the animated weekly news pictures.

Majestic.

Florence Webber and a company of sixty in the Victor Herbert-Rida Johnson Young comic opera, "Naughty Marietta," commence a week's engagement tonight at the Majestic Theater. The usual matinees will be given.

Miss Webber, the star, is the newest vocal discovery made by Oscar Hammerstein, under whose management "Naughty Marietta" is being presented. The supporting company was recruited largely from the grand opera enterprises of Mr. Hammerstein, and keen interest is being displayed, as this is the first time the famous Hammerstein comic opera has appeared in Los Angeles. A sumptuous production and a special orchestra are valuable accessories carried to enhance the artistic value of the attraction.

Miss Lucretia del Valle,

Mission Play, San Gabriel, Cal.

"Naughty Marietta" is in two acts, with scenes laid in New Orleans in 1780. The story revolves around a little Italian countess, who ran away from her European convent to join a shipload of maidens being sent out to America to become wives of the soldiers. In New Orleans Marietta attracts the attention of the son of the Lieutenant-Governor, who secretly is none other than a famous pirate chief. His attentions are unwelcome, especially as Marietta has become fond of an American—a captain of the Forest Rangers. But, unfortunately, he is a woman-hater, so Marietta is confronted with the situation of endeavoring to escape the attentions of one while trying to attract the love of another.

Miss Webber, the prima donna, is a little American girl, whose wonderful voice attracted the attention of Mr. Hammerstein, who placed her at the head of his light opera company. All last season she was hailed as a phenomenal songbird and a splendid comedienne.

Morosco.

Los Angeles seldom has known a more really notable or noteworthy theatrical event than the reappearance of the eminent actor, Nat C. Goodwin, in the Comyns Carr version of "Oliver Twist," made known last week with so much artistic and financial success at the Morosco Theater.

Mr. Goodwin's accident which necessitated his retirement from the stage for nearly a half year, was entirely forgotten in the brilliant achievement of this splendid character as Fagin.

The second week of Mr. Goodwin in "Oliver Twist," announced to commence tomorrow night, will unquestionably see another huge gathering as reports from the Morosco ticket department are to the effect that the seat sale for this second week of "Oliver Twist" is even larger than last week, when the playhouse was crowded at each performance.

While "Oliver Twist" occupies the Morosco stage, Mr. Goodwin and his associate players are preparing for the first production of Hayden Talbot's new comedy, "O, Jee," in which Mr. Goodwin will have the name role.

Mission Play.

There will be two important changes in the cast of the Mission Play, San Gabriel. The dual role of Don Gaspar de Portola, the sailor-adventurer who discovered the bay of San Francisco, and Father Palou of the Mission St. Francis, impersonated by J. L. McDonald, will be taken by Charles Lynton beginning March 4. Mr. Lynton returns to the role he impersonated at the premiere of the Mission Play, and Mr. McDonald retires because of ill health. Those who witnessed the presentations last season will recall the splendid work of Mr. Lynton in these two roles.

The other change will be made on Tuesday, when Louis Morrison will join the Mission Players in the roles of the fighting padre of San Antonio in the second act, and the Mission caretaker of San Juan Capistrano in the last act.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Mission Play is now in its twentieth week, there are many people who believe that the presentations are given in an open-air theater. The playhouse at San Gabriel is a unique auditorium, but it is not an open-air theater. It is inclosed like any city theater, and is equipped with a modern heating plant.

Republic.

Canine cleverness will share honors with human intelligence on the bill of the Republic Theater next week, beginning with the usual Monday matinee.

While Madame Leo and her toy terriers and That Trio are given the premier positions in the advance billing, there is no doubt that they will have to travel pretty fast in order to get the lead over the other classy acts on the bill.

The Great Buckner has an international reputation as a bicyclist, whose feats on the wheel border on the marvelous. He infuses a lot of comedy in his act.

Hathaway and Mack come heralded as distinctive exponents of the art of terpsichore.

DeVern and Van have long been known in the realm of vaudeville for their neat musical novelty.

As a harpist Milano occupies a position of prominence both upon the stage and in the world of music.

New pictures of the world's news and a comedy will complete the bill.

Auditorium.

"From the Manger to the Cross," the magnificent motion-picture portrayal of the life of Jesus of Nazareth, which created such favorable comment upon its first presentation in this city, is to be offered for a second week at the Auditorium Theater, beginning tomorrow matinee and continuing throughout the week, with daily matinees. A special school children's matinee, at greatly-reduced prices, has been arranged for Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

As on the occasion of its first showing here, "From the Manger to the Cross" will be offered with special organ music by Ray Hastings and singing numbers by the St. Vincent Quartette.

The pictures, which are perfect specimens of the photographer's art, depict all the principal events in the lives of Christ, His disciples and other prominent biblical characters, and each scene in the 5000 feet of film was photographed in the Holy Land at locations in Palestine and Egypt where historians and Bible authorities declare Christ Himself appeared 2000 years ago when the momentous events portrayed were transpiring.

Many months were spent by the producing company in making this film, said to have cost the Kalem people $300,000, and the result is a reverent portrayal that has been heralded as a masterpiece.

Clune's Moving Pictures.

"The Locket," a funny Vitagraph comedy drama featuring the inimitable John Bunny, will be the stellar film attraction at Clune's Broadway Theater next Monday along with a high-class bill of first-run pictures. Laughs galore are to be extracted from this picture, for the comedy situations are immense.

At Clune's Fifth-street Theater comedy will also predominate, a Lubin "Maggy Tries Society Life" being the featured film. It concerns the adventures of a servant girl who Alhambra Woman's Club.

The cosy auditorium of the Wednesday Afternoon Club of Alhambra was filled to capacity last week when Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith gave her "Appeal in Three Voices," an address which has been presented before leading Los Angeles clubs.

She reviewed "The Singing Man," by Josephine Preston Peabody; "Pay Day," by C. Handford Henderson, and "The Promised Land," Mary Antin. In each an appeal is made for the betterment of condition under which the laboring class works.

The club went on record as indorsing the Peter's bill for limiting the number of hours of daily work for women in the District of Columbia. The action was taken at the request of the National Consumers' League in which the local club is vitally interested.

At the next meeting of the club, Dr. Eleanor Seymour, chairman of the Health Committee of the Los Angeles district, Federation of Woman's Clubs, will give an address upon "Health."

Alhambra Round Table.

The Alhambra Round Table met with Dr. Anna B. Woodhull and Miss Marie Woodhull at No. 101 South Fifth street, Friday afternoon, with a large number present. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Sparks read Lincoln's memorable Gettysburg speech.

The study of the drama was taken up, and interesting readings given by Miss Brierly and Miss Grace Brierly, the former detailing the advantages to be gained from a close study and the ability to accurately criticise and recognize the value of pure drama. She read briefly from Price's treatise on the drama, and also from the introduction of the study of the drama as presented in the Delphian course. Miss Grace Brierly read a chapter on the Greek drama and Mrs. J. B. Sexton gave a half-hour drill in parliamentary usages, reviewing the work previously studied, and introducing motions that require a two-thirds majority vote to pass.

Interesting current events were presented and the club indorsed the resolutions sent out by Mrs. Emmons Crocker against the Nelson amendment of the forestry bill.

Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. J. S. Hess, Miss Lillian Labre, and Miss Bertha Buchter. The next meeting of the club will be held on Friday afternoon when Mrs. J. B. Sexton will be hostess at the home of Mrs. S. B. Ashbrook, No. 218 South Hidalgo avenue.

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Receipt

No Better Remedy at Any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing one pint of granulated sugar and ½ pint of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequaled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The Week's Drama.

dons her mistress' apparel and goes masquerading as an heiress. Another comic is "After the Welsh Rarebit," an Edison showing a young man's trip via the dream route to the lower regions.

Lyceum Theater.

The latest motion picture production to be sent to America by the famous Milano Film Company of Italy, who it may be remembered, were responsible for "Dante's Inferno," is "The Palace of Flame," a fantastic creation that has started a great deal of discussion in the foreign picture theaters and which will be exhibited here for the first time at the Lyceum Theater this week, beginning tomorrow afternoon, and continuing every day from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m.

The picture is in three complete parts, comprising about 5000 feet of film. It comes with the reputation of being one of the most novel, and mystifying pictures the camera has produced since the birth of the industry, and bearing the stamp of the most famous picture producers in the world, should prove all that is claimed for it.

The pictures of the Pendleton round-up of 1912, will be shown for the last times at the Lyceum today. These films depict all of the thrilling events of the six days' contest in the little Oregon town, where the cowboy is king.

Tally's.

From out the maze of photoplays full of sensational features comes a story of an aged mother's love. "Mother" is a story that touches every heart. It shines forth like a star at night. It is a stellar production. Pathe Freres have made a special effort to surpass their previous great successes, and an unusually good picture should be the result. It will be shown at Tally's Broadway Theater on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday only. Other interesting subjects will also be on the programme, the latest Pathe Weekly, a Biograph drama and a Vitagraph comedy, "Suspicious Henry," featuring Bunny, the favorite fat funnyman. Altogether it looks like an unusually good show.

Mozart Theater.

"The Spectre Bridegroom," by the Eclair Company based upon Washington Irving's well-known story, in his justly renowned "Sketch Book," is to be featured at the Mozart Theater all next week, beginning with Monday matinee. In the reels, there are to be found many fine settings and a perfect bevy of pretty girls. The tale as related by Irving, is founded upon the superstitions of the German peasantry, and has been slightly changed to suit the illusions of the Revolutionary period in America. The pictures will be very pleasing and entertaining to girls and women who enjoy the superstitions permissible to Halloween.

The most favored materials for these dainty Dresses are Canton Crepes, Voiles and Ratines. In many instances these materials have highly colored borders.

In color scheme stress is laid on the rose tones, while yellows and cerise are in high favor, and Dutch blue and Empire green have not been neglected. Black-and-white, relieved with a touch of some bright color is also much in vogue.

Exclusive French Blouses

The new Blouses are interesting from many viewpoints. A feature that will appeal to the majority of women folk is the many striking models of decoration, among which hand-embroidered work is foremost, with laces of the better grades close seconds. Fine tucks and fancy buttons are also much in evidence.

Materials for the most part are fine Voiles and Sheer French Organdies. Many late models from Paris are now on display.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Miss Mary Bidwell Breed, who was adviser of women at the University of Missouri last year, was last week elected a member of the board of directors of Bryn Mawr College. She takes the place of Mrs. William Coffin Ladd, who was elected a trustee of the college.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman has given the American Museum of Safety a fund which is to meet the expense of striking a medal annually to be awarded to the American steam railroad making the best record in accident prevention and industrial hygiene.

Miss Belle Ben has taken out her final papers for the ownership of her Snake River homestead. It is a canyon farm, near Enterprise, Or., where she has lived alone for six years, her nearest neighbor being nine miles away. She built her own fences, split her own wood, planted her own garden and gathered the crop.

Mrs. John Hays Hammond has retired from the active presidency of the woman's welfare department of the National Civic Federation. In the last two years she has traveled nearly 6000 miles, delivering twenty-five addresses and has circulated much literature on subjects in which women are interested. Members of the national Congressional section, which she has recently organized, reside in forty-four States.

Mrs. Ella Newsome Trader, the "Florence Nightingale of the South," is living in Washington in almost destitute circumstances. Southern friends expect soon to begin a movement to ask patriotic southern people to contribute an amount sufficient to enable her to live her last days comfortably. She inherited a fortune of practically half a million dollars. At the outbreak of the Civil War she went to the front as a nurse in the Confederate army, organized hospitals and gave large sums from her fortune toward their equipment. From her plantation in Mississippi she donated great quantities of foodstuffs to the soldiers.

Miss Louise Poppenheim, vice-chairman of the Charleston (S. C.) Municipal Playgrounds, is editor of one of the clubwomen's papers, said to be the oldest in the country. She is the descendant of six generations of rice and cotton planters, her family before the revolution coming to South Carolina from Bavaria and Ireland.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Ex-Candidate Oscar S. Straus has bought a farm near Tarrytown and will be one of John D. Rockefeller's summer neighbors. "I am going to build a very simple home," he says; "nothing that you could call fine."

Dr. Alvah H. Thompson, disbursing clerk of the Pension Bureau, distributes $180,000,000 a year, which was formerly passed out through eighteen pension agencies.

Dr. Fred E. Ladd of Brockton, Mass., who was recently admitted to the State bar, had previously passed examinations qualifying him to practice as a physician, a dentist and an oculist. First of all, he was a shoemaker.

Lyman P. Grant of Columbia Falls, has been appointed by the State of Maine custodian of a large cow moose, which followed him home from the woods last June. The animal has become domesticated and now forms a part of the stock on Mr. Grant's farm.

Tom Atkinson, who twenty-nine years ago escaped from the Mississippi penitentiary, while serving a life sentence for murder, walked into Gov. Brewers's office recently and surrendered. Atkinson is more than 60 years old. His friends hope to obtain a pardon for him.

John Bergman of Palmer, Minn., recently, with only four cigars as weapons, held a pack of wolves at bay until assistance arrived from the camp where he was employed. Lighting all four cigars, he jabbed their lighted ends at the beasts, only stopping to puff the cigars to keep them glowing.

Max Vlies, who is 10 years old, and his brother, Raymond, who is 11, are considered in Madison, Me., the most enthusiastic workers in that section. They live on a farm near Madison. Every morning each boy gets up at 4:30 and each milks ten cows. Then they drive their father's milk cart to Madison village, a distance of two and one-half miles, and peddle 215 quarts of milk.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

John T. Sell of Montello, Pa., 81 years old, is father of seventeen children of whom thirteen are living today. These are fathers and mothers of sixty children, and they in turn are parents of twenty-five of Mr. Sell's great-grandchildren.

Miss Jane Martenis of Asbury, N. J. has achieved the ambition of years, which was to live to be 100 years old. It looks as if Miss Martenis might go well beyond the mark she set herself, for her health is good and she is still physically active.

The long-distance record for holding a job is believed to be that of Thomas McAloon, a 74-year-old Pawtucket man, who has worked continuously sixty years for one concern. Nor is Mr. McAloon content to rest on his laurels and retire from active life. Not a bit of it. As foreman of the "steaming" department of the largest finishing works in Pawtucket, he is right on the job every week day, rain or shine.

The Slim Woman Is Winning

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers.

This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the styles goes to a druggist and gets a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime, and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly.

These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, and they are, also, the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only 75 cents a large case, one of which is frequently enough to start a person losing fat the rate of 12 to 14 ounces a day. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a case by sending to the makers, the Marmola Company, Farmer Building, Detroit, Mich.

The Sheerest—
Of Undermuslins

SILK-FINISHED batistes and nainsooks. Not elaborate with laces and frills—but well made. And just enough "trimming"—to make them dainty.

There are new and interesting touches in the gowns—in the way of tucked skirts—clusters of tiny tucks from the neck and well down into the body—little turn-back revers of lace and empire effects with a slash to the skirt that's finished with a bow of ribbon.

Combinations—that seem almost to have been hand-made—with their felled seams—and touches of embroidery.

Put Away
Your Winter Clothes—
In a Wayne Wardrobe!

AND know that—when you go to take them out next fall—they won't be dusty, crumpled, eaten up by moths.

Here's the same garment protection of the Red Cedar Chest—without the folding and mussing—and at much less expense.—

For Wayne Wardrobes are as little as 40 cents—and then to $1.50.—They are in every size,—one for your furs, another suit size.—

New Spring Clothes—
Without "Being Fitted!"

JUST drape the fashions over a Pneu Form. — It's your figure — with every one of the lines and curves.—

And—do away with those tiresome hours at dressmaker's and tailor's.—

And aside from the correctness of the Pneu Form—in reproducing your figure—and its convenience—there's its compactness.—For a Pneu Form—when not in use—folds up as closely and easily as a paper pattern.—

New Belts—
Children's Sizes, Too!

TO wear with your linen dresses for spring — to give the tailored—finished—look.

Here are very new models in patent leather—and a wonderfully good style belt of white leather—edged in the patent leather—and pearl buckle finished.—

Children's belts—in black, white and scarlet patent leather.—

The Bulgarian Note
As It's Put Into The New Hats

PERHAPS in the right-in-front quill that finishes a severe little Turban.—

In a nosegay, crushed into the draped crown of a hat of dull blue straw;—in the quilling of vivid "orange" velvet that circles a "tailored" shape of blue;—

Sometimes this Bulgarian note is the brightly colored chiffon that's stretched taut over the crown.—And in a quaint shape of Milan—in Bulgarian blue—the Bulgarian touch is in the colorings of the flowered ratine that faces the under side of the brim.—

Combine the Plain Crepe
With Crepe in Bulgarian Colorings

IT makes a wonderful afternoon gown.—

Take the plain crepe in an Amethyst tone — and combine with it crepe that's patterned in all the violet shades, soft greens and a little of vivid Rose color.—

Or a plain crepe in the new Russet shade that has in it so much of deep coral.—And with this—crepe in all the forest shades of brown and green—and a suggestion of Bulgarian Red.—

Bulgarian Silks
for Trimmings and Linings

BARBARIC — crude—with none of the softening gray—these vivid greens, flaming scarlets, brilliant blues and bright yellows—are wonderful when used as trimming touches—and more wonderful when veiled in soft chiffons.—

Rose Beads
Dainty, Quaint—Fragrant

MADE from the natural petals of the rose — and fashioned in tiny rose design.—

IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Miss Rose Hardenburg,
Principal Berendo-street intermediate.

Visiting Superintendent from Manila.

Miss Jessie L. Durham, supervisor of the fourth school district of Manila, which position she has filled for the past eleven years, is in Los Angeles on leave of absence, and has spent the past week in visiting schools.

Miss Durham is especially interested in the industrial and social center work, and on Tuesday visited Macy-street social center and the Polytechnic High.

Said Miss Durham: "Our industrial work in the Manila schools is very advanced. The girls make beautiful embroidery and lace for sale; the boys make baskets, and learn to be carpenters. When a child leaves the elementary schools, he is supposed to be fitted for his life work. I have heard much of the Los Angeles schools, and I wish to examine their work, in order to see if they have not some form of manual training which can be adapted to our children."

Miss Durham expects to remain here for several months, and will visit all the schools of the State.

Polytechnic Evening High.

H. C. James of the Edison Electric Company, has been employed to teach alternate-current electricity. Many students have applied for this work.

Between 700 and 800 new students have registered since the opening of the February term. This makes the total enrollment nearly 3000. There is also a waiting list of persons who wish to take work in languages, especially Spanish, in shop work, commercial work and domestic science and millinery. Five new teachers have been added to the corps.

A dramatic club has been formed, which will give a play in the near future.

Music Department.

Miss Anna Shaw Faulkner, formerly musical director for Augustus Thomas, and the best known story-teller of the operas in the United States, on Wednesday, at the Temple Auditorium, lectured to 2000 school children from fifth to eight grades, on the Wagner "Ring." The talk was illustrated with stereopticon views of scenes from the "Ring," and of the Bayreuth Theater; also of the hall at Eisnach, where the stories have been told for years, and where Wagner received his inspiration for the Tannhauser March, which is dear to the heart of every school child. There was also incidental music, by Mr. Oberndorfer, behind the scenes, following the custom of the Bayreuth Theater. The children were most interested and enthusiastic.

This is the first of a series of lectures planned by Miss Stone, to be given the children of Los Angeles that they may gain an appreciation of the finest in music.

Miss Kathryn Stone, supervisor of music, will give a talk before the Wednesday Morning Club, at its last meeting in March, on "What We Are Doing in Music in the Elementary Schools." Pulips will illustrate with songs, games and rhythms, and exercises in ear-training and sight-reading.

Branch Library.

A branch public library for adults has been established in connection with Dayton Heights school with Mrs. Mary Belle Murray in charge. This library is open Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, from 1 to 4 o'clock. All the latest books on science, history and fiction are to be found on its shelves, and number about 700 volumes.

Nature Study.

A nature study exhibit is planned for May. This will be given at Olive street school, and will consist of "live boxes" containing the small creatures which the children have been studying, also charts made by the children outlining their progress in bird and animal lore.

Special Drawing Class.

The special class for children with particular aptitude for drawing was auspiciously begun last Tuesday, when twenty little ones of all grades and every variety of talent, from the ability to limn crude caricatures to that of picturing nature in water colors, were gathered at Olive street school, under the tuition of Miss Blanche Bostwick. The youngsters had brought their white paper and soft pencils, charcoal and boxes of water colors, and were at once absorbed in their work.

Particularly interesting is a little deaf and dumb girl, who draws exquisite landscapes, and a small colored boy, who was deftly limning Jack Johnson when the writer happened into the room.

It is planned to make the work largely vocational, and to have the children fit themselves to accept commercial orders, such as posters, illustrations for magazines, etc.

School Gardens.

Home gardening is encouraged and aided by the Parent-Teacher Federation, with the children acting as missionaries in many cases. Mothers' circles are discussing the subject, and listening to lectures by the gardening teachers.

Twenty-first-avenue Intermediate.

A triangle debate has been arranged with Long Beach and Polytechnic High Schools, to take place some time in March. The question is: "Resolved, That the President of the United States should be elected for a six-year term and be ineligible for re-election." The Twenty-first-avenue Intermediate expects to have several such debates during the present term in order that her debaters may get practice so that they will be ready to enter the Southwestern Debating League next fall.

Tuesday afternoon, at the ninth period, the tenth-graders were entertained by the tenth grade oral English class. Short talks were given by several of the pupils. "Hints for the School Paper," by Claire Eberhard; "The Coming Debate," Samuel Steelman; "The Camera Club," Mabel Knesley, and "Our Responsibility," Florence Brady, proved to be decidedly interesting. Then there was an entertaining little farce, "Sylvia's Aunts," presented by eight girls. Mabel Knesley and Mildred Stewart were the aunts; Fern Hester and Helen Clark, sophomore girls; Ive Eberhard, a junior; Cecilia Toolen, a senior; Nelle Chelles and Gertrude Bretthauer, freshmen, also took part. Some of the trials of a college girl were well depicted.

The Parent-Teacher Association had an enjoyable meeting Friday afternoon. The main feature was an excellent address by Mrs. Lafferty, head of the civic section of the Federated Parent-Teacher Association. Music was furnished by the school orchestra.

Washington's Birthday was fittingly celebrated by a number of the faculty of Custer and Twenty-first avenues. The celebration consisted of a trip to San Pedro, with a picnic lunch at noon and a fish dinner at Point Firmin in the evening. These excursions to points of interest have become a regular thing.

Polytechnic High.

The past week has been characterized at Polytechnic by a number of club meetings. The members of these organizations are anxious to recommence work and so have taken the earliest possible opportunities to gather and talk matters over.

Over sixty people are studying commerce this semester, and these, together with members from the history classes, have increased the Commerce Club membership to more than 100. The first meeting was held February 17. As a result, two of the twelve club outings expected for this term were planned. Tuesday afternoon, February 18, a visit was made to the trades' display at Solomon's Hall, and on Saturday, February 22, the club members attended the Iowa picnic. The latter outing was in charge of the present club officers: Lee Wisman, president; Ruth Curl, vice-president, and Otillia Mona, secretary, plus Jack Gilligan, Nina Lord and Lawrence Cobb.

The planning of a Wagner programme was the chief business transacted at the German Club meeting February 17. The date set is March 7. Some of the features will be a talk on the life of Wagner, a description of the German city of Bayreuth, and the stories of some of Wagner's operas. As a consequence of the election Victor Johannson is the new president, Frances Fisher, vice-president; Mary Koenig is secretary, Herbert Hilgen, treasurer and Thomas Reynolds, pianist.

The Boys' and Girls' Glee clubs, the orchestra and the string quartette are reorganized and have begun work. Thelma Baldwin was chosen president of the Girls' Glee Club, Ford Upton president of the Boys' Glee Club, Leslie Weeks is manager of the orchestra this term and Dion Romandy is the new concert manager of the string quartette.

The Boys' Glee Club will escort Mrs. Gertrude Parsons, head of the music department, to the Santa Fe station in an automobile, on February 21, when she leaves for a tour of the eastern high schools and universities.

The Faulkner-Oberndorfer recital, "Pilgrimage to Wagner," given in the school auditorium, February 18, was a great success. Great interest was shown by the members of the audience. The students were enthusiastic over it all and their only regret was that their fellow-students were not there to enjoy it with them.

The Scribblers' Club will hold a meeting March 3 for the election of officers. Ralph Haney, former president of the club, graduated recently, but will return to preside.

The Poly basketball team has four games scheduled for the near future. Two are to be played with Riverside on February 21 and March 1, and the other two will be held with Long Beach. The team has the same members as during last term, with Harold Cooke as captain and John Cooke as manager.

Prof. Culpin will lecture at Polytechnic Wednesday evening, February 26, on the subject of "City Beautifying and Planning." The talk will be illustrated by stereopticon views. This affair is under the auspices of the City Club and the public will be admitted free.

Los Angeles High.

Pupils had their innings Thursday when they were asked to answer the following questions: "What subject do you like best?" "What are your second and third choices?" "What subject do you like least of all?" While no complete tabulation of the answers has as yet been made, some of the general results of the answers are entertaining if not edifying. Like many statistics they proved exactly opposite things in many individual rooms. For example, mathematics and English might be the highest two in popular estimate, and the same two might hold the high vote for unpopularity in the same room.

Helen Leonard, a pupil in the drawing department, has recently sold in the East a design for a magazine cover. This pupil receives instruction from one of the art teachers, who is herself a successful illustrator.

The classes in house designing are unusually large this term. Mr. Barrett, who conducts this class, has had much practical experience designing bungalows for one of the largest local building concerns.

A course in interior decorating is being offered this term. This includes a study of harmonious and appropriate furnishings for various styles of homes, from knives and forks to Persian rugs.

Clemmer Johnson, captain of the track team and member of the Rugby team, has been appointed manager of the lunchhouse. Last term he served as assistant manager. Jack O'Maveney is the new assistant manager.

Mr. Martin, who has for several years been student body treasurer, has found the work of the modern languages department, of which he is head, so pressing, that he has given up the duties of treasurer. Mr. Morris of the English department is the new student body treasurer.

The officers of the military department are planning for the annual spring camping trip for the military boys. Camp is established and maintained during the spring vacation. The outing is conducted in a thoroughly military fashion.

Manual Arts High.

On Wednesday the first girls' assembly of the new term was called for the purpose of welcoming the new girls and of explaining the various organizations open to them. Miss Dell Grether, the girls' vice-president, introduced the presidents of the societies, who told briefly of their ideals and departments. Miss [illegible] announced that the registration had passed the 1850 mark. This large enrollment means that all available space in the new buildings and all the splendid equipment is in frequent use. There has also been an increase in the faculty, which now numbers eighty-four.

The new Council held a meeting Tuesday and elected Norman [illegible] (A 12) editor of the Manual [illegible]. Two boys, Langdon Smead and [illegible]bard Smith, who did such [illegible] service in the production of [illegible] Piper," were re-elected to the [illegible] of stage manager and stage [illegible]cian. It was voted to allow [illegible] members and the manager of the basketball team the official letter of the school. This action will give the faithful and loyal players the recognition which they deserve and will place basketball on a footing equal to that of football and baseball.

The "Players' Club," composed of thirty members, has been organized and is of special interest to many in the expression department. The first production will be presented in the near future.

The Girls' League is being organized so as to include all the [illegible] and intermediate girls who have recently enrolled. Miss Howell will entertain on February 21 [illegible] which the A11 girls are [illegible] the A9 girls.

A simultaneous debate was held Friday between Los Angeles High and Manual Arts which resulted in a victory for the latter in both places. Goodwin Knight and Paul [illegible] secured the decision for the [illegible] and Paul Williams and Fred [illegible]witz for the affirmative. The work of all the debaters was of an exceptionally high character and the spirit of the two student bodies in the contest was especially good. The returns were interchanged by the wireless clubs of the schools.

Hollywood High.

Prof. Hunt, head of the [illegible] department of the University of Southern California, on Friday last delivered the commemoration address in honor of Washington's birthday. [illegible] familiarity with his subject [illegible] with the ease and splendid [illegible] which characterized the [illegible] throughout, made the speech a [illegible] treat to the students.

Hollywood High has the distinction of being the only school in the city teaching plumbing and pipe [illegible]. The course was introduced at mid-year and is taught by Mr. [illegible], an able and popular instructor.

A varied programme consisting of readings by John McGroarty and music by a trio of prominent [illegible] will compose the fourth of the series of five numbers constituting the [illegible] ist's course at 2:15 on the [illegible] of the 27th inst. The [illegible] an innovation of this year, has been an immense success and is well worth anyone's while.

For Your Health's Sake

Drink PURITAS Distilled Water.

Nobody questions the assertion that few of us drink enough water.

Yet pure water has such a decidedly and definitely beneficial effect upon the body that it is strange that anybody should neglect so simple a health precaution.

Try drinking pure water—two or three times as much as you've been accustomed to using in the course of a day.

Note that little word PURE, however; for in ordinary water there are enough impurities of all sorts to largely offset the benefits you hope to receive.

In and about Los Angeles there is but one reliably pure drinking water; fix its name firmly in your mind—PURITAS Distilled Water.

As its name indicates, PURITAS is distilled water—but the scientific process which PURITAS undergoes, makes PURITAS distinctly superior to any ordinary distilled water.

First, clean, clear, sparkling water is drawn from our own deep wells; it is thoroughly distilled, then carefully aerated by means of an electric current of air. This aeration restores that sparkle which distillation removes from water.

The result is a perfectly germless, sparkling, soft, pure water, pleasant and palatable to the taste—and unquestionably beneficial to the system.

Drink PURITAS Distilled Water freely—all you want, whenever you want it—note how your complexion clears up; how free you become from twinges of rheumatism, or slight symptoms of kidney affections; note how good PURITAS tastes to you.

One five-gallon demijohn (costing, delivered anywhere within the old city boundary lines, only 40 cents,) will certainly convince you that there is real virtue in the liberal use of PURITAS Distilled Water.

If you have no local dealer in the near-by town in which you may live you can secure PURITAS in any quantity simply by telephoning or writing the main plant—Home 10053; Sunset Main 8191.

Armenians Said to Clamor for Russian Rule.

Dame Europe Uneasy Over New Complications.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Late reports from Vienna reveal further activity on the part of the war coterie against the Emperor and the government.

The news is provoking an almost unprecedented outburst of warlike feeling in the Novoe Vremya, Neemchina, Sket and other patriotic papers. Even the liberal Retch and the Octobrist press appear to be preparing the public for a clash between Austria and Russia over the Balkan kingdoms.

ARMENIANS AS PRETEXT.

The Armenians in Turkey are again represented to be clamoring to be put under Russian rule.

The newest aspects of the European situation are causing the greatest uneasiness, although another day, as has happened so often previously, may bring a change for the better. War scares come and go like the tide, but, unhappily, they are all referable to a situation which must improve soon if it is not to become decidedly worse.

General Leaves Paris for America and Says He Would Join Madero If He Were Asked.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Gen. Guisseppe Garibaldi left Wednesday on board the Kronprinzessin Cecelie for New York on his way to Mexico to straighten out his private affairs there. When asked if he expects to join Madero he said: "No, but if Madero needed or sent for me, I'd go to him."

Man of Iron.

STRONG HAND AT THE HELM.

Gen. Huerta's Rise in Army Rapid Under Diaz.

Successfully Fought Rebels Under Zapata.

Loyal to the Government in Revolutions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gen. Victoriano Huerta, whose retirement from active command of the northern division of the Federal army against Orozco came only a few days ago when he was relieved by the War Department to undergo an operation for cataract, and who was in Mexico City at the time of the Diaz outbreak, always has been regarded as a strong character in Mexican politics, and one who so far has been entirely loyal to the government side of the revolutions through which he was active in recent years. When Madero appeared in the streets of Mexico City soon after the revolt to learn its extent, it was Gen. Huerta who was at his side telling him that as national Executive, Madero's place was in the palace.

RAPID RISE.

Gen. Huerta was born in Chihuahua about sixty years ago, and attended the military school of Chapultepec from which he was graduated in the early years of the Diaz administration. His rise in the army, due to his military qualities and great ability, was rapid. A month before the abdication of President Diaz he was appointed lieutenant-general in command of all the troops south of the capital. Here he was active in a campaign against the southern revolutionists before Gen. Diaz left the country. Gen. Huerta with a body of troops accompanied President Diaz on the latter's trip to Vera Cruz where the deposed President went on board the steamship which took him away from Mexico.

SUCCEEDS GEN. SALAS.

When Gen. Madero became President, Gen. Huerta supported the government, and in retaining his command of the southern troops, was successful against the rebels led by Zapata. At this time, Orozco in the north, was pressing the Federals under Gen. Salas severely and after the sending of a locomotive loaded with dynamite into the midst of the Federel troops, Salas went into a railroad car and committed suicide.

Gen. Huerta was appointed by President Madero to take command of the northern troops to succeed Gen. Salas and in that position incurred the enmity of the rebel troops on account of the severity of his campaign.

SEVERE DISCIPLINARIAN.

In personality, Gen. Huerta is said to be a man of strong will and a severe disciplinarian.

David Lloyd George Takes Arrows Cheerfully.

Aerial War Fleets to Guard the British Coast.

Carved Figure Discovered in Druid's Circle.

BY PAUD LAMBETH.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] "The life of a fighting politician is not altogether a merry one," says David Lloyd George, the little Welshman who is so busy stirring up England.

"He has," explained the Chancellor of the exchequer, "to work with arrows whistling around his head—arrows too often steeped in burning poison. I had my fair share. I am not sure that I have not had more of those venom-poisoned javelins than any politician who is on the active list. My only claim is that on the whole I have taken them cheerfully."

I talked with this undoubtedly "big little" statesman who will soon be seen in the United States, while he was attending the ceremony of the hanging of his portrait by the Welsh Society in London.

"Which reminds me," said Lloyd George, "of a fairly good story. A certain ceremonial occasion attracted an immense multitude to Tower Hill. Somebody said, 'I have never seen such a crowd in the streets before.' An old man standing by said, 'Crowd! It's nothing to the crowd that you would see here if they were hanging Lloyd George.'"

MONEY ON THE SIDE.

Little by little, the truth appears in the relations of some British ministers to money-making enterprises looking for government "pap." Sir Rufus Isaacs, staunch partisan of Sir Stuart Samuel (both being "under fire") is forced to agree with the select Committee of Inquiry that "at all material times Sir Stuart was a partner in the firm of Samuel, Montagu & Co., which firm entered into transactions with the Secretary of State for India in council in regard to tendering for short loans, India council bills, India treasury bills and India government loans. During the relevant time the Secretary of State for India in council employed the said firm to purchase silver for purposes of Indian currency, and the firm was paid the customary remuneration of one-eighth per cent. on the purchase price of the silver."

Such an admission is deemed by most parliamentarians utterly inconsistent with any further defense of a condition little less than scandalous. In the days of Peel, Bright or Gladstone, pleas for such conduct would have been received with amazement and prompt and scathing condemnation.

AERIAL WAR FLEETS.

The Admiralty is taking steps to bring the defense of John Bull's coasts entirely up to date in view of the possibilities of aerial machines used for warlike purposes. It is officially stated that the Admiralty is considering a scheme for establishing a limited number of air stations round the coast of the United Kingdom, and arrangements are now in progress for the provisions of bases. A large number of hydro-aeroplanes will be distributed among the strategical ports along the coast. Recently a forecast of the new German Army Bill was published in Berlin. It indicates Germany is fully alive to the military importance of a large and efficient aerial fleet.

DRUID RELIC.

A sensation has been caused by the discovery in a sunken well close to the famous "Druid's Circle," Keswick, of a rude, painted and carved figure which certain archaeologists insist is a primitive attempt to immortalize one of the early British queens, possibly Boadicea. The discovery of this relic of the past has given new interest to the wonderful megalithic circle, which is the pride of Keswick. The site is now State property, cared for by the National Trust. Within the circle the Druids performed their strange and some say barbarous rites.

FAMOUS SINGER DIES POOR.

To mention "Two Little Girls in Blue" or "Sally in Our Alley" now means little to the devotees of popular songs. To the older generation, however, memory of these favorites will still be green. "Jimmie Norris," the man who brought them first into vogue, died at Bumley workhouse, Lancashire, some days ago, a pauper. He was one of the first British music hall singers to earn big money in the United States.

KISSING GOES BY FAVOR.

Many people in London have been shocked by the statement made a few days ago by a metropolitan stipendiary magistrate, Eustace de La Touche D' Eyncourt, who declared in a trial that "kissing a woman against her will is the mildest form of assault."

WITHHOLD AID FOR TORIES.

It is reported that William Waldorf Astor and another wealthy farmer contributor to the funds of the Tory party have decided to withhold further financial aid. The "food taxation" policy of A. Bonar Law, the Unionist leader, is ascribed as the principal cause for their attitude.

Described as an actress of Sedgeford road Shepherd's Bush, Miss Jackydavia Melford, daughter of Mark Melford, the actor, was recently fined $10 or a month at Westminster for discharging leaden bullets from a catapult "to the common danger." Melford at once paid the fine.

Seated on the top of a motor-omnibus in Victoria street, it was said, the defendant was seen to fire a missile from a powerful catapult. It was afterwards found that leaden bullets weighing nearly one and one-half ounces were being used. A police constable said a bullet with "Votes for women" moulded on it struck the Westminster Palace Hotel with resounding force and then dropped into an area.

Long Courtship of Prince Henry of Reuss for Hand of Princess Victoria Margarete Will Soon Culminate in Wedding—Train Blown from Track and Passenger Car Is Burned During Snowstorm.

BY MALCOLM CLARKE.

[BY CABLE AND FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE OVERLAND TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Many Americans will doubtless be interested in the announcement that Prince Henry XXXIII of Reuss, who visited the United States with the German fleet some months ago, is about to wed Princess Victoria Margarete, the only daughter of Prince Friedrich Leopold of Prussia. The Princess is pretty and the young people are both receiving numerous congratulations and presents. They have been on lover-like terms for a number of years, and it is stated that Princess "Gretchen," as she is called by her intimates, exacted his letters by every mail from Prince Henry while he was in America, "as proof that his heart was not straying towards some young and beautiful millionairess." Many wondered that the Prince did not succumb to the attractions of the belles of Washington and New York. Princess Victoria is a niece of the Kaiser's and also of the Duchess of Connaught, is nearly 23, and her fiance is ten years older. He and the Princess met at the house of the latter's cousin, Princess Maria of Sachs-Altenberg, who is also married to one of the numerous Heinrichs of Reuss, and before anyone suspected it they were in love with each other. The Kaiser's consent, of course, had to be obtained before anything could be definitely settled, and, it is said, His Majesty was not quite willing at first, but was talked over. However, after the Kaiser had had a long talk with his cousin and brother-in-law, Prince Friederich Leopold, matters were settled, and the young folk were invited to the palace to tea, where they received His Majesty's blessing. The Kaiserin, who loves matchmaking, is very fond of her niece, and, I hear, was her confidante from the beginning.

DANCE CENSORS.

Munich, the gay capital of Bavaria, has had a rude shock. The press ball, the most famous of carnival functions, was carried on under the surveillance of four policemen in uniform, while the master of ceremonies had at his side another policeman in evening dress. Directly dancing began the policeman notified the guests that certain rather extravagant forms of the two-step had been forbidden by the police, and from time to time he issued warnings to couples, "Don't dance like that, or I will have you arrested." Some of the ladies in the best societies in Munich found themselves held up by the police for immodest dancing, while one who was present asserts that the gentlemen were treated as if they were fitter for the cat than for the cotillion. If the whole thing is not a carnival joke, the Munich police will once more successfully have brought upon themselves the ribald laughter of all Europe.

STORM HAVOC.

Heavy snowstorms have occurred in many parts of Germany, and railway traffic is seriously affected.

A passenger train traveling from Reichenau to Zittau, Saxony, was blown over by the wind, one of the carriages being burnt. There was no loss of life. The railway station at Merzdorf, Silesia, was practically wrecked by the storm, and traffic there is suspended.

Snow has fallen heavily in Berlin and is lying thick in the streets. Traffic has been greatly impeded.

The great sports hall at Dresden was blown down recently.

The cruiser Augsburg was driven ashore at the harbor mouth at Sonderburg. She was, however, towed off by other vessels.

Owing to the sudden revolt of the Center party German politics is in a chaotic state. If this attitude is serious there will be numerable opportunities of giving it effect during the next few months. In particular there is certain to be a parliamentary struggle about the new army bill, and the new taxation, which is intended in any case, but which the large requirements of the army make all the more necessary. The Berlin organ of the Center party, the Germania, expresses astonishment at the extent of the new demands—$25,000,000, or more—and wonders how the government hopes to find the money.

BAD WEATHER SAVES LIFE.

Number of Fatal Accidents to Mountain Climbers in Alps Materially Reduced by Storms.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The weather in the Alps last summer was inclement, and as a result the number of fatal accidents to mountain climbers was reduced from 132 to ninety-five. Had the weather been warm and summer-like the number of tourists would have been normal; there would have been the usual number of attempts to scale dangerous peaks, and instead of ninety-five fatal accidents there would have been something like the 132, recorded in 1911, or the average of 128 for the past ten years.

These statistics have just been made public by the German-Austrian Alpine Society. By far the larger number of the fatalities of 1912 were due to falls; these amounted to fifty-three out of the total of ninety-five, and the greater part of these occurred during high-mountain climbs. Thirteen persons were caught by avalanches and killed; eight froze to death; three were carried over precipices by snow-slips, and three died of heart failure due to over-exertion. Sudden changes in the weather, particularly unexpected snowstorms, were the direct cause of many of the deaths.

FIRE RUINS TOKIO DISTRICT.

Thousands Rendered Homeless and Damage Is Estimated at Several Million Yen.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

TOKIO, Feb. 22.—More than 15,000 persons are homeless as a result of fire which swept through the center of the Kanda district of the city Thursday. The fire started in the Salvation Army Hall. A high wind fanned the flames and they spread rapidly from street to street, destroying 3300 buildings. The loss is estimated at several million yen.

Among the buildings burnt were several churches, including the Baptist tabernacle and a number of educational institutions, including the School of Foreign Languages. Troops were called out to assist the firemen, but they were almost helpless against the wind-driven flames.

Many of the homeless were being sheltered today in Kudan Park.

The official report of the fire states that two persons were killed and 100 injured. The damage amounts to $2,500,000.

Campaign Against Negligent Dairymen Assumes Such Proportions That Authorities Are Asked to Prohibit Their Production. Berlin Adopts Plan of Censorship.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—A moving picture film showing the dangers of an impure milk supply has been exhibited with such good effect in Germany that health officials at once became much more rigorous in their enforcement of the pure food regulations. Their campaign against negligent dairymen was conducted with such energy that the milkmen finally presented a petition to the authorities, asking for the prohibition of this particular film. In reply to this action Prof. Schlossmann of the Dusseldorf Municipal Hospital for Children, who is responsible for the film, proved that it had led to the trial and conviction of many dairymen for violation of the pure food regulations. Its exhibition was not discontinued.

FILM AIDED AUTHORITIES.

Much is being said nowadays in Germany about the possible evil effects of moving pictures, but the other side of the question, the moving picture as a public educator, is well illustrated by the experiment of Prof. Schlossmann. His film showed particularly how impure milk is responsible for many of the diseases of children, and it was exhibited extensively throughout the Rhine Province in promoting a propoganda for reducing the rate of infant mortality. The net results so far have been excellent. The health authorities are enforcing existing rules and regulations much more effectively; the dairymen are producing a better article, and the children are drinking cleaner and purer milk.

Moving pictures have become an important part of the entertainment business in Germany. There are now no less than 220 moving picture theaters in the capital, with as many more in the suburbs. The tendency now is to erect special houses, architecturally suited for picture-show. Three such establishments are now building in Berlin, one of which will seat 1600 persons.

PICTURES ARE CENSORED.

On the other hand, there are already signs of overproduction in the business. With so many competitors in the field, prices of admission must necessarily be kept very low. Moreover, the film-producing companies, which are on a strong financial basis, are making harder terms for the show managers than hitherto, particularly for the best class of films. As competition grows, the tendency to put on trashy, sensational and melodramatic films increases. Many of the managers hew as closely as possible to the line of police prohibition; hence the cry is raised with growing frequency in the press for a more rigid censorship of films. A committee of university professors, scientific and literary men and artists has been appointed to find ways and means for making the moving picture do better service in disseminating general knowledge, particularly of a scientific and educational value.

Viscountess of Helmsley,

Who prefers a simple sunbonnet to a diamond tiara and a gingham frock to a Paris creation. She is the daughter of the Countess of Warwick, a niece of the Duchess of Sutherland and is very wealthy.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Although the Viscountess of Helmsley has sued a circus for cruelty to its horses, she never has allied herself with any society for the prevention of cruelty to animals.

The Viscountess, who is 25 years old, has been married to Viscount Helmsley for eight years. She is the daughter of the Countess of Warwick and prefers simplicity and the free life of the country to life at court. In London she is known as the "bread and butter" peeress because she elects to live the simple life.

She is a niece of the Duchess of Sutherland and is wealthy. She is happier in a simple print frock and a sunbonnet than in court train and diamonds. She knows the worth of each for she has tried both of them. The Viscountess is noted for her beauty. She is the mother of two children.

PARSON'S DENIAL PUZZLES FRIENDS OF NEWLY-WEDS.

Mrs. George Wilder,

Who has returned with her husband to London from their honeymoon trip, but has thus far failed to enlighten curious friends as to the meaning of a marriage notice that appeared in the London Times, but was declared to be in error by the chaplain, whose name was given as the officiating clergyman.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mr. and Mrs. George Wilder of Stranstead Park, Sussex, have returned to town from their honeymoon, an incident that had been awaited with much interest by the newspapers, who were curious to secure some explanation of their unexplained marriage notice.

In this notice, which appeared in the London Times of January 24, it was stated that Miss Nina Woltereck, second daughter of George Brouncker Hammond of America, and George Wilder of Stranstead Park, Sussex, had been married by Chaplain Chapman at the Chapel Royal Savoy.

An inquiry brought the plain statement that this was entirely incorrect and that his share in the matter was to give his blessing to the couple who came in a taxicab to get it and who said they had been at the registrar's. The chaplain added gallantly that he had granted the request willingly because the bride was so beautiful.

Further inquiry failed to furnish any registry entry of the exact whereabouts of Stranstead Park and inquiries for further enlightenment from the returning bride and bridegroom were met by absolute refusal. So the mystery still stands.

TRIAL OF AUTO BANDITS RESEMBLES VAUDEVILLE.

BY PAUL VILLIERS.

[BY CABLE AND FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE OVERLAND TO THE TIMES.]

Barbe Leclerc,

Who was the sweetheart of one of the auto bandits on trial in Paris charged with twenty-two murders and robberies. The girl is one of three women accused of having served as decoys for the organized gang that terrorized the French capital.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The trial of the auto bandits still drags humorously along. It promises to last several weeks yet and the court officials hope this forecast is correct, for the greatest vaudeville show that Paris has enjoyed in many years is the trial of Callemin, the ironworker; Charony, the little joiner; Diendonne, Medge, Monior and the rest of the arrested twenty-one companions in the crimes of Bonnel. Several sensations were promised when the hearing was resumed after a short adjournment, and in the hope of gaining admission some 200 people passed the whole night in the Queue outside the Palais de Justice waiting for the opening of the court.

The first fifty in the line were mainly composed of poor people who had been in their places since 7 p.m., and who hoped to be able to sell their places at a handsome price. They were nearly all disappointed. On account of the lack of accommodations in the courtroom, three persons only could be admitted without cards and the first three persons in the line readily found purchasers for the right to enter the courtroom. An elegantly-dressed woman and two gentlemen gladly gave them $50 each. These scenes have been repeated at the opening of every hearing.

JUDGE COUNSELS PRISONERS.

The presiding Judge M. Counaud, a dignified, elderly man, talks to the prisoners and counsels them in a paternal way. Each prisoner is separated from the other by a guard. Each has his own counsel.

During the examination of the prisoner Deboe, Judge Counaud addressed him: "You are an anarchist—but not a criminal. I should never think of reproaching the French republic for having counted Jourdan and Carrier among its defenders."

Rodriguez, the next prisoner to be questioned, said:

"I have been an anarchist, but now I am one no longer. I feel that my place today is rather with the jury than in the dock. I allow that things in my past have been regrettable, but I have been a victim of circumstances."

Judge: "You met Belonie in England and afterwards at Lille and it was you who advanced him money to go to Amsterdam. Why were you living under a false name at Lille?"

"Because I had not taken part in the strike of the country fair men and feared reprisals."

"Did Belonie tell you what the job was?"

"No, I did not ask whether it was fair or foul. It was not my business."

"Did you know Bonnot?"

"I had spoken to Belonie about a new system of teaching English. He said that my idea would certainly interest Clift, who had sent him to Amsterdam. I did not then know that this Clift was called Bonnot, but it was to speak to him about my idea that I came to Paris. I shall say nothing more. I am in a State of manifest inferiority here."

AUDITORS INTERRUPT COURT.

And so it proceeds while the audience of divinely-dressed beau monde laughs, interrupts the counsel and court with smart witticisms, despite the remonstrances of the officials, and every now and then applauds the principal actors on the stage—those naughty, but supremely interesting auto bandits.

INSURANCE FOR WORKERS.

German Enterprise Does Not Permit Government to Occupy Field Without Brisk Competition.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The insurance of the German working classes is not to be left wholly in the hands of the government and its organs. An association for insuring the working classes on the largest possible scale has just been founded at Berlin under the presidency of Count Posadowsky, former Secretary of the Interior.

The capital for this company, amounting to $276,000, has been subscribed by thirty German life insurance companies. They agree to accept a maximum dividend of 4 per cent. on their investment, and to put into the by-laws a provision that this feature cannot be changed without the consent of the Chancellor of the Empire. In addition, these companies supply a fund of $238,000, free of interest, for the purpose of defraying the expenses incident to organizing the general company. The new concern intends to operate largely in conjunction with existing labor unions, sick funds and other organizations of the working classes. It will confine itself to writing small insurance policies of various forms and for various purposes. It will also assist workmen in owning their own homes.

Boasts of Her Militant Tactics.

Sylvia Pankhurst and Her Mother.

Mrs. Pankhurst gave out a statement last Wednesday evening that she was responsible for the destruction of the country home of David Lloyd George, the Chancellor of the British exchequer. The home was destroyed by dynamite and gun powder. "I accept full responsibility for the outrage," said the mother. Miss Sylvia is still on the firing line also of suffragette militancy in England.

Window-smashing Precedent Is Recalled.

BY LADY MANWARING.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Queen Ena of Spain will be seen neither in London nor in Paris this spring or summer. A coming happy event in the household of the King and Queen of Castile, Leon and Granada, will detain Alfonso's wife at the royal palace in Madrid. In June it is expected that a little visitor will make his or her appearance, much to the joy of the Spanish people. Owing to the delicacy of Don Jaime, the addition to the royal family will be welcomed all the more heartily.

LED BY THE NOSE.

Earl Cowley says he is "through with marriage." "Marital misfortunes," he says, "are more often than not due to the yoke of the ring. It is a survival of the time when man placed a ring in the nose of women and let it go at that. Now, woman puts the ring on and leads man by the nose."

Earl Cowley, before his accession to the title, was, as Viscount Dangan, defendant in a breach of promise action brought by Miss Phyllis Broughton, the Gaiety actress. After his first wife divorced him, she married Robert Edward Myddelton, and continued to use the name of Violet Countess Cowley. The Earl sought to restrain her from doing so, and obtained judgment in his favor, but this was overruled in the House of Lords. In 1902 Earl Cowley reappeared in the Divorce Court, this time as co-respondent in the petition brought by Sir Charles Hartopp against his wife, the daughter of the late C. H. Wilson, M.P., for West Hull, who was afterwards created the first Baron Nunburnholme. The case lasted thirteen days and the jury found the Earl not guilty. In April, 1905, Earl Cowley reappeared as a co-respondent, Sir Charles Hartopp presenting a second divorce petition with the Earl in that capacity. This suit was undefended and Sir Charles obtained a divorce. On December 15, 1905, it was announced that Lady Hartopp and Earl Cowley had been married at Colombo, where she was escorted by her father. In August, 1907, the new Countess Cowley gave birth to a son, an event which was the occasion of much festivity. Violet Countess Cowley died in March, 1910.

HONORS FOR THE PRINCE.

The visit to Germany which the Prince of Wales is to make in the spring, according to present arrangements, is not to be associated with a sojourn at one of the universities of the Fatherland. The present expectation is that His Majesty's second son will be chosen for the duty of familiarizing himself with German student life. When he returns from his Cumberland cruise, he will have seen something of the world, and his naval esprit will help him along famously in the Sturm und Drang of a German university town. Bonn and Heidelberg are very much less somnolent than our own academies of learning on the Isis and the Cam.

The Prince of Wales will time his visit when the German Emperor is back again after his projected cruise in the Levante. The Kaiser has been looking forward with much eagerness for a couple of years past to the pleasure of investing his cousin's heir with the Cross of the Black Eagle, and the ceremony will probably be carried out in full chapter. The Golden Fleece is to be given to the Prince by the Emperor of Austria, but it is not yet decided whether the insignia will be sent to London, or be received by the Prince at Schoenbrunn.

MOTHER-IN-LAW ANGRY.

Various reasons have been given for the failure of Princess Henry of Battenberg to pay her customary winter visit to the court of Spain. The real reason is that there has been a quarrel between the Princess and her son-in-law. People say that King Alfonso is not anxious to see his mother-in-law in Spain at present, as she is not at all popular with the people about court; and he needs all the support there he can get just now.

HISTORIC WINDOW-SMASHING.

The "Women's War," as Londoners call the Drummond Pankhurst battle for votes, is progressing now hot and hard on the very hearth of society. The latest convert to the cause among the notable women of England is said to be Mrs. Winston Churchill, whose husband is one of the most redoubtable opponents of the movement.

At a recent affair in the West End when a great many political and literary celebrities were gathered together, somebody bantered a Countess on the old "chestnut," "Woman first brought dissension into the world."

"But man was the original author of violence," interposed Mrs. Churchill.

There is reason to believe that man took the initiative in window-smashing. In the Privy Council Book preserved among the historic records of England occurs the following entry:

"At St. James's the third day of April, 1543, the Earl of Surrey, being sent for to appear before the Council, was charged by the said presence of a lewd and unseemly manner of walking in the night about the streets and breaking with stones of certain windows. He could not deny but that he had practiced these evil doings and submitted himself to such punishment as should be thought good. Whereupon he was committed to the tower."

The record states that the noble Earl was incarcerated in the tower for one calendar month. He was ultimately liberated on his own recognizance of $1000 to be of good behavior. A little later he lost his head. He was decapitated on Tower Hill at the early age of 30.

Still, there is no reason why because a lord lost his head the ladies should lose theirs.

One of Two Suffragettes Arrested on Charge of Burning Down Pavilion Narrowly Misses His Head.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Suffragettes paid another havoc-working visit to the Kew Botanical Gardens today and fired a large refreshment pavilion, which burned to the ground. Two women were arrested.

The two young women taken into custody gave their names as Lillian Lenton and Joyce Locke, each 22 years old.

They were caught while running away from the scene of the fire. Each carried a bag containing a dark lantern, some cotton soaked in oil, a hammer and a saw.

The police magistrate refused them bail, and told them their offense was not political, but highly criminal.

Miss Locke thereupon hurled at the magistrate a big law book, which narrowly missed his head. She then fought desperately against the wardens who were assigned to remove her to a cell.

RIVALS RESENT WAGNER'S BEATS.

COURT TO PASS ON REPUTATION OF CORRESPONDENT.

Austrian Lieutenant Accused of Faking Vivid Accounts of Battles in the Balkans Depends Upon Military Authorities to Defend Him. Editor Sues for Libel.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The reputation of Lieut. Hans Wagner of the Austro-Hungarian army, as a war correspondent, is to be determined by an Austrian court of justice, according to information received here from the Austrian capital.

Lieut. Wagner represented the Reichspost of Vienna with the Bulgarian army. He scored a series of seeming beats over his rivals which attracted world-wide attention. Afterward accusations of faking were levelled against him, one in particular by other correspondents, who asserted that a description of the battle of Lule Burgas, when he reported that he had been at the front three days in the saddle "until my poor horse could not walk another step," really was written many miles from the scene of action.

CALLS EDITOR SWINDLER.

Another Vienna newspaper, the Zeit, attacked the authenticity of Wagner's reports somewhat bitterly, and it is to be the defendant in the litigation. Lieut. Wagner did not bring suit himself, but reported the attacks made upon him by the Zeit to the colonel of his regiment, that the military authorities might take action to clear his reputation if they thought fit. Dr. Funder, the chief editor of the Reichspost, has brought the libel suit, the Zeit having called him a "swindler" for publishing Wagner's messages. The Zeit charged that these messages were largely concocted in the editorial office of the Reichspost by Austrian staff officers. The Reichspost insists that they were genuine, although it is understood the editor is prepared to admit that they came in such condensed form that the aid of military experts was required to decipher them intelligently.

Some delay before the trial of the case is likely, as the editor of the Zeit has asked for a month in which to collect evidence and prepare his defense. The hearings will be deeply interesting to newspapers and military men alike.

SAFETY FOR AEROPLANES.

President of League in Paris Has Automatic Safety Device to Steady Machines in Air.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Rena Quinton, president of the National Aerial League, announces that a really practicable automatic safety device for aeroplanes has been discovered. It is the invention of a book agent named Moreau, and consists of a sort of freely swinging pendulum with an ingenious arrangement which steadies the machine when oscillations become dangerous.

The military aviation department secretly has been testing the device for some time. Moreau, with one passenger, flew an aeroplane fitted with his device today for thirty-five minutes in a strong wind without touching the levers, except the upward and downward rudder. It is claimed the device makes the capsizing of an aeroplane practically impossible.

Cold Snap Brings Wide-spread Agricultural Disaster — Steamer Wrecked in Gale and Eight Persons Drown.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—France is in the grip of an exceptionally cold snap, which coming after the recent warm spell, has caused widespread agricultural disaster. As early as February 6 the warm weather brought the bloom to plants in the suburbs of Paris, while buds were bursting on fruit trees in the orchards of Normandy and Brittany.

The south of France now is suffering from heavy gales and snow storms. The steamer Oleron was wrecked off Cette, eight persons being drowned.

Mrs. Boulanger sued Alary for $1000 damages and the court awarded her the full amount.

DIVORCE TRIAL TO BE PIQUANT.

Amy Gouraud's Friend Is Seeking Separation.

French Army Now Licenses Sky Pilots.

Rabbit Skins Transformed Into Fine Furs.

BY PAUL VILLIERS.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Paris is looking forward with an interest spiced by sauce piquant to the trial of the divorce of the Comptesse Claire des Yves-Bertrand, whose husband is a descendant of Napoleon's Grand Marshal, and one of the best known known men about town. The Comptesse is a close friend of Mrs. Amy Crocker-Gouraud.

The Comptesse desired the police—as is customary here—to put on record for legal evidence the company kept by her husband. She applied to an examining magistrate, who issued the necessary warrant to one of the chief inspectors of the Surete. The formalities resorted to for the taking of evidence in such cases occassionally verge on the burlesque. The petitioner in this case had all the success desired by writers of farical plays and "revues."

LICENSED SKY PILOTS.

The French army already possesses a detachment of skiers attached to the garrison of Grenoble. And now the new Minister for War, M. Etienne, has decided that conscripts, who before the beginning of their military services give proof in an examination held by a commission of officers that they are capable of performing the duties of military skiers, shall receive from that commission a skier's license. All who hold this license will have the right, in their order of merit, to choose the regiment to which they desire to be attached. They will also, after their incorporation ipso facto, form part of the regimental skiers.

TO RESTORE OLD CONVENT.

There is some question of restoring part of the historic Parisian convent of the Bernardines, which is situated in the Rue de Poissy, on the left bank, a short distance beyond Notre Dame. The remains of the ancient convent were patched up a century ago and used as a barracks for the "Pompiers" of Rive Gauche of Paris. The pompiers, or firemen, are now about to remove to other quarters, and archaeologists have been visiting the barracks. They discovered that the partitions which divided the interior are very flimsy, and that the famous old refectory hall of the monks, which was at one time the largest in France, is practically intact. All that is necessary to restore the convent is to demolish the partitions and to remove the deal floor which has been concealing the bases of the pillars. The convent of the Bernardines in Paris is said to have been founded in 1244.

PARIS FASHION DECREES.

Color contrasts, with a corsage and skirt of different colors are the feature of the spring fashions, displayed by the mannequins of the principal Paris shops. The favorite colors are bright and attractive. Red in all its shades predominates.

A bright red corsage is worn with a bright blue skirt, or a yellow corsage with green skirt. No contrast will be considered too outrageous. Silk and rather thick crepe de chine embossed with patterns in gold and silver will be the principal material this spring.

Skirts will keep their present widths, no petticoats being worn. Belts will be revived in various forms.

The slit in the skirt, which will almost entirely disappear from day frocks, will reappear in evening frocks, very few of which this summer will not be slit as far as the knee.

POETRY IN PRISON PEN.

When the coster's finished jumping on his mother,
He loves to lie-a-basking in the sun.

A literary malady has broken out among the prisoners on trial in Paris for the long series of bandit crimes. Raymond, "La Science," has written about theology. Soudy, "the man with the carbine," on social philosophy, with quotations from Moliere's "Misanthrope," and Carouy has now written "memoirs" in which he aspires to a life in the country and the satisfaction of his love of nature.

"I would like to buy a farm with the earnings of my labor and to live on the products of the earth. Those who know me know how I love work; but the workshop is a prison for me."

ARISTOCRATIC RABBITS.

To such a degree of excellence have French dealers brought the preparation of rabbit skins that only a trained eye can tell whether a woman is wearing real or imitation ermine, otter, blue fox, silver fox, or skunk.

The raising of rabbits for their skins is now an important industry in France, and among the favorites of the furrier, are Angora rabbits, giant Normands, Russian rabbits, blue Vienne rabbits, little Polish rabbits—which furnish ermine—and big silver rabbits, which provide chinchilla. The French Havana rabbit, which supplies an excellent imitation of sable and the black rabbit which gives an imitation otter skin, are the aristocrats of their race, and some of them fetch more than $16 a piece.

GOOD MANNERS DEFINED.

"He who listens with interest to talk on subjects which he knows well from those who do not know them at all," is a definition of good manners written in a girl's scrap book by M. Faguet, the Academician.

England's Monarch Is Told Cody's Machine Is Safer Than the Average Submarine.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—King George, while visiting the international aeroplane exhibition in London, was interested in Col. Cody's large biplane.

"Is it as safe as a submarine? His Majesty asked Col. Cody while he was examining the machine.

"It is safer," was the reply.

The King laughed as he remarked that he would like to take a flight—"but not yet," he added.

Executive Asks Ministry to Remain in Office.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Raymond Poincare last Tuesday took over the office of President of the French republic from Armand Fallieres, who retired after serving his full term of seven years. Nothing more simple than the transfer of power from one Chief Executive in France to his successor can be imagined.

President Poincare listened while M. Fallieres said:

"I transfer to you the powers of the state."

Then, in a clear, solemn voice, he replied:

"I consecrate myself to the service of the republic."

The ceremony took place in the beautiful palace of the Elysee. No oath of office was taken and no oration made. Just a few courteous sentences were uttered by M. Fallieres and these were answered sincerely by M. Poincare.

SHOWERED WITH FLOWERS.

As President Poincare, accompanied by his two predecessors, Armand Fallieres and Emile Loubet, left the palace, many thousand bouquets were thrown at them by working girls who took off their nosegays and tossed them into the carriage. At the same time an aviator, his aeroplane freighted with fresh blossoms, dropped them from a great height along the route to the City Hall and upon the building itself.

Premier Briand formally tendered tonight the resignation of his Cabinet to President Poincare, but the President asked that the Ministry remain in office.

President Poincare has received messages of felicitation from the rulers of the world.

PREMIER BRIAND CALLS.

Premier Briand in the afternoon called at the private residence of the President-elect. The two then proceeded in a four-horse open carriage escorted by cuirassiers, through the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, the Avenue Des Champs Elysees and the Avenue de Marigny to the palace.

In spite of zero weather, the streets were lined with school children. A school holiday had been proclaimed and most of the children were on hand to cheer and wave handkerchiefs and flags.

As the President-elect's carriage entered the courtyard of the palace, a battalion of infantry came to salute while the trumpeters played a fanfare.

HONOR TO POINCARE.

M. Fallieres, the retiring President, with Emile Loubet, the only other living ex-President of the French republic, received M. Poincare on the steps of the palace and walked with him to the reception hall, where M. Fallieres delivered a brief address, at the end of which he transferred the seals of office to M. Poincare.

The latter in a few remarks accepted the responsibilities of his new post.

President Poincare and ex-President Fallieres kissed each other on both cheeks and at the same moment the guns on the Place des Invalides began to thunder a salute, announcing that the Presidency had changed hands.

POINCARE IS DECORATED.

Georges A. Florentin, Grand Chancellor of the Legion of Honor, then invested President Poincare with the insignia of Grand Master of the order. Oddly enough, President Poincare, although he had recommended many hundreds of people for the decoration of the Legion of Honor, had never until today himself received the ribbon even of the lowest grade.

After luncheon President Poincare escorted ex-President Fallieres to the flat he had engaged for his future residence, which is in the Rue Francois Premier, near that of United States Ambassador Myron T. Herrick.

President Poincare then returned to the Elysee, where he for the first time as President of the republic presided over a meeting of the Cabinet.

The principal streets of Paris were decorated all day with bunting. Crowds promenaded the city singing the "Marseillaise."

FAIL TO RESCUE ARCTIC PARTY.

GERMAN SCIENTISTS HELPLESS IN SPITZBERGEN.

Members of Second Norwegian Expedition Who Reached Dickson Bay Stopped by a Hurricane, Seven Dogs Die and Several Members Suffer from Frost Bites.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

CHRISTIANA (Norway) Feb. 22.—The second Norwegian expedition sent to the relief of the German scientists stranded in a remote part of Spitzbergen, has not succeeded in its undertaking. It left Advent Bay late in January, but was forced to return to Green Harbor in a pitiable condition.

The expedition reached Dickson Bay, where a hurricane stopped all progress. Seven dogs died and several of the members of the rescuing party were frost-bitten. Two sledges were destroyed and for that reason and the loss of the dogs the expedition was forced to leave all provisions except minimum rations.

No further effort will be possible until additional dogs are sent from Norway. Experts consider that unless the Germans are rescued in the near future their position will be very precarious.

[By Atlantic Cable and by Federal (Wireless) Line Overland to The Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Orville Wright visited the International Aero Show at Olympia this week. Two friends, Griffith Brewer and Alec Ogilvie, accompanied him. About an hour was spent inspecting the exhibits, including several hydroplanes which particularly attracted Wright's attention. He explained to his companions what was being done in America in that line. Mr. Wright goes to the East Church aviation meet tomorrow as the guest of Alec Ogilvie. Thence he will proceed to Leipsic to appear as a witness in a law suit on appeal regarding infringements of the Wright patents in Germany.

GUARD KING AND QUEEN AGAINST MILITANT WOMEN

[BY CABLE AND FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE OVERLAND TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The suffragettes have gone so far as to direct their efforts at the royal family, who up to the present have escaped annoyance, although it is said that the King and Queen were recently greatly affronted by a suffragette termagant who got access to the private grounds of one of the royal residences. The matter was hushed up by the King unless the militants should benefit by the advertisement.

It is owing to the violence of the suffragettes that the lists of women to be presented at the courts at Buckingham Palace are being scrutinized this year more closely than ever.

Queen Mary, whose views on the status of women are much the same as those of the late Queen Victoria, regards the militant movement with detestation and its executors with something akin to fear.

THE GROUND HOG.

All the Time It Is Rooting Beneath Our Feet Seeking to Make a Hollow Sphere of the Earth.

[J. J. Taylor in the Dallas News:] The actual statistics are not available, I believe, but I guess there are as many as 2,000,000 ground hogs in America. Suppose one-fourth of the total number, granting that half the whole are of the feminine persuasion and half of them suffragettes—suppose that one-fourth the ground hogs produce each a litter of six ground pigs. Suppose they do, and we have a total (I am a poor hand at figures) of ever so many ground swine. Suppose the ground hogs encore twice a year. That means a terrible lot of available pork. Then imagine all the ground hogs, the ground sows and the ground pigs rooting, rooting, rooting steadily underneath our feet, building themselves houses and villages and towns and walled cities—rooting day and night, rooting Sundays, rooting while mankind sleeps, rooting, rooting, rooting ever beneath our feet! How long will it take them to make the round world a hollow sphere, a mere shell, and how long after that before the outer crust caves in and helz to pay?

You may call me an alarmist, a seeker for notoriety, an itcher for controversy. You may sneer at me, scoff, scorn or sniff, but the fact remains that we are as a people and as a nation chasing ignis fatuus, blowing bubbles, tinkering with the tariff, pursuing Rockefeller and otherwise frivoling the golden hours away, while steadily, ceaselessly, inexorably the ground hogs are rooting, rooting, rooting ever beneath our careless feet. The sun rises at dawn and sets at dusk, the clock ticks on and on, tuck-tock, tuck-tock, on and on tuck-tock; the sea sinks and swells, the tides rise and fall, the breakers pound the shores day after day and the silent moon and the noiseless stars swing in their orbits high in the vaulted heavens; the clouds gather, the rain falls, the earth is warmed by the kisses of the spring, and tender flowers raise their crested heads from the mellow earth. Nature works its [illegible] ways, the lover and the [illegible] their trysts, the priests and [illegible]ister to the souls and hearts of [illegible] and tall and fair the lilies [illegible] the meadow grasses—yet [illegible] without ceasing the ground [illegible] rooting, rooting on and [illegible] beneath our careless feet. Father-Love.

hear about a mother's love story and in .ong, stanch it is though thick and thin,
tender and how strong,
sweet and pure and beautiful,
And every word is true.
what about a father's love?
That claims some credit, too.

father delves the darksome mine,
And climbs the girders high,
And swings upon the scaffolding
Between the earth and sky.
father bends his aching back,
And bows his graying head, bear the burdens of the day,
And earn the children's bread.

both must work and both must plan,
And do an equal share
rear the little ones the Lord
Has trusted to their care.
honor to the mother-love,
The universe it fills,
when you praise it don't forget
That father pays the bills.
Irving in New York Times.

The Poet and His Dead.

lit my tall, white candles and placed them by the bed,
by her little dancing feet, two by her nodding head;
feet that dance not, eyes that see not, Love for ever dead!

picked my tall, white lilies and laid them by her side, other hand a lily droops, a lily for my bride;
cannot feel them, no, nor see them, they watch her open-eyed.

all the love God gave me, to spend in knightly quests, pomp and pride of living, with her, it rests, her silent lips and quiet eyes and the stillness of her breasts.

earth yet lingers with me, and yet I see the sky;
winds are here, and the sun and moon, and the stars that multiply;
sometimes she is cold and dead, and sometimes it is I.

Between us now there stretches a unmeasured space living dead can bridge not nor living grace; cannot hear her breathing; she cannot see my face.

poor hands touch and tremble, poor lips kiss and yearn little sudden warmth—but the dead shall not return; lilies droop and falter, the tall, white candles burn.
—Richard Middleton, in the English Review.

The Train.

like a jointed iron snake—what a noise they let it make!

smoke sails from its smoke-stack high, clouds from out the sky;
quickly up the track,
never does it rattle back!

suppose a train could cry,
it has but one big eye;
teeth show in its smile—
it's happy all the while.

I think if it were I,
would run to it and cry,
here, sir, you are a disgrace!
did you get that dirty face?"

STATE ACTIVITIES.

Louisiana Seeking Immigrants.

Several immigrants from Holland have recently arrived at New Orleans as a result of circulars sent out by the State Colonization Bureau. The new arrivals will settle upon some of the reclaimed lands and will start farming operations soon. Pamphlets descriptive of the notable opportunities in Louisiana have also been sent to Belgium, while other efforts are making to secure settlers from Denmark. A colony from the latter country is expected to come and make a specialty of truck farming, finding an immediate market for their products in New Orleans. This latter project is to be financed by capitalists of Denmark. Already a few [illegible] of Denmark have been running truck farms in South Mississippi with considerable profit, and information of their work is helping the other efforts being made for securing other colonists from that country.

Alabama's Convict System.

The State of Alabama leases out its State Prison convicts and thus makes a profit on them. Recently a contract was closed with the McPhaul Turpentine Company for from fifty to seventy-five convicts for whose services the State will receive $50 per head per month. This contract is for three years. Another contract on practically the same terms has also been concluded with the Horshoe Lumber Company for one year. The latter company pays in $3000 cash and gives the State $39 per month for each convict. The Horshoe Company has worked convicts for the past twelve years, and the past year has been paying the State the following amounts per day for classified convicts: First-class, $1.35; second-class, $1; third-class, 75 cents. This contract, it is estimated, has averaged the State only $30 per month per head.

The new contracts are the best prices the State has ever received for its convicts.

Minnesota Has a Jag Farm.

The State of Minnesota has invested $250,000 in a "jag farm" for the reformation of drunkards, men or women.

Facing Lake Wilmar and at the side of a water tank with a capacity of 72,000 gallons, a hospital and cottages have been erected, equipped with tub baths, shower baths and marble massage slabs in hydro-therapeutic bathrooms. There the water cure will be administered until the patient learns to like it. Thre will be no drugs and no liquor. But every influence will be exerted to make the individual realize that he has manhood in him and that he is capable of controlling himself.

As a starter, he will be boiled and parboiled and rubbed and massaged to get as much alcohol out of him as possible. Then every time he feels a craving for drink he will be rushed to the hydro-therapeutic bathroom and put in a tub of water.

"Drinking liquor is only a habit, and any person may be cured of a habit," is the Minnesota theory.

Any person who has been "jagged" three times within three years is eligible.

In order that there might be no mistake as to what constitutes an inebriate, and as to just who should be sent to the "jag farm," the Legislature included the following clause in the act:

The inability of any person to control his appetite for intoxicating liquor shall be a ground for the appointment of guardians of his person, and such guardians may be the superintendent of the hospital farm for inebriates and the State Board of Control.

The act provides that 2 per cent. of the saloon license tax shall go to the farm. The farm has room for fifty persons, and arrangements have been made to enlarge it so as to accommodate 500 or 1000 if needed. Already enough applications have been made by courts for places for men and women to more than fill the hospital.

The farm comprises 497 acres of land under cultivation, and this will give employment to the inmates. The buildings on the farm are thoroughly modern, with up-to-date equipment.

Boulevard Work in Delaware.

In 1911, T. Coleman Du Pont of Delaware undertook to build a first-class boulevard across the entire State without any cost to the State. For this purpose he organized a corporation known as the Coleman Du Pont Road, incorporated under the general corporation law, and began work. In acquiring the right of ways, developing an organization, buying equipment, materials, supplies and in grading and other construction work on right of ways acquired, Mr. Du Pont spent about $300,000, and the work had just begun to show progress when it was stopped by litigation which called in the question the constitutionality of the boulevard law. By reason of this litigation, under advice of attorneys, work on the road was stopped in April, last year. Work was stopped because the litigation, of course, attacked the validity of every act that might be done by the corporation and even its rights to exist.

Since the work was stopped, Mr. Du Pont has maintained the nucleus of his organization and preserved the equipment and materials at a constant monthly cost. In June, last year, the Supreme Court of Delaware decided in favor of the constitutionality of the boulevard law, but those who oppose the boulevard appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, and are not willing to aid in expediting a decision by that court. Mr. Du Pont has therefore asked the general assembly to take some action whereby he may know whether a majority of the people of Delaware want a boulevard. If they don't want it, he says he will at once take steps to restore the land, given or condemned, to the former owners and give up all interest therein and title thereto."

HAIR OF NOTED MEN.

Brings a Higher Price When Sold by Locks Than It Would If Put Up by the Bag Full.

[Baltimore American:] There has been more traffic in the hair of the great Napoleon than in that of any other monarch, and the prices have varied greatly. Some time ago a lock that had been cut from Napoleon's head on his deathbed at St. Helena commanded £250 in Paris. A few months later another lock, which had likewise been cut after his death, was actually disposed of in London for the sum of £7 5s.

But even that was not the lowest price at which Napoleon's hair has been bought at a public auction. On one occasion a lock was sold at the rooms of Knight, Frank & Rutley for £3.

A little later a sample of the Bonaparte hair changed hands in the metropolis for a £5 note, while Messrs. Sotheby a little time before could get only £5 5s for a lock which had been cut from Napoleon's head during his captivity at St. Helena.

On two other occasions, however, the same firm did much better, obtaining in one instance as much as £20 10s for the interesting relic. In the other case the price given was £30. A letter, however, went with it, and the hair had been cut from Napoleon's head when he was on board the Bellerophon.

After Napoleon's, Nelson's hair would seem to command the highest figure. Two or three months ago a lock of the immortal admiral's hair realized no less than £315, which would appear to be the record. Some years ago £100 was paid for a lock. In curious contrast to that was the amount paid a short time before for one of his locks, but long before he had achieved any of his deeds of "derring do"—namely, when he was a boy of 10. Only £2 was paid for this.

But even that was double the amount that could be obtained for some hair which had once adorned the head of Napoleon's vanquisher, the great Duke of Wellington. When offered for sale at auction by Messrs. Stevens 20 shillings was all that anybody would offer for it.

The hair of writers is evidently thought more of than that of some of our greatest warriors. For example, 4 guineas was paid for one of Sir Walter Scott's locks inclosed in a morocco case when put up for sale in London.

It is a curious fact, however, that for some hair of the beard of Sir Walter's great-grandfather, offered at the same time and place, only 30 shillings was bid. And this despite the fact that there was plenty of it, inasmuch as the old man had sworn never to shave until King James was restored, as a note in Sir Walter's own handwriting, included in the bargain, testified.

Another writer whose hair commands a fair price is Oliver Goldsmith. To obtain one of his locks his coffin was opened and the hair was inclosed in a black enameled brooch. Ten guineas was paid for this when offered at auction in London.

It is not very long since a lock of Byron's hair was sold at Messrs. Puttick & Simpson's salesrooms for £13 10s. The lock was inclosed in a glass case, and with it went a letter in the handwriting of the poet's sister, to whom the hair had belonged. It was presented by her to a Mrs. Clarke, and ultimately came under the hammer with the result mentioned.

Playing Golf, Indoors.

[Popular Mechanics:] All the strokes of golf, with the actual force put into them when playing on a regular golf course, can be executed in a London golf school. This school has, in fact, an indoor golf course. One cannot, to be sure, wander over hill and dale, making hole after hole, but the drive can be made from a mat, the ball being caught by netting; the "iron" shots, from real grass; the putting is done on an undulating green of real grass, and a sand bunker is also provided.

BIZARRE SERMONS.

One Ohio Minister Goes the Limit in His Address to the Women of His Congregation.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal:] The quest for the sensational and the fantastic has reached even to the pulpit. At least, to some pulpits; there are still ministers who take a text from scripture and confine themselves to its expoundings, but there are many others who use the preaching prerogative to assail the fads and errors of the day. Within certain limitations this is permissible, for the preacher is expected to throw up, so far as possible, a moral breastwork between his flock and the wolfish evils of the world.

There is, however, a limit, an invisible line over which preachers may not pass with impunity. But a Columbus (O.) pastor recently failed to see this line, or else wilfully and brazenly disregarded it. Having critically observed the dresses of the women of his congregation, and being concerned either for their comfort or their protection from comment, he stood in his elevated place several Sundays ago and preached this rhymed "sermon" to them:

"Little girl, you look so small,
Don't you wear any clothes at all?
Don't you wear a flannel shirt?
Don't you wear a pretty skirt?
Just your corset and your hose?
Are these all your underclothes?
After a while, I do believe,
You will dress like Mother Eve."

Short? Yes, but with a hidden nitroglycerin power that metaphorically rocked the house of worship! Here was no religion; here was no moral teaching; here was an audacious attack upon fashions, a sacriligious use of the ministerial rights. Instead of doing good, this preacher, by his levity of diction and his presumption in choosing such a subject antagonized every woman who heard him. ASTER ISLAND GREAT MYSTERY.

EXPEDITION FITTED OUT TO STUDY ITS ANTIQUITIES.

Volcanic Island Contains Remains of Stone Houses Built Like Forts, Tablets With Curious Hieroglyphics, and Images and Statues Both Finished and Unfinished.

York Sun:] The attention of logists is again attracted to Easter Island, a mere speck in South Seas, that is surrounded by the charm of mystery possessed few places in the world. On this island with an area of not than forty-two square miles, is markable display of hundreds of statues colossal in size and upon cyclopean masonry; houses over 100 feet in length walls six feet in thickness built forts, and tablets curiously inscribed with hieroglyphics in no way bling anything else in the world, the written language of the inhabitants, but one to which has been lost.

island was discovered by the captain, Jacob Roggeveen, in He gave to the island its present name in commemoration of the which land was sighted. Some years later it was "rediscovered" Spanish sailors. From that to the present day Easter Island been visited, explored and studied travelers, scientists and inquirers from all lands and it promises to afford these opportunities for for years to come.

Within limited area there are three of extinct volcanoes, one of nearly 2000 feet high. Some of is fertile and the island appears to have been wooded at one decayed trunks of considerable size are still found; now, however, thrive only a few bushes to twelve feet high.

It that of the of images scattered island there is but one in its original position while the others are about. To some conclusive proof that huge productions ceased suddenly. Did some volcanic eruption overtake the island? Such a conjecture is, indeed, not unreasonable, for closer investigation shows that some of the largest statues are buried to the neck in ash and scoria. But who can say with certainty?

Viewing the relics on the island in their entirety, however, one is impressed with the fact that when they were carried out a large population of skilled men must have concentrated upon the task. Nearly all students agree on one point, and that is that the present territorial limitations of the place could not have harbored a very large number of inhabitants. First, there is no adequate water supply, and, secondly, there is not the area from which to win a sufficient food supply. This, then, suggests the theory, and one that is open to reasonable refutation, that Easter Island is the sole remnant of a greater land which was overwhelmed by the sea after a serious seismic disturbance.

Another archaelogist develops the theory that the ancient peoples of Easter Island were the same race that centuries afterward laid the foundations of the empires of the Incas and Aztecs. These people, he continues, reached Easter Island from the Asian coast by traveling from one island to another across the intervening ocean and finally found their way to the American continent over land that has since disappeared beneath the waters of the Pacific.

This theory is, however, subject to objections. In a careful study of the Malayo-Polynesian archaeology and languages embracing a period of nearly thirty years, the noted botanist and ethnologist, Prof. W. E. Safford of the United States Department of Agriculture, makes the unqualified assertion that in all his attempts to trace a connection between the ancient relics of the Incas and Aztecs with those of the Polynesians he has failed to find sufficient points of similarity to justify even such a possible relation. So the mystery continues and the origin and workers of Easter Island are yet to be learned.

On part of the island there are remains of stone houses, some of them nearly 100 feet long, also built without motar, with the walls formed of large flat stones, about five feet thick and over five feet high. The interior chambers of these houses are lined with upright slabs painted with geometrical figures and pictures of strange-looking animals. Wooden tablets have also been discovered incised with hieroglyphics.

"These are of especial interest because of the remarkable skill with which they were executed," says Mr. Sandberg. The writings read from left to right; then it is necessary to turn the tablet upside down and continue reading from left to right, repeating the process until the inscription is concluded. Figures of men, animals, geometric designs, constitute the alphabet. Though these incised tablets have not been deciphered, there is a general belief that they contain the ancient myths of the race which inhabited the land. Some assert that it is not so very long ago that there were those on the island who might have been able to read them. It should be recalled that up to 1864 there were several thousand inhabitants on Easter Island, but large numbers of them were taken from there and put to work in the guano diggings on the Chincha Islands. Among those, it is thought, there were many who knew the written language as appearing on the tablets. But the present inhabitants, less than 200 in number, know nothing of them except in a vague way that they contain the historic annals of their peoples."

Prof. Safford declared that a careful study of the language of the modern natives, shows it to be essentially Polynesian without any vestige of foreign domination; but the more remarkable thing is its very close similarity to the language of the Hawaiians. Nearly all of the words, by certain fixed laws or changes, could be converted from the Easter Island language to that of Hawaii with similar meanings; even some of the ancient gods of Easter Island bear the same names as Hawaiian gods.

A PATERNAL RAILROAD.

The Pennsylvania Goes to Trouble and Expense to Keep Employees Out of the Hands of Loan Sharks.

[Railway Age Gazette:] The method of dealing with attachments and liens against employees' wages illustrates possibly better than anything else can the spirit which lies behind the system of paying employees in cash on the Pennsylvania lines west. There is nothing in the law of any of the States through which these lines run which would compel the railroad company to notify an employee of an attachment obtained on his wages. It would be easy to argue that employees should not run into debt and that a man who had his wages attached was not deserving of consideration. This is not the argument that is accepted in regard to employeess on the lines west. The railroad company goes to considerable trouble and some expense to notify a man whose wages have been attached of the fact and he is advised to consult at once with the nearest company's solicitor. Men are not permitted to make an assignment of their wages. If a man urgently needs money before the end of the month, it is possible for him to obtain it from the railroad company. In dealing with loan brokers the company advises its men to make a tender of the amount due, with legal interest, and if the loan broker refuses this tender, the company assumes the burden of paying the employee the wages due him and fighting the case, if necessary, against the broker. It was at one time the practice to discharge a man who was found to be in debt to a loan broker, but this had the effect of helping the loan broker. A Pennsylvania employee was considered a preferred risk simply because after he had once gotten in the grasp of the money lender the severest possible pressure could be brought to bear to compel the payment of any interest, no matter how exorbitant, through the fear of exposure. Now this fear has been removed and the employee who has been unfortunate and has gotten himself iin trouble can feel that the company is his friend rather than the moneylender's instrument of vengeance. Of course the man who habitually gets in debt is not a desirable employgee and is not retained. The attitude in regard to money lenders and attachment of wages for bills is only one of a number of ways in which the company is making a consistent effort to gain the loyalty of its employees through a consideration for their convenience in the matter of receiving their wages that, it would seem, is bound to have a very considerable effect.

Owes Her Sife to Eckman's Alterative

A Valuable Remedy for Throat and Lungs

Eckman's Alterative is being used with success in the treatment of Tuberculosis in all parts of the country. Persons who have taken it, improved, gained weight, exhausting night sweats stopped, fever diminished, and many recovered. If you are interested to know more about it, we will put you in touch with some who are now well. You can investigate and judge for yourself. Read of Mrs. Govert's recovery.

Griffith, Ind.

"Gentlemen: Thinking that perhaps a short history of the remarkable recovery of my mother-in-law (Mrs. Anna Govert,) might benefit some other sufferers, I give the following testimonial: About September 10, 1908, she was taken sick with catarrhal Pneumonia, and continually grew worse, requiring a trained nurse. Night sweats were so bad that it was necessary to change her clothing once or twice every night; her cough increased and got so bad that everybody expected that she would not live much longer. In January, when Rev. Wm. Berg, of St. Michael's Church, at Shereville, Ind., prepared for her death, he recommended that I get Eckman's Alterative, and see if it would not give her some relief. I then requested the attending physician to give his diagnosis and he informed me that she had Consumption and was beyond all medical aid. When I asked if he thought that it was useless to try the Alterative, he replied that 'No physician could help her any and I could suit myself about it.' So I immediately had Rev. Wm. Berg to send for a bottle. Practically without hope of recovery, I insisted that she try the Alterative, which she did. I am glad to say that she soon began to improve. Now, she works as hard as ever, weighs twenty pounds heavier than she ever did before she took sick, and is in good health. She frankly says she owes her life and health to Eckman's Alterative."

(Sworn Affidavit) JOS. GRIMMER.

Eckman's Alterative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. For sale by The Owl Drug Co. and other leading druggists. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence.—[Advertisement.

Dyaks' Respect for Truth.

[The Argonaut:] So disgraceful do the Dyaks of Borneo consider the deceiving of others by an untruth that such is handed down to posterity by a curious custom. They heap up a pile of branches of trees in memory of the man who has uttered a great lie, so that the future generations may know of his wickedness, and take warning by it. The persons deceived start the tugong bula—the liar's mound—by heaping up a large number of branches in some conspicuous spot by the side of the path from one village to another. Every passer-by contributes to it, and at the same time reviles the memory of the man who told the lie.

PANAMA-PACIFIC DIRECTOR.

Dr. Skiff Has Some Personal Characteristics That Make Him a Good Man to Deal With.

[California Advertiser:] The Panama-Pacific Exposition is attracting the attention of the entire world. The body of men who compose the directorate combine every element necessary for the culmination of such a vast project. The success of the fair is a personal matter with each and every member, and any business pertaining to it takes precedence over their private affairs.

The one great man who is, in a measure, responsible for this twentieth century marvel is Dr. Frederick E. V. Skiff, who is the world's greatest expert in world's fair productions.

Dr. Skiff's early life was spent in journalism, he being associated with Eugene Field in the editorial departments of the Denver Republican.

A trifling anecdote will reveal the greatness of the man: Away back in the eighties, when Cheyenne boasted of a population of 500, the principal publication of the town was owned by the bank president, who owned everything, and as Will Cressy would say: "What he isn't, there ain't."

A young man was manager, editor, reporter and all-around man. The railway depot was the principal news center, and the arrival of a train the one big event in the day.

One day a gentleman alighted from the Union Pacific train, and the young journalist scented a story, possibly, in the wavy-haired newcomer.

Addressing him in a reportorial way, he inquired his business and so forth, and was told: "Why, I came from Denver to take charge of the Cheyenne Leader." This was the first intimation the reporter had that he was to be discharged.

In a spirit of confidence, and attracted by the sense of fairness that radiated from the new man, he told of a trivial misunderstanding he had had with the owner of the publication. "Stay where you are," said he. "I'll never take your job from you." A train whistle was heard; the man boarded the train and returned to Denver without even seeing the owner of the paper who had sent for him. He was Dr. Frederick E. V. Skiff, directer in chief of the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

HOW THEY RETAIN THEIR BEAUTY

To stay the hand of Father Time and retain that desired appearance of youth after it has been considered impossible—has been the constant effort of woman for centuries.

Noted beauties, society leaders and actresses have astonished the world for some time past by the exquisite freshness of their complexions—they seem to resist the attack of age with its wake of evils—and tell-tale marks of time, wrinkles, blackheads, crows-feet, etc.

Rose Petal Complexions

And now the ladies of Los Angeles and environs are to be offered the opportunity of acquiring the secret of keeping a youthful, clear complexion, and learn how to have a charming skin of perfect clearness and overcome the evil effects that have already appeared—How to banish them and attain that complexion so desired.

"The Little Pink Cake for Complexion's Sake."

Sempre Giovine penetrates the deepest layers of the skin, absorbing and forcing out to the surface—for easy removal—instead of sealing in, all the waste matter and impurities, dead tissue, dust and dirt.

Sempre Giovine cleanses the clogged pores, permits them to breathe, stimulates the circulation, nourishes and rebuilds the healthy skin tissue. This is the reason why it produces to the users of Sempre that clear, velvety complexion.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Speaker" writes: "I am troubled with a tickling sensation after speaking, which is accompanied with a slight cough and hoarseness. Can I get relief?"

Answer: You will not only be relieved, but you will be cured by using the following: Ask your druggist for a 2½ oz. bottle of essence mentho-laxene. This can be taken pure or can be made into a full pint of cough syrup. Full directions are given on the bottle for making. This is very easily made at home and is perfectly safe as it does not contain any harmful ingredients as do most of the so-called cough cures.

"Ida" writes: "I have suffered with stomach trouble and constipation for about two years, and I fear it will cause appendicitis if I cannot get some relief."

Answer: I recommend that you get tablets triopeptine and take a pink tablet after breakfast, a white tablet after dinner and a blue tablet after supper. This is a very excellent treatment and is widely prescribed for its gradual curative action. Continue this treatment for several weeks and I am sure you will be cured.

"Doctor: Several years ago I took a tonic which you prescribed for me, but it has been so long that I have forgotten the ingredients. It was the best nerve and system tonic that I ever took. Will you kindly publish the ingredients again?"

Answer: The tonic I always prescribe for people in your condition is: Syrup of hypophosphites comp., 5 ozs.; tincture cadomene comp., 1 oz. Shake well and take a teaspoonful before meals. This is the best nerve and system tonic that I know of.

"Overweight" asks: "I wish you would prescribe something to reduce my weight that I could safely take. I despise liquid medicine. Can you give a pill or tablet?"

Answer: I find many are like you, and advise that you obtain in sealed tube 5-grain Arbolene tablets. Any accommodating dealer can obtain from wholesale druggists. Full directions accompany each tube.

"Tom" writes: "I have very poor health on account of long standing constipation. I take medicine all the time, but would like to get something that would cure me."

Answer: More illness is caused by constipation than by any other ailment. You can get plenty of medicines that will relieve, but if you want something that will cure you I would advise the use of three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets). They can be bought at any drug store in sealed tubes with full directions for using. I have found them the most reliable and gradually curative.

"A. L. U."—I advise you to get the following ingredients and mix at home to cure your child of bedwetting: Tincture cubebs, 1 dram; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; and tincture rhus aromatic, 2 drams. Mix in water and give 10 to 15 drops one hour before meals.

"Miss Anna" writes: "I suffer with very severe headaches which also affects my eyes. My throat and nostrils are affected by catarrh and my breath is very bad. Could you prescribe a cure?"

Answer: I have cured hundreds who suffer as you do by prescribing the following and have received many letters from grateful people which indicates that it is speedily curative. Purchase a 2 oz. original package of vilane powder; to a pint of warm water add one-half teaspoonful and snuff the water from the palm of the hand through the nostrils two or three times a day or until they are thoroughly cleansed; then apply well up into the nostrils twice daily the following catarrh balm: To one level teaspoonful of vilane powder add one ounce of lard or vaseline. If used according to the above prescription your catarrh should soon vanish. This should be used occasionally to prevent its return.

"Mildred K." says: "Please advise what I can use for a good hair tonic. My hair and scalp are in a very bad condition and nothing seems to help."

Answer: The best hair tonic on the market is sold in 4 oz. jars and is called plain yellow minyol. Any up-to-date druggist will have it. This is superior to anything known for the treatment of the diseases of the hair and scalp. Two or three applications have been known to cure, while it makes the hair soft, fluffy and makes it keep its natural color.

"Jane" writes: "My nerves are in a dreadful condition, my appetite is very poor and I am extremely thin. My face is so thin that it makes me very unhappy. I should like you to tell me a true remedy."

Answer: If you wish to become stouter, improve your appetite and your nervous system, I heartily recommend the use of three grain hypo-nuclane tablets, which you will find in any well-stocked drug store, in sealed cartons with full directions for taking. Hypo-nuclane tablets improve the nutrition, add red corpuscles to the blood, strengthen the nervous system and improve the general health. Many people report that they have gained from 10 to 30 pounds in two months.

"Harry" writes: "Both my wife and myself suffer with rheumatism. We would appreciate a reply telling us what to take."

Answer: Mix the following at home or have the druggist mix for you: 2 drams of iodide of potassium; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; and syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs. Take a teaspoonful at meal time and bed time. Always shake well before using.—[Advertisement.

NATURE STORIES.

The Vision of Vultures.

[Youth's Companion:] Compared with our human eyesight, the vision of birds of prey is marvelous. The bird student is often amazed at the immense distances at which hawks, eagles and vultures can distinguish objects. It is a well-authenticated fact that vultures do not find their food by the sense of smell. Many years ago Charles Darwin experimented with the carrion birds of South America, and found that so long as the food was concealed from sight, no matter how putrid and ill-smelling it was, the birds failed to detect it. Other observers have reached the same conclusion. A friend of the Companion writes:

It was detailed for service with some troops that were moving along the Mexican border. One evening we camped near a small stream on the western slope of the hills east from San Diego. During the night one of the wagon mules died. We took the body a short distance from camp and partly concealed it in a clump of willows. The next morning, after the column had resumed its march, I rode to the summit of the highest hill, some three miles from our camping ground, and swept the country through a pair of powerful binoculars.

As the glasses moved along the horizon, a vulture, a mere speck in the distance, came into their field. He was sailing in great circles in the blue heavens, miles away, far beyond the ken of the unaided eye. Suddenly he paused in his flight, turned sharply, and headed directly for our abandoned camp ground. I watched him until I was convinced that he had discovered the dead mule.

Then I recollected that years ago I had read in one of Capt. Mayne Reid's books something of the habits of vultures, and I began to look for others. In a few minutes, another appeared, a black speck in the sky, speeding in the wake of the first; then another and another came, from different points of the compass; then more and more, all hurrying toward their loathsome feast.

While I watched the gathering vultures I made a little calculation. When the first vulture discovered the carcass, he was not visible to the naked eye, and was but a speck through the binoculars. That is, adding the three miles I had ridden from camp to eighteen, the range of the binoculars, the bird must have been nearly twenty-one miles from the carcass. The carcass itself was partly concealed and invisible from my position except through the glasses. That the vulture depended upon his vision alone is evident, as enough time had not passed for any putrefactive changes to taint the air.

Another interesting thing was the promptness with which the other vultures took the hint when the first made his discovery. There was only one in sight to begin with; in ten minutes there were fifty.

Ape Trained to Work.

[Washington Star:] The Gaulois asserts that a farmer in the neighborhood of Paris employs on his farm an ape brought from Central Africa by his son, a non-commissioned officer in the French colonial army. The ape works in the cowsheds, looking after the cows and milking them, as if it had never done anything else in its life.

This recalls a saying among the Africans, adds the Gaulois, that monkeys could speak if they wished, but that they do not wish as they are afraid of being made to work.

A Dog Bandit.

[New York World:] The success of the police dog in Paris has had a singular result. Thieves have taken to training the intelligent companion of man. Two men entered a store and asked for a pound of cheese. The woman who dispensed such wares hastened to attend to her customers. While thus busied one of the men drew the lady's attention to a dog which had stolen from the display of poultry a large chicken.

At once the woman gave chase, whereupon the men helped themselves to the till and got away with some $20. The woman failed to catch the dog and upon her return discovered her loss. Meanwhile the intelligent beast went home and laid the chicken at the door of a mean flat without so much as tearing the skin.

A passing gendarme observed the strange sight and waited. Presently the two men approached and were promptly arrested, the spoils, including edibles and valuables of various sort, found in the flat being taken to the police station, where the thieves await trial.

Birds Hold Tribunals.

[Harper's Weekly:] Ravens, starlings and crows are believed to hold courts of justice to mete out punishment to offenders. Sometimes they assemble in great numbers, as if they would give great dignity to the occasion. The trial sometimes apparently endures for many days. Some birds sit at the conclave with lowered heads, some merely cock their heads on the branches and look grave, while others are most garrulous and fill the air with their complaints.

Naturalists studying these strange proceedings have seen an apparently selected member of birds fall upon one or more of their number—at the close of the "trial"—and put them to death, after which they dispersed in orderly fashion and went back quietly to their nests.

An Ants' Sewing Circle.

[Sunday Magazine:] A party of German naturalists recently returned from Ceylon have reported the existence of a species of ant that has been observed in the act of sewing two leaves together for the purpose of forming a nest. This report confirms the observations of the English naturalist, Ridley, made in 1890.

They saw a row of insects pulling the edges of leaves together; then others trimming and fitting the edges; and finally the completion of the work by still other ants which fastened the edges with a silky thread yielded by larva of the same species the workers carried in their mandibles. It is said that the sewing ants pass the thread-giving larva like shuttles through holes in the edges of the leaves.

Birds as Comedians.

[Washington Star:] Those "purple patches" of nature—the tropical birds—are now being shown in bewildering variety by the Cage Bird Society.

The comedians of the exhibition are three hill mynahs, the property of W. A. Shepherd. The mynah is a gawky black bird with a tangerine beak, and, as it generally talks in Hindustani, the visitors rarely understand the insulting things it is saying about them.

What it cannot express in words, it whistles. These three birds are placed in a row in separate cages, and every few minutes the bird on the left breaks into a loud whistling of just this much of the old tune:

"Merrily danced the Quaker's wife."

And the bird on the extreme right takes up the next lines:

"And merrily danced the Quaker."

Meanwhile the bird in the middle breaks into a sort of epileptic one-step along its perch.

Greyhounds the Oldest Dogs.

[Dundee Advertiser:] The greyhound of Altcar and the Waterloo Cup is the oldest domestic dog and can be traced back by sculptures and frescoes for thirteen centuries before the Christian era. A fine group of greyhounds fondling one another at the British Museum must be more than 2000 years old, and some of the dogs depicted in hunting scenes on the Egyptian monuments are of the greyhound type. Greyhounds have been popular in England since King Canute's time, but nobody but a "gentleman" or a freeholder was allowed to keep them.

One Question Settled.

[St. Paul Dispatch:] The Rev. Herbert L. Trenchman, in a lecture on "Woman" at a Methodist church in Duluth, was condemning this winter's type of hobble skirt.

"It's worse than last winter's," he declared. "It's altogether immodest. I wish all husbands had the courage of a Duluth man I heard about recently.

"This honest fellow's wife turned complacently from the mirror, and, smoothing her new hobble skirt—a skirt of that ultra sort which must be put on with a shoe-horn, said:

"'I wonder if the hobble skirt will ever go out?'

"'Not with me,' the man answered firmly."

BUST DEVELOPED ONE OUNCE A DAY

A New Simple Easy Home Method That Gives Quick And Permanent Success

Judge from my picture as to the truth of what I say to you—that the crowning feminine attribute is a bust of beautiful proportions, firmness and exquisite development. Then ask yourself how much you would like to have such a photograph of yourself, showing the glory of womanhood with its lines of infinite charm and grace. It would be worth far more than a 2-cent stamp, would it not? Then let me give you my message—let me tell you of what I have learned and let me give you recent pictures of myself to prove what I say—for if you will write me today

I Will Tell You How-FREE

I will tell you gladly and willingly. Why should any woman neglect an opportunity to escape the pain and heartache of being skinny, scrawny, angular and unattractive in body? Misery is not our heritage. Nature planned that you—a woman—should have the rich, pulsing lines of warm, living flesh molded after the mother of us all, the description of whom perfumes our sacred literature with love and admiration for the divinity of woman's form. For why should there be that pitiful aspect—the face of a woman and the form of a man.

Write To Me Today

I don't care how fallen, or flaccid, or undeveloped your bust now is—I want to tell you of a simple home method—I want to tell you how you can gain perfect development one ounce a day. No physical culture—no massage, foolish baths or paste—no plasters, masks or injurious injections—I want to tell you of an absolutely new method, never before offered or told about—insuring immediate success and permanent beauty.

Send No Money

Just write me a letter—address it to me personally—that's all. I will answer it by return mail—and you can develop your bust one ounce a day—you can be what you want to be. Believe me when I say that you will bless me through years of happiness for pointing the way to you and telling you what I know. Please send your letter today to the following address:

Darken Your Gray Hair

This Recipe Makes an Excellent Home Made Preparation.

It is humiliating to go into a drug store and ask for a hair dye or stain or restorer, as it at once calls attention to a fact you want to conceal—that your hair is turning gray. This simple recipe relieves you of all such humiliation and at the same time gives you a cheap and better hair darkener and scalp tonic than the store preparations. Procure from your druggist at little cost one ounce of bay rum, a quarter ounce of glycerine and a small box of Barbo Compound; then in your own home dissolve the Barbo Compound in 7 ounces of water and add the other two ingredients and you will have a most effective hair darkener as well as a good remedy for dandruff and other scalp humors. It not only browns the gray hair but acts as a tonic to the scalp, makes the hair soft and glossy and is not sticky like many store preparations. It is to be applied once a week until the hair is darkened, then every two weeks. Be sure your druggist gives you Barbo Compound—no other ingredient will take its place.—[Advertisement.

MEN OF NOTE.

Cornelius Vanderbilt's Exactitude.

[Harper's Weekly:] Mr. Vanderbilt was notably exacting in his personal business relations—of himself as well as of others. At a meeting of a certain railroad's board of directors of which he was a member, it was found that several were absent. At a full board meeting each director received $10, and it was the rule that if any were absent those present shared the total fee. That is, if but half the members were present each attending member would receive $20, and so proportionately. On the day of the meeting referred to the number of absentees made the division of the fee amount to certain odd dollars and 12½ cents. At the close of the meeting, as the secretary handed each member his apportioned fee, he accepted the given number of dollars and passed up the 12½ cents to avoid the bother of making change. When the secretary came to Mr. Vanderbilt, however, he found him busily counting some small coin from a purse upon the table. "I can change a dollar for you and will take the 12 cents," said Mr. Vanderbilt; then smiled as he added, "but I cannot manage the half cent." And the man worth more than $100,000,000 had taken the trouble to change $1 for the sake of 12 cents, which together with the extra dollars, had come to him by the default of others. Had the proposed half penny then been in circulation he would probably have "managed the half cent."

The next day Cornelius Vanderbilt gave $500,000 to establish a charity work in New York. And it was in a measure due to his constantly keeping close tab on the pennies in the handling of his large affairs that he was able to make such a splendid gift in the cause of humanity.

George W. Perkins's Big Clock.

[Washington Star:] "There's a big clock in the hall of Perkins's house up the river," said a friend, "that has a story. That Perkins home, by the way, is as big as a poorhouse and as comfortable as a barroom.

Perkins always begins the story by the explanation that he is not and never was a banker.

"I was taken into the Morgan firm because I had a name as an organizer," said he. "I stayed longer than I expected to. By and by the need for my services was at an end, and I retired with more money than I had ever dreamed of."

He made his name as an organizer when he was with the New York Life Insurance Company. The other companies were knocking the Life's head against the wall every now and then. The situation in Denver was especially bad. The Life couldn't keep a solicitor there with savvy enough to scatter salt to sheep. So Perkins was sent out to hold the fort. His instructions were to kill or maim any solicitor he caught trying to get away.

"It was a hard fight," said he. "After a few months, I heard that my force of solicitors would desert me in a body. Just as I was trying to make my chin sit still after these tidings I was called home by phone. My solicitors were all out there, and insisted on seeing me on a matter of important business.

"'This,' I said to myself, 'is the finish for George Washington P. He's failed on the first big job ever given me to do.'

"And the boys didn't make it any easier by reciting a doleful story of unfair competition. My eyes must have looked like blue and white saucers on a wavery pattern during this speech.

"'But,' said the spokesman, breaking into a giggle, 'we have our future to consider. And so we're all going to stand by you, because you've given us a chance to make good. And here's a little something for you.'

"He took the sheet off the clock and I swallowed a football. I knew I had made good, and you all know the rest of the story. And, wherever I go, that clock goes with me; I wouldn't trade it for a railroad."

The Kaiser's Mustache.

[London Chronicle:] The great news of the week is the mere rumor that the kaiser is thinking of changing the angle of his mustache. You may remember the terrible time some years ago when the kaiser grew a beard, and thousands of photograph sellers were threatened with ruin until the kaiser, appealed to, consented to abandon the beard. You could get a lot of money if you found a photograph of the kaiser in a beard. For he cut it off, and killed the fashion. But set the fashion of the [illegible] mustache, which has lived.

Senator James [illegible]

[Sunday Magazine:] Ollie James, the new Senator from Kentucky, [illegible] defended a man in his State [illegible] a court and jury that were [illegible] strong on common sense, [illegible] on higher education. James [illegible] spoke an hour and a half, [illegible] aloft in the clouds of fancy, [illegible] ing Latin, running in a Greek [illegible] now and then, and turning [illegible] loose among many involved figures of speech. The verdict was against [illegible]

In making the motion for a new trial, Ollie got this out of his [illegible] "I humbly rise to move for a new trial; not on my own account, [illegible] because of my client, the [illegible] party in this matter. In making my speech, I let the wings of my imagination fly high. I rose to the [illegible] stars in a blaze of linguistic [illegible] I saw at the time that it was [illegible] turkey tracks to your Honor and [illegible] jury. Now I feel humble, and if [illegible] will grant me a new trial I will [illegible] myself down to the mental [illegible] the court and the jury."

Responded the judge, "The [illegible] is overruled, and a fine of [illegible] is imposed upon you for contempt of court."

"For what?" asked James.

"For insinuating that this [illegible] don't know Latin and Greek [illegible] turkey tracks."

"I shall not appeal from this decision," replied Ollie with great humility. "Your Honor has at last comprehended me."

Vincent Astor, eldest son of [illegible] John Jacob Astor, who recently [illegible] into possession of a fortune of [illegible] 000,000 or so, announces that he [illegible] devote himself to the improvement [illegible] agriculture and the promotion of agricultural knowledge and [illegible] and will use the Astor farm at [illegible] cliff as a scientific experiment station to that end. Gov. —In case your purchases are made on a transfer you will be presented with one penny for each transaction. These you secure at the Transfer desk; the other pennies are given you by the sales person at the counter where the transaction is made.

BY A PRINCESS OF THE REALM.

LIFE IN THE SENSUOUS "LAND OF THE AFTERNOON."

Nothing is official yet, but there are fascinating rumors anent a drama ball to take place immediately after Easter. A prominent hostess had a little tea party of intimates a few days ago at which tentative plans were discussed and if the idea matures, the event promises to be as dazzling as the bachelors' little effort of recent memory. Indeed, many of the same dresses would appear, so beautiful were they that an opportunity to wear them again is eagerly awaited.

From whispered hints that filter through, I take it that the drama ball would necessitate that everyone represent a character in a well-known drama. This would allow splendid scope, for Shakespeare alone would give us every kind of oriental and classic costume. One can foresee a preponderance of Cleopatras and Jessicas if some of those gorgeous oriental robes are to be utilized.

The Bunty dress would be quite comme il faut and Miss Sally McFarland will doubtless revel in appearing in so charming a gown again. Miss Georgie Off's Quaker costume would need little enough alteration for Marguerite and those dame poudre costumes can be fitted into such plays as "La Marriage de Convenances."

The garden party, too, is to have greater attention this year and Southern California hostesses intend exploiting the charms of the out-of-doors to a greater extent than ever before. This is good news indeed, for nothing seems quite so utterly inappropriate as an indoor entertainment while our radiant skies and our abundant flowers offer such peerless opportunities. The great English hostesses regard the garden party as positively the most successful and enjoyable form of entertaining—in their climate, too—and the annual garden party given by the King and Queen is an event that few would miss.

Of course, our own hostesses have not been unmindful of the charm of the garden party and several delightful events stand out in our memory but, considering the absolutely ideal conditions that we enjoy, such functions are really comparatively rare.

The exclusively feminine party is peculiar to America and invariably strikes our foreign visitors as odd. These functions are, of course, chiefly due to the fact that we have few men of leisure in the United States, so that women were forced to entertain for each other, or die of ennui. French and English women always seem so amazed that our "hen parties," as they are irreverently called, should be so successful. To them a social affair of any magnitude without the male element is an incredible thing. For which reason probably the women's club idea has made very little headway in Europe. There are women's clubs, of course, but they are invariably connected with some sport, such as the Ladies' Rifle Club of Piccadilly, or else are run on the same lines as the men's clubs for social purposes.

These latter afford a place to stay in town when one is up from the county residence to see the modistes, for instance, and where one can meet their men frinds and relatives, sans peur and sans reproche! They generally boast dining and smoking-rooms, reading-rooms and boudoirs, but there is not the slightest hint of a lecture platform. Intellectual improvement is kept carefully out of sight, if it exists in these comfortable retreats.

But for my part I think our women's clubs and "hen parties" are all to the good and are further proof of our eligibility for the vote. We are splendidly independent of our men folk and have learned the secret of loyalty to our sex.

The suffrage movement in England is bringing this about, too, and although one must regret the terrible excesses to which the militant section has gone, we women know that any such concerted movement where women must work together and depend upon each other, is all to the good in the long run.

Golf plays a large part in social affairs just now and each of the country clubs are in the throes of preparation for special invitation tournaments which become large social rendezvous. Today interest centers in Riverside, where the Victoria Golf Club is the host and members from the Los Angeles, San Gabriel, Annandale, Altadena and Redlands Country Clubs the guests.

But the great week will be that commencing March 12 at the Los Angeles Country Club, when golfers from all parts of the State will assemble for the championship tournament. That fine clubhouse will be tested to the utmost limit, and those luxurious bedrooms will be filled with distinguished out-of-town visitors.

And golf would appear to be the means by which the United States is to acquire a masculine leisured class. Every year the game becomes more fashionable and every year rich men are retiring from their professional labors much earlier than would have otherwise been the case because of the lure of golf.

It is no unusual thing for the various local links to be crowded in the middle of the week and many a well-known banker, railroad magnate, lawyer or doctor can be recognized among the players. Which will do no harm at all. American men work too hard and too long and grow old much too soon. Golf will help to keep them young, better than anything—and rich men's businesses should enjoy a little wholesome neglect.

One cannot help smiling at the painful publicity that showers upon John S. Cravens, just because he is amiably endeavoring to spend instead of hoard those multi-millions. Both he and Mrs. Cravens are charming, well-bred, cultivated people and deliriously rich as well; so they should not really object if we insist upon finding them interesting.

Symptons Are Warnings To Wise Men

The publication of the prescription of a famed physician would prove fruitless to hundreds of men if unable to recognize the necessity for its use. It is not the intention or desire of the writer to mislead or frighten by painting the horrors suffered by the prematurely aged, but rather is it the desire to state plain facts. The peculiar affliction which destroys ambition, organic strength, energy and hope is accompanied by some of the following symptoms, if not by all: Dull, sunken eyes; thinness (or abnormal fatness), cold extremities, backache, weakness in the spine, twitching, spots before the eyes, pains in back of head, headache, trembling, fatigue, shrinking of the skin, flabby flesh, impaired memory, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, constipation, kidney derangements and a general unpreparedness for emergencies of all sorts.

The right kind of medical treatment will effectually overcome such warning symptoms and restore normal conditions if persistently used for a few short weeks.

Any one can buy the ingredients and mix the medicines of this prescription at home as it contains no poisonous opiates whatever.

The instructions for mixing at home secretly so that no embarrassment may be felt, are as follows: First get three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla compound and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom), and mix all together. The directions are to take one teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring, until bounding health and full strength are restored. Even a few weeks will witness most wonderful results.

For the Public

New Formula Cures Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and Hoarseness in Five Hours.

Much is being done in these days to stop the ravages of consumption, but probably nothing has been so effective as teaching the public how to break up a cold and cure coughs, bronchitis, tonsilitis, etc., with simple home-mixed medicine. A laxative cough syrup, free from whisky is the prime need. A cough indicates inflammation and congestion, and these in turn are due to an excess of waste and poison in the system. A tonic laxative cough syrup rids the system of congestion, while relieving the painful coughing. Get the following and mix at home: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times daily. Give children less, according to age. Cut this out and save it for some friend.—[Advertisement.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his health, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, upbuilding remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 3750 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk-Crust, Weeping Skin, Etc.

ECZEMA CAN BE CURED TO STAY, and when I say cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for awhile, to return worse than before. Remember I make this broad statement after putting twelve years of my time on this one disease and handling in the meantime nearly half a million cases of this dreadful disease. Now, I do not care what all you have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured—all I ask is just a chance to show you that I know what I am talking about. If you will write me TODAY, I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will convince you more in a day than I or anyone else could in a month's time. If you are disgusted and discouraged, just give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you had ever thought this world holds for you. Just try it and you will see I am telling you the truth.

Duarte.

ONE of the jolliest parties given for the younger set was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bayliss W. Gerhart, complimentary to the young ladies and gentlemen of the senior class of the High School, of which their daughter, Miss Margaret Gerhart, is a popular member. The country home of the Gerharts has been the scene of many large gatherings and the one on Friday evening combined entertainment and jollity in pleasant style so that every guest was happy. A unique quest for happiness was provided; strings 100 feet long were [illegible] interwoven, which by unwinding led to the desired secrets. Music and games were followed by supper. There were about sixty guests, including several members of the faculty.

Among the Duarte ladies who attended the St. Valentine [illegible] given at the Presbyterian Church Monday afternoon were Mmes. C. [illegible] Sarwine, William Beardslee, [illegible] Shaw, Bruce Radabaugh, [illegible] Meredith and B. W. Gerhart.

SAVES THOUSANDS OF BIRDS.

A System of Perching Rods on a Lighthouse Gives the Weary Birds a Chance to Rest in Their Flight.

[London Standard:] Count Clary, one of the champion shots of France, has offered a well-earned prize to Prof. Thysse under the following circumstances. It has often been reported in scientific works, though less generally in the popular press, that thousands of birds perish nightly around the great lighthouses while migrating on their way north or south.

One of the most fatal beacons was the Terschelling Light, which yearly accounted for more victims than any ten guns in the world. It is not that the birds dash themselves against the glass, but, bewildered by the glare and already tired by their oversea flight, they fly round and round it till they fall exhausted, either a prey to wandering cats or to die through sheer weakness.

Prof. Thysse arranged a system of perching rods over the Terschelling Light like the rungs of a ladder or a huge spider's web, and this enables an approximate count to be made of the weary travelers who avail themselves of this new roosting place. On one night it was calculated that 2000 chaffinches and larks slept there, and thus refreshed, winged on their merry way next morning.

On another night 3000 fieldfares were seen, while hardly a dead bird was found, whereas the same night other lighthouses without such perching rods were surrounded by heaps of thousands of dead birds. The contrivance is so simple and so trifling in cost that a movement will soon be started to furnish all the French lighthouses with these roosts, and this example should be promptly followed by other countries.

Took the Stranger In.

[Ina Observer:] A darky from Alabama boarded a train at West Frankfort, Ill., last Thursday and set out through the train to find the special coach for colored people. He was told that there was no such provision for his race and went out on the back platform. When the brakeman went out to bring him in out of the cold the darky thought they were coming to get him because he was riding on a coach with white people in it and jumped off.

This was just south of Whittington. On Saturday he approached Ina barefooted and mud-spattered. As it happened a crowd was just coming from the Fowler sale. The darky thought they were after him again and tried to circle the town. His abject condition excited sympathy and he was run down and brought into town. He was badly frightened and had suffered extremely with cold. People in Ina gave him a warm supper and clothing and sent him to the county physician at Mt. Vernon.

Every Home Needs This Fine Remedy

A Mild, Reliable Laxative-tonic is Something No Family Should be Without.

MRS. J. W. ANDERSON.

No well-regulated home should be without a laxative for there is scarcely a day in a family of several persons that someone doesn't complain of a headache, of sleeplessness, or show the first signs of a cold.

A laxative then becomes a necessity or what was a trifling congestion at the beginning may run into a serious cold or fever. No harsh remedy is needed, but simply a mild laxative-tonic that will make the liver active and stir up the bowels. People who have tried a great many things, and are themselves heads of families who have seen the little ills run to big ones, will tell you that there is nothing better than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can obtain at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, the latter being the family size.

Among the great believers in Syrup Pepsin for constipation in old or young and as a general household emergency remedy, is Mrs. J. W. Anderson, Osawatomie, Kans., who writes after using one sample bottle and two dollar bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin: "On the plea of the duty that every one owes to fellow sufferers, I appeal to all such who are bowed in spirit, broken in health and discouraged with life, not to give up until they have given Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin a fair trial." Syrup Pepsin is scientifically compounded and its purity is vouched for. Mothers give it to tiny babies, and grown people, taking a little larger amount, find it equally effective. It is mild and gentle, pleasant-tasting and free from griping.

It does not hide behind a high-sounding name and is absolutely free from any prohibited ingredient. Families who once use Syrup Pepsin forever after avoid cathartics, salts, pills and other harsh medicines, for these only do temporary good, are nauseous and a shock to any delicate system. Such things should never be given to children.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

KILLS THE DANDRUFF GERM; STOPS FALLING HAIR

Others Imitate and Make Similar Claims But THE GENUINE and ORIGINAL Dandruff Germ Destroyer is Newbro's Herpicide.

The discovery of the dandruff germ as the cause of all hair trouble is not a recent event. Prof. Unna gave the germ theory to the world in 1887; later Sabouraud, by his experiments with a rabbit, proved beyond a doubt the actual existence of this germ.

On the heels of the establishment of the germ theory of dandruff came the discovery of Newbro's Herpicide. This was the first and "original remedy for the destruction of the dandruff germ."

It is a significant fact that since Herpicide has achieved its wonderful popularity, others have changed front and appropriated Herpicide claims, but their preparations have remained the same. Any remedy claiming to kill the dandruff germ is trying to trade upon the reputation of Newbro's Herpicide.

GOING!
GOING!!
GONE!!!

Don't allow yourself to be deceived. You are not taking chances when you purchase Newbro's Herpicide. You are buying a remedy backed up by the praises of your friends and the confidence of your dealer who will absolutely guarantee it to do as promised or refund your money.

You will find Herpicide at all toilet goods counters in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes. Applications may be obtained at the better class of barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

The Herpicide Co., Dept. S, Detroit, Mich., upon receipt of 10 cents in postage or silver to cover cost of packing and mailing, will send to any address a sample bottle of Newbro's Herpicide and an interesting booklet on the care of the hair. MAKES YOUR BACKACHE VANISH, DRIVES ALL RHEUMATIC PAINS AWAY

New Discovery Eases Stiff, Sore, Swollen Joints and Muscles Relieving Backache and Bladder Disorders After Few Doses are Taken.

No matter how badly you suffer, how chronic your case may be, or what has failed to cure you, your pains will leave, your aches vanish and the torturous, killing backache or rheumatism will bother you no more.

This is what Croxone, the new scientific discovery, does for sufferers of such troubles. It cures these diseases because it reaches the cause and removes it. It soaks right into the walls and linings of the kidneys and cleans out the stopped-up, inactive organs like water does a sponge—neutralizes, and dissolves every particle of uric acid and makes the kidneys sift from the blood all the waste matter and poisons that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism. It soothes and heals the delicate linings of the bladder and leaves the kidneys in a clean, strong, healthy condition, so they can filter the blood and keep you well.

If you suffer with backache—have pains in the neck or sides—nervous or dizzy spells—a few doses of Croxone will relieve the congestion and you will be surprised how quickly all kidney, bladder and rheumatic troubles will disappear.

Croxone is different from all other remedies. It is not like anything else on earth ever used for the purpose. It starts to work the minute you take it and relieves your suffering the very first time you use it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You can secure an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.—[Advertisement.

SMILE (pleasantly) at the dealer who tells you that any other elastic is "as good as" Lastikops Webbing and Lastikops Cloth.

You know better; but it's possible he doesn't.

Lots of women will like these even better than the new Lasticurve-Back models—the skirt isn't quite as long:

No. 319—low bust
No. 321—medium } $3.50

Bands of Lastikops Webbing across lower hips give excellent figure-reduction all around.

A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S ORIENTAL CREAM OR MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER

It has stood the test of [illegible] years, and is so harmless we taste it to be sure it is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. Dr. L. A. Sayre said to a lady of the haut-ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the skin preparations." We Trust the People

That slogan, used for years by BRENT'S, is by no means meaningless. BRENT'S do trust the people; scores of homes in and around Los Angeles have been made comfortable and even luxurious through the generous credit terms extended by this immense Credit House. YOU can benefit, too; we want YOUR account, and will use every effort to deserve it, by largest stocks, fairest prices and most generous credit terms.

BRENT'S

Store Open Saturday Nights

During the past three years we have studiously refrained from keeping our store open on Saturday evenings, in compliance with a verbal agreement made among business houses at that time. Now, however, we find a large number of our competitors back in the old rut; we have therefore decided to keep our store open every Saturday evening until 9 o'clock. One-half our force of clerks will be on duty; these clerks will be given one-half day's freedom during the week following their night duty, to avoid hardship on their part. I trust the public will appreciate our position.

Respectfully,

E. J. BRENT, Proprietor BRENT'S Great Credit House.

STUDIO PARLORS, 529½ S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 20 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in all affairs of life. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc.; also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schuman-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Sembrich, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Capt. Hobson, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, De Wolf Hopper, Maxine Elliott, Ethel Barrymore, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S SKILLED work must not be classed with other readers. Therefore do not waste your money on the idiotic advice and warning of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics—those doing dishonest work.

PROF. ALTHOUSE gives expert PALM readings with each astrological reading.

DR. J. A. LARSEN writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most THOROUGH and reliable of any reader in the United States."

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and in HAND reading has brought him a LARGE AND SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention given. STRICT PRIVACY. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years of experience can produce. HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE solicited.

PERSONAL — IN THE SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA IN DIVORCE AND MATRIMONIAL CAUSES.

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigation along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

FIRST-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

HENLEY.

LOS ANGELES, NOTED SUCCESSFUL SEER.
HIS ADVICE HELPED TO MAKE LOS ANGELES WHAT IT IS TODAY.
THE OLDEST PSYCHIC IN THE CITY.
TWENTY-FOUR YEARS.
317 W. THIRD, NEAR HILL.

Without asking you a question he gives dates, facts, figures, location. Spiritualists, scientists, bankers, merchants and people of the highest class of society have had readings with him and pronounced him unequaled in his profession. Spiritual and business readings daily. Hours 10-8; Sunday, 10-12.

HENLEY.

Before you go into anything of importance or undertake anything serious—in business or love, or marriage, or before you make any change—you should consult the master mind of psychic.

ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. IT IS THE CHEAPEST IN THE END. IT IS BETTER TO CONSULT NO PSYCHIC THAN ONE WHO IS NOT ABLE TO HELP YOU.
DON'T FORGET.

If you contemplate consulting a psychic, several things should be taken into consideration—ABILITY, the HONESTY of methods, the FAIRNESS of dealings, the HIGHER degree of work, the ACCURACY of each prediction, the COMMON SENSE used with it, the INTEREST taken in each case, the RESPECT shown to each caller, the fact of SECRECY in consultation, the FEE charged for services.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO BUY A SECOND-hand car? Going to rush right out and match your knowledge of automobile values with some poor boob of a second-hand broker? Take your own line of business, for example—What happens to the wise guy that tries to beat you at your own game? If he gets the best of the deal, it's a good bet that somebody's foot slipped, isn't it? If you'll find a man who ever got a real bargain in a second-hand car, it will only be after you have found several who have been stung and stung properly. Would you get much satisfaction in wearing a diamond you bought "cheap" from some philanthropic guy who was "suddenly called East?" Hardly! What protection have you when you buy a car that is "guaranteed to be in perfect condition." They all "guarantee" them but are you wise enough to know whether their guarantee is based upon a $100 rebuilding job or a hasty tinkering up, covered by a cheap coat of paint. A guarantee is only as good as the Firm behind it. Remember that, and you will have absorbed your first and most important piece of information in selecting a used car. One of our rebuilt and repainted APPERSON JACKRABBIT Cars with the regular SHETTLER guarantee as to their mechanical condition, is surely worth more to you and should give you better service than any new low grade car at an equal price. APPERSON cars are high grade and free from petty troubles; no matter how old they are. A rebuilt 1910 or 1911 car is as good a car for any kind of use as a 1912 or 1913 model, providing they are all in equally as good mechanical condition—and that is where the SHETTLER guarantee comes in. Some of our very best and most valued customers are the purchasers of our rebuilt cars. They were told the exact truth when they bought their cars, and are satisfied with their purchase. If you would only stop and consider the matter calmly, you could readily see that we could not afford to misrepresent the facts in regard to a rebuilt car any more than we would dare to take advantage of the buyer of a new APPERSON. Let's get acquainted.

We also have a Mercer and [illegible] for sale cheap.

ASK ANY ONE WHO HAS HAD AN EXPERIENCE WITH OUR REBUILT CADILLAC CARS. ANYONE WHO IS FAMILIAR WITH OUR GUARANTEE AND OUR SERVICE, AND IF YOU INTEND PURCHASING A MEDIUM-PRICED CAR, YOU WILL DECIDE IT IS MORE ECONOMICAL AND MORE SAFE TO INVEST IN ONE OF OUR REBUILT CADILLAC CARS IN PREFERENCE TO ANY NEW CAR WHICH IS SELLING FOR EVEN SEVERAL HUNDRED DOLLARS MORE MONEY THAN WE ASK FOR OUR REBUILT CADILLACS.

MR. BUYER.
When considering the purchase of a second hand car, don't you think it well to trade with an old well established firm? You know what this means to you. It means that their reputation is behind every car that goes out of their place. Then why not come in and let us show you some of the good buys we have in used cars? We have many of the following makes and the prices will suit you. 1913 Oakland 40, five passenger; 1912 Oakland 40, five passenger; 1912 Oakland, 4 passenger; 1912 Oakland, 2 passenger roadster; 1911 Hudson 33, 5 passenger; 1911 Maxwell, 1911 Studebaker, E.M.F., 5 passenger; 1910 Lozier, 4 passenger.—Remember, these cars have all been overhauled by us and are in first class condition. MINING—

AN OPPORTUNITY—
The owners of a gold property on which they have done about 2300 feet of development work and which will soon be ready for a mill, want to joint interests with some company which is financially able to take the property and equip it. Present owners are unable to do this and yet prefer not to sell the property. It is entirely free milling and will average $19 and the formation is ideal for a permanent mine. Valuation placed upon it $250,000. As it has not been for sale there is no report on it, but satisfactory verbal information is obtainable and a night's ride from Los Angeles reaches it. This is a meritorious proposition and the right parties can make an advantageous deal. The property is free from debt. For further information see MR. FISHER, 814 Trust and Savings Bldg.

I HAVE CONTROL OF A GREAT MINE equipped with machinery. I will mortgage the control for $5000, money to be expended on development. Will prove by bullion returns and development that this is a bonanza; have recently had it bonded for $300,000. Will pay back in one year $10,000 for money. Address B, box 591, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

OKELL CORE DRILLS DO THE WORK properly and economically, and test your ore bodies, and save you money in both time and expense. If you really want to know the truth about that property, and what it contains, get one of these machines and extract a core that is five inches in diameter, and you need not guess one minute. Write us for circulars.

I CURE PILES
FISTULA and ALL RECTAL DISEASES
WITHOUT an OPERATION
BY MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

I Guarantee to Cure Every Case I Accept for Treatment.

For twenty-five years I have been curing diseases of the rectum and lower bowel. During that time my experience as hospital and railroad surgeon, as college lecturer and professor, has enabled me to develop a method that is superior to all others. I cure without surgery and my patients are never confined in bed and never lose a moment's time from their business.

With my method I absorb pile tumors by medication, applied (or driven in,) by a mild electric current. The piles are absorbed in a few treatments, leaving the rectum in a healthy, normal condition. There is no danger, no bad after effects and no pain or soreness.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatment administered by me in my office.

If you are a sufferer from rectal trouble, I invite you to investigate my method thoroughly by talking or writing to any of my cured patients. If you will call at my office I will be pleased to give you the names and addresses of many well-known Los Angeles people I have cured, whom you may interview in regard to my treatment.

I TREAT NO DISEASES EXCEPT THOSE OF THE RECTUM AND BOWELS.

REV. EDWARD BROOKS CURED.

My Dear Dr. White: I wish to express to you again my heartfelt appreciation for what you have done for me. After suffering for years with the worst form of hemorrhoids, YOU HAVE CURED ME COMPLETELY, and during the treatment I did not turn aside from my usual work. I therefore commend you and your method to all sufferers from rectal disorders. Very gratefully yours,
REV. EDWARD H. BROOKS (Baptist Minister,) 1819 Menlo Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

REV. D. N. BURTON CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. White cured me without pain of piles, hemorrhage and ulceration of the rectum. Before going to him I was a semi-invalid, hardly able to get about. Since taking his treatment I have not missed a single Sunday from being in my pulpit. It is one year since he cured me, and I have not had the slightest return of the trouble. I recommend him to all and will gladly write to any sufferer who is in doubt and tell them what Dr. White did for me.
REV. D. N. BURTON, Pastor First Christian Church, Collinsville, Oklahoma, Formerly of Ocean Park.

MR. D. R. THAYER CURED.

After suffering twenty years, Dr. C. H. White cured me of prolapsus and ulceration of the rectum. I know of many Los Angeles people he has cured and I will be glad to talk or correspond with any one needing treatment.

Local Stock Market Activities

BY JNO. KNIGHT.

Continued advance during the last week in the price of First National Bank stock to sales at a new high record of $730, consequent upon increased earnings and prospects of a higher dividend rate, has been accompanied by a stronger demand for all local bank shares. Taken as a whole, Los Angeles bank stocks have proven highly profitable investments for many years. And in spite of the great advances made, local stocks are still selling, on their earnings, at very low prices in comparison with similar stocks of other cities. A recent compilation embracing ten of the local banks, shows a gain in the market value of these institutions of over $10,000,000 covering a period of three years, exclusive of dividends. This schedule shows an advance during the three years mentioned of nearly $300 a share for First National, $140 for Security Savings, $100 for German-American and nearly $300 per share for Merchants' National. One of the most recent increases in dividend rate is that reported by the Commercial National, which is now paying 8 per cent. instead of 7.

Both General Petroleum and Union Oil issues showed an easier tone during the week, and there was little news of importance affecting either issue. It is known that considerable stock of both these companies is being steadily absorbed through eastern buying.

A weaker tone prevailed for home building stocks, and shares of some of the widely advertised and so-called industrial stocks that have flooded the market for several months were offered at almost any price they would bring. Evidences are multiplying that the local public has assimilated about all of that class of "securities" which advance one hundred per cent. over night it cares for at present. Local and Southern California Home Telephone stocks continued in good demand.

Trading was fairly active during the week in Western Building and Investment Company at $1.08 to $1.10; Funding Company of California, around 83 cents; International Indemnity Company from $9.90 to $10.00; Pacific Home Builders around $1.40 to $1.45; Los Angeles Fire Insurance Company at $7.50 to $8.00; General Petroleum from $28.50 to $31.00; Great Republic Life Insurance Company $12.00 to $12.06.

Subject to confirmation and acceptance, we offer the following:

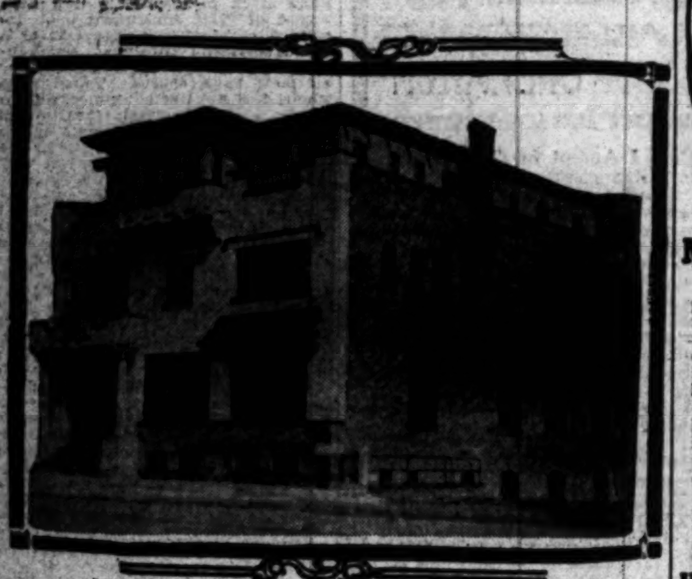
BEACH ELKS DEDICATE SPLENDID NEW LODGE.



Elks' New Home.

New building dedicated yesterday by Santa Monica lodge men is one of the finest on the Pacific Coast.

SANTA MONICA, Feb. 22.—With solemn ritual, followed by rejoicing and mutual congratulation, nearly 1000 Elks gathered in the new Elks' Temple today to dedicate the structure. Members of local No. 906, who erected the $60,000 home on Ocean avenue near Fremont avenue, were hosts of scores of lodgemen from all over the State. They proudly showed the visitors over each of the four floors of the magnificent building and then whisked them away in automobiles to Venice, to participate in the finish of the Elks' gambol, which began Thursday. About $4000 was cleared by means of the carnival, for the further furnishing of the new temple.

District Deputy Past Grand Exalted Ruler P. W. Roper conducted the dedication ceremonies, which were held in the new lodgeroom, and were according to the Elks' ritual. Exalted Ruler C. W. Holbrook held the gavel and after the impressive ceremony the local Elks and their guests repaired to the basement of the building where a repast was spread. Then an inspection of the new building was in order.

Los Angeles Lodge No. 99 presented the Santa Monica lodge with an elegant eight-day chimes clock, with a mahogany case, and an engraved bible. The clock bore the following inscription: "From your loving mother, Los Angeles Lodge No. 99." Buffalo Lodge No. 23 sent a gavel of ebony, inlaid with silver, with a proper inscription. Santa Barbara lodge presented a handsome leather easy chair. Felicitations on the opening of the lodge were received from lodges in many States.

Carl F. Schader and Berand Sues, who presented to the Elks the lot on which the building rests, were given life memberships in the lodge by Exalted Ruler Holbrook. The life certificates were placed in silver cases especially designed by the lodge.

The officers of Lodge No. 906, one of the most flourishing in the West, which is but 10 years old, but boasts 700 members, are as follows: Exalted Ruler, C. W. Holbrook, Mayor of Venice; Esteemed Leading Knight, H. W. Brown; Esteemed Loyal Knight, C. W. Sloane; Esteemed Lecturing Knight, O. E. Watson; Secretary, W. H. Atwill; Treasurer, J. C. Barthel; Tiler, W. H. Jenkins; Esquire, J. J. Davis; Chaplain, J. B. Hassett; Inner Guard, C. F. Fiege; Organist, Alfred Semnacker; Trustees, John A. Morton, Ward McFadden and R. M. Miller.

The finish of the big "gambol" tonight was spectacular. So dense were the crowds on Windward avenue, the Ocean Front near Windward and the pier that an additional squad of police had difficulty in saving children from getting hurt in the crush. In the dance pavilion, which was turned into a house of revelry and booths for the Elks, standing space was at a premium. All the booths were popular, and the "Monte Carlo" district was especially so. Many an old-timer gathered around the festive board.

The receipts from the games are to be credited to the Elks' building fund, and it is understood the District Attorney gave his consent.

COUNTER REBELLION IS GAINING RECRUITS.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] Despite the frantic haste with which Huerta and his advisers are rushing picked troops into the provinces now in open rebellion and threats of summary punishment to be meted out to those who "risk the loss of the Mexican nation through American intervention," there is manifest evidence that the counter revolution is spreading with rapidity. It is feared that the activity of members of Madero's family in opposition to the new government will be used as a pretext to do away with him in spite of assurances his life is to be spared.

Tonight a report reached the capital that the rebels had taken San Luis Potosi after only a nominal resistance. Huerta admits that the situation is perplexing and declares he is able to cope with his opponents now that they have disclosed themselves.

Gen. Figueroa is classed as an able soldier and a statesman. He is popular with the army as commander of the rurales, which was Madero's most efficient fighting force and is likely to take with Figueroa a good proportion of the fighters. No man in Mexico is likely to crystallize the feeling of revolt as he is, and Huerta will bend every energy to stop him.

It is estimated at least a third of the country now refuses to recognize Huerta.

State capital. It was made known today that a split has occurred in the rebel ranks, some leaders favoring immediate continuation of hostilities by combination with the volunteer Federal troops, while others advise waiting until it is known what will be offered by Huerta and his followers at Mexico City. The outbreak is expected to occur first in Sonora.

GEN. CALLES FLEES TO ESCAPE GALLOWS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) Feb. 22.—Refusal of the Sonora State Government to recognize Gen. Huerta as President of Mexico resulted today in a clash between Elias Calles, commanding the State troops and Gen. Ojeda, the rebel commander at Agua Prieta.

Calles fled to this side to escape, he said, being hanged for refusing to recognize Huerta. The State troops in the border town are Yaqui Indians. Gov. Mayorena had ordered State troops not to recognize the provisional government.

GONZALES A PRISONER.

Governor Is Prevented From Leaving Chihuahua and Making Cause With Madero Men.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Feb. 22.—Gov. Abraham Gonzales virtually is held a prisoner in Chihuahua City. It is reported today that Gonzales was prevented by regular troops from leaving the State capitol and combining the Madero factions of Chihuahua.

Gonzales was a strong supporter of Madero's revolution, and always remained a loyal Maderista. In his capital, however, are stationed some 2000 Federal troops, the majority of whom are regulars. Gonzales so far has not dared to resign nor has he accepted the provisional Presidency.

The volunteer troops are more numerous in Chihuahua than in any other State, and all are believed to be eager to join a counter revolution. A combination of the rebels and volunteers is most feared by the Federal commanders in the north. The rebel general, Marcello Carraveo, with 800 men, remains near Chihuahua City, and Gen. Rabago is said to be taking precautions to prevent his juncture with the volunteers at the State capital. The volunteers at Juarez await developments at the

TROOP TRAIN DEPARTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LEAVENWORTH (Kan.) Feb. 22.—A troop train bearing the Second and Third battalions of the Seventh Infantry, numbering about 600, left Ft. Leavenworth for Galveston at 9:45 tonight in obedience to orders received from Washington. These were the first troops ordered away of those recently instructed to be ready for active service. They were in command of Maj. M. J. Lenisan.

Sacramento Chamber of Commerce to Act on Resolutions Against Espee on Behest of Western Pacific.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 22.—A special meeting of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce has been called for Monday to consider the problems involved in the application of the Central and Southern Pacific railroads for the approval of certain leases on the line extending from Sacramento to Oakland, via Suisun and Benicia.

The Western Pacific will ask the chamber to adopt resolutions against the Southern Pacific entering into a 999-year lease on trackage between Sacramento and Benicia, with the Union and Central Pacific railroads.

FEELING RUNS HIGH IN CHIHUAHUA CITY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Feb. 22.—By a ruse, 350 Federal volunteer troops were disarmed at Chihuahua city, report passengers arriving here today. Feeling runs high over the incident. Some 800 volunteers, retaining their arms, threaten to leave the State capital, where nearly 2000 Federal regulars also are stationed. On Thursday, the passengers relate, a review of troops was held in the public plaza. The volunteers were decoyed into stacking their rifles. Suddenly regular soldiers rushed in and confiscated the arms. Ill feeling between the volunteers and regulars over the result of the Mexico City revolt exists in other parts of the State.

As at Juarez, however, the regulars are in the majority and hold the artillery.

At the train departure it was reported that Gov. Abraham Gonzalez and Alberto Madero were arrested while trying to escape from the city with a small group of armed men. Madero is an uncle of the deposed President and a wealthy ranch owner. It was said they are held in the State Penitentiary by an order of Gen. Rabago, the division commander.

The

Mortgage Guarantee Co.

Offers to The Public

—promissory notes secured by mortgages, the principal and interest of which are guaranteed to net 6% interest.

Our plan of loaning money and selling the mortgages is as follows:

The application for the loan is made in writing. This is referred to an expert appraiser, and upon his making a favorable report as to the value of the property and our being convinced that the applicant bears a good reputation, the loan is made. Loans are not made for more than 60 per cent. of the value of the property as appraised by our appraiser, and in most cases for not over 50 per cent.

These mortgages are then offered for sale, one per cent. being charged by our Company for guaranteeing them. We now have desirable loans which we have made at 7 per cent., and for that reason we are offering certain notes and mortgages for sale, guaranteed at 6 per cent.

A person buying one of our guaranteed mortgages has the assurance—

First—that the person borrowing has a good reputation.

Second—that his investment is secured by a first mortgage on property, at not more than 60% of its valuation.

Third—that in the event the maker of the note does not pay, and the property should not be sufficient, this Company guarantees to pay the purchaser the principal and interest of the mortgage.

WITH ships from all over the world coming to our port via Panama Canal—with a tremendous influx of immigration—with the population of Los Angeles at least 750,000—with the swift, certain, never-ceasing residential growth toward Venice—what do YOU think lots in West Adams Park will be worth in 1915?

That a lot in West Adams Park is the big present-day opportunity is evidenced by sales of nearly $40,000.00 worth of lots. Every lot within a few blocks of $40,000.00 and $50,000.00 homes.

If you want to double and treble your money—get in touch with West Adams Park at once.

FACT AND COMMENT.

A realty transaction of more than ordinary interest and significance was reported exclusively in The Times of last Wednesday. This was the taking over by a prominent Los Angeles real estate concern of the enormous undeveloped holdings of the Beveridge interests in the heart of residential Hollywood and the announcement by the company in question that it would at once begin an extensive and far-reaching campaign for the awakening and improvement of a vast and sightly extent of land which has to the present day been held intact from subdivision.

The same company had previously secured control of other large tracts in the foothill district, notably a parcel of land belonging to Arthur Letts and adjacent to the palatial home of the Broadway merchant to the north of Hollywood boulevard, and properties owned by the Ferry and Dunning families. At Hollywood boulevard and Cahuenga street the Los Angeles firm is to erect a three-story building, the entire first story of which is to be given over to the offices and various departments to be concerned in its Hollywood development operations.

The immediate improvement work on the various tracts to be marketed will include the laying out of many miles of streets, curbs and sidewalks and the extensive planting of trees. The development plans call also for the early erection of a large number of houses in keeping with the high-class improvements for which Hollywood is renowned among the suburban centers surrounding Los Angeles.

A GREATER OCEAN PARK RISING OUT OF ASHES.

City of Steel, Brick and Concrete Replacing Frame and Stucco Resort Center Devastated by Flames Last Fall—Buildings to Cost Over Half-million Dollars Now Under Construction.

OCEAN PARK, Feb. 22.—Over half a million dollars are being expended in the erection of buildings in the burned section of this city, exclusive of the huge amount represented in the rebuilding of the Fraser pier and the construction of the Great Western Amusement Company's pier just south of the Fraser structure. A city of steel, brick and concrete is going up in place of the nondescript and inflammable buildings which were swept away by the fire of last fall. Buildings to the value of over $500,000 more are planned to go up before the summer season is in full swing.

Everywhere, mechanics are working and teams hauling material, while the creaking of cranes and the exhaust of pile drivers makes merry music for those who predicted that the slogan "Ocean Park, Bigger and Better Than Ever" would prove true.

Long before the announcement of the lease of the Fraser frontage to Pickerings, Jennings & Corbaley, and of their plan to immediately construct a pier costing over half a million, the owners of lots in the burned district were going ahead with their building plans. The Allen Hotel of six stories, now almost completed, at a cost of $75,000, was among the first to go up. This structure contains 110 rooms, and is entirely modern.

Work is well under way on the Marine Apartments, being built on Marine street, near Speedway, by George M. Jones, at a cost of $110,000. This structure will cover a space of 180 feet on Marine street by eighty feet on Speedway, will be three stories high and will contain 100 rooms, with thirty-two bathrooms on the second and third stories. The first floor will be divided into six storerooms. This building will eventually be carried to a height of seven stories.

Although the foundations of the King George Hotel, which has just been completed, were finished when the fire swept Ocean Park, the magnificent hostelry on Rose avenue and Ocean Front is considered part of the new Ocean Park. The investment here was $105,000. The structure was built by George Fox and Mrs. H. E. Green. The hotel is fireproof, and has a white glazed brick exterior. It contains 100 rooms, with private baths and a fine cafe on the seventh, overlooking the whole bay section.

An annex of 125 rooms will be completed within the present year, the wreckers now being engaged in moving two structures away from property owned by the company on the

OUR idea of a home is one both PRACTICAL and ARTISTIC. By careful thought we manage to instill certain INDIVIDUALITY into each home.

It quite frequently happens that the PROSPECTIVE BUILDER'S IDEAS and PURSE do not correspond. In such cases our PRACTICAL knowledge comes to the rescue, and often where others have hopelessly FAILED, WE SUCCEED.

We build homes from the modern five-room cottage, at $900, to the most elaborate dwelling. It rests with the INDIVIDUAL entirely what his home will cost. By concentrating our PURCHASING POWER, combined with our PRACTICAL knowledge, and being in a position to DISCOUNT our BILLS, we can, for a given quantity of work, discount our competitors' prices.

We build either by contracts on a fixed fee of 10 per cent. of estimated cost of work, or on our own lots in Los Angeles, Redondo and San Pedro, on easy terms.

We make no additional charge for our Architectural services, if we build, or if we fail to satisfy you both as to price and design.

I have there six-room houses which can be purchased for

$3250.00

Terms, $200 cash; and about $28.50 per month. I have there five-room houses for $2950, some at $2850. These houses are not listed property, they belong to me and my company, you buy them direct and then you know what you are getting. I am interested in these houses and selected the wall paper, helped make the designs, planned the houses, purchased the electric light fixtures and know exactly what has gone in them. They are all good homes and in a section which is increasing in value.

It is on 54th street. It is one of these dainty six-room bungalows that is complete in every respect. I have installed in this house complete furniture, including dishes, curtains, rugs, etc. This furniture was purchased from the Lyon, McKinney Smith Co. and the Parmelee-Dohrmann Co. It shows you what these firms can do for $350. We are not advertising their business, but our bungalows shows off their goods and their goods show off our bungalows. You can buy this house furnished or unfurnished as you desire. If you want to talk business come out and see me. If you would prefer to go through these houses by yourself, come to my office and I will turn the keys over to you.

If you want a home on easy terms, then see me. I claim to have the best list of houses in the southwest. I leave it to your judgment. Compare my houses with any others that you may see; compare the price; compare the workmanship and then have someone who is a judge of houses, or building contractor to look it over.

EARLY ORANGE LAND
THE TIME TO BUY ORANGE LAND
IS NOW.
The place is Orange Cove, in the Orosi district in Tulare county.
A Plain Proposition in a Nut Shell.

There is no question as to the profit in orange growing.
NOW NOTE
Orange Cove, 4 miles north of Orosi, is a proven orange district. The profits in the Orosi district are larger than elsewhere on account of the fruit reaching the eastern markets in time for the Thanksgiving and holiday trade.
The recent freeze did our grove, put out last June and without any protection, little or no damage, proving beyond question that is the safest place to buy orange land.
As a matter of plain common sense can you AFFORD to purchase orange land ANYWHERE without investigating Orange Cove? Prices now $150, $175 and $200 per acre, on easy terms.
Send for literature or write for appointment to inspect this land. Address either

WE OFFER
THE BARGAIN
OF THE SEASON.

TULARE COUNTY.
180 ACRES ....$75 PER ACRE.

It is not often that a BARGAIN of this kind finds its way into a newspaper. This 180 acres is of a deep sediment loam, river bottom land, with 20 or 30 beautiful oak trees scattered over it, with OCEANS of water near the surface, that can be EASILY AND CHEAPLY developed. For an ALFALFA, DAIRY and STOCK RANCH, it is surely a splendid proposition. The Hannah Tract, comprising 2000 acres and recently sold to Los Angeles capitalists at more than $100 per acre, joins this property on the north and east. The purchasers of the Hannah Ranch will place their holdings on the market in small tracts and will offer it to the public, as we understand, at prices ranging from $150 to $250 per acre. The 180 we are offering is improved with a small house and barn, small pumping plant, and is fenced and cross-fenced. GOVERNMENT LAND—

STATE LAND—

WHY THERE NOW IS valuable State Land being bought every month for tenth to one hundredth actual value, is what you want to know.

Some write me, "I have read your expensive advertising for years and can't understand why there can be any land worth now."

Pardon some illustrations. This land is not all mountain tops that never was taken (which might be compared to an old maid never married.) This land was taken years ago and has gone to State according to law from former owners. (As illustrated by widows, by divorce, or death of former husband.)

The heathen of India thinks it is a reflection on the widowed wife for the husband to die. Most of us think it is reflection on the land for owner to quit paying and let land go to the State. The facts are that some of the best women in the land have become widows. (Washington thought so, he married a widow and got a bargain, too.) Land worth now $3000 an acre went to State twenty years ago. I can give you positive proof even the best part of a section went to the State and poorest land was kept. This did not reflect on the land, but on the buyer, one was a stayer, one was a natural born "Quitter," who would quit friends, home, land and anything but drink, that would soon cause his death. I know that this has caused the death of some owners of valuable State land. (After a time a widow may marry again.) After a time State land may be bought again. After a certain time, all rights of former owners expire by law. Officials seldom make mistakes in records of death, divorce, either of person or land. Besides what you pay me all the balance is paid to officials. We have good officials acting under honor, oath and bonds. I was an official. I quit working for the government because the work kept me away from my home and invalid wife, so all is reasonably safe.

My offer, you send $5 (check or any way,) and promise to pay me $10 more after you buy each piece and find all satisfactory and I will register you in about one week lists of one hundred pieces of State land that I find nearest the town you mentioned or land in three counties. I will send a second or third list free on request, even without further request a list of 25 pieces of school land before one million acres comes on the market at only $1.50 an acre on long time. You need my list to see, select and buy. There are plenty pieces convenient to schools and towns. I believe in California for the White Races. I refuse to work for Japs. Some of our children may have reason to find fault with us for not getting them land now. A few years will make great changes in California. Some bargains in Homesteads, some timber lands, also isolated tracts you can buy without residence, but not so well located as State land that was once taken and now gone to State. The $5 advance payment is used to help pay advertising to tell you about your land for you. Papers sometimes charge me twice for the same ad., but never refund so I cannot. The law is very plain. Certain payments were not made years ago is the reason this land went to State. Those using the land have said: "I was using until owner showed up. Bargains now." Most persons do not believe this is one reason why there are bargains for you now. Year after year I get bargains for some worth many thousand dollars. Shall I work for you? It is to my interest to suit you so well that you will bring me more customers as others have done. It is to your interest to order at once. Special bargains, all counties except San Francisco. This offer is limited. I may stop advertising as my satisfied customers nearly keep me busy getting land for their friends.

Write me fully with your order. JOSEPH CLARK, Experience Searcher, State Records, Office and Residence, 1311 K st., Sacramento.

FOR EXCHANGE—

A 15,000-acre tract of rich river silt, occupying portion of picturesque valley on Arizona bank of Colorado River. Water for irrigation is drawn from the Colorado River and distributed over the property through a system of canals and ditches ample to meet all demands, unlimited in quantity, and so impregnated with fertilizing materials as to render the land practically inexhaustible. The range of production includes everything native to semi-tropical regions. Wheat, barley, Indian corn, sorghum, Kaffir corn, Milo maize and alfalfa are among the crops which reach exceptional yields, alfalfa being cut from seven to eight times per annum, with an average of nearly two tons per acre per cutting. All kinds of vegetables, melons, fruits, grapes, figs, dates, apricots find here their greatest development; also ramie fiber, used in manufacture of linen. Wheat and barley yield 30 to 40 bushels per acre; Milo maize 4 tons per acre; apricots are placed 3 weeks before California product; small orchard Bartlett pears returned $400 per acre; all varieties of beans are satisfactory crops. We make a specialty of loans where the borrower is not drawing a salary, by taking chattel security, and in no case are any papers recorded or any publicity.

We also make loans to people drawing a salary. Why? Because a person drawing a salary has a steady income and is easily able to meet our payments, and not because that is our security.

The salary is not bought, neither does the EMPLOYER or any one else know of the loan.

DYNAMITE PLOT BY DYNAMITER.

ORTIE M'MANIGAL IS WRITING STORY OF DESTRUCTION.

Says Purpose Is to Give to World, Especially Laboring Classes, Views of Man Experienced in Labor Union Violence—Word of Warning—His Ideas.

At a small table in his cell at the County Jail, a table on which for months he has fashioned small picture frames that have found a ready sale, Ortie McManigal, confessed dynamiter and the keystone on which has been built the work of exposing the national dynamite plot, is writing his story of the destruction which he wrought. Interspersed in the story are his reflections and conclusions after nearly two years of confinement and three years of active dynamiting.

"I have a double purpose in writing the book," said McManigal. "One is to provide in a measure for my children. The other is to give to the world, and especially to the laboring classes, the views of a man experienced in union labor and violence within the ranks thereof.

"I have seen the so-called war fought to its logical end, the penitentiary for the leaders of labor, misguided men who led their hosts astray and at the end heaped on labor the opprobrium from which labor, as an organization, will not recover for many years. In seeing this I have also seen the very existence of the nation threatened; for I firmly believe that had that plot been allowed to run its course the men at the head of it would not have stopped until they had overturned existing institutions and even then, determined on destruction as they were, they could only have been checked by lack of power to destroy or lack of buildings and material to wreck.

"Nowhere in all that has been published has there appeared an account that is in all respects correct and certainly no effort has been made to print a connected story of the course of the plot from its inception to its close at Indianapolis.

"Of course, I shall not attempt to discuss the trials, confessions, etc. I have not the knowledge required for this, nor am I a lawyer, and a lawyer will be required if ever that part of the tale is told. But I shall endeavor to set before the laboring people of the world the real situation into which their labor leaders were plunging them, and into which they will yet be plunged unless violence in unionism ceases."

HUPP CHIEF IS IN INDIA.

Factory Plans to Build New Submarine Model.

Drowned in Hoogla River but Still a Good Car.

Medium-priced Machines in Favor With Potentates.

The Hupp Motor Car Company of Detroit is thinking seriously of getting out a new model to be called the "submarine." The situation is not without the basis of fact, for only a few weeks ago Howard Watrous, in driving a Hupp roadster from New Orleans to New York via the eastern Glidden route encountered a shipwreck and his machine sank to the bottom of Lake Pontchartrain. In two weeks it had been fished from the bottom and was on its way via Jacksonville, Fla., whence it proceeded to New York without mishap.

Now comes word from Joseph B. Drake, one of the executives of the Hupp Motor Car Company, who is making his second world's tour in a Hupp. Drake is now in India hobnobbing with rajahs and other bejeweled and dusky potentates. Drake has just cabled that his Hupmobile, while being ferried across the Hoogla River, near Calcutta, encountered a terrific storm and sank to the depths. All on board were drowned except Drake. But the car, like the Watrous machine, is to be reclaimed and doubtless by this time Drake is already on his way.

Drake's adventures touring India in his Hupp have not been without interest, even without such exciting events as shipwrecks. He has recently toured from Bombay to Calcutta via Madras, a trip of over 2000 miles, which took him over some of the best and the worst roads of India, and he met many of the distinguished natives, several of whom are ardent admirers of the Hupmobile.

During this tour he was not obliged to touch his engine. One of Drake's recent letters contained the information that he had just returned from Madras where he had met the Rajah of Ettayapuram and several other natives. This particular Rajah is among those who drive a Hup. When Drake met the Rajah, whose complete name is Jaga [illegible] Rama Venkateswara Ettappa [illegible], Rajah of Ettayapuram, he was wearing a string of emeralds as a necklace and his headgear was also full of emeralds and other precious stones, which, added to the jewels in his ears, were valuable enough to keep him the rest of his life if they were converted into money.

The Rajah of Ettayapuram, Drake writes, is a charming gentleman and his family are well liked. They have been very faithful to the British from the first. Around Madras and the southern end of India some of the worst kind of fighting has been done in times past. The Rajah of Ettayapuram is very fond of motoring and has a garage full of them, but the Hupmobile is his favorite. He maintains a home in Ettayapuram, which is not far from Madras.

Drake writes that American cars of medium price are in great demand in India, where they are selling in large numbers. He reports that the Hupmobile has made a fine [illegible] and that it will have an extraordinary season of prosperity.

NEW HOME FOR ITS MILLIONS

First National Bank Receive[s] the Public.

Great Institution Crowns Its Ambitions.

Reserve Coin Will Be Carted Thence Today.

What is nearly the last word in bank construction and furnishings was placed on public view yesterday afternoon, when the First National Bank took possession of its magnificent new quarters in the fireproof Van Nuys building at Seventh and Spring streets, and invited the public to a general inspection.

The lobby is a symphony in marble, glass and gold, the soft gray tints of its marble walls, pillars, counters and public appointments, standing out with artistic richness on its mottled green mosaic floor, with a center setting of a mass of permanent green tropical plants, ten feet high, and surrounded by a handsome curb of gray marble about ten feet in diameter. The lobby is 50x100 feet and its appointments are all that a desire for elegance, convenience and indestructibility can suggest.

Even the writing desks for the use of the public are heavy plates of glass, supported on high marble columns, richly ornamented in bronze, and of a unique original pattern, not in the least obstructing the view of the entire lobby. The ceiling, twenty-five feet high, is a magnificent piece of stucco work, its deep and ornamental panels finished in harmony with the gray walls with a modest touch of gold and blue.

The lobby is entirely surrounded by the various departments for the conduct of business, everything being of marble and bronze, and all the fittings of steel finished in imitation of English oak. The entire banking-room occupies a space of 100x170 feet. The indirect lighting system is accomplished by special fixtures near the ceiling, built in exact pattern to match the general finish.

A special feature for the convenience of ladies transacting business at the bank is a department of their own, attended by four lady tellers, in a space set apart for them being one of the richest portions of the [illegible]

Violin Mastership.

MISCHA ELMAN IN FINE RECITAL.

YOUNG VIOLINIST DELIGHTS AN APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE.

Judiciously Selected Programme Received With Unusual Marks of Approval—Elman, a Perfected Technician, Gives Convincing Interpretations of Great Composers.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

With the same thoughtfulness for the character of his audience that guided his selection Tuesday night, Mischa Elman, gave yesterday a programme of great interest.

Since a matinee is generally attended by many young people, the number of lighter, more melodious compositions was increased to the evident delight of a large and appreciative attendance.

Lonata in D, op. 12, No. 11 of Beethoven, in four movements was the first number, followed by Bruch's Concerto in G Minor; the Adagio and Finale allegro energico were specially brilliant and pleasing. Tarcini's the "Devil's Trill" proved so extraordinary that the young virtuoso was recalled a number of times.

In a lighter vein, Mischa Elman played Wagner's Albumblatt, Haydn-Burmester Menuet and Voice of the Woods by Paganini-Vogrich. This last number was greeted by long and continuous applause, so thrilled was the audience with the wonderful violin interpretation of natural sounds and bird songs.

Francouser-Kreisler Licilienne et Rigandon, a clever and showy number, terminated the fourth portion of the programme.

In conclusion, Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen" played with remarkable technique and understanding, so delighted the audience that, while it was late, every one remained in his seat calling the gifted artist over and over again.

As a token of his appreciation, he unexpectedly reappeared and played the "Meditation" in Thais.

M. Percy Kahn assisted the violinist at the piano, with the same care and ability as before.

A second hearing this season, confirms more definitely the remarkable progress made by Mischa Elman as a technician since his last visit here two years ago.

But that which is a cause of surprise and delight is to see that such an appreciation as seldom has been given a young musician, has not spoiled in the slightest degree a genuine simplicity and a naturalness so seldom found associated with the temperamental nature of great musicians.

Beyond and above his technique, this youngest of violin virtuosi possesses a rare balance and an intuitive form of interpretation of the great composers that opens before him a long and brilliant career that all lovers of higher music wish him heartily.

[Our Dumb Animals:] An unusual example of animal sagacity was shown at a motion picture theater in the town of Bath, N. Y. A Scotch collie had followed its owner to her seat. The animal remained silent during the course of several pictures, but when the film showed a man pursued by robbers, the dog could not restrain itself. With the first movements of the actors in the picture it became restive, and its mistress was unable to quiet it. When the man was attacked by the robbers, the dog broke into a series of loud barks. With hair a-bristle it dashed toward the screen. The lights had to be turned on before the cause of the dog's wrath was removed.

Another Ruined Roman City.

[Chicago Inter Ocean:] Two Italian officers, reconnoitering about Tripoli in an airship, discovered beyond Zara, a ruined city, midst the sand and wilderness. The city was identified as Sabatta, once a flourishing colony of imperial Rome. Flying low the officers took photographs which upon development revealed imposing, extensive and well preserved ruins with many marble statues, twenty of which were still standing. It is stated that the ruins will be explored shortly.

THE SMITHS OF KANSAS.

Four Generations Live in and Own Practically the Whole of the North Grant Township.

[Topeka Capital:] One of the biggest families in Kansas lives in North Grant township, Pawnee county. And it is not really surprising that the family name is Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Smith located in Pawnee county, in the vicinity of Rozell, in the early '80s. A poor team of horses constituted about all of their wealth.

They now have fourteen sons and daughters, and there are sixty-eight persons in the family, all told, counting grandchildren and great-grandchildren. The Smiths all reside in the same section, owning practically all of North Grant township. Most of the sons and daughters and grandchildren live within fifteen or twenty miles of the old folks, and the Smiths not only make up the bulk of the population of that locality, but own most of the real estate.

A family reunion was held recently at which nearly seventy members of the family were gathered together, representing four generations. All of the sons and daughters are well-to-do, most of the sons being engaged in wheat growing. One remarkable thing about this remarkable family is that there has never been a death in the family. The old folks are hale and hearty.

Speed of Road Runners.

[Youth's Companion:] A multitude of strange and interesting creatures inhabits the barren mesas of the Southwest. Lizards of every degree of hideousness scamper about among the mesquite and cactus, enormous hairy spiders dispute your passage along the trail, ants in infinite variety roam the country in regular armies and fleas of prodigious size make life miserable.

We had climbed a hill and were entering upon a level plain when a rather large dark-colored bird, not unlike a hen pheasant, came into the road in front of us. I recognized the bird as a road runner, one of the cuckoo family, although he bears little resemblance to the cuckoo himself.

The bird was trotting along the road, darting aside now and then to pick up an insect or a sleeping lizard, but always returning to resume his journey.

We put spurs to our mounts and closed up before the bird was aware. Instead of taking to the cactus, he threw one glance over his shoulder, abandoned his indifferent air, dropped his tail, pressed every feather close to his body, lowered his head until it was parallel with the ground and started down the road as if he had suddenly thought of an urgent errand over in the next State.

Our horses strained every muscle, but could not gain an inch, while the bird ran with the greatest ease. We held to our furious pace for several miles; the bird never thought of slipping off into the dense underbrush; he clearly regarded the road as a desirable race course and us as his competitors to be outdistanced. We were badly beaten; our horses began to show signs of fatigue and we pulled up. The bird, when he found himself no longer pursued, slackened his pace, elevated his tail and loitered along again, picking up insects and watching us over his shoulder as if he enjoyed our discomfiture. He kept along the road for miles, until we reached a water course and halted to look into the water supply, when we lost sight of him.

The road runners are solitary and unsociable, yet we frequently heard them at sunset, calling from the cactus beds on the hillsides. They have a musical note not unlike that of the mourning dove, which they follow with a harsh, rasping sound like the cackle of a hen calling her brood. The cocks make a peculiar sound by snapping their mandibles together like castanets. Their nests are bulky affairs, built a few feet from the ground in low bushes. The hen lays from four to six white eggs.

GRAND AVENUE COMING TO FRONT.

BUSINESS DISTRICT OF LOS ANGELES EXPANDING.

Recent Realty Sales and Leases Indicate Market and Investment Trend to Westward of Present Downtown Commercial Area—Improvements Projected.

The coming to the front of Grand avenue as a business thoroughfare is presaged by the many important realty developments recorded along both sides of that street during the past few months. The movement, which is now a feature of the general market and investment trend, began with the definite announcement of the intention of John Brockman to erect the twelve-story office building which he is constructing at the southeast corner of Grand avenue and Seventh street. It was given further impetus when the ten-story Stillwell Hotel and the nine-story Trinity building were started a few months ago on opposite sides of Grand avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets. Today Grand avenue from Sixth to Pico street is the scene of a notable investment activity.

The latest Grand avenue transactions to come to light are announced by Warren H. Cook, who, both as broker and principal, has recently concluded some noteworthy deals on that thoroughfare. Following the recent announcement in The Times of the purchase by Walter H. Fisher from Adolph Fleishman of forty feet on the east side of Grand avenue, immediately adjoining the new Brockman block on the south, Cook reports that he has sold for the same owner to the same buyer the forty-five feet adjoining Fisher's former purchase, the consideration being given at $101,-360. Fisher states that he contemplates the early improvement of the entire eighty-five feet of frontage with a modern building. Associated with Cook as agent in the deal was the David Blankenhorn Company of Pasadena.

Cook reports also that he has leased to Fisher for Mrs. Isabella J. Norris, for a term of fifty years, 45x160 feet on the west side of Grand avenue, adjoining on the south the old postoffice site at the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Seventh street. The total rental consideration is given at $400,-000 for the half-century period.

Cook reports also that he has sold on his own account to Charles F. Crary, 44x160 feet on the east side of Grand avenue, 250 feet south of Eighth street, for a consideration of $90,000. Crary already owned the forty-three feet adjoining on the north and it is his announced intention to improve the entire eighty-seven feet of frontage with a substantial building. Cook acquired the piece he has just sold two years ago.

POLITICAL TIPS.

It will be of interest to see how the incoming President will sign his name to all legal documents during the coming four years. He was born "Thomas" Woodrow Wilson, but subsequently dropped the "Thomas," and has figured before the country as "Woodrow" and has used this single name as president of Princeton University, Governor of New Jersey and as candidate for the Presidency. Gen. Wood, who has charge of issuing all the commissions in connection with the inauguration ceremonies, is giving the President-elect his full name, Thomas Woodrow Wilson. What if, at some future time, the question of the validity of a statute should go to the Supreme Court and the issue should turn on the legality of the President's signature.

Thirteen Governors have signified their intention of being in the inaugural parade. They will represent the States of Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and West Virginia.

The New York Sun has no use for Mr. Bryan as Secretary of State, deeming him "about as well fitted for the position as a cherub is to skate or a merman to play football. When it comes to proposing that William Jennings Bryan, the political product of the crown of thorns and cross of gold metaphor, shall take charge of the international relations of the government and direct its diplomatic policy, the imagination staggers in attempting to measure the incongruity, much more to express it in ordinary words from the dictionary. He simply has not the feet on which to strap the skates. He simply lacks the legs with which to kick the football. This is not his fault, but the attempted adaptation of the inconceivable to the impossible would be the fault of the person responsible for it, and it would likewise be the misfortune of a republic never before thus maltreated."

The question of taking from women certain privileges now extended to them by law will be submitted to the voters of New York State at the same time they vote on the proposed constitutional amendment to give women the right of suffrage, if a measure introduced in the Legislature today is approved.

The measure would relieve a husband from paying counsel fees and alimony in divorce actions and from paying debts contracted by his wife. It also would take from women their present dower rights.

Among the freak legislation proposed to the Illinois legislators is a bill to impose a tax of $100 upon all bachelors who have reached the age of 23, without having married. The tax will go into the treasury of the city, town or village in which the bachelor resides.

Gov. West of Oregon has added to the dignity of his office by knocking down Frank L. Perkins, a Portland newspaper man. Considerable feeling has existed on the Governor's part over articles published in the paper represented by Perkins which finally resulted in blows. In the mix-up Perkins fell or was knocked to the floor and Gov. West landed on top of him. For a few moments the pair thrashed around the floor, hitting and striking at each other, until they were finally pulled apart, when they went their separate ways.

Gov. Dunne of Illinois has celebrated his induction into office by the purchase of a seven-seat touring automobile. Heretofore he has done his touring with a surrey and an old horse. The auto, he explains, is not all his yet, but he has paid part of the price and will pay the rest from his salary.

Notwithstanding the friendship of Gov. Dunne for Col. James Hamilton Lewis, it does not look as if the latter will secure his election to the United States Senate unless he forms a coalition with the Republican members of the Legislature. The Democrats will not stand for any coalition with the Bull Moose legislators. Sherman, the Republican candidate for the Senate, has a majority of the unpaired members of the Senate and is but ten behind Lewis in the House.

The graft exposure in the West Virginia Legislature that has resulted in the arrest of Col. William Seymour Edwards, candidate for United States Senator, was started by Rev. Thomas J. Smith, a member of the House, asserting that $500 had been thrust in his pocket while in a room in a local hotel, and that he had been offered $2000 to vote for Col. Edwards. The accused man was a delegate to the Republican National Convention and followed Roosevelt into the rump convention and supported the Bull Moose in the campaign.

Former Gov. Hadley of Missouri, at a recent dinner of the Lincoln Club of St. Paul, replied to a eulogy by remarking that, "I am the greatest curiosity going. I hold the record among candidates for the Presidency. I was a candidate for a shorter length of time than any other man in American history. I got in one afternoon through the enthusiasm of the crowd, and got out again next morning by common consent. It was a bad year for candidates from Missouri. Champ Clark remarked to me that we were both defeated for President by one vote in each convention, and we talked some of starting a society for the suppression of colonels."

The appointments made by President Taft and held up by the Democratic majority of the Senate, have now reached the 2000 mark. If it be assumed that President Wilson can make his selection for each of these vacancies with an average of only twenty minutes conversation with the Democratic members of Congress who have candidates—and that is allowing far too little time and none at all for the bickering and quarrels which are certain to attend filling many of them—the naming of appointees to these 2000 places will require just sixty-six days of ten hours each of the new President's time, and a trifle over, and that to the exclusion of everything else. The mere signing of the commissions of 2000 officials is something of a task in itself. And this great time-wasting task is being saved up and made daily more arduous for the new President by the Democratic spoilsmen who cannot bear to see one per cent. of patronage snatched from their eager maws.

Joseph Leiter, former Chicagoan and whilom wheat plunger, now a farmer, is going to Congress, if he can. His recent establishment of a residence in Fairfax county, Virginia, a fifteen-minute automobile ride from Washington, is merely the first step. Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter, his mother, occupying a strategic social position, from which she can exert her great influence simultaneously upon the fashion court of the national capital and the voting aristocracy of "the sovereign State of Virginia," is conducting the social and diplomatic side of her son's campaign. Mrs. Dorothy Leiter, his wife, foregoing the gayety of Newport and Bar Harbor, which were hers only a short time ago, has also thrown all her energy and all her social skill into the project.

Francis O. Lindquist, Congressman-elect from Greenville, Mich., is probably the only man who has ever conducted a mail-order political campaign. He wanted a pure fabric and leather law, and as a last resort, announced himself for Congress on the regular Republican ticket, though he had not been in politics before. He flooded his district with printed matter, sending out over 900,000 pieces of literature. Only one newspaper out of sixty-five in his district advocated his candidacy, and some, he states, refused to accept his paid advertisements. He made no contributions, nor did he receive any. The primary was carried, and at the general election he won out by 10,000 plurality. Lindquist is of Swedish parentage. He received a limited education, stopping at the third grade to go to work. His early days were spent working around lumber yards, docks, and hotels. Now he is president of the Canada Mills Company.

HE IS RETIRED.

And Former Rear-Admiral Refuses to Discuss the Navy—Here for Short Visit.

Rear-Admiral J. H. Dayton, U.S.N., retired, is at the Alexandria, registered from South Bend, Ind. He refused yesterday to discuss the navy, declaring he is out of it and not conversant with the situation.

As one of the ranking officers of the fleet which came to California several years ago, he obtained such delightful and vivid impressions that he desired to return for a brief visit this winter. He was commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet in 1907-1908 and retired from the service in October of that year, having completed his forty years of service. He became an ensign during the Civil War and rose rapidly until he was made rear-admiral in 1906. He was commanding officer of the Philippine squadron of the Asiatic fleet for some time.

From Los Angeles he will go to Santa Barbara to join friends.

SUIT HOUSE IS SOLD.

The Los Angeles Realty Company announces the sale, through Nathan Metzenbaum, of the lease and stock of Hosking & Gray, No. 525 South Broadway, to J. J. Haggarty, of the New York Store, for a reported consideration of $250,000. Haggerty has already taken possession and will continue business at that place as a cloak, suit and millinery house.

Fact and Comment.

include almost the whole of the undeveloped and purchasable area in the center of Hollywood. Part of the property lies as far south as Sunset boulevard and at the north there is a large frontage skirting the foothills on Franklin avenue. The holdings lie as far east as Gower street and as far west as Vine street. The various pieces comprising the whole are interspersed among some of the most highly-developed districts in Hollywood.

This property, in common with the rest of Hollywood, was originally embodied in the Hollywood ranch, purchased twenty years ago by Gen. A. L. Wilcox for $25 an acre. The Wilcox family lived on the ranch for many years, during which time the only other house in view was the home of a Spanish family, miles away toward Los Angeles. Gen. Wilcox died and his widow, left the owner of all the land which today is the site of Hollywood, has since become the wife of Philo T. Beveridge.

While living on the Hollywood ranch Mrs. Wilcox planted hundreds of pepper trees over her vast property, converting a mesquite and boulder-covered landscape into a sightly tract. These trees and hundreds of others of different varieties the lady of the hacienda personally tended, though water at the time was a real luxury in the district. Whole streets of these old trees have been saved through the twenty years that have intervened since they were planted and these today constitute one of the chief charms of the suburb.

Hollywood ranch remained practically intact until H. J. Whitley, sometimes known as the "father of Hollywood," saw its possibilities and undertook the task of city-making in that vicinity. The Hollywood of today is the result of this initial impulse. Those now controlling the remaining Beveridge lands declare that within the next five years they expect to complete the wonder-work of city building started a decade ago and to make of Hollywood one compactly developed community extending from the foothills to Sunset boulevard.

NEW APARTMENTS.

Local Architects Busy on Many Plans that Will Soon Be in Hands of Contractors. N

Architectural sketches have been prepared by Parkinson & Bergstrom for a six-story reinforced concrete apartment-house projected by Clarence Drown, local manager of the Orpheum Theater, for the corner of Wilshire boulevard and Carondelet street. The negotiations for the carrying out of the enterprise are not entirely completed, according to Drown, but the project has already reached a stage where detailed plans are being drawn by the architects. The structure as planned will contain about 185 rooms, divided into two, three and four-room suites and will be handsomely finished throughout.

Plans for a four-story brick apartment-house to be erected by W. W. Middlecoff at No. 955 South Alvarado street have been completed by R. B. Young & Son. The building will contain ninety rooms, in two and three room suites.

L. L. Jones has drawn plans for a three-story brick apartment-house to be erected by George Caruthers on Flower street, between First and Second streets. The structure will contain sixty-five rooms.

A hundred-room brick rooming-house is projected by C. R. Cates for a site on Ruth avenue, between Fifth and Sixth streets. Plans for the improvement, according to Cates, are now nearing completion. The building as contemplated will be four stories in height.

The firm of Jackson & McClure is preparing plans for a three-story brick apartment-house to be built for the W. Ross Campbell Company at No. 1142 West Tenth street. The building will contain eighty-five rooms and will be 56x138 feet in size.

FORTUNE FOR FLOWERS.

Chesterfield Place Oil Magnate to House Rare Botanical Collection in Huge and Costly Conservatory.

What will probably be the costliest and most extensive private conservatory and greenhouse in the West is projected by Edward L. Doheney for his palatial home on Chester place. The oil magnate will expend in the improvement approximatel $250,000. Architect Alfred F. Rosenheim has practically completed plans for the undertaking.

Close to $150,000 will be expended in the construction of a palmhouse and natatorium, a single structure 230 feet in length and seventy-seven feet wide and having a height of fifty feet. The conservatory will represent an outlay of about $60,000 and will be fifty feet square, being crowned with a dome twenty-five feet in width and of a similar height.

The two structures will be constructed of concrete, steel, marble, bronze, brick and glass and will be in the Gothic style in architectural keeping with the Doheney house.

HOST LOSES JEWELS.

Strains of "After the Ball Is Over" floated through Fred M. Goodman's mind early yesterday morning when he discovered, after his guests had departed, that his $300 diamond and ruby stick pin was missing. The last he saw of it, it was lying on his dresser. Goodman entertained twenty guests Friday night at a "rag dance."

A Greater Ocean Park.

Ocean Front to the north. George Wilson will be manager. There is a spacious lobby, smoking-room, palm tearoom and office on the first floor.

The three-story Stineman & Kramer building on Marine and Speedway is almost completed. This contains two storerooms on the first floor and thirty apartment-rooms above. The Cassidy building of two stories and the three-story Fraser building adjoining on the west, completes a handsome group on Marine street.

The Merchants' Commercial and Savings Bank building on Marine street, near Speedway, will cost $20,-000, when completed, and will be two stories high. The two-story Hostetter building on Pier avenue is nearing completion and the Atkinson-Cribb-Huff structure, and the Couch, Higgins, Byrne and First National Bank blocks of two stories each on the Ocean Front, make an imposing line. The three-story Donahoe apartment-house at Marine and Speedway is nearing completion. Michael Kelly has just completed a brick store building on Ocean Front.

Los Angeles architects are preparing sketches for an eight-story hotel to be erected by Adolphus Busch, on the 113x217 feet on Ocean Front, recently purchased of A. R. Fraser, and part of which formerly constituted the site of the Decatur Hotel. Ward Dawson has let the contract for the erection of a three-story and basement brick block, which will cost about $36,000.

Work has been begun upon a four-story brick apartment-house planned by Ye Planry Building Company, of Los Angeles, for Hoyt Bros., and which will occupy a site on Ozone avenue, between Trolleyway and the Speedway. The structure is being constructed by the same concern which designed it, and will represent an investment of approximately $40,000.

The building will contain fifty-seven apartment-rooms, a handsome, mahogany finished lobby, an amusement-room and servants' quarters. Twenty-four dressing-rooms, with a number of shower baths, will be provided for surf bathers in the basement.

FOR HOUSING DEAD.

Immense Granite and Marble Mausoleum Projected by Capitalists for Inglewood Park Cemetery.

A project designed to revolutionize methods of burial in the vicinity of Los Angeles is being pressed to completion by a number of Pasadena men under the corporate name, California Mausoleum Company.

A community mausoleum, which will compare favorably with any similar structure in the world, will be erected on an eminence in Inglewood Park Cemetery, and its 1400 crypts made available for public use. At a cost not greatly in excess of that of earth burial it will be possible to have a body preserved in perpetuity in one of these marble cells.

The mausoleum will have a frontage of 235 feet, a depth of seventy-nine feet, and will be thirty-seven feet high. The exterior will be of granite and the interior of marble. All doors and grills will be of bronze. The windows will be of cathedral glass set in metal. Absolute dryness will be secured by draft, giving ventilation, and the entire separation of the walls of the building from the interior or crypt portion. Each crypt will have its own intake and outlet ducts through which dry air laden with a strong antiseptic will be kept constantly in motion. Decay will thus be made impossible.

The officers and directors of the company, which has this project in charge, are N. W. Hamilton, president; Frank Hogan, vice-president; L. H. Turner, vice-president; Leo G. MacLaughlin, secretary; Henry Newby, treasurer, and Frank Dale, E. J. Pyle, Rev. Allan R. Tillinghast, W. C. Crowell, and Dr. J. C. Fraser, directors.

The building will be built by subscription, but no money will be paid by subscribers until it is completed. An endowment fund will be established, the interest on which will insure the care of the mausoleum in perpetuity.

A three-story apartment building, with sixty-eight rooms, thirty sleeping porches and twenty-eight baths, is being constructed for John W. and Belle B. Brunton at Jefferson and Figueroa streets, at a cost of $50,000. The building is being put up under direction of the Western Architectural and Building Company, and is financed by the new American Mortgage Company, a million-dollar corporation that has just entered the financial field.

The apartment-house is opposite Shrine Auditorium, a block and a half from the University of Southern California, and six blocks from Exposition Park. It has a large lobby, amusement-room, sun parlor, storerooms and cement basement. The exterior is of white-pressed brick with the lobby and all front suites finished in birch. Hardwood flooring is used throughout, and wall beds and steam heat provided.

SIXTY HOMES PLANNED.

Fifty Acres to Be Cut Into Lots as Addition to the New College Tract. To Be Opened on March 2.

Fifty acres in the Baldwin lands of the southwest will be opened by the Los Angeles Investment Company on March 2 as the second section of New College tract. In the first section of this subdivision all lots and all finished houses have been sold.

The new acreage to be opened has been cut into 288 lots, these lying west of the first section of the tract. Street work is already well advanced and gas, water and electricity are being provided. Plans have also been perfected for a sewer system. There will be a series of small parks along Forty-eighth street, making this street with its curb improvements 180 feet in width.

Sixty new houses will be put up at once, making a total of more than 600 houses put up by the Los Angeles Investment Company in that immediate vicinity.

NEW LINE IN SIGHT.

Railway From Alamitos-Long Beach Route to Bay City Awaits Approval of Orange County Supervisors.

BAY CITY, Feb. 22.—As soon as the application filed by the Pacific Electric for an extension of its Alamitos-Long Beach line to and through Bay City is passed upon by the Supervisors of Orange County, that company, it is expected, will begin construction work on the line and rapidly push it through. This new route will give residents of Bay City a direct line to Long Beach along the coast.

The Bayside Land Company is planning to start improvements costing close to $150,000 in Bay City before the summer season. These will include a two-story pavilion, covering the site of the present pavilion and a considerable additional area. The building will be about 300 feet long and will contatin a dancing pavilion, bathhouse, billiard parlor, stores and lunch rooms, and a band stand. A roof garden will be one of its features. There will be a twenty-foot promenade walk along the ocean front.

Recent sales at this place include the transfer of lots on Sixth street to Herbert Williams and Courtney Harris of Long Beach; of two lots on Seventh street to Mrs. Effa Bodkin and Miss Mary Bodkin of Los Angeles, and of a lot on Thirteenth street to Guido Calligaro of Los Angeles.

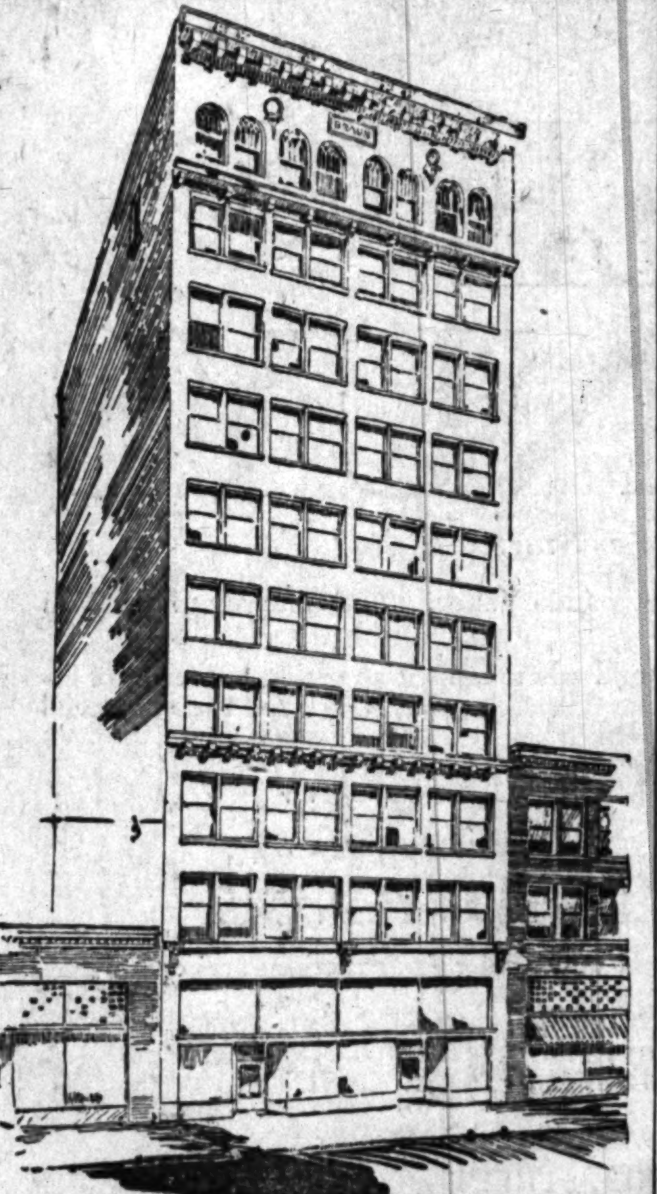
An agreement has just been signed between the Dam-Rousselle Company, owners of West Newport, and J. B. Branagan of Pittsburgh, whereby the latter will erect and equip a $15,000 glass factory at Newport Beach. New improvements are being installed on seven streets in West Newport, these including cement walks and curbs.

COAST TO COAST.

William Saulsbury, formerly of Delaware, and John P. Holland, from the same State, have formed a corporation known as the Saulsbury-Holland Company, to do a general real estate business in Los Angeles. Offices have been opened in the Title Insurance building. They will specialize in close-in acreage, semi-business and business properties.

INVADERS FROM NORTH.

During the past week the Natomas Consolidated of California has opened offices in the Hibernian building in charge of Dr. Thomas Hill. This company, now engaged in agricultural development, had its inception in placer mining. It built the first dredger to work over the placer ground north of Sacramento and at present has thirteen gold dredgers at work. Its mission in Los Angeles is to interest settlers in its 90,000 acres of agricultural land in the Sacramento Valley, on which large sums have already been expended in plowing, tree planting, levee building and ditch-digging. The company has tested the lands in the past five years by planting each year acreages to oranges and olives. Ten acres have been set aside recently for nursery purposes, and for experimental work. Water for irrigation is obtained from the American River.



Proposed Braun Block, W. J. Saunders, Architect.

Reinforced concrete loft building projected for east side of Broadway, between Eighth and Ninth streets.

Going Up!

BIG BUILDING FOR BROADWAY.

Will Occupy Site Between Eighth and Ninth.

Structure to Be of Concrete and Fireproof.

Leased to Wealthy Oriental for Fifteen Years.

For some time there have been rumors of high-class improvements in contemplation for the east side of Broadway, between Eighth and Ninth streets, but the first step towards actual execution of such a plan was the closing, during the past week, of a deal conducted by Elmer E. Dunn and Walter H. Harris, lease managers for Thomas C. Bundy & Co., and which calls for the improvement of the lot at Nos. 820-822 South Broadway, owned by F. W. Braun, president of the Braun corporation, dealers in assay and chemical laboratory apparatus.

Plans drawn by Architect W. J. Saunders have already been accepted for a reinforced concrete, class A structure, to cover the entire lot, comprising 50x155 feet, to an alley, and with footings for ten stories. For the present however, the building may not exceed three stories, a basement and mezzanine floor. The structure will be provided with the best type of freight and passenger elevators, and so arranged as to permit of its use as a loft building for one large firm, its division into several small stores, with separate lofts above, for sub-letting purposes.

The building is being erected for Lung Yep, vice-president and manager of the Sing Fat Company, who has taken a lease on the property for a term of fifteen years, at a given total rental consideration of nearly $400,000. Yep controls several valuable leases in the downtown district.

Work will begin on the new building as soon as the old dwelling house occupying the site can be removed, and the structure will probably be finished during July.

The site was for many years the property of A. R. Maines, and constituted half of the frontage transferred by Maines to the Keith theatrical circuit a little over a year ago, a deal which was reported exclusively in The Times, and which aroused considerable speculation among the theatrical men of the country, it being believed by many that the Keiths contemplated invading the Orpheum territory on this Coast. This belief was strengthened later, when the Orpheum management abandoned its previously-announced intention of entering New York City and actually purchased from the Keiths the Broadway holding, on which the Keiths were supposed to be contemplating the erection of their first West Coast house.

Braun bought the fifty feet he now plans to improve directly from the Orpheum company, paying a substantial profit over the original investments of the two rival theatrical concerns. His intention of improving the far-south site with a substantial and modern building instead of following the usual plan of those pioneering in new and undeveloped downtown blocks of erecting one-story "taxpayers," will, it is declared by the Bundy company representatives, be hailed with interest by realty men and property owners generally.

TWENTY LOTS PURCHASED.

Company Plans to Build Bungalows on Tract Bought at Wilton Place and Fifty-fourth.

A block of twenty lots in Chesterfield Square was purchased the past week by the Security Home Builders of Los Angeles, who intend to construct five and six-room bungalows upon the property. The land is situated at Wilton place and Fifty-fourth street, and was secured from R. W. Lest at a reported consideration of $22,000. Work upon five of these bungalows, it is announced by the officers of the company, will begin at once.

Eighty homes have been completed or are now under construction in Chesterfield Square. The planting of 2000 fan and date palms will begin this week as part of a scheme for beautifying the tract.

BUYS SITE FOR MANSION.

Los Angeles Capitalist Will Erect Twenty-seven-room Residence in Country Club Park Tract.

For a given consideration of $70,000, Isaac Milbank, a Los Angeles capitalist, has purchased a lot at Arlington avenue and Country Club drive in Country Club Park, as a site for a home. Plans for this dwelling are now being prepared by G. Lawrence Stimson of Pasadena. The deal was made through Robert Marsh & Co.

Milbank's property has a frontage of 400 feet on Country Club drive and faces also on Van Ness avenue and Arlington avenue. The Milbank home will be one of the show places of the Westchester district. It will contain twenty-seven rooms and have a total width across the front of 106 feet. The dining-room will be 36x20 feet, the living room, 34x20 feet, and the hall, 24x36 feet. From the site is obtainable a beautiful, unbroken vista of the mountains.

NEW LAND MAGAZINE.

An immigration and land magazine to be known as the California Land Journal and which is to be devoted to the exploitation of California's resources, is to be started in Los Angeles by Wycliff A. Hill, for five years editor and manager of the Texas Realty Journal and founder of the Texas State Realty Association. In announcing his plans yesterday, Hill stated that the publication projected would be for eastern circulation alone.

RANCH SOLD FOR HALF MILLION.

TRANSFER INVOLVES PART OF BALDWIN HOLDINGS.

Tract Lies on North Slope of Whittier Hills, Southeast of El Monte, and Comprises Nearly Two Thousand Acres—Large Sum Set Aside for Development.

The purchase from the Baldwin estate of 1826 acres of the La Puente rancho for a sum reported to be in excess of $500,000, was announced yesterday by Edwin Hart, representing Torrance, Marshall & Co., the buyers of the tract. The project has been under way for some time, but official announcement of the completion of the deal has been withheld.

The property will be immediately improved, subdivided and placed on the market as citrus land, it is stated by the new owners, who also announce that $125,000 has been set aside for these purposes. Of this sum, $90,000 will be expended, it is said, in the construction of two water systems—one for domestic and one for irrigation uses. Two reservoirs will be constructed on the crest of the Whittier hills and from this the distributing mains and laterals will be run.

H. H. Sinclair, who has charge of the development work of the Torrance-Marshall properties, already has fifty men at work on the property arranging for the construction of the water system and grading for roadways. The roads to be built will be under the specifications set by the State Highway Commission, while the Turnbull boulevard to be built by the county to connect Whittier with the San Gabriel Valley will extend through the rancho.

La Puente rancho is one of the best-known of the old E. J. Baldwin properties. It lies on the north slope of the Whittier hills southeast of El Monte, in a protected district, and is believed to be capable of extensive citrus development.

FOLLOWS SIMPLE LINES.

Handsome Spanish Colonial House in Hollywood Characterized by Absence of Ornamentation.

One of the most attractive of the new dwellings now nearing completion in this city is the home which W. B. Glidden is erecting at the northeast corner of Franklin avenue and Beachwood drive, in Hollywood. The house occupies a large site, looking to the south, and commanding a fine view of the whole of northwest Los Angeles. The place was planned by Arthur B. Benton and follows Spanish colonial lines.

The design of the house is characterized by simplicity. The exterior is plastered and the roof is of red clay tile. A charming feature is a porch twelve feet in width, extending across the entire seventy-five feet of front of the residence. The garage and a small structure for the gardener are in architectural keeping with the house itself.

The interior of the Glidden place is being finished entirely in oak and mahogany, and every room contains a mantel. The upper hall will be lighted by stained glass windows, depicting the California missions. Each bedroom will have an attached bath and dressing-room. The billiard-room will contain a large fireplace and will have a heavy beamed ceiling. It will be carried out in Dutch effect.

The grounds are being planted to a variety of trees, shrubs and plants, and attractively terraced. An elaborate gateway entrance is being constructed.

APARTMENTS LEASED.

The California Realty Corporation reports the leasing of a three-story apartment-house which it is just completing at the southeast corner of Ottawa and Georgia streets. The tenant is a local hotel woman and the total rental is given at approximately $45,000. The building contains fifty-four rooms, divided into two and three-room apartments, each with bath, kitchen and dressing-room. There is also a large lobby, amusement-room, reception-room and roof garden. The entrance is handsomely finished in marble and tile. The place will be heated with steam and will be modernly appointed throughout.

TWO YEARS OLD.

San Fernando Valley Town Has a Birthday—Progress Continues—New Improvements Under Way.

VAN NUYS, Feb. 21.—Van Nuys, 2 years old today, has made remarkable progress during the short period of its growth. It has railroad service, both steam and electric, miles of improved streets, scores of beautiful homes, business blocks aggregating in cost over $100,000, a $50,000 grammar school, two churches, electric lights and telephones, and an abundant supply of good water.

H. J. Whitley, general manager of the Suburban Homes Company, has a force of men planting trees and shrubbery in the townsite and along the boulevard. The opening of the electric line from Van Nuys to San Fernando is scheduled for the near future, possibly March. Both Owensmouth and San Fernando cars will then pass through here.

The new street lights are nearly completed and it is proposed to celebrate the turning on of the lights with appropriate ceremonies in a short time.

Brentwood Place, Santa Monica, to Build Tennis Courts for World Champions

The annexation to Santa Monica of America's tennis champion at doubles, Mr. Tom Bundy, and his wife, who was formerly Miss May Sutton, the world's tennis champion, brings to Brentwood Place community tennis courts of exceptional advantage.

Mr. Bundy and his bride, now making their home at Brentwood Place, will undoubtedly create of Santa Monica a tennis Rendevous for the earth's most illustrious tennis players during various informal meets.

The James R. H. Wagner Company to build courts of exceptional superiority, which will be at the disposal of any and all of Brentwood Place residents.

Now that Santa Monica has at last come into her own as a center for tennis champions, the old French game will undoubtedly take on new life, so to speak, in the Crescent Bay City; and without question, many tennis celebrities will be developed.

Santa Monica with its unlimited advantages, which have established it preeminently above all other beach cities in existence, might well be termed another "Aladdin's Lamp" of wonderment, on a very much magnified scale.

The Crescent Bay City is indeed the wonder city of the Pacific Coast, if not of the globe.

The stranger coming to Santa Monica, be he ever so traveled, invariably must admit the Crescent Bay City combines the greatest number and possesses the largest variety of charms of any place of his acquaintance.

The glorious old Pacific, as restless as a caged tiger, held in as it is, by the mighty promontory arms of the Crescent Bay, the long, purple-hued mountains ranging themselves series upon series, like the wings of a vast theatre; the rugged canyons; miles of unsurpassed automobile roads, winding like silver ribbons from the city to the sea, and including an eight-mile world automobile race course; a one hundred thousand dollar Country Club; beach amusements representing millions of dollars; kingly home places by legions; unrivaled church, store and school advantages, including a $200,000 Polytechnic High School; superb hosteiries; a car service consisting of five different lines to Los Angeles and a Subway soon to come; and a veritable multitude of other allurements have constituted the magnetic forces drawing to the shores of the Crescent Bay City health, pleasure and homeseekers from all parts of the globe.

THE NEW TENNIS COURTS FOR WORLD TOURNAMENTS.

Not alone are these forces drawing to Santa Monica people from every part of the world; but many of these people are those who have carved for themselves, in the marble slabs of history, names brilliant with renown, whose radiance will shine down through all time to come.

Men and women of royal birth as well as those who have soared to the loftiest heights in literature, music, art, science, vast financial attainments or any other of the many channels leading to fame, are included among the illustrious residents of the Crescent Bay City.

Now will be added no less illustrious personages than Mr. Tom Bundy (who with his partner, Mr. McLoughlin, holds America's championship at doubles in tennis,) and his wife, who was formerly Miss May Sutton, and who holds the world's championship at tennis.

These noted sportsmen will build their home in the very near future on the beautiful Santa Monica subdivision property known as Brentwood Place.

Brentwood Place lies directly opposite the far-famed Brentwood Park. Rising to the majestic height of three hundred and fifty feet above the sea, it commands one of the most superb views of the surrounding territory in this famous San Vincente Boulevard section.

On one side of it lies the beautiful grounds of the Soldiers' Home, on the other, the meandering driveways and stately homes of Brentwood Park, on another the magnificent new home place, Regent Square, owned by King C. Gillette, the razor king, and just thrown upon the market; and on the other side stretches the endless sweep of the ocean.

Every conceivable modern home convenience that could contribute to the enjoyment and comfort of a community has been given to Brentwood Place, the Brentwood Palisades of the Santa Monica section.

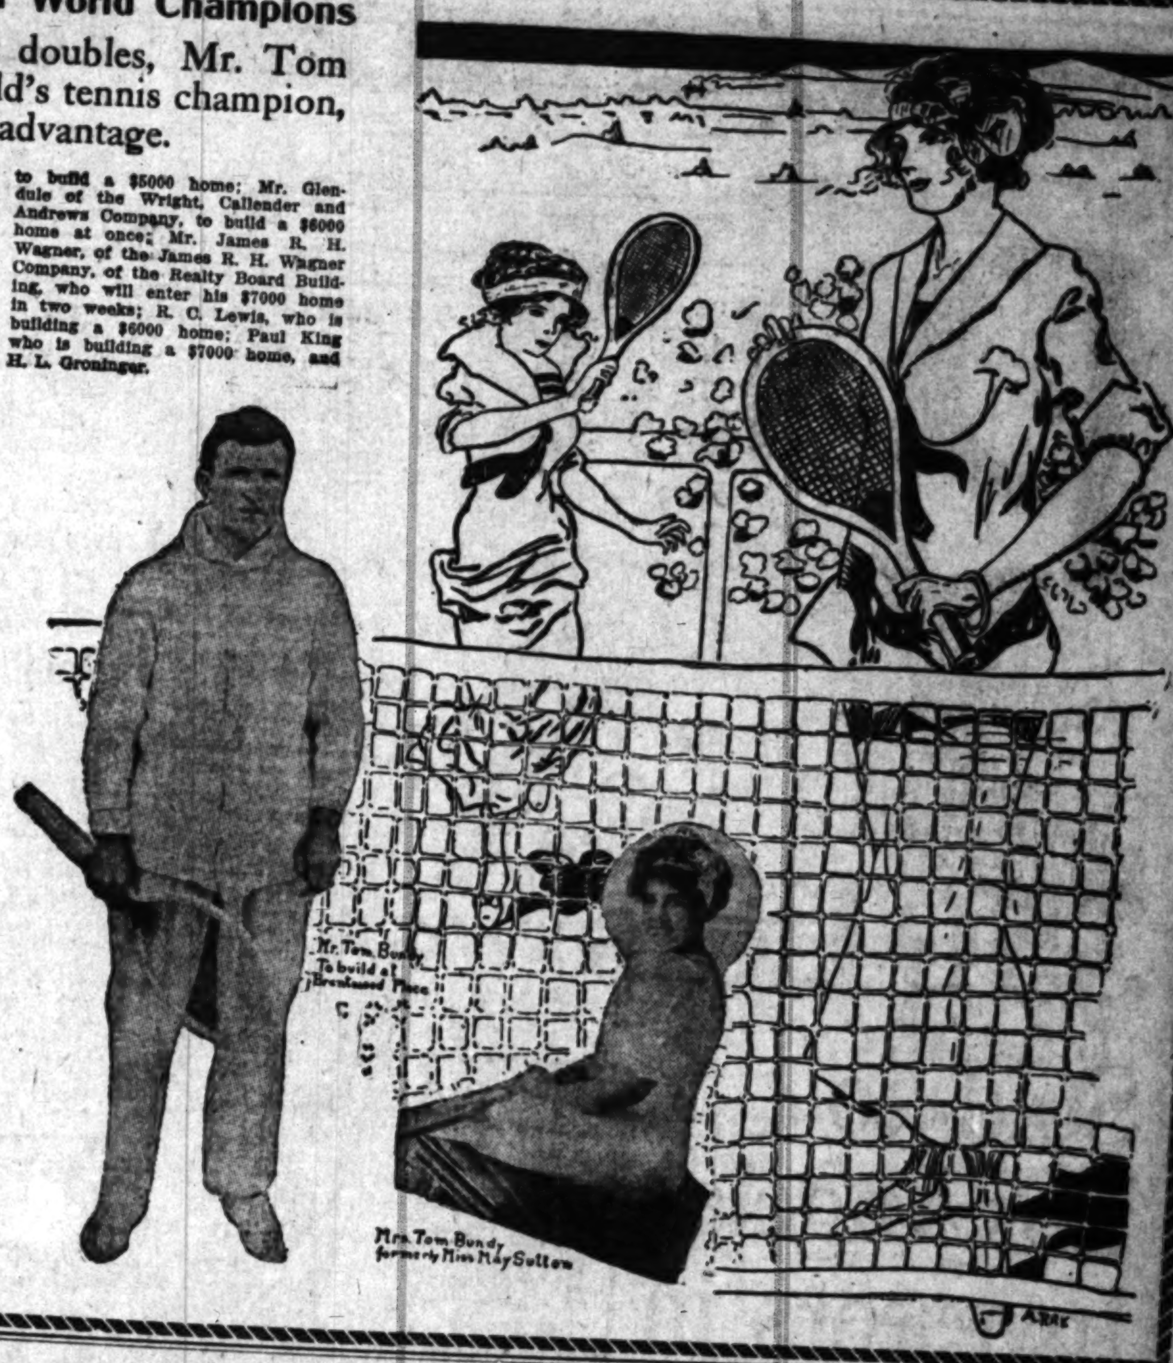
Mr. Tom Bundy and his wife will begin to build their beautiful home at once, having as one of the features a superb tennis court, where they can meet in contest any opponent who cares to face them.

In addition to the Bundy tennis court, the James R. H. Wagner Company, selling agents of Brentwood Place, will build another tennis court rivaling in quality and beauty any in existence.

The materials that will be used for the court itself cannot be equaled in any other courts on the Coast outside of that employed in the "Midwick" and "Los Angeles" Country Clubs. Besides the superiority of the courts in construction, many additional features will be added that will make them in every way superior to other courts.

Among other features there will be a beautiful pergola established for the comfort of the ladies. This will be a veritable arbor of beautiful bloom, the crimson of the poinsettia, the deep amethyst of the orchid and the gold of the tea rose, standing out in striking contrast to the vine twined, white Colonial pillars.

Others of prominence who have just started, or are about to start their beautiful homes at Brentwood Place are: W. P. Anderson, editor of the Los Angeles Herald, who is to build a $5000 home; Mr. Glendule of the Wright, Callender and Andrews Company, to build a $6000 home at once; Mr. James R. H. Wagner, of the James R. H. Wagner Company, of the Realty Board Building, who will enter his $7000 home in two weeks; R. C. Lewis, who is building a $6000 home; Paul King who is building a $7000 home, and H. L. Groninger.



In Orange County.

HOSPITAL, CHURCH; THEATER, CLUB.

SANTA ANA SCENE OF MUCH CONSTRUCTION WORK.

County Supervisors Authorize Structure for Indigent Sick—Baptists [illegible] Over Brick Versus Stone for Edifice to Replace Frame Building.

SANTA ANA, Feb. 22.—Orange County is now the scene of extensive building operations. The County Supervisors this week approved the plans of Architect Fred H. Eley for the County Hospital to be located on the new poor farm, at the west end of Chapman avenue. It will cost [illegible], having floor space of 48x90 feet. It will be of reinforced concrete, two stories high, with basement and roof garden, solarium and pergola. On the first floor will be the county physician's reception and consultation-room, matron's quarters, two wards for insane persons, men's ward, diet kitchen and two private wards. On the upper floor will be an operating-room, etherizing and sterilizing rooms, maternity ward, rooms for electrical treatment; one private ward, and men's and women's wards, each with seven beds.

One hundred acres of picturesque wooded land in the Silverado Canyon have been contracted for by John [illegible] Knight, who is the active spirit in the formation of a new country club to succeed the defunct Modjeska Country Club. The new club is to have a limited membership, and already enough citizens have been accepted to assure the success of the organization. The land is studded with live oaks, sycamores and water elders, and has flowing springs and a live stream running through it. Bungalows may be erected for members, in addition to the clubhouse.

Upwards of $20,000 is being expended in improvements and additions to the Rossmore Hotel. Manager [illegible] A. Alexander is keeping a large force of mechanics at work to have the remodeled house in desired condition within thirty days. Mrs. A. [illegible] is spending $7000 constructing an eighteen-room apartment-house at No. 802 South Main street. [illegible] Vial and Diers are building a two-story brick business block at the southeast corner of Sixth and [illegible] streets to cost about $10,000. Fowler and Remsberg are clearing the site for their theater, to be located at the northeast corner of Third and Spurgeon streets. This structure is to cost $30,000 and will have stores on the ground floor.

The Register is to have a new $20,000 home at the southwest corner of Third and Sycamore streets. Ground has been broken and the basement is being prepared for the presses.

Between $30,000 and $40,000 will be the cost of the new edifice, that is to be erected for the First Baptist Church on the site of the present church. On this site is the oldest church auditorium in Santa Ana, having been erected in the earliest days, when W. H. Spurgeon, "father of Santa Ana," donated the site for the building. The cost of the structure will depend upon whether brick or stone is the chief material to be used, a committee of the church having this question now under consideration.

Hartranft, owner of the Glendale-Eagle Rock electric line, to extend that line from its present northern terminus at Verdugo Park north to La Canada, Montrose and La Crescenta as soon as possible. The line to Montrose, it is understood, will be begun at once. Hartranft stated this week that the proposed improvements will cost about $65,000. It is expected that the work will be started within two weeks.

IN THE MISSION STYLE.

Construction is well under way upon a three-story frame and plaster apartment-house that was planned and is now being built by the Meinardus Construction Company for R. H. Dorsey and C. D. Wright at Arapahoe and San Marino. The building is in the mission style and 68x110 feet in size. It will contain 100 rooms, divided into two and three-room apartments, together with a large lobby and an amusement-room, the latter in the basement. The main approach will be through a center court at the front of the building.

OPEN SAN DIEGO TRACTS.

Officers of the Southern California Home Builders announce that the company has recently purchased forty more lots near its Arizona-street tract in San Diego and twenty-two acres at El Cajon, a suburb of San Diego. Both tracts, it is stated, will be built up with bungalows.

PURE AIR EXPENSIVE.

The German-American Savings Bank, in the Union Oil building, is spending $20,000 on a system of ventilation. The atmosphere will be kept at 70 degrees summer and winter, and will be changed every six minutes. On entering the ventilating system the air is washed by being drawn through running water.

THE BLUE SKY LAW.

By the Sound Government League.

Every important civic organization in Los Angeles, at a recent mass meeting, denounced the Gates "blue sky" bill and all similar measures on the ground that they form an attempt to foist upon California legislation designed for the totally different conditions in the State of Kansas.

The sense of the meeting was recorded in favor of such a law as outlined in the Lyon bill, which protects the public from fraud, without choking sound industry, by means of full publicity.

Even in Kansas, it was pointed out, the "blue sky" law, putting absolute power over all industry into the hands of one man, has throttled many legitimate enterprises. Several speakers said that even if the development of this State called for the same treatment as in the Middle West, this type of blue sky law would drive capital from our industries.

But to attempt to transplant the Kansas law into the virgin soil of the Pacific Coast was ridiculed as the height of absurdity, even if the law were conceded to be an unqualified success in its native State.

For the same reason the law was overwhelmingly rejected by a popular initiative vote in Oregon. It was argued with success that the newly-started industries of a young commonwealth would starve for capital where an older State could finance its own enterprises.

At the Los Angeles mass meeting the Gates bill was shown to mean certain disaster to California for the following reasons:

(1) California must be, as Kansas need not be, a manufacturing State. While Kansas is near the great iron and coal-producing centers and can secure factory products at near the cost of production, California must, if she is to grow much more, make her own machinery, clothing and general merchandise. She must buy less and sell more than hitherto.

(2) California has vast undeveloped sources of electrical power in her mountain streams, all awaiting the aid of outside capital to make it available for manufacturing purposes; great mineral resources for raw material such as timber and wool; labor will find profitable employment in our mills and shipyards once investors discover our resources and lend their aid; while Kansas reaps great staple crops and has capital to spare.

(3) California is a new State, Kansas is comparatively well developed. For many years California must borrow; Kansas lends. In land, California has great tracts awaiting and needing settlers; Kansas is cultivating practically all her tillable area.

In all these and in other similar regards it was demonstrated that the assumption that Kansas offers the only kind of "blue sky" law to be had is false, and that the Gates bill, which is a replica of the Kansas law, is a vicious misfit under our conditions. Moreover, as was clearly brought out, such measures as the Lyon bill, safeguarding the investor by complete publicity, offers a type of "blue sky" law which protects all and injures no good cause, and conforms to California's needs.

HOMES AT PALISADES.

Many fine new homes are being built on the J. J. Davis 180-acre subdivision of the Palisades. The building activity follows the completion of the boulevard system and the installation of gas, electricity, sewers and water. The property enjoys the combination of mountains and sea distinctive of Santa Monica, and although only two blocks from the ocean, is 250 feet above sea level. Recent developments in the tract follow: J. M. Harbert has bought the corner of Marguerite and Eighth streets; Mrs. Calla J. Westfall will build a $6000 home on Eleventh street near Georgina; C. W. Warner has started foundations for his $4500 home at Alba and Tenth streets, Mrs. Ella Jergeson will build a bungalow on Eleventh street near Georgina, S. M. Jones has begun a $6000 bungalow on the corner of Eleventh street and Georgina, C. L. Randolf's $5000 home on Georgina street will be completed this week and Dr. DeWitt Crevelling's home on Tenth street will be ready for occupancy within ten days.

NEW MANAGER.

A. O. Kelliher, formerly a real estate operator of Minneapolis, has been appointed manager of subdivisions for the California Real Estate and Building Company. Kelliher has been in Los Angeles for two years and has been identified with the subdivision work of the Janss Investment Company during that time. Some of the larger tracts to be handled by Kellihier are Wilshire square, Coronado Terrace, Huntington Drive tract, Burck's Golden tract, Normandie avenue tract and subdivisions on Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth streets and Denker avenue.

TO STUDY HARBORS.

Fifty-two salesmen of the harbor lands department of the Los Angeles Investment Company have formed a study class to delve into the development of the world's great harbors. These salesmen, under direction of Patrick C. Campbell, sales manager, meet weekly and combine a "smoker" with the serious discussion of harbor affairs.

DEMOCRATS YELL ECONOMY, BEST PLAN TO SPEND MORE.

False Cry Raised by Party When in the Minority Shown to Be Ridiculous by Present Attitude of Democratic Leaders Regarding the Appropriations for the Coming Year.

[Staff Correspondent of The Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—If Congress, at any one session thereof, proposed to build twelve more dreadnoughts than it had ordered the year before; if it proposed to construct a building as expensive as the nation's Capitol in each of the seven largest cities of the country, or if it proposed to build a library of Congress in each of the seventeen largest cities, would it jar loose something like that which is now taking place in Mexico's capital? Would it?

At this very minute this third and last session of the Sixty-second Congress, the first the Democrats have controlled for sixteen years, they are proposing to do the equivalent of any one of those things.

Because, perhaps, no man has to walk up to the captain's desk and put down the money to pay his share of the taxes levied for national purposes, there is not such an uproar as there would be at City Hall or at the $13,000,000 Capitol at Harrisburg were something equally as expensive proposed at either of those places.

These economical Democrats are proposing to increase the tax on the average family of five persons from $50.95 to $58.45. They are proposing to increase the burden of taxation by forcing the head of the family to contribute the price of a pair of shoes for each youngster in the family in addition to what he gave up last year.

They are proposing that he contribute the price of one pair of nice Sunday trousers in addition to what they forced him to give up for running the government during the current fiscal year.

ASKED TO DIG UP $150,000,000.

If it is the family of a day laborer, the additional tax proposed amounts to probably one pair of shoes for father and mother and each of the three children, or the price of a jacket for mother, or the price of a hat for mother and daughter.

If it is a bricklayer who is taking notice of these remarks, he is expected to give up one and a half days' work in addition to what he contributed last year.

Inasmuch as the brickmason cannot work every secular day of the year, the additional tax probably amounts to more than two days' work.

In round numbers the Democrats are asking the American people to dig up $150,000,000 more than they shelled out a year ago. Appropriation bills already agreed upon by the various committees that have charge of such measures call for the disbursement of the staggering total of $1,169,000,000, which is exactly $150,000,000 more than was appropriated for the year that is now running through the hourglass, and which ends on June 30.

This in the face of four years' work by President Taft to cut down expenses; in face of the professions of the Democratic party this looks like treason, not of the Senate, but of the Democrats and near-Republicans in control of the House.

President Taft succeeded in cutting down the expenses of the government, although he never got any credit for doing so, especially from the followers of Theodore Roosevelt, who dipped into the Treasury more prodigiously than any man in the White House, for, during his seven years' incumbency, the expenses of the government practically doubled.

That total of $1,169,000,000 includes $25,000,000 carried on an omnibus public buildings bill which President-elect Wilson, Speaker Clark, Majority Leader Underwood and Appropriations Chairman Fitzgerald are trying to smother to death, notwithstanding that the members of that committee have given allowances to each of the big leaders and also to Minority Leader Mann, amounting to $1,000,000 for Underwood, $60,000 to Champ Clark, $50,000 for Mann and an indefinite sum for Fitzgerald.

The last-mentioned never asked for a cent for the enlargement of the postoffice at Brooklyn. When the time comes, if the bill is not smothered, he is going to get up in his place and denounce this attempt to bribe the leaders as the most unblushing thing he ever heard of.

COSTS AS MUCH AS BALKAN WAR.

The Sherwood Pension Bill, the Omnibus Public Building Bill and the increase in naval appropriations account for $94,000,000 of the proposed increase. The increase in the other items for which allowances must be made therefore amounts to only $56,000,000, or a mounting of expenses at the rate of a little more than $1,000,000 a week, or, say, $150,000 in round numbers per day.

The daily increase proposed by the Democrats, aside from the increases under the Sherwood bill, is as much as the war is costing any of the Balkan states. That is no such piffling little war as that going on south of the Rio Grande.

The total of appropriations proposed is nearly equal to one-half of the funded debt of the 184 cities of the country of 30,000 population and more. Why, when Oom Paul Kruger talked about staggering humanity by means of the war he proposed waging for the freedom of his Boers he had no idea how staggering a total of disbursements a Democratic Congress could propose to pay the ordinary operating expenses of the United States government for a single year.

During the year past the 184 cities made a net increase of their funded debts amounting to $157,000,000, or just a little more than it is proposed to increase the ordinary expenses of the United States government.

While it may be objected that provision for public buildings is not an ordinary operating expense, the fact is that this government has never issued bonds for such a purpose within the memory of any man now living. It has always been counted as an ordinary expense.

"I must laugh a little," said John Davis Long, former Secretary of the Navy, one-time Governor of Massachusetts, during a talk with him about the troubles the Democratic leaders are having to make their performances square with their promises. Then he chuckled.

FOUGHT AGAINST CHANGE.

"In the Forty-ninth Congress, twenty-six years ago, the 'progressives' of that day changed the rules of the House so that the Committee on Appropriations was divested of some of its power. They said it had grown tyrannical because it did not always give as much money as every department of the government demanded.

"The change allowed the Committee on Naval Affairs to make up the naval appropriation bill; Military Affairs, the bill for the support of the army and so on down the list, just as it is being done now.

"We fought against the change as hard as we knew how. We said the result would be an enormous expansion of the expenses of the government. We were not progressive, they said.

"The next progressive step was to deprive the Speaker of his authority to appoint committees and the Rules Committee to manage the House. The 'progressives' said the Speaker and the Rules Committee were throttling progressive measures.

"Now it seems to me there is no governor on the engine at all. It is threatening to run wild, if not actually doing so. Instead of one Congress saying how much money shall be taken out of the treasury there are just as many Congresses as there are committees having the power to bring in appropriation bills. The Speaker has no bolts to hurl at chairmen who refuse to obey the rule to keep appropriations down to the minimum.

"Neither can the chairmen of the committees check up on each other as they used to do when each man was beholden for his place to the Speaker. Every committee does as it pleases, and just now all seem to be pleased to show the impotence of the Speaker and the nominal leaders."

EVERYTHING TOPSY-TURVY.

The first time a Republican Congress made allowances for the two years of its life amounting to one billion dollars, the Democrats persuaded the country that it was not a billion-dollar Congress.

That was only twenty-two years ago. Now it is proposed to appropriate at the rate of $2,250,000,000 per Congress. The Democratic leaders tear their hair and bark at each other. But there is no one to exercise general supervision such as the Speaker was able to exercise after the Committee on Appropriations was deprived of its authority to watch the treasury.

The condition now is exactly as would be the case in a family were each member of it absolutely free to spend money as he willed, without regard to the members of the family who put the money into the treasury.

Perhaps it would be better to compare the condition to that which would prevail in a business establishment were the boss of the shipping department allowed to spend all the money he thought he ought to have, the man in charge of the machinery to scrap his engines and elevators as often as he thought desirable, and the man in charge of the building to make changes without consulting anybody else.

President Taft long ago realized the awfulness of the situation. James Bryce, the retiring British Ambassador, in his "American Commonwealth," years ago called attention to the spending without thinking of where the money was coming from which characterized the American government.

Every thinking man has known the absolute idiocy of the system. But when the Appropriations Committee checked up those who wanted to spend more money they yelled about progress and [illegible] with their schemes to make the treasury yield up more cash. When Speakers Reed, Henderson and Cannon put on the brakes, there was the same sort of yell.

A PLAIN, FRANKATEM

IN offering a limited amount of stock for sale in the Citrus Farms Company, we want to talk to you very plainly and very frankly. We know that we have a wonderful property—and we ask your careful consideration. Do not glance hastily over this advertisement, but read it slowly and thoughtfully; note the names and standing of those who have invested and who endorse this company and its property; then call upon us either by letter, in person or by telephone for further interest-compelling facts that will convince you of the exceptional nature of this undertaking and the value of Citrus Farms stock from an investment standpoint.

As you know, the Citrus industry has been well called the "Capitalists' Game" on account of the large capital required to properly manage and bring it up to the producing stage, as well as the big returns to be obtained—but here is an opportunity for you to get in on the ground floor where the small investor has an equal chance with the large one—and the person of limited means can actively participate in this highly remunerative industry.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 22, 1912.

I recently visited the tract of land belonging to you, situated on the north side of Pleasant Valley, Ventura County, and comprising 1080 acres, and from my observations and examinations, both physical and chemical, I believe it to be admirably suited to lemon culture. The tract lies on the warm southern slope reaching out from the foot of a line of high hills which protect it from winds coming from the north, east and west, and according to the observations made by you has a minimum winter temperature of 34 degrees and a summer maximum of 98 degrees. It is for the most part, if not wholly, above the level of the floor of the valley, and hence above the cold, frosty air of the lower lands; and its regular slope, estimated at 75 feet per mile, insures excellent drainage southward.

The other day I spent some time going over the trees on your ranch and I find that the frost has done no damage at all. * * * Everything is in splendid condition.

(Signed) C. W. DECKER.

Rialto, Cal., Sept. 18, 1912.

After examining your 1080-acre ranch, I have the following statements to make relative to the fitness of your ranch for fruit growing: The soil is porous enough to admit of good aeration and the taking of water by gravity, yet at the same time it is close enough grained to have a good capillary force so as to insure a good lateral percolation of sub-soil water, thereby reducing the necessity of so many furrows for irrigation as is commonly used. The capillarity is also great enough to insure the return of sub-soil water from at least five feet deep, so that less frequent irrigations are required than is practiced in most soils. In short, the physical composition of this soil is everything that could be desired. The soil is free from rocks; free from hardpan; it has the best of physical composition and indications that its chemical composition is good. If it has any undesirable features I fail to find them.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that I have personally inspected the property of the Citrus Farms Company, located in Pleasant Valley, County of Ventura, California, consisting of 1080 acres and nine flowing wells of water. I consider this an ideal location and soil for the culture of lemons, and especially well located for irrigating. The soil is a sandy loam, has southern exposure, well protected from the winds, and, I am informed, frostless. I consider it one of the best propositions that has been placed before me for my consideration, and cheerfully recommend same to any one interested in Citrus Fruit Land, and, as a business proposition, worthy of careful consideration.

A Conservative Estimate of Profits

The following is a very conservative estimate made by experts of the profits to be derived from bearing acres of our property at the years shown:

Income From 1000 Acres of Lemons
Planting 100 Trees to the Acre

4th year 1000 acres, 1 box to tree at $1.00 box NET	$100,000
5th year 1000 acres, 2½ boxes to tree at $1.00 box NET	250,000
6th year 1000 acres, 5 boxes to tree at $1.00 box NET	500,000
7th year 1000 acres, 7 boxes to tree at $1.00 box NET	700,000
8th and after 1000 acres, 8 boxes to tree at $1.00 box NET	800,000

The number of boxes to be expected each year from a tree, as shown above, are very conservative in the majority of groves throughout Southern California, the number of boxes are from one and one-half more than are allowed in the above estimate. The figure of $1.00 per box, below the sum now being received per box by the growers throughout Southern California.

85 acres of this planted to 2-year-old lemon trees—which were untouched by the recent frost —and now valu $750 to $1000 per acre. The balance of the rancho will be planted as fast as the work can be spring.

As this work of the value of the property will greatly increase with a consequent rise in price of stock, should available for purchase.

Water—the be Southern California—is tributary to this property to a larger extent than will ever be needed being fortunate in controlling some 800 miner's inches. As only one miner's inch is required to each five acres of land it will readily appear that the company has an immense asset in its water rights alone.

The most competent experts will tell you that a very limited acreage in Southern California is adapted to the growing of lemons—and of this limited area we possess the cream. With all our acreage, producing lemons at an average net profit of $1.87 per box—Southern California's average net profit during the past eight years—can you figure the worth of our holdings?

It is not our intention to spread out the stock selling operations of this company over an extended period. We are raising a limited amount of money for a definite purpose—to finish planting the rest of our property to lemons. We want to do this as soon as possible, hence this advertisement—and we urge you to buy Citrus Farms stock now while you have the opportunity.

What Investors Say

Citrus Farms Company: SANTA PAULA, Cal., May 23, 1912.

Gentlemen: In handing you my subscription for a large block of stock in your corporation, I believe it to be the most remunerative and safest investment that I have ever made.

I have known the Eleven Hundred Acres for the past twenty years and again inspected it a day or two prior to my investing. I personally inquired of the land owners adjoining your property and found that their prices in all instances were two or three times what you paid for yours, and in four or five cases they were four times as high and actually getting large returns on such valuation. Your land is especially adapted to the growth of Lemons—high hills on the north, southern exposure and ideal summer and winter climate. When I last looked at your property the entire eleven hundred acres were planted to Lima beans.

I thank you for the opportunity of becoming part owner of what will be the largest Lemon grove in the world. Very truly yours, (Signed) G. W. FAULKNER.

SANTA PAULA, Cal., May 24, 1912.

FAMS COMPANY

VESTM DG., 8TH AND BROADWAY

Day After Tomorrow Gibraltar Shares Advance to 18 Cents

IN KEEPING WITH THE STEADY INCREASE IN VALUABLE PROPERTIES WHICH INCLUDE IMMENSE NURSERIES AND BROAD ACREAGE OF THE RICHEST FRUIT LAND, THE SHARES OF THE GIBRALTAR INVESTMENT AND HOME BUILDING COMPANY WILL ADVANCE TUESDAY AT 11:15 P.M.

From 17 to 18 Cents a Share

The Investor Who Buys Now

Will secure not only the increased value of his stock, but the full quarterly dividend of 3½ per cent. at the rate of 14 per cent. per annum on par upon the shares that the money invested actually pays for, which will be paid for the quarter ending February 28, to all holders of preferred stock, who buy before the books are closed.

THE STEADY GROWTH OF GIBRALTAR

Is due to the fact that it is builded upon the broadest of co-operative principles, and is engaged in growing trees and the development of rich acres. Gibraltar sells the planted orchard and grows the trees with which to plant the acre. Gibraltar investments in the land have proven sound and profitable as has every move that the Gibraltar Investment and Home Building Company has made. The fertile, well watered and mountain protected 1897-acre tract of orange, lemon and olive land which Gibraltar is selling upon easy terms—10 years if desired—is being rapidly bought by those desiring planted orchard homes. Gibraltar plants the acre with trees best suited to the soil.

RECORD EXCURSIONS CARRY LAND BUYERS TO GIBRALTAR ACRES

Gibraltar's Excursion last Wednesday carried 571 people to the land at Bloomington. After inspecting Gibraltar acres they were taken to the National Orange Show at San Bernardino, where they viewed the splendid fruit exhibit of nearly 8 carloads of lemons and golden oranges from Bloomington, and were enthusiastic in their praise of Gibraltar's unique exhibit, in Industrial Tent, representing from seed bed and propagating plant to the finished orchard home.

SHARES ADVANCE FROM 17 TO 18 CENTS FEBRUARY 25

Hundreds upon hundreds of holders of Gibraltar stock have visited the rich tract of land and the great olive propagating plants and nurseries included in the assets that back their dollars, and returned satisfied and enthusiastic. In the Industrial Department, the Gibraltar exhibit of products from Bloomington and of the olive propagating plant and the complete orchard home won first prize.

The display of corn, potatoes, peanuts, big pumpkins, tobacco, etc., plainly showed what can be grown in these fertile acres.

The management of the orange show extended to the Gibraltar Excursionist the privilege of re-entry to the show after visiting Gibraltar's immense plant, where 4,000,000 olive trees are being propagated.

GIBRALTAR IS PROPAGATING AND GROWING OVER 11,000,000 TREES

The greatest of the propagating plants in the world at San Bernardino, Hemet and Montebello are joined to the immense nurseries at these points and at Rialto, Glendora, Redlands and other points in growing a supply of olive and other trees greater than the combined output of all other sections. The price of olive trees is steadily advancing and the thriving condition of the olive industry is such that the demand for trees for planting cannot be supplied. Gibraltar shareholders are making profits from the propagating and growing of olive, citrus and other trees, in addition to the purchase of land in large tracts and the planting, subdividing and selling as the completed orchard home.

GOMPERS AS LORD HIGH ADMIRAL.

[EDITORIAL.]

THE American Federation of Labor, not content with ruling the industries of the land, proposes to extend its dominion over the sea. Its zoo must include sharks as well as tigers. It has before Congress a measure known as the "Wilson involuntary servitude bill for seamen." It is asserted that the passing of this bill would make possible a gigantic trust of labor unions that could take away all control of crews from owners and commanders of vessels, and put it in the hands of the union, which, the owners say, would be a menace to the safety of passengers.

The captain of a ship must in the nature of things be an absolute despot whose orders must be obeyed. The unlawful exercise of the power vested in him may be reviewed by the courts when his vessel reaches a harbor. But on the high seas his authority may not be questioned. If the captain should, with or without cause, order the watch below to tumble out of their bunks and go aloft to reef topsails, and a walking delegate of the Seamen's Union (who was obliged by law to be carried as a passenger) should countermand the order, the captain would not be permitted as now to use a belaying pin or a piece of knotted rope to enforce his orders, the topsails might be blown away and the vessel wrecked or forced to seek another port than the one to which she was bound.

"On the Pacific Coast," said Capt. Luckhorst, marine superintendent of the American and Red Star lines, "the seamen's unions have full control, and steamship owners and captains are completely at their mercy. The crew have to receive the same rations as the captain, and the foremen have to be supplied with clean bed sheets daily."

Capt. Robert Dollar, in a recent speech before the Senate Committee, said that the steamship President, with 500 passengers on board in the harbor of San Francisco, was held up five hours by the president of the Firemen's Union, who declared that he was not quite satisfied with the laundry employed by the company to wash the sheets for the firemen. Finally he allowed the vessel to leave for Seattle with the passengers furious at his conduct.

Time was, not so many years ago, when salt beef and pork and sea biscuit hard as a pawnbroker's heart, with tea and coffee sweetened with molasses, and "duff" once or twice a week constituted the fare of a seaman. Sometimes the meat was tainted and the biscuit were "weevily."

This for years has been changed for the better, and very much for the better. The printed bill of fare of the Red Star liner Vaderland gives for the crews breakfast on Wednesdays, porridge, grilled smoked herrings, fried sausages, mashed potatoes, and coffee; dinner, pea soup, roast mutton, French beans, potatoes, currant dumplings and sweet sauce, and stewed apples; supper, stewed beef, macaroni, potatoes, stewed prunes and tea, with ample supply of fresh bread. In addition to the above the men get butter, marmalade, pickles and cheese daily.

On the Pacific Coast the crews get three full meals a day, with the addition of coffee and light refreshments at 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Here is a specimen of the bill of fare nailed up in the forecastle of every ship sailing out of a Pacific Coast port:

Sunday breakfast—Rolled oats, ham and eggs, baked potatoes, hot cakes and syrup, bread, butter and coffee. Dinner—Oyster soup, roast beef, lamb stew with green peas, string beans, mashed potatoes, pickles, bread and butter, plum pudding with sauce, coffee. Supper—Beefsteak and onions, fried potatoes, sliced tomatoes, bread and butter, gingerbread, fruit and tea.

It is to be hoped that Congress will not by the passage of the Wilson protective bill prevent the revival of American shipping promised by the completion of the Panama Canal. The effect of such mischievous legislation is observable in Australia.

"There the labor unions have obtained such complete control over the shipping regulations dealing with the crews of all vessels that the country is penalized by ship owners who demand higher rates to carry cargoes to Australian ports owing to the risk of losing their crews and having to pay higher wages through being under the eight-hour day agreement." Capt. Luckhorst said that if the unions got control of the Atlantic Coast the ports of New York, Boston and Philadelphia would be deserted by foreign ship owners and the trade diverted to Canadian ports.

The Jack tar of the future will, if the unions can gain control of our shipping interests, be not unlike the description of him given in "Pinafore":

"His ever ready fist should be ready to resist
A dictatorial word.
His eyes should flash and his breast protrude
And this should be his customary attitude."

Labor's Unrest.

STRIKES ON AND OFF AND STRIKES COMING.

THE fifty-four eastern railroads affected by the 95 per cent. strike vote of the 38,000 firemen working thereon have 50,000 miles of track, serve approximately 50,000,000 people and have on their pay rolls 680,000 workers. This means suffering to 680,000, or nearly that, if the strike of the 38,000 goes on. The actual voting figures were 32,718 for a strike and only 1198 against. The 38,000 includes 10,000 firemen-engineers, who remained in the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen after they were promoted to be engineers. They are sharing in the wage-raise awarded to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, yet under the tyrannous union labor rules they must strike with the firemen. We see so often that there is no form of tyranny worse than union-labor tyranny. It is authoritatively claimed that the Brotherhood of Firemen has $538,000 in its treasury for use in emergencies and that it will also be able to levy assessments for strike relief on the railroad firemen's organizations of the West and the South. The union claims to be better equipped than any union has ever been equipped for the greatest strike struggle in the history of the country. On the other hand, the railroad managers insist that they are ready with a very large force of strike-breakers and will try to keep their roads running. If both sides persist in their plans and the strike goes on, anger will result and violence undoubtedly follow. Then the utter folly of all this in the face of the fact that both sides want to arbitrate but cannot agree on the plan of arbitration. In New York it is, fortunately, not considered likely that members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers will refuse to work with non-union firemen. The engineers are protected by an agreement of their own. The firemen want arbitration under the Erdman act, but the railroads object because that act leaves the power of determining the award in the hands of one man. They asked for an arbitration board of high standing as in the recent engineers' case, which board gave the engineers increased pay for the future and also a million dollars of back pay increases. The effect on commerce will be calamitous if the strike lasts a week. As New York is the center of supplies for a large territory, continuance of the strike means famine conditions. The demands of the firemen, as stated by the Sun, are:

Between 140,000 and 170,000 pounds weight locomotives, $3 per 100 miles for passenger and $3.35 for through freight locomotives, one fireman doing the work.

Between 170,000 and 200,000, $3.20 for passenger and $3.50 for through freight service, one fireman being stipulated.

Between 200,000 and 250,000, $3.40 for passenger, one fireman stipulated, and $3.35 for each of two firemen on through freight locomotives.

Between 300,000 and 350,000, $3.50 for passenger, one fireman, and $3.50 for each of two firemen on through freight locomotives.

Between 350,000 and 500,000 and over, pay of $4 for each 100 miles for one fireman on passenger trains, and $3.50 for each 100 miles for each of two firemen on through freight trains.

Granting of these demands would cost the fifty-four railroads $9,600,000 a year. The firemen's first demands called for $20,000,000 a year, but they reduced that demand to one costing $15,000,000 a year, and again reduced to the present $9,600,000 demand, on which they stand firm.

To these demands the railroads are willing to pay as follows:

For locomotives in passenger service weighing between 140,000 and 175,000 pounds, 10 cents per 100 miles to be added to the present rates.

For passenger locomotives weighing 175,000 pounds and over, 15 cents per 100 miles to be added to the present rates, with a maximum of $2.70 per 100 miles.

For freight locomotives between 140,000 and 70,000 pounds, 10 cents per 100 miles increase, with a maximum of $2.

For freight locomotives weighing 175,000 pounds and over, 15 cents per 100 miles advance, with a maximum of $3.25.

These offers, costing the railroads $3,000,000 a year, the men reject as vigorously as the railroads reject the men's formulated demands.

Electric locomotive firemen ask from $2.80 to $3.35 a day, according to the class of service, whereas the railroads are willing to pay $2.40 to $2.75 a day.

If this strike goes on more than a million commuters—suburban resident workers of New York City—will be hit, besides thousands of transients who travel daily on the railroads concerned. New York banks will not have sufficient men to do their work, commercial houses of every description will be crippled and there will be a startling scarcity of help in every line. Already many firms have brought their suburban-resident help to the city, quartering them in hotels, etc., to remain till the trouble is over. Not only New York, but Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Boston and scores more of big towns will be crippled by the strike in proportion to the number of railroads entering them. Even the mails will be hindered. Though far away from the scene of action we of Los Angeles will suffer in shipments, receipts, mails, etc. Business all over the East and West is already suffering by the uncertainty of the present and past weeks.

Now, New York is threatened with a strike of 30,000 members of the misses' and children's dressmakers' union, 95 per cent. of whom are girls. They demand a fifty-four-hour working week, 20 per cent. increase in wages, a recognition of the union agreement, payment for four holidays in the year, and sanitary shops. The 8000 striking kimono and wrapper girls have returned to work under a protocol providing for higher wages, a shorter work day, sanitary shops and other concessions.

No general settlement of the strike of the New York workers in men's garments is yet reported.

Albany, N. Y., has a small strike of members of local No. 25, United Hat and Cap Makers. The men getting $15 a week want $17, and those getting $17 want $18. Girls on strike with the men, who get $8 a week do not ask for any increase. Demand is also made for "recognition of the union."

Employees of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph Company, covering California, Arizona, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, and Nevada, are virtually unanimous in favor of a general strike for 50 cents a day more pay. Two thousand linemen, cable splicers, switchboard men, trouble men, repairers, testboard men, and facility men, so voted a few days ago. The vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers hopes to avert the strike by a settlement with the company.

Los Angeles is to have a general strike on May 1, next, of all the well-paid workers in its, at present, prosperous building trades, if McCarthy, Gompers, Johannsen and company, can blind the eyes of the workers to the heavy, futile loss which will be theirs if they do strike.

Encouraged by members of the woman's suffrage party of New York, led by Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, chairman, girl pickets for the strikers resume fighting. This must hurt the cause of woman suffrage, particularly in that State. Similar suffrage, encouragement of Newark (N. J.) strikers, was given very prominently at Orange, N. J., assisted by former State Senator Colby and ex-Gov. Fort. A serious strike of girl garment workers is on at Newark.

Tailors of the United Garment Workers' Union of New York, now on strike, have voted down the strike settlement agreement made by officers of their union with the United Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association because it provides a fifty-two-hour instead of a fifty-hour working week. In sympathy, the 7500 cutters, who have secured a forty-eight-hour working week, stay out until the tailors are satisfied. The agreement rejected by the tailors includes a 10 per cent. raise for piece work, and a $1 a week raise for week work. It also provides wage boards to standardize wages, but does not recognize the closed shop, though it states that union workers shall not be discriminated against.

I. W. W. leaders have brought on a strike among the rubber workers of Akron, O. The strikers claim that 6000 men are out.

The strike situation in the Kanawha coal fields of West Virginia is very serious. Practically a revolution against constituted State authority is in progress. In three days, sixteen lives were lost in strike riots. One hundred and twenty-five strikers are under arrest. The military forces are out in full force. It is a condition of anarchy. Portions of four counties are under martial law. Those arrested will be tried by a military court and summarily punished if proven guilty.

Grievances.

WAGES TOO LOW, SAY STRIKERS.

GARMENT WORKERS COMPLAIN OF BOSTON CONDITIONS.

Every Clothing House in City, Declare Witnesses for the Union, Has Its Work Done in Tenement Houses Which They Call Unfit for Persons to Occupy.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—There scarcely is a clothing workshop in Boston that does not have some of its garments made in tenement-houses, according to a statement made by striking garment workers before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration which began an investigation Monday of the grievance of the strikers.

Samuel Zorn, head of the joint executive board of the United Garment Workers, named several shops in the city which he said absolutely were unfit for persons to work in. Other speakers described working conditions and told of the long hours of labor.

WORKS ELEVEN HOURS.

Morris Procansky, a vest maker, said that he worked from 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. with one hour for dinner. He received $11 a week if he worked the twelve hours. Girls were paid $3, $5 and $7 a week, the witness said.

Annie Winer, a machine operator, said she worked from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., and was supposed to get $9 a week, but her average pay was between $3 and $4.

Louis Greenbaum, 65 years old, who does piece work, is married and has seven children. He said he could make $8.50 a week in the busy season and in the slack season between $3 and $4.

GETS DOLLAR A DAY.

Morris Milinea, an aged man, wept as he told the committee that he had been thirteen years in the trade. After five years as a piece pressman, he said, he got $7 a week.

He now works from 5 a.m. until 9 p.m. and gets $13 to $14 a week. He said that the boss gave him the key and he often went to the shop as early as 4 a.m. and worked until 9 and even 10 at night.

For the second time since the strike of garment workers was declared police reserves were called out today to disperse a crowd that had gathered near a non-union clothing establishment. Two strikers were arrested.

Women as Strike Breakers.

[Philadelphia Press:] The Lehigh Valley Railroad, which has a strike on its hands at Packerton, Pa., has pressed women into service as strike breakers to take the place of the car cleaners who joined inspectors and repair men in a sympathy strike.

About fifty women were given employment at Wilkesbarre recently and they were well guarded while on duty. No attempt was made to interfere with the work of the women.

Thirty Million Dollars Loss.

[New York Times:] More than one-tenth of the annual output of men's and youths' ready-made clothing, amounting to $20,000,000, it is estimated, has been lost to New York City as the result of the strike that has been waged by the United Garment Workers of America since December 30. The loss in wages to the workmen is between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000. This does not include the other garment strikes.

Suppression.

DEPORT I.W.W. LEADERS SAYS ASTOR HOTEL MAN.

Proprietor of Big New York Hostelry Says Time Has Come When Country Should Rid Itself of Lawless Disturbers of the Ettor Type and Favors Isolating Them Like Lepers on Some Remote Island.

[BY FEDERAL (WIRELESS) LINE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Special Dispatch.] "Is it not time for this community to inaugurate measures to suppress organizations like the Industrial Workers of the World, who would correct alleged wrongs with lawlessness, violence and destruction of property?" asks William A. Muschenheim, proprietor of the Hotel Astor.

"The speech of Ettor to the striking waiters on January 16, advising them to make it unsafe for capitalists to eat food prepared by members of the union," Muschenheim said, "was more than the people could stand, and this individual saw that he had overtaxed the public's sense of right as well as its patience. But think of the seed he had sown in poisoning the minds of uneducated, illiterate foreigners, to whom liberty means license, who were sent out day and night with rubber hose and lead pipe to batter the heads of loyal employees and to destroy property, and, in case they were reinstated in their former places, to poison the food.

"These self-appointed revolutionary leaders should be deported, or isolated like lepers on some remote island, where they may no longer contaminate the minds of those whom they seek to lead. I believe welfare work and its publication will largely correct the falsehoods spread broadcast as to the conditions affecting the laboring class; minimize the influence of these agitators; bring about a better understanding between employer and empolyee; cause those naturally vicious to hesitate and those able to think for themselves to view with distrust the inflammatory utterances of parasites who live on the working classes."

Mr. Muschenheim spoke as a member of the New York City Hotel Association, which has 107 members, who pay taxes on $200,000,000 worth of property.

CANNOT COMPEL MEN.

Any Person Can Lay Information of Violence During a Strike or Trade Dispute.

[American Employer:] The conspiracy and protection of property act, 1875, provides that every person, who, with a view to compelling any other person to abstain from doing any act which such other person has a legal right to do, wrongfully and without legal authority uses violence or to intimidate such other person, is guilty of an offense and liable to punishment. The workmen at certain motor car works, in furtherance of trade dispute, went on strike. While certain workmen were coming from the works in a motor van, they were met by a crowd of the strikers, who shouted opprobrious epithets and threw eggs at them. One of the so-called "blacklegs" received a blow in the face. A superintendent of police then laid an information against thirteen of the strikers, charging them with intimidating the man who was struck, with a view to compelling him to abstain from working at the motor works. The magistrates convicted all of the defendants, though two of them only were proved to have thrown missiles. The convicted persons appealed on two grounds: One, that the information ought to have been laid by the person intimidated, and not by a police officer or any other person; two, that only those who had actually been proved to have used violence could be convicted. The high court dismissed the appeal and confirmed the conviction, holding that any one could have laid an information for such a breach of the peace, and that all were liable to conviction, as they were all present aiding and taking part in what was done, even if they did not all actually commit such act of violence—Young, et al. vs. Peck, King's Division, October 28, 1912.

UNIONS AND IMMIGRATION.

Gompers Wants the Literacy Test Applied to All Immigrants to the United States.

[New York Times:] Mr. Gompers at Washington, has been giving the President reasons why the literacy test should be applied to prevent an increase in the supply of labor. According to a telegram, "Labor unions generally favor this provision." Unionists think it to their interest to work no more than they can prevent by limiting their labor either by laws of their own or of the Legislatures.

This is not the same thing as limiting excessive labor for reasons of humanity. It is a deliberate policy of unionism to "make work" by limiting the number of laborers, by limiting production by each worker, by preventing work altogether by non-unionists, even on union terms, and by other practices in the name of uplift of society, but really for class interest and contrary to the common welfare of those who find earning their living a burden too great to bear.

The literacy test includes brawn and does not exclude undesirables. If coarse labor is not allowed to come in either coarse work must go undone or it must be done by a class of labor which despises both that sort of work and the pay which goes with it. The President would do well to hear Mr. Gompers and to give his advice the attention it deserves.

Wage Increase Without a Strike.

Station employees of the Boston and Maine Railroad Company have been granted a wage increase without a strike. This is good news, as the usual union-labor practice nowadays is to strike first and "ask" afterward, causing loss to the employer before he has a chance to either grant or refuse the wage increase demanded.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

Sunday after Sunday it has been shown in this column, trade by trade, how much higher are wages in this country than they are in any other country in the world. Comparisons are given in detail in most cases, but, anyway, American workers can easily compare the foreign wages stated with the wages they are getting for the same work and less of it by hours worked daily. It is well known that longer working hours prevail in all trades in all foreign countries.

Minimum Farm Wage in England.

Chancellor Lloyd George of England proposes the statutory establishment of a minimum wage for agricultural laborers of $4.86 (one pound) a week and provision for every laborer of a cottage and plot of land held independently of farmer or landlord. Why is it that English wages are kept so low—even $4.86 a week is far too low—and charity doled out like, for instance, this free-cottage scheme, or the existing old-age pensions act, both of which operate to create pauperism? Why cannot English labor have at least a measure of the independence which labor enjoys in this country? The writer speaks from experience on both sides of the Atlantic.

American Building Trades Wages.

We all know that workers in the building trades in Los Angeles get much higher wages than the average wages paid in those trades in the United States. Here are the average rates for the country as given on page 150 of Bulletin No. 93, issued by the United States Bureau of Labor:

	Average wages, per week.
Bricklayers	$26.77 to $28.62
Stone masons	22.43 to 26.77
Carpenters	16.73 to 21.99

Smiths	16.47 to 20.76
Pattern makers	18.12 to 22.38
General laborers	9.12 to 10.65

try, will be turned back for many, many months, if not for some years, and the well-filled weekly pay envelopes in those now busy trades will disappear. The flow of capital to Los Angeles for building purposes will divert itself into other channels and stay in those channels. Even if still higher wages should be forced here by a strike the benefit would only run till present contracts are completed. Then work would stop, as no power on earth can compel capital to invest itself except as itself wills. Think this over carefully, fellow-wage-worker, before you decide to obey the strike commands of McCarthy, Johannsen or any labor leader. The loss by a strike will fall on you.

Americans Pay Best Mining Wages.

In 1912 the Cananea Consolidated Copper Company (American owned) made 7,972,000 pounds of copper. It employs 4800 men, 4300 of whom are Mexicans. Its lowest average daily wage to Mexican miners is $1.89. Mexican carpenters earn as much as $3 a day, and Mexican skilled workmen in the electric and machine shops earn as much as $4.50 a day. These figures are in American money. In five years the percentage of Mexicans employed, as compared with foreign employees, has increased from 65 per cent. to 93.4 per cent.

WAITERS' WAGES.

The New York Strikers Did Not Know What Amount They Would Be Satisfied With.

One of the funniest incidents in connection with the trouble with the hotel waiters in New York City centers around Miss Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, the young woman organizer who was sent there from Lawrence. Miss Flynn was advertised to address a meeting on a certain evening. The meeting was called and well attended, about 300 waiters being in the hall. Just before the session was called to order a World reporter had a long talk with Miss Flynn. He had been told by the city editor to find out from her, if he could, just what the waiters were striking for as regards wages.

The reporter asked Miss Flynn if the waiters were after a straight wage with tips abolished. She said they were and then the reporter suggested a sliding scale to her. When the time came for her to speak she said:

"One of our newspaper friends has been inquiring as to how many of you would be contented if you might have regular wages, with all tips abolished. How many of you would?"

Out of the 300 present, possibly 200 hands went up.

"How many of you would be willing to accept a wage of $15 a week?" asked Miss Flynn. About seventy-five hands went up at this, and there was a shout from the back of the hall, "No, more than $15 a week." Some one called out "$20 a week." More hands went up. Somebody called "More than $20 a week," and still more hands went up. It would have been hard to figure just where the price would have stopped if Miss Flynn had not turned the subject off and started a new line.

F. ROCKEFELLER'S COURAGE.

Lives on a Kansas Ranch and Once Told a Horse Thief to Let His Cattle Alone or He Would Kill Him.

[Chicago Inter Ocean:] Frank Rockefeller is 70 years old, straight as an arrow, weighs 217 pounds, and is an athlete. No matter how he may appear in New York or Cleveland, out in Kansas he looks just like an ordinary Kansas ranchman. And he acts like one, too.

He can ride any horse on the ranch, he can outcuss any cowboy on the place and he can chew as much tobacco in a day as the next man. He doesn't hesitate to beg a "chew" from a puncher, and he will just as readily give a chew to any of the boys on the ranch.

Wall street and lower Broadway would never recognize Frank Rockefeller now. He bought the ranch thirty-nine years ago and came out soon afterward to look it over. It is sixty miles from a railroad. When nearing the sod house on his first visit he passed under a big cottonwood tree from whose branches hung a dead man.

"Horse thieves," laconically said the foreman.

There was such a strenuous campaign against rustlers and horse thieves at the time that the Rockefeller ranch was troubled no more for years. But in time the rustlers became active again and Rockefeller's herds suffered.

He mounted his horse and, unarmed, rode over to the rustlers' ranch. There were fourteen men on the porch. Shaking his finger at the chief rustler, Rockefeller said:

"You are a thief."

The rustler pulled his gun.

"That's all right," said Rockefeller. "I am unarmed. But you are a thief. If my fences are again cut, or if more of my cattle are stolen, I'll come over here and kill you."

And no more of his cattle were stolen.

Save Waste.

FIND MARKET FOR FARMER.

Uncle Sam to Reduce Cost of Distribution.

Hope to Save Two Billion Dollars Annually.

istributor Now Gets More Than the Producer.

A bill having an important bearing on the high cost of living problem in this country is now pending in Congress, with a good show of becoming a law at this session, says the New York Sun. The bill is designed to effect a saving of $2,000,000,000 a year in the unnecessary expense of marketing farm products and in saving products which now go to waste on account of a lack of market facilities.

If this enormous sum now thrown away annually could be saved and divided equally between the producer and consumer, it would mean a reduction of $1,000,000,000 in the cost of living each year and would add about $200 to the average annual income of every farmer in the United States.

The bill already has been reported favorably by the House Committee on Agriculture, and is receiving the serious attention of the leaders of both parties in Congress.

The theory on which the measure is based is that the high cost of living is due in large part to the enormous expenses incurred in the distribution of food products. The supporters of the measure argue that up to this time the entire attention of the Government, through the Department of Agriculture, has been devoted to the question of production, to the absolute neglect of the question of distribution.

It is pointed out, for instance, that the crop of 1912 will yield $6,000,000,000 to the producer. Yet, when this crop reaches the consumer it will have increased in cost to the enormous sum of $13,000,000,000. "In other words," says the committee's report on this bill, "the producer gets $6,000,000,000, while the distributer gets $7,000,000,000, clearly showing that under our present system it is more profitable to distribute than to produce."

The remedy proposed for this condition of affairs is the establishment by Congress of a division of markets in the Department of Agriculture, which shall circulate news concerning market conditions and prices in such a way as to bring the producer and the consumer into closer contact. The bill is, in fact, intended to encourage the tendency now evident in other countries to co-operative dealing between the producer and the consumer. The committee's report in describing the purposes of the proposed legislation says:

"First, its enactment should bring the producer and the consumer closer together and thus decrease the great difference which now exists between the prices paid to the producer and the prices paid by the consumer. Second, by the enactment of this bill the farmer will be furnished with information and know where to find a market for much of his produce which now goes to waste because of the lack of that knowledge."

The committee's investigation of market conditions convinced it that there is too great an increase in the cost of a product after it leaves the farm. The committee says:

"This increase is placed there every time it passes through the hands of a man who is an agent in this distribution. It is occasioned, to some extent, by transportation charges, but very largely by the profits of those who handle it in its transit to the final consumer."

In this connection some startling figures are presented—they are admitted to be estimates—showing the prices received by farmers for products consigned to the city of New York and the prices paid by consumers in that city in the last year. For instance, it is said that in the year farmers sold $17,000,000 worth of eggs in New York and the consumers paid for the same eggs more than $38,000,000. Cabbage worth $5,000,000 to the producer was sold in the New York market for $9,125,000. Milk for which farmers received $33,000,000 was sold in New York for nearly $49,000,000. Potatoes valued at $8,487,000 to the producer were sold to consumers for $60,000,000. Onions sold to the New York market for $321,000 went into the hands of consumers at a cost of $8,000.

"These figures are astonishing and show that something is radically wrong with our present system of marketing. Millions of dollars worth of farm products go to waste every year because the farmer does not know where to find a profitable market while these same products are demanded at reasonable prices in some of the markets of the country. Fruits fall ungathered from the trees and vegetables rot on the ground, while within reasonable distances these same products are in demand at good prices, such is the lack of knowledge on the part of both producer and consumer."

The bill directs that the division of markets shall make inquiries as to the systems of marketing farm products, co-operative and otherwise, in the United States and other countries. The information thus collected is to be distributed to farmers, farmers' organizations and societies of consumers and made available for the use of persons or organizations, either by publication of printed bulletins and reports or by information given directly by officials of the division. The division is further directed to investigate the demand for farm products in various trade centers and the movement of such products with a view to furnishing accurate information as to the best available markets. This information also is to be distributed throughout the country.

The report points out that the bill is not in the nature of an experiment, that the Department of Agriculture already has demonstrated that it is capable of carrying out the plan.

The Bureau of Statistics of the Agricultural Department, "has demonstrated its ability to carry out effectively the provisions of the act. Already it is furnishing reports of the cotton and tobacco crops which have been of vast benefit to the producers of these products, and have added greatly to the facilities with which they are now marketed. One of the greatest agencies in this country today in aid of improvement of market conditions are co-operative societies organized for the purpose of finding a market for their

A LOOK INTO THE FUTURE

Now... Under Construction

Fully thirty days ahead of the time originally set for breaking ground—and less than three months from the date on which we launched the stockyards project —preliminary construction work has commenced at our large plant site, Boyle Ave. and San Antonia St.

If any further proof of the absolute sincerity of the company projecting this giant industry and of the wonderful prospects ahead of it, were needed, this early commencement of construction work is certainly the proof.

Not only does it show that the stockyards company is doing more than it promised, but it shows that the demand for this business is so urgent that no further time can be lost in establishing it; that the millions of head of live stock now at our gates and ready for marketing here, must be taken care of at the earliest time possible. It is only a little time now before the opening of the Panama Canal and then the markets of all the world will be opened up to us, turning the whole mighty tide of live stock shipments to Los Angeles. We must be ready and in operation before this time. So we are pushing forward the work with even greater speed than we formerly planned.

The Los Angeles Union Stockyards is an absolutely assured addition to Los Angeles' great profit-producing industries. It is not a paper project—a rose-hued romance of professional promoters—it is a sound reality already under way, with assets of a million dollars in realty holdings behind it to insure every dollar invested in its stock. It is backed by men of the highest integrity and keenest business judgment—by stockyards experts of many years' experience—and is invested in and warmly approved by stockmen, lawyers, business men, of all the Western States.

Representatives of this company are now in the East studying the most successful stockyards plants and their methods. We have secured for superintendent of our plant Mr. F. E. Slaegeter, formerly president and general manager of the Ogden & Salt Lake Packing and Provision Company, a man singularly well-adapted for this important position, and a man who ranks among the leading livestock men of the country.

W. R. Letton, Secretary and Treasurer of the Los Angeles Union Stockyards Company; Col. D. A. Whitaker, one of the directors, and E. W. Galpin, a director, are all thoroughly familiar with the live stock business. With such men to guide the course of this business, its success is absolutely assured. The field is nowhere to compare with that in Los Angeles, and there is every prospect that this will become the largest Union stockyards in the entire country.

Here's Strong Indorsement

February 19, 1913.

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Gentlemen: Through your representative, Mr. L. F. Tucker, I have concluded to invest in the stock of your company, because I believe it to be a safe, sound and conservative investment, and should result in large profits to the stockholders.

Large Union Stock Yards located in Los Angeles will give the shippers market in a different direction, a closer haul with less expense and cheaper rates, with additional ocean transportation facilities. With the opening of the Panama Canal it will bring the market of the World to the doors of Los Angeles for the products of these stock yards. This will be of greatest interest and benefit to the stock men of Utah.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) C. B. STEWART.

FEATS OF "HUNGER-STRIKERS."

Men and Women in Many Lands Who Have Lived Without Food.

THE famous fasting-man, Signor Sacco, has made a romantic addition to the many records he has established, for he has just been married after having completed a "hunger strike" of forty-two days at Kingston-on-Thames, England. What adds piquancy to the romance of his latest fast is the fact that his 17-year-old bride sat beside his glass cabinet for long periods during his voluntary abstinence from food. But his latest fasting feat was by no means his longest. Some six years ago at Olympia he "starved" himself for forty-six days and four hours, and thus beat the record of forty-five days and two hours, which he had set up at what was then Hengler's Circus, London. It is noteworthy that during the former fast Sacco smoked 1400 cigarettes and consumed 450 bottles of mineral water; while during the latter fast he drank eighty-five bottles of table water and smoked 952 cigarettes.

HUNGARIAN BY BIRTH.

Sacco, who is a Hungarian by birth, began fasting when the famous Giovanni Succi, to whom he was secretary when he made his great fasts, retired. "I thouht it was a pity to let the 'business' fall through," said Sacco once, "so I determined to do the fasting myself." Succi's forty days' fast in London in 1890 is still well remembered. The temperature of his apartment was high, and was charged with moisture, both of which conditions are favorable. It is well known that owing to the prevailing warmth and moisture miners imprisoned in mines sometimes live for long periods. There is a case on record of a man of 65 being found alive after having been buried in a coal mine for twenty-five days, during the first ten of which he was able to get a little water. Succi took no exercise, except that involved in passing from his bed to his chair. Besides water (pure and mineral,) of which he took about a pint daily, he swallowed a few drops of so-called "elixir," the composition of which is unknown. It was said to be a drug similar to morphine, and to have allayed pain in the stomach. At the beginning of the fast Succi weighed 126¼ pounds. His decrease in thirty days amounted to twenty-eight pounds.

SIXTY-THREE DAYS' FAST.

In 1880 Dr. Tanner of Los Angeles succeeded in totally abstaining from all food, although carefully watched the whole time, for forty days, and gained almost world-wide notoriety by his feat.

But this achievement was nothing compared to that of an old French soldier named Jacques, who fasted for sixty days at one of the music halls in New York. A still more wonderful feat of abstinence than this was performed by a murderer named Granie, at Toulouse, in France, who determined to starve himself to death in order to escape the guillotine, and from the day of his arrest he refused to eat. In spite of every effort on the part of his warders—who first tried tempting him to eat by placing the most dainty meals in his cell, and then, when that failed, attempting to feed him by force—he held out for sixty-three days, at the end of which time he died. This is the longest fast on record.

It is a remarkable fact that there are so many records of women who have fasted for extended periods—long, of course, before the suffragette "hunger strikes" were dreamt of. Less than twenty years ago an old lady of 60, distressed by family trouble, starved herself for fifty days, having during the whole time taken nothing but cold water, with the exception of two teaspoonfuls of brandy on one occasion. More recently in London a Danish woman, Mme. Auguste Christensen, successfully accomplished a thirty days' fast.

LIVING ON NOTHING A YEAR.

In 1868 it was reported that a young woman named Sarah Jacobs, living at Lithernenadd, in Wales, had entirely given up eating for some years back, and the vicar of the parish went so far as to state "on his professional honor that she had not partaken of a single grain of food of any kind whatever for sixteen years." As can readily be understood, this statement, coming as it did from the local clergyman, aroused the greatest excitement all over the kingdom, and the medical men were deeply concerned about it. In order to test the truth of the statements it was decided that nurses and doctors from Guy's Hospital should go down to Lithernenadd to examine and keep close watch on this fasting wonder, and so on December 9, 1869, the watching began. No one except the watchers and medical men was, on any pretence whatever, allowed to enter the room where Sarah Jacobs was confined, while she was not allowed to leave it.

WATCHING SARAH JACOBS.

Day by day, from the second day after the beginning of the test, the girl got weaker and weaker and visibly thinner, and at the end of a week her condition had become so serious that the doctors in attendance told her parents she was dying of starvation. They, however, ridiculed this assertion, saying that she had often seemed as ill before; but she had always regained her strength in a few days. Unfortunalely, she did not do so in this case, for she died on the eighth day from the commencement of the test, "of prostration subsequent to starvation," as the death certificate read. Her parents and the doctors and nurses in charge were subsequently arrested and tried for manslaughter, and although the father was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment, and the mother to six months, the doctors and nurses were acquitted.

Another woman who professed to be in the possession of extraordinary fasting powers was Miss Mollie Faucher of Brooklyn, N. Y., concerning whom a long account appeared in the New York newspapers of October 20, 1878. It was claimed by her supporters that she had not tasted food for fourteen years, and many—among them several eminent medical men—were convinced of the bona fides of the case by the evidence brought forward. A prominent New York doctor named Hammond, however, remained unconvinced, and he issued a public challenge, in which he agreed to pay Miss Faucher $1000 if she would consent to be watched for thirty days and nights continuously; and if during that period she totally abstained from all food or nourishment. The challenge, however, was declined, and she was not heard of after as a claimant of fasting honors. There are also well-attested records of a French girl, Christina Michelot, who lived for four years "without any solid food of any description;" of Monica [illegible], a woman of Suabia, who, while suffering from a complication of nervous disorders, subsided two years on a dietary of curds and whey and water; and of Ann Walsh, a 13-year-old girl of Harrogate, who survived for eighteen months on a daily allowance of a third of a pint of wine and water.

Two or three years ago experiments in fasting for scientific purposes were made, one in Somerset and the other in Kent, England. In order to ascertain whether the accumulation of waste and unnecessary material in the system was the cause of much disease, and whether self-imposed starvation was a sound method of its elimination, and as such conducive to better health, Dr. F. Penny, of [illegible]ster, did not break his fast for [illegible] days.

Practically every foot of ground in the original Angeles Mesa subdivision has been sold—beautiful homes have been built by the score.

The improvements and residential advantages at Angeles Mesa compare favorably with those of Pasadena and Hollywood.

Over a million dollars has been expended in improving this commanding eminence, which overlooks the entire city. As many purchasers have said—the view alone is worth half the price you pay for your lot.

Positively no lots will be sold in the new subdivision until March 1st—although reservations can be made after Sunday, February 24th.

Go out and see what $1000 will buy you on this beautiful high-ground property — only one-fifth cash, balance easy terms; or 10% down and monthly terms if desired.

The speculative features alone will undoubtedly sell every lot in the tract within a few weeks. Over $15,000,000.00 worth of residential development will surround Angeles Mesa—this development is now actually under way.

With acreage adjoining Angeles Mesa now being held and actually selling at about the same price we ask for our improved lots—could you ask for a better value in residence property?

Go out today and review the situation—the imperishable view of city, mountains and valley will win you instantly.

Special discounts on the first four lots sold in each block. Special generous discounts if you pay all cash—or if you build immediately.

I am a free trader," Mr. Hill said while talking about Mark Hanna's protection principles. "We shall have to do business with the whole world sooner or later. Our surplus must go somewhere. And when we begin competing with other nations wages will have to come down, otherwise we cannot meet European prices.

"Nor did I agree with Mr. Hanna in some other directions. I never sympathized with him in his views as to the usefulness of the National Civic Federation. This country today is ruled by men who don't pay taxes. When Powderly (he seemingly had forgotten that Terence V. Powderly is now a government official and that the Knights of Labor long since went out of existence) goes to Washington more comment is made about his visit in the newspapers than would be the case were he a large employer of labor and paid out $500,000,000 a year in wages."

There is no strain upon the phrase or the facts when Rudolph Blankenburg is called "the grand old man of Philadelphia." He fought bad government for thirty-five years, suffering defeat in nearly every campaign, and now, at the age of 70, is Mayor of the city. Born in an ancient village, amid the forests of Germany, he listened to the reading of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was profoundly impressed by the story, and, when he was 22 years old, emigrated to America.

"My father," he told me, "hoped that I would follow him into the ministry, but I failed to hear or feel a call in that direction, and, greatly to his sorrow, got a place in a bank, and later was employed in a commission house. A tutor who had been in our family for six years, came to the United States, settling in New Jersey, where he engaged in farming. He wrote for me, and in 1865 I sailed for America. Strange to say, I found that he was a Democrat and a sympathizer with the South. I was a Republican and an abolitionist. We had many fierce arguments.

"One day we came to Philadelphia for seeds. The seed dealer took us to a restaurant for luncheon, and introduced me to a merchant. Asked about my plans, I said I meant to try my luck in New York. 'I'll give you a place,' the merchant told me, 'and pay you $6 a week.' I accepted his offer. My board cost me $5, and my washing 75 cents. I saved the balance. Fortunately, I had a good working knowledge of the English language, having translated the 'Vicar of Wakefield' into German when I was 10 years old.

"In a few months my wages were increased to $12 a week. But I saw that I could make better headway on the road. By and by I was given a chance to test my capabilities as a traveling salesman. I was a happy young man. Many 'drummers,' as they were called in those days, drank. I didn't. During the first ten weeks of my experience on the road I sold four times as many goods as the second best man in the house had sold in four months. My pay was advanced to $1500 a year. Then I became a buyer, and was sent to Europe. Ten years after coming to this country I went into business for myself, establishing the wholesale dry goods store of R. Blankenburg & Co., with $5000 which I had saved from my salary. I retired in July, 1909, after half a century spent as a clerk, salesman, merchant and manufacturer."

WHEN LEW SHANK WENT WEST.

During the panic of 1893 Lew Shank, the cyclonic Mayor of Indianapolis, who had been blacking stoves in a tinware and furniture store, left for Kansas on a visit to his relatives in a spring wagon drawn by a roan mare. A youthful friend accompanied him. They had $7.50 in money, a piece of bacon, a dozen cans of baked beans and a cracked fryingpan. Mayor Shank confessed that they annexed a chicken now and then. The roan mare was traded for a mule in Southwestern Missouri. As a roadster, the mule was not a success. The dust was deep and the crops were burned up.

"We almost starved to death when we got among the flint hills of Kansas," the Mayor said to me. "Somewhere we found an unguarded stack of stunted oats, and commandeered a load of sheaves, piling them and tying them on the wagon and riding on top. We hadn't a cent. On the road we met a man from Texas, and after a long negotiation sold him two sheaves for $1. Thus financed, we bore on—speed thirteen miles a day—toward Oxford.

"We met up with some gypsies camped on the bank of a river. They brought out an amazingly tall horse and dared us to trade. I was suspicious about the horse, but I was dead sure that he couldn't be any worse than the mule. So the exchange was made and we drove away. There was a steep hill on the other side of the river. When we hit the bottom we heard the gypsies holloa with merriment. 'This horse,' I said to my partner, 'is a balker.' But he marched right along, being glad, I guess, to get out of bad company, and at the top of the hill was the house of my cousin.

"The horse was put into a field. That night he broke down the fence of a neighbor and tore a lot of fodder all to pieces. He was a destructive beast and what he wouldn't eat he tramped into the ground and scratched earth on it like a dog covering a bone. Naturally the neighbor was mad. He came roaring at the door early in the morning. Well, I went into conference with him on the front steps. By 7 o'clock I had agreed to give him the horse, harness and wagon and accept two calves. I sold the calves for $10. Again I was a capitalist.

"Everybody was getting ready for the land rush onto the Cherokee strip in Northern Oklahoma. My cousin and I headed in that direction. The prairies were black with people, afoot, on horseback, and in buggies. A soldier fired a gun and we all started toward what was later to be the village of Round Pond. Every one of us wanted a corner lot in the business section. About a million of us squatted on the same lot. There was no water, the sun was hot as fire, and sand filled our eyes and got gritty between our teeth. It was fierce. Presently a man came along with a shovel. He dug four feet into the earth and struck alkali water, which he sold for 5 cents a cup. After drinking one cup a man wanted a whole ocean.

"Sitting on the ground, waiting for the land commissioner, half smothered, and dying of thirst, didn't suit my temperament, and I took a stroll. I found that we were all outside the town limits, and so my cousin and I went in and squatted on another lot. But others were ahead of us. My cousin bought a lot for $75, started a restaurant, and was elected to a village office. I husked corn after my return to Kansas, got railroad fare, and departed for Indianapolis."

JOSEPH AND OTHER FIGHTING DIXONS.

"The first Dixon," so said Joseph M., manager of Col. Roosevelt's campaign for the Presidency and one of the Senators from Montana, "came over to Pennsylvania with William Penn. Later Dixons took up land—1000 acres—in North Carolina, and there is where I was born. Many Quakers and Scotch-Irish Presbyterians emigrated southward at the same time. Their descendants opposed slavery, and long wagon trains of them flowed northward, through the mountain passes, and settled in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. The father of Joseph G. Cannon was among them. They were good, sturdy people.

"Back in 1770, five years before the battle of Lexington, they started a war on the English colonial officials. A. Dixon was one of the rebel leaders on that occasion. It was called the War of the Regulators, and was brought on over the fees charged for marriage licenses and other legal papers. If it had occurred in Massachusetts, history would have been loud in its praises of the patriots. As it is, the War of the Regulators is scarcely known except to those whose ancestors took part in the operations.

"My father owned an iron foundry and a woolen mill. He was a millwright by trade and a solid man. When the Civil War came on, he was superintendent of an iron mine near home. The Confederates exempted high-class mechanics in their acts of conscription, and thus he escaped service in the army. At a later day, however, the exemption was annulled, and many Quakers and Union men were drafted. They had to pay $500 or go to the front. Some paid and some hid in the brush. My father was one of the former, but it was a disagreeable subject, and he never discussed it with me overmuch.

"A number of Quakers secreted themselves in a cave back of our mill. Others coming along, the cave had to be enlarged. The earth was thrown into a creek. Confederates downstream investigated to discover why the water should be muddy during a long dry spell. They found the cave and dragged out the Quakers, each of whom produced $500—it wasn't stage money, either, but gold.

"I got out of that country while I was a young man, going to Montana in order to practice law. Until 1896 I was a regular Republican. Then Bryan was nominated and Missoula county went over to him on the silver question. There was only one man in all that region who was brave enough to say that he meant to vote for McKinley, and he was so old and feeble that nobody wanted to lick him. Silver was our bread and meat, also our pie and cake. We'd been living in affluence. The repeal of the Sherman law, which required the national government to purchase a certain quantity of silver each month, plunged us into poverty. Missoula, with 2000 inhabitants, all busy and spending money, dwindled to fifty inside of a year. By and by, however, most of us drifted back to the Republican party. Presently, I was unanimously nominated for Congress. I was hog-tied, you see, and couldn't refuse to run. Since then I have worked mostly at politics, though I really didn't want to at first, because I had a wife and a large family of children."

ELECTED SENATOR BY AN INTERVIEW.

Here is a story that should be especially interesting to all newspaper men. Also it should be a lesson to timid politicians. An itinerant interviewer met John Worth Kern by appointment one night at his law office in Indianapolis. Mr. Kern—he was not in the Senate of the United States then—had run twice for the Governorship of Indiana, and the year before—1908—had been a candidate on the Bryan ticket for Vice-President. He was practicing law when the interviewer talked with him, and seemingly had no thought of ever again being a candidate for office.

Early in January, 1909, the Democrats in the Indiana Legislature unexpectedly nominated and later elected a man other than Mr. Kern for United States Senator. The interviewer happened along eight months afterward. He said he had heard that the brewers of Indiana had caused Mr. Kern's unlooked-for defeat.

"That is true," Mr. Kern answered. "I needed forty-two votes in the Legislature. Forty-four Democratic members openly gave me pledges of support. Then the brewing interests sprung a scheme to nominate the candidate for Senator by a secret ballot. Eight members of the Legislature were persuaded to vote against me. I know their names, but it is difficult to work up and prove a case of bribery."

The interview made no political stir when it was published. It was clipped by the opposition editors, however, and put in pickle. The following summer Mr. Kern was unanimously nominated at the State convention of Indiana Democrats as the Senatorial successor of Albert Jeremiah Beveridge. Instantly the interview came out of brine. It was printed in type two columns wide with scare heads. Mr. Kern had charged eight legislators of his own party with bribery! If Mr. Kern believed his accusation he would give the names of the grafters to the public! And so on and so forth in every opposing daily and weekly in the State. But Mr. Kern said nothing. He did not "repudiate" the interview; he did not seek the common and notorious refuge of dodgers by indignantly declaring that the interview was "unauthorized;" he did not say, either, that it was accurate. He took the stump and ignored the loud inquiries that were slammed at him in newspapers, circulars and handbills. The Democrats elected the Legislature and the Legislature sent Mr. Kern to the Senate.

The interviewer did not see Mr. Kern again until after he came to Washington and was sworn into office. "I am now inclined to think," he said, "that the interview brought about my election. It showed how I was beaten in 1909 and caused the Democrats of the State in 1910 to nominate me at their State convention and to make future bargaining impossible between brewers and politicians. Leaders in the party came to me, after I was nominated, and said I would be defeated unless I declared the interview to be untrue and disavowed it in the strongest kind of language both by writing and on the stump.

"'If you persist in trying to have me say that the interview quoted me wrongly,' I replied, 'I shall withdraw from the contest so quickly that it will make your heads swim.' They said no more nor did I on that particular subject, though I was hourly challenged by my enemies to name the eight men whom I said had been purchased."

Raymond Robins, the oratorical sensation of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, became a Christian while digging gold in Alaska. He sold his claims for money enough to support him the remainder of his life and began preaching. Going to Nome, he was elected pastor of St. Bernard's Church. Miners composed his congregation. He visited the sick and made himself useful.

"A bunch of thieves," he told me when I interviewed him in New York, "met and organized a city government, although they had no right or authority to do so. They chose a Mayor, a Judge, and a Chief of Police, after which they sprung their scheme of robbery. One of their gang would

TIGHTNER MINE AMONG LEADERS.

Gold Output Totals Hundred Thousand a Month.

Secrecy Surrounds Sending of Last Shipments.

Sierra Del Oro Strikes Bonanza Quartz.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

NEVADA CITY (Cal.) Feb. 21.—The famous Tightner mine at Alleghany is yielding approximately $100,000 in gold bullion a month, according to late advices from the property. This places the mine among the largest gold yielders of the State. The excessively severe winter interfered to some extent with surface work, but had little effect on the underground developments.

The vein discovered about three months ago after persistent search is said to be showing up splendidly, with an immense reserve of milling ore developed and considerable high-grade quartz in evidence. The ore body developed is in a virgin portion of the estate, at a considerable distance from the original strikes which made H. L. Johnson one of the wealthiest mining men in California. It shows every indication of being a strong, consistent vein and free from the faulting which caused so much annoyance in the early stages of development.

The management has been forced to conceal the place where the bullion has been stored and its mode of shipment. The winter storms blocked the roads to a large extent and prevented disposing of the rich consignments on the usual basis. Accordingly, shipments have been made secretly and it is stated that the clean-ups of the December and January runs, valued at about $200,000, were recently sent by private means to Nevada City and thence to the Selby smelter. The ten-stamp mill is operating at full capacity and it is considered practically certain that the capacity will be increased at an early date.

The adit at the Sierra Del Oro mine, at Old Ironsides camp, near Downieville, has intersected a shoot of bonanza quartz 150 feet from surface. The shoot ranges from four inches to two feet wide, with assays running from milling values to $2000 per ton. A considerable quantity of the rich ore is exposed, and the vein has been driven in for fifty feet. The discovery was made immediately under the spot where $10,000 was extracted from a surface pocket last summer.

The ore is arsenical sulphurets and bears a striking resemblance to that found at Alleghany. Arrangements are made to prosecute activities along broad lines as soon as the snow disappears, and a small plant will be installed before the end of summer. At present the deep snow prevents the shipping in of machinery, and work is advancing slowly. The strike indicates that values in this district persist to fair depth and other owners of claims in the American Hill and Jim Crow Canyon sections are preparing for vigorous work with the advent of clement weather.

Negotiations are under way for the sale of the Blue Ledge copper mines in the Blue Ledge district, Siskiyou county, to a powerful syndicate of Michigan capitalists headed by H. C. Russell of Marquette. A thorough examination of the big group is in progress, and it is understood that the easterners are favorably impressed with conditions.

The Blue Ledge is considered the most promising and extensive red-metal deposit north of the Shasta Copper Belt, and has been comprehensively developed by a group of California and New York people headed by Robert S. Towne of New York. In addition to the excellent copper values the ores carry a fair gold content. A number of adits have been driven and the enormous deposit is exposed sufficiently to demonstrate its vast extent.

If the deal is consummated the Michigan people plan to operate the group on a comprehensive scale. A smelter will probably be erected at some point near the Applegate River and a railroad completed from the mines to Medford to facilitate ore shipments. The Michigan parties are heavily interested in Lake Superior copper properties and are said to have ample finances for the development and operation of the Blue Ledge properties on a large scale.

After lying dormant thirty-five years because of fierce litigation among belligerent stockholders, the world-famous Morgan mine, the property that contributed lavishly to the upbuilding of the immense fortunes of James G. Fair, William Irvine and other California pioneers, has been reopened. A settlement of the protracted trouble was recently effected and a force of men has been set to work repairing the old workings and extracting ore for a test run at the Finnegan mill. Within a few months it is expected the old producer will again be yielding golden favors.

The Morgan is situated on Carson Hill, about five miles south of Angels Camp. For years it was one of the phenomenal producers of California, over $1,000,000 having been extracted from one big pocket alone. So rich was the ore that when work was stopped and the adit entrance sealed by a huge iron door, "high-graders" dug into the property from the outside and clandestinely extracted ore.

The reopening of the property is expected to add materially to the gold output of Calaveras county during the next few years, as it is said large bodies of rich ore were exposed at the time internal strife forced the closing of the mine.

The Reiner Mining Company is rapidly rebuilding the head-frame and other structures recently destroyed by fire, and active work will probably be in full blast before the end of the spring. The fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed a portion of the mill and other equipment just when the company was preparing for a particularly active season after the expenditure of large sums in development work. A large deposit of gravel has been demonstrated and as soon as the damage to the plant has been repaired arrangements will be made for production. Southern California people are interested. J. C. Benson is superintendent.

SMELTER OPERATES.

The smelter of the Calaveras Copper Company has been blown in, and the company has made all preparation for the occupation of its position among the leading copper producers of the West. The mines and plant are located at Copperopolis, and an enormous tonnage of high-grade ore has been developed in the past year. During the closing months of 1912 serveral shipments of ore averaging 12 to 15 per cent. copper were made to the Mammoth smelter, indicating the remarkably high quality of the product. The new plant will produce in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 pounds of blister copper per month, placing it next to the Mammoth smelter in California.

EXCELLENT SHOWING.

The Yellow Aster Mining Company, operating near Randsburg, has started the new year with a dividend of $5000, disbursed January 25. This brings the total profits paid to stockholders to $1,141,789. About 250 men are at present employed and the mills are running at full capacity. Four locomotives are busily engaged in hauling ore to the mills, and recent work is said to have largely augmented the reserves. About 20,000 tons of quartz are treated per month, much of this being produced by "glory-hole" methods. Los Angeles people are largely interested.

Buckhorn Awards Contract for Large Plant.

Consolation Banquet for the Luckless Contractors.

High-grade Coal Shipment Attracts Attention.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Feb. 21.—Contracts for the machinery and equipment of the mill to be erected by the Buckhorn Mines Company, controlled by George Wingfield, were awarded in Goldfield the other day by J. W. Hutchinson and Fred J. Seibert, representing the company. The Buckhorn property is located in Eureka county, Nev. The representatives of half a dozen machinery and supply houses were here to bid on the work. The major portion of the contract was awarded to the Trent Engineering Company of Reno. After the contracts were awarded, Walter Trent of Reno, gave a banquet at the Goldfield Hotel, to the less fortunate bidders.

The Buckhorn mill is to treat over $3,000,000 worth of ore that is already exposed. All the excavation for the plant have been completed. S. J. Kidder, who has been in charge of the Pittsburgh Silver Peak Company's mill at Blair, will assume charge of the Buckhorn plant as superintendent, and will probably continue in charge after the mill is completed.

A shipment of coal, that is apparently of excellent quality, has been received here from the property of the Nevada Coal and Fuel Company at Coaldale of which Louis F. [illegible] of Goldfield is president and general manager. This is by far the best coal that has come from the company's workings, and there are now indications that these deposits will prove of enormous value and will supply all of the towns of Southern Nevada. It is declared that the coal is equal in value to any shipped to this camp, and that it is productive of more heat units and leaves less ash than any product that is to be had in the West. It is claimed that it is an ideal coking coal and is excellent for producing gas.

Representatives of the mining and machinery firms who came to Goldfield on account of the awarding of the Buckhorn contracts have gone to Wabuska, where they have bids in on converters for the Mason Valley smelter. The installation of this machinery is an important departure on the part of the Mason Valley company, which is now competing for high rank among the copper producers of the country. It means the elimination of the expense of shipping copper matte and the reduction of its product to ingots of copper that are immediately convertible into a form of metal that is commercially marketable and of standard value.

The week's mining operations in the Goldfield district have been marked by the customary amount of development and ore production. A number of the more prominent companies are still performing dead work, either sinking shafts or driving to veins that may be expected to contain ore, while in the territory where ore is produced, development has been of a satisfactory character and new ore is constantly placed in sight for extradition.

Interest centers largely in the work that is performed by the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company at a depth of 1400 feet in the [illegible] Bear mine. The latest report from Superintendent Thorn states that work on this level has been retarded to some extent by a [illegible]

News From the Great California Oil Fields.

Great Enterprise.

BIG GENERAL PIPE LINE IS NEARING COMPLETION.

Project Costing Three and a Half Million Dollars Which Germinated for Years in Minds of Financiers Will Reach Consummation Early Next Month, Is Announcement—Final Work in Progress Near City.

THE first oil-transporting pipe line from the great Midway fields to tide-water at Los Angeles, built by the General Pipe Line Company, a subsidiary of the General Petroleum Company, in which the capital of people of three nations is interested, is rapidly nearing completion. The great project, costing approximately $3,500,000, is to reach consummation early in March and the line will be ready to bring to Los Angeles from Midway between [illegible] and 20,000 barrels of oil a day.

Incessant labor on the part of [illegible] workmen has been needed to push to completion the building of the [illegible] miles of eight-inch line, the pumping stations, storage and loading stations since the inception of actual construction last September. Now with the near approach of the project's consummation Los Angeles may be regarded as assuming new importance as a center for the oil industry.

Nearly ever since he became interested in the oil business some [illegible] years ago, Capt. John Barneson, president of the General Pipe Line, has had germinating in his mind the idea of such a project as the pipe line—some means of transporting to the sea a part of the immeasurable wealth of the Midway oil fields. At first Capt. Barneson was only interested in petroleum in a desultory way—and only in California—perhaps while he still paced the quarterdeck of a vessel he captained on the high seas. Gradually he became more and more taken with the future of the oil industry in the State and began to devote to it his active attention.

Several years ago he interested Eugene de Sabla in petroleum. De Sabla, previous to that time, was mainly concerned in large hydro-electric power projects, and was a man of influence in financial circles. To him is probably largely due the entrance of foreign capital into the project, as De Sabla is of French descent and would probably be a Frenchman if he lived in his native land. He was, however, born in Panama and consequently the pendulum of his life swung to the western hemisphere rather than to the eastern. His father, it has been learned, was concerned in the early French attempt to build the Panama Canal with de Lesseps.

These are the men who have been chiefly concerned in guiding the destinies of the General Petroleum Company from one big enterprise to another, culminating in the securing of an option on the Union Oil Company's control, the largest oil company in the State and one of the largest in the world. The deal if consummated will involve the sum of $20,000,000. Although the pipe line fades into secondary importance when compared with this project, it is nevertheless the second biggest thing attempted in the whirlwind career of the General companies.

Although foreign capital is heavily interested in the General companies the bulk of the stock is held by American, and probably by Californians at that. Louis Sloss of San Francisco is a vice-president in the General Petroleum Company, and Capt. Barneson holds a like office and is in addition general manager. Leon Sloss of the same city is one of the directors as are also J. D. Grand, J. C. Cebrian and Frank Griffin.

R. R. Colgate of New York—not the wealthy soap manufacturer but his cousin—is a vice-president in the company. Andrew Weie, a ship owner and merchant of London, who is at present in this city, represents the English interests. French capital is also interested, though in a lesser degree. W. J. McLean is secretary of both the General Petroleum and the General Pipe Line Companies. Eugene de Sabla, of course, is president of the General Petroleum Company.

LOS ANGELES CHOSEN.

Almost every oil pipe line from Midway with the exception of that of the Producers' Transportation and one or two new projects, have had the region around San Francisco Bay as their terminus. That of the General Petroleum Company is the first to make Los Angeles, with its strategic importance in relation to the Panama Canal trade, and its large consumption of oil, the distributing point.

"We did not see any reason for duplicating the lines already built to the northern port," said Capt. Barneson in interview. "Los Angeles itself offers a big opportunity for the sale of oil, and the fact that it is nearer the canal is an added advantage."

NEARING COMPLETION.

There remain to be constructed probably less than twenty miles of the line, and this is in the vicinity of the city, where construction work is not difficult, and where supplies and men are handy. The difficult part was in the mountainous regions, through which for about forty miles the line passes.

The actual route is as follows: Beginning at Pentland and passing through the southern part of the Midway district, the line enters the Tejon Pass. After leaving the pass its course lies through the Castaic country, then through Newhall tunnel and the San Fernando Valley, until it meets the Santa Fe tracks. Thence it proceeds to Vernon, where there is a double topping plant capable of treating about 20,000 barrels a day, and finally on to the sea.

The work in the mountainous regions was carried on with the greatest expedition during the fall months, when the weather conditions were more favorable. But two crews of men were also kept busy on the valley divisions. The building of the pipe line proper was in charge of R. E. Maynard, while the construction of the pumping stations, of which there are eleven high-pressure and one low, was under the supervision of D. Dorwood.

Besides these pumping stations there are also three chief storage stations and two loading stations. One of the storage stations, consisting of four 55,000-barrel tanks, is at Pentland, another, made up of the same number of tanks, is at San Fernando,

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

COALINGA, Feb. 22.—The report of R. W. Dallas for the month of January, covering the production and operations of the Coalinga field shows a falling off in production of more than 122,000 barrels for the month, as compared with the previous month. The shipments during January fell off to a large extent, being 161,559 barrels less than during December. Other operations of the field were practically the same as during the former month.

The private car shipments during January amounted to 13,300 barrels. The fuel consumed in the field was 13,845 barrels. Wagon sales were 5168. New completions during the month were five, with a total daily average production of 850 barrels.

Concentration

Concentration through corporations saves expenses and increases efficiency—and therefore the earning power—thus enabling stockholders and others to obtain larger returns on their savings and investments. Note how many financial institutions pay liberal dividends to their stockholders and put away large sums each year, yet not a share of that stock can you get because it is priceless.

Los Angeles Securities Company is building along these lines. In due time its shares should be priceless. It is concentrating capital in small sums to improve close-in property, build homes, and loan money (preferably to its stockholders who may need it) on a sound business basis. It avoids dangerous speculations and costly debts, aiming to keep its assets in clear, healthy form at all times, realizing that corporations free of debt and speculation are the safe ones.

It is the company for you to carefully investigate and if you investigate you will act—if not at once, when the price goes higher.

At 12 cents you can now purchase shares and you may pay for them on installments, as below. Although less than two months old over

See How Beans Grow in Florida!

$1450.00 from 4½ Acres—$322.22 Per Acre—Land Owned by F. B. Rainey of Wauchula—the Same Combination Soil Produced the Fine Orange Grove Shown in the Background

Are you sharing California prosperity? If you're not—if land is too high, turn to Florida and see what it offers you. Here at Wauchula men from other parts of Florida, from the North and the West, are cashing in. Low-priced lands—easy terms—soil that grows vegetables as well as grape fruit and oranges—these things are producing in a big way.

The experience of Mr. F. B. Rainey is typical. A man comes here with a little money, plants his orange and grape fruit trees. Then he starts vegetables between the tree rows or on another part of the tract. He is soon in possession of an income that supports him and his family—and easily meets the small payments on the land.

WAUCHULA, FLORIDA LAND

PAYS FOR ITSELF

The Wauchula (Florida) region is famous for the Combination Soil whose richness and varied properties give vigor and thriftiness to vegetables and citrus trees alike.

Wauchula is one of the few tracts of this character in the country. It appeals especially to people who want an orange grove, but do not want to make a large initial investment. Here in Wauchula the land actually pays for itself—sometimes one season's vegetables return a profit equal to the entire purchase price. Of course, that is better than the average, but it tells something of the extraordinary richness of the soil and the favorable climate.

Now if you're "bottled up" in California—if land values are prohibitive, if you want an orange and grapefruit grove—come to Wauchula. Don't be envious of the grove owner—be one yourself.

Bankers Guarantee Your Satisfaction

No plan of selling land has ever been devised that is safer for the buyer than ours. You begin payments on your land whenever you wish. You have a year in which to make your inspection. And if you decide that the land is not all you hoped for—in short, if you're not satisfied you get your money back—every cent of it—and 6% interest.

We make this offer because we have the real goods to show you. We want you to come here and talk to grove owners and inspect their trees before you make your final decision. We want you to see the town of Wauchula with its 1500 inhabitants—its churches, schools, modern stores, pretty residences. A thriving town with good transportation and live cash markets for your crops. Only three hours' trip from Tampa. Good water, good drainage—very healthful climate. No negroes in Wauchula.

ALFALFA LANDS in the beautiful San Jacinto and Hemet Valley turning over just like good juicy flap-jacks. There is a reason. Lands in this valley are known to be good. They have a State-wide reputation for their rare fertility and abundant productiveness. This valley always leads in alfalfa and deciduous fruits. Its soil is a warm, well-drained, mellow loam, especially suited to intensive farming in all its branches. We have the choice of it all, and it stands at the original price. We are able at this time to locate you on a green alfalfa field where this $20.00-a-ton crop grows waist high, or on the same soil right beside it ready for seeding. It is complete in every respect, with good streets and water lines laid. This land is all close in. In fact, some of it is inside the city limits of both San Jacinto and Hemet, and the farthest acre is only a few minutes from both of these hustling little towns. We SAY THAT THIS IS THE BEST AND CHEAPEST LAND OFFERING IN THE WHOLE COUNTRY BY FULLY ONE-HALF, AND WE STAND READY TO PROVE IT.

We have automobile capacity for twenty or more people per day, at our office in San Jacinto, and will be more than pleased to show you over the whole valley. It's a beauty spot, unsurpassed anywhere. The Santa Fe is giving excursion rates on Sundays. Automobile parties will enjoy the trip over the fine new boulevard via Riverside. Only three and a half to four hours, easy running.

The following is a clipping from the San Jacinto Register of January 16th, 1913.

THREE CARLOADS ALFALFA DAILY.

San Jacinto is becoming more and more an alfalfa center. While many of the ranchers are showing big yields of this product, the San Jacinto Land Co. is perhaps raising more than any.

In the last two months 72 carloads were shipped to various points by this company alone. The average is three cars a day at present. There is hardly a city in the Southland that is not getting some local hay. Much goes to Los Angeles, San Diego and Pasadena.

THIS IS THE LAND WE ARE ASKING YOU TO COME AND SEE. 'Phone, call or write San Jacinto Land Company, San Jacinto, or Room 625-6 Story Building, Sixth and Broadway, Los Angeles. Phone Main 9451.

LONDON'S COLD A BITTER MEMORY.

CITY IS DEVOID OF WARM PLACES TO SIT DOWN.

The Regular Frigidity Said to Be Responsible for the Habit of Afternoon Tea Drinking—The Atmosphere Is Sometimes Clear in Summer.

[Wallace Thompson in St. Louis Times:] "You'll enjoy London; you know the language so well!"

It is well to carry another viewpoint with your own when you go a-traveling. When you go to London from Paris, for instance, it is well to be armed with some such thoughtful observation on the part of your French friends. It tempers your disappointment when you find that London isn't half as homelike as you thought it was going to be. The memory of Paris will help you, for instance, to accept the pretension of hors d'oeuvres at the top of a stout English luncheon menu without getting angry about it. And the acceptance of hors d'oeuvres under such circumstances is far more important than you would think at first glance.

For it is in London that you come to a realization of the precise advantages and the precise limitations of that article of diet. There you discover that the hors d'oeuvres, which you have been eating with gradually diminishing enjoyment in Paris, are provided, not to "whet" your appetite, but to soften its edge, so that you can have no gnawing hunger to prevent you from enjoying the miscellaneous dishes that follow in a continental meal. And you also find that the hors d'oeuvres are absolute barbarism when they precede one of John Bull's own superb repasts.

A week in London suffices to convince the most blatant Gallic sympathiser that in Paris one's imagination is fed with tempting-looking dishes, almost if not quite, devoid of nourishment, while in London, the whole ideal of cooking is to please the palate with the most wholesome of foods prepared in the most wholesome manner.

COMFORT AND HEALTH THEIR IDEALS.

Comfort and good health are ideals of England, and she achieves them to a very large extent no matter by what standard you judge. But to the Frenchman, and to a lesser extent to the American, London and England have but demonstrated their lack of imagination by the completeness of their subservience to comfort and practicability.

There is nothing in all London to really stir the imagination. Even the Abbey is bald and honest about what it is and what it means. "The hush of our dread high altar" is calmly shattered by unpretending tourists hanging over the chancel rail to stare at the gilded reredos and the dingy effigies of kings and queens no longer extant.

London streets, to this day, grow with the cow-paths, without so much as the creative care of a civil engineer to lay them out. The British imagination cannot encompass a skyscraper, and American "city plans" amuse them. Think of a city of 8,000,000 people housed in two and three story buildings, covering an area of 700 square miles! That is a fact stupendous beyond intellect to grasp, and those who do not know their London must drag in their imaginations to realize it. But in the Londoner it merely means an utter lack of imagination, an inability to conceive of anything beyond the traditional, the historic.

All this is an old, old story, but it is the starting point of every appreciation of London. From the English dinner to the English heart is but a tiny step. Well fed, honest, sympathetic as far as their imaginations go, the English have built on their little island a city as unique as Paris, as typical as New York, and fully as joyous a place to live in as either, if you find out how.

Probably the point about the English that first strikes the Frenchman or the American resident in France is the utter lack of vicious individualism on the streets.

CONTRAST IN TRAFFIC CONDITIONS.

In Paris the cabman, the chauffeurs, the very pedestrians, are all busy trying to get in ahead of the police and the other fellow. In London everyone is entirely conscious of the very patent fact that the best way to finish everything up promptly is to help everybody else along. It is easier to cross Trafalgar square or Piccadilly circus, or the busiest part of Oxford street in London than to negotiate the most deserted portions of the grand boulevards in Paris.

Your French cabby would rather run over you than get your fare, but the Englishman will back up his motor (which is always under control) and let you pass, though you have broken every rule of the road, rather than take the risk of hurting you, and an omnibus conductor will wait five minutes for a hurrying old woman and smile when she reaches his step and at last discovers that she wanted another 'bus.

The most superficial tourist has impressed on him the fact that an Englishman will never show emotion if he can conceal it by any hook or crook, even that of cheerfulness. Only the famous London policemen are privileged to smile, and they do it in the most flattering manner in the world. And they get enough things to smile over! It is doubtful if an American ever visited London without amusing at least half a dozen London policemen, cheering their way with some brazen bit of idiocy. In Paris they tell glibly of the American resident who visited London and demanded, one cold day, of a "bobby:"

"I say, officer, can you tell me where there is some place like a Paris cafe? My wife—er—wants a drink."

Another visitor, serene in the consciousness of the omniscience of all British policemen, demands of all the quickest way by bus to the Wallace Museum.

"I don't think I know just where that is," the policeman promptly admitted. "Wait a minute and I'll tell you," and Mr. Tourist whipped out his Baedeker and calmly looked up the famous picture gallery in the index, while the policeman smiled grimly down on top of his questioner's hat.

It must be a distinct pleasure to a cockney policeman to have to deal with tourists from across the sea who cannot understand him, for the cockney regards himself as the only true Londoner and his language as the only proper pronunciation of the mother tongue. And what bliss to have the tourist demand: "what are the good shows?" of the tall blue-coated guardian of the peace in the middle of the road.

It all means comfort and good feeding and warm clothes, and if it means lack of imagination one must let it go at that. Was it not the stupidity of the Bulgars in failing to notice that they were defeated that won most of the battles in Thrace? But for all that, there is one subject very tender in the minds of all visitors to London in winter. This subject is London's heating arrangements.

FOG AND MIST.

In Paris they try to reassure you, at the Daily Mail inquiry office, about London weather. "Oh, you can't say there is going to be a fog just because it is November," they say. "And, besides, you know the difference between a fog and a mist. Oh, yes. A fog is when it's so thick you can't see a light a yard in front of you."

It takes experience with London to realize that although, as your neighbor on the train, if he is a clergyman of the Wesleyan faith, and thus privileged to break over the English reserve will tell you: "It is sometimes clear in summer." London mist or fog is not all moisture. About nine-tenths of it is coal smoke. London burns all the interior coal produced in the world, and every one of her 1,000,000 chimneys pours its smoke out during the winter. The result is that, as this smoke gets into the open air about two stories above the street, it hangs over the city like a pall, and when the barometer falls, down it comes. It is a "mist" or a "fog," as its density may proclaim. The line of definition is not sharp.

All London is heated by open grates and soft coal. And all London is chilly. Your English fresh air is everywhere—in omnibus, on train, in the back of your neck during the intermissions at the theater.

London is utterly devoid of warm places to sit down. The art galleries are chilly, the tea rooms cold except at tea time, the hotels far away, and in any case it is, of course, natural that you have ordered a fire in your rooms only for evening, so it's no use to go home. And, worst of all, there are no cafes.

The "pub" or saloon is the only spot into which you may enter to get warm, and there you are not welcome beyond the point of your drink. The foreigners, Frenchmen most of all, Americans next, suffer in London as they suffer nowhere else in the world. The English travel in seven thicknesses of woolen underwear, and get along fairly well, but the foreigner fails to make such provisions, and pays for it. London is and will always be a memory of bitter, hopeless chill.

It is perhaps the cold that makes most Englishmen take tea. The question of the reason-for-being of tea in London is a distinct mystery. In Paris one can understand it, for in Paris the world wakes up to a cup of coffee and one roll in the morning, [illegible] breakfast actually at 11:30, and does not dine until 7:30 or 8. In England the breakfast is substantial, eggs and bacon and coffee and the inevitable marmalade. Luncheon comes at noon with a chop or a steak and potatoes and cheese and so on, a hearty meal, and dinner is at 6:30 or 7. The place for tea hardly appears, but tea is unmistakably a custom of importance and of value to the community, especially to the community of housekeepers.

Is it really the cold, then, that makes the English drink tea? They do it in summer, too, so how is that to be accounted for? And the answer trembles on the lips: Toasted scones!

Scones are one of those things invented by great geniuses, so great that the name of the inventor has been forgotten. They are sweetened bread, with white raisins in them, of a flavor beyond all tastiness, yet calculated most for the services of the grill. For toasted scones make tea a ceremony and a delight, explain its reason for existence and justify all England in that hour that is spent each afternoon. The toasted scone is the sign of the supremacy of creature comforts, the genius of happy, if unimaginative England.

TINKERING IN THE KITCHEN.

Lots of Things That Can Be Done If One Goes at the Matter Right, and Thus Save Considerable Money.

[Dallas News:] Plenty of men have a deserved reputation for being "handy about the house" in a tinkering sort of way. They can "fix it" if the shade won't roll up. They can "fix it" if the bureau drawer sticks, and they can "fix it" if the door knobs "get out of whack." But the same knack is not so conspicuous in women, ordinarily. Extraordinarily, it is sometimes remarkably in evidence. It seems to be a case of have to. When a woman has to, she generally can. It's all right, maybe, to stand around and wait for the man to "fix it" if there is any man. Maybe it helps develop virtue and ability in him. But if there isn't any man, the woman, too, might just as well get down to the hammer and the tacks.

When she does, she develops a lot of talent that is interesting and effective. There is a woman in town, for instance, who has a repair shop in connection with her kitchen. She can use a screw driver or a file, or an awl, or even a plane, to the best possible purpose. She is the same woman who knows what to do when her shades "won't work." "What to do," she says, "is extend them their full length as they hang in the socket. Then take them down and roll them up tightly by hand. They are set on a spring. If the spring has become very loose it may take two or three rollings-up. After each one, the shade should be put back in the socket and extended its entire length." She admits that a man who had once dealt in window shades showed her the trick. "He found me one day trying to tighten up the spring by twisting the little knob on the end. I had bruised my finger-tips fearfully, and the spring had slipped back any number of times, and I was ready to use the shade stick on the world at large when he chanced along. He said something that I have never forgotten: 'If you are going to do a thing, learn to do it in the right way.' That was why I got me a kit of tools for the kitchen. I found that, with the tools, I could do a lot of things in the right way, and it saved time and bother and money. I have a small wrench for loose nuts; I have a solder outfit for the little holes that pop into utensils unexpectedly; I have a knife sharpener; I have a bottle of oil for creaky things, door hinges and the like, and I have a small plane for warped drawers. I have never noticed that my maids use these things themselves, but seeing how easily I 'fix things,' they nearly always [illegible] me, and I have turned out some fairly trained 'tinkerers' from my kitchen, and both the house and the things in it are lasting longer because of these little [illegible] tions."

Carter, the head of the Fire- Brotherhood, has twitted the managers about the solicitude by them for the interests public. It is significant that expressions of solicitude for of the public have come railway managers. Not one been uttered by Mr. Carter representative of the firemen that they care a rap for On the contrary, at one conference between the fire- and the managers, said: "I speak the truth say that railroad employees that our little private should not result in injury This public that you sometimes had best not know our troubles." This statement is on a par with the announcement made by Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, when the enginemen's controversy was pending, that is was time the public should be taught a lesson.

When men are so anxious to avoid publicity regarding matters in which the public is vitally concerned they are evidently trying to conceal something that public ought to know. The attitude assumed by the employees in this controversy, and the publicity that the railway managers have given to the facts regarding it, have been hardly second, as influences for educating public opinion regarding the railway labor situation, to the report made by the enginemen's arbitration board.

In the meantime, it is to be hoped that some means will be found of averting a strike. A strike would be a public calamity, and if it lasted long it very likely would be the last serious strike among railway train employees in the United States. This public from which Mr. Carter wants railways and their employees to keep the facts about their little private affairs would take hold of the situation in a way that would teach a lasting lesson to both sides. Mr. Carter talks about the constitutional liberty of railway employees. If any class in this country has a constitutional liberty to injure the public and abuses it, that liberty will soon be curtailed. Constitutions exist to protect the rights of the public, not to protect special classes in the right to injure the public.

Nearing Completion.

and a third, consisting of six 55,000-barrel tanks is at the harbor. This gives the company a total storage capacity of 770,000 barrels. Besides, it has other storage facilities on its properties in Midway. One of the loading stations is at the harbor and is for transfering oil to ships; the other is at Vernon, and is for distribution by land.

The average distance of the pumping stations on level line is 13½ miles, but the distance varies from four and a-half to twenty-two miles in the mountainous regions, depending on whether the oil is to ascend or descend, as well as on the grade. Everything is provided for handling the 20,000 to 30,000 barrels a day which the line can carry, and also for the storing of a large amount of oil.

A RAPID GROWTH.

The plans for the building of the line and the preliminary surveys were carried on during the latter part of 1911, and early in 1912. This was before the time when the General companies were formed, and, while the old Esperanza Consolidated—the concern from which the General Petroleum Company sprung—was still in existence.

The Esperanza Consolidated was a merger of a number of smaller companies, and after the formation of the General Petroleum Company still other concerns were taken over, until finally the scope widened to the projected acquiring of the Union Oil Company. This might almost be considered the climax in the first part of the rapid growth of the General Petroleum, or the crowning tower in the structure it has built. The company is due soon to be open for business, the pipe line's completion being the first big step in its active career as a marketer of oil.

And still the old question is asked: Who is the General Petroleum? This, despite the fact that prominent men in the company itself and of other oil concerns, have asserted time and again that they are a group of independent capitalists, having no connection with the Standard Oil Company.

"There is no secrecy about our operations," said Capt. Barnneson, yesterday, "although the general impression seems to be to that effect. I have been interested in oil in this State since 1899, and succeeded in interesting other men of financial enterprise. We have entered the field because we see its opportunities, and this report that we are connected with the Standard is ridiculous."

HOLLYMONT GARDENS.

Hollymont Gardens, a tract of about 100 lots in West Hollywood, belonging to the Guarantee Building and Investment Company, presents a scene of activity. The street work, curbing and sidewalks are being pushed to completion, and ornamental trees are to be planted throughout the tract in the near future. The tract lies to the north of Santa Monica boulevard.

Field's Output Drops.

casing is pulled so that the perforated pipe may be taken off. The well will then be cemented in the eight-inch casing above the water strata, so as to protect the light oil sands above, and it will be drilled deeper in the six and one-fourth-inch pipe. It is believed that another oil sand will be struck at a greater depth, and the hole is in good condition, so that a thorough test of the territory may be made. If a deeper sand is not encountered the upper sand will be given a thorough test.

The Associated, on the adjoining section, has been put on the pump and is producing about 200 barrels. In this well seventy-six feet of heavy oil sand was encountered. No test has yet been made, but it is believed that the oil is about eighteen gravity, much heavier than the other oil sands encountered in that vicinity. This demonstrates probably a freakish formation. Many of the other companies in the vicinity are awaiting the developments on the K. T. & O. well, believing that the formation in that and the Canadian Coalinga well has more bearing on the territory than the Associated.

The Kern Trading and Oil Company is starting a camp on the east side and considerable new development work will be commenced in that end of the field soon. Lumber is hauled today for the construction of camp buildings which will be located in the center of the northwest quarter of 1, 20-15, and as soon as the camp is completed drilling will commence in a well to be located on the west line of the section. Drillers will be taken from the camp at 35 for this work.

The K. T. & O. is also having lumber hauled to 11, 20-15, and a rig will be built on the east line of this section, where a well will be drilled to offset one of the Mohawk's. The United Development Company has some derricks on this section.

The Associated well on 8, 21-15, in the south field, recently went through a continuous body of seventy-seven feet of oil sand, showing a heavy grade of oil. Casing trouble has kept the company from testing out the sand.

The K. T. & O. well on 7, 21-15, half way between the Canadian Coalinga and the Boychester properties, is down 3050 feet and is drilling deeper. It is believed that another sand underlies those already encountered, and it is expected to prove this before coming back thoroughly to test the upper sands.

Tools are being hauled to the W. M. & M. Company on 31, 19-15, for a new well which is to be drilled. It will be started in fifteen-inch stovepipe, and drilling will commence in a few days.

The K. T. & O. is erecting a rig on 11, 20-15.

The Dominion, in the south field, near Tar Canyon, is down over 3100 feet and is again drilling after being hung up for some time awaiting the arrival of four and a half-inch pipe.

ASSETS.

Assets mean the moneys and credits due the company, otherwise called the Resources.

Balance due on houses, etc.:—

This includes the amount individuals owe on their house contracts, of which the company has over five hundred drawing regular house contract interest. These houses are largely built upon each individual's own lot which has been deeded to the company as additional security for the faithful performance of their obligations. In five years of business we have never foreclosed a mortgage. All mortgages and other similar sums are also here included.

Stocks, bonds and trust certificates:—

This item is made up of interest earning securities passed upon by the Board of Directors.

Cash on hand and on call in hands of agents:—

This is cash or ready money on hand to care for daily business and meet emergencies.

Accounts collectable on call:—

Credits and balances left in various approved hands in closing sales, escrows, etc., allowed to remain and drawing interest, pending use.

Balance unpaid on subscribed stock:—

This item is made up of our regular interest bearing installment contracts; in other words, stock which has been sold upon monthly payments. In five years only about one-fifth of one per cent. have been in arrears, or only fifteen hundred and eight shares have we had to adjust.

Furniture and fixtures:—

These are slow assets, consisting of department furniture, burglar and fireproof safes, adding machines, etc.

Department inventories:—

This item is made up of tools, hardware, lumber, paint, etc., which have been paid for and are waiting to be placed in houses already sold.

LIABILITIES.

Liabilities mean the moneys and credits due its stockholders, investers and debtors.

Building material and labor:—

This amount is what we owed January 31st, 1913, at the close of business, which is to be paid on houses during progress of construction.

Miscellaneous accounts:—

These items include various liabilities not properly coming under the other headings. Contingent allowances are items that may or may not ever ripen into absolute liabilities; also an allowance made as a precaution against loss during construction of houses, apartments, etc.

Balance assumed on real estate:—

Part of this amount is balances assumed on lots of purchasers, and upon which we have built homes. Other parts of this amount is where we have purchased lots for the home buyers, and as he makes his monthly payments we allot a certain proportion to the lot. These payments extend an average of five years from time of signing contract.

Total actual liabilities:—

A summary of the preceding items, viz., Building material and labor, Miscellaneous accounts and Balance assumed on real estate having definite uses.

Investors' accounts, home investors' certificates, etc.

This obligation includes all forms of investment made with the Company in ways other than in the form of stock, advance payments and deposits on contracts and other accounts and syndicate debts for equities in certain trusts that have been taken over by this institution, acting exclusively as trustee-pledge.

Capital stock:—

This represents the actual cash par value of the shares that the stockholders have invested in this institution. This is the strong foundation upon which "Home Builders" is built. Everyone is treated alike. No promotion stock has ever been issued or ever will be. No officer has any precedence over the largest or smallest stockholder. The premium received is shown below in surplus where it belongs.

Undivided profits and dividends payable:—

Previous Dividends uncalled for. These are dividends which have been mailed to last known address of stockholders by this office, and returned by the postoffice with the notation: "Party has moved," etc. Stockholders please take notice. When changing address, kindly notify the Home Office at once by letter or postal, as we want you to have your dividend checks promptly.

Quarterly dividend No. 20, payable March 1st, 1913, upon all stock of record January 31st, 1913. This is one of our regular quarterly dividends that we take so much pleasure in distributing. These dividends are paid from the interest and profits made from contracts, and are not paid from premiums from stock sales. We have paid out in dividends the past five years approximately $200,000.00.

Surplus (including premiums on stock sold:)—

More than $586,000.00 has been accumulated after paying all expenses and all dividends. This is "working capital," performing the same function as the Capital Stock Paid Item—reinforcing it and doubling the strength of the foundation of "Home Builders."

Statements made under oath:—

Each and every financial statement issued by "Home Builders" is made under oath. The proper officers of the company unequivocally commit themselves before a Notary Public as their belief in its correctness; and besides, a verification and sworn statement is made by a Public Accountant who has made a thorough audit of the books to confirm the statements of the officers. This is all done for the stockholders' and investors' benefit and assurance.

CANANEA FEARS MINERS' STRIKE.

Mexicans May Ask Discharge of Americans.

Departure of Border Guard Has Bad Effect.

Fire in Mine Is Conquered by Science.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Feb. 19.—Advices received from Cananea by Col. A. T. Bird are to the effect that another great strike of miners and workmen is anticipated. It will be recollected that some weeks ago there was a strike, and that certain concessions were made the men, including a shortening of the hours of labor by one hour daily, cheaper rents and cheaper water. Now it is stated that the men are preparing to renew their original demands, including shorter time of work each day, and beside that they will demand the discharge of all American employees, foremen, etc., and that they even will demand that the American doctors employed by the company be replaced by Mexicans. The situation is described as very greatly strained. The men go around armed and are very insolent and impudent.

CAVALRY GOES TO DOUGLAS.

A squadron of the Ninth United States Cavalry, which has been stationed at Nogales since December 1, has left for Douglas, where the regiment has been ordered concentrated, possibly in view of service southward. It is expected that the temporary local post will be regarrisoned, however, by a detachment of the Fifth Cavalry, lately arrived from Ft. Huachuca.

ANTI-AMERICAN AGITATION.

Departure of the soldiers seems to have had a bad effect upon revolutionary spirits on the Mexican side of the line in this city of double nationality. It is told that a sort of Mexican Committee of Safety was formed, which applied to Gov. Maytorena of Sonora asking to be supplied with 800 rifles, to arm a military organization which would defend their country against American invasion. The Governor was said to have replied in the negative, his letter carrying also a severe rebuke to the applicants. It is understood also that the officials on the Mexican side have been directed by the Governor to suppress any indication of anti-American spirit.

One of the interesting sidelights is a report said to have come directly from Col. Kosterlitzsky of the Mexican rurales, to the effect that he had been approached with the suggestion that he not only join in the anti-American movement but that he countenance the dynamiting of public buildings in Nogales, Ariz., as a slight indication of resentment if the Americans were to invade Sonora. The colonel, who has had service himself in the American army, failed to see the beauty of the plan. Daily meetings of the anti-American element are said to have been held during the past week and there are some timid people in this locality who believe that American troops should be returned here without further delay.

TWO CHARGED WITH ARSON.

UNIONS CROWD OUT CAFES.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Feb. 21.—Sam Wlucich and Martin Despot, two Miami saloon men, have been held for trial in the Superior Court under $4000 bonds, charged with arson in the burning of their saloon, possibly for the insurance. Mike Price, who was the star witness in the prosecution, testified that both defendants told him that they had paid Nick Medigovich to start a fire. Medigovich, charged with the same crime, waived preliminary hearing and has been returned to jail in default of bond.

UNIONS CLOSE RESTAURANTS.

A number of Globe restaurants have been compelled to close their doors through inability to meet the scale of wages and of hours demanded by a lately organized union of cooks and waiters, and the restaurant business has been delivered almost wholly to the non-unionized Chinese. The union demanded eight hours a day work and set a scale of from $2 to $4 for that time, together with meals. The restaurant keepers were willing to run two shifts of ten hours each and to pay overtime, but this was not acceptable.

SUIT TO OUST JUDGE.

An interesting suit has been filed in the Superior Court by Joe Larrieu, former justice of the peace at Winkelman, and County Attorney Johnson, seeking to oust S. H. Snyder from the office of justice of peace at Winkelman, on the ground that he had been convicted of a felony. The complaint alleges that Snyder on June 2, 1909, was convicted in the United States Court of the western district of Missouri on a charge of using the United States mails to defraud and that he was sentenced to imprisonment for one year in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., together with a fine of $500.

FIRE IN MINE SHAFT.

Thursday night on the 370-foot level of the Miami mines at Miami, a serious fire caught in a room used for storage of tools and dense smoke soon was pouring out of the company's shaft No. 2. Modern science was utilized most effectively by sending down two men equipped with oxygen helmets. They made their way through the dense smoke to the locality affected and there connected hose with the water taps and soon [illegible] the fire.

ELECTRICIAN KILLED.

Tuesday morning at [illegible], Edwin A. Johnson, an electrician of the Arizona Copper Company, was killed by falling down a shaft 475 feet deep. He was knocked from his position on the side of the shaft by a cage which had been erroneously signaled. Johnson was married only last December.

CIRCUS PERFORMER DEAD.

Cruz Ortega died yesterday at the County Hospital of heart disease. Though dying friendless and alone, it is told that at one time she was one of the star performers with the largest American circus.

RAILROAD RESPONSIBLE.

By a decision of the Supreme Court of Arizona, the Arizona Eastern Railroad has been adjudged responsible for the payment of bills incurred by contracting firms upon its Miami extension.

ANNUAL REPORT MADE.

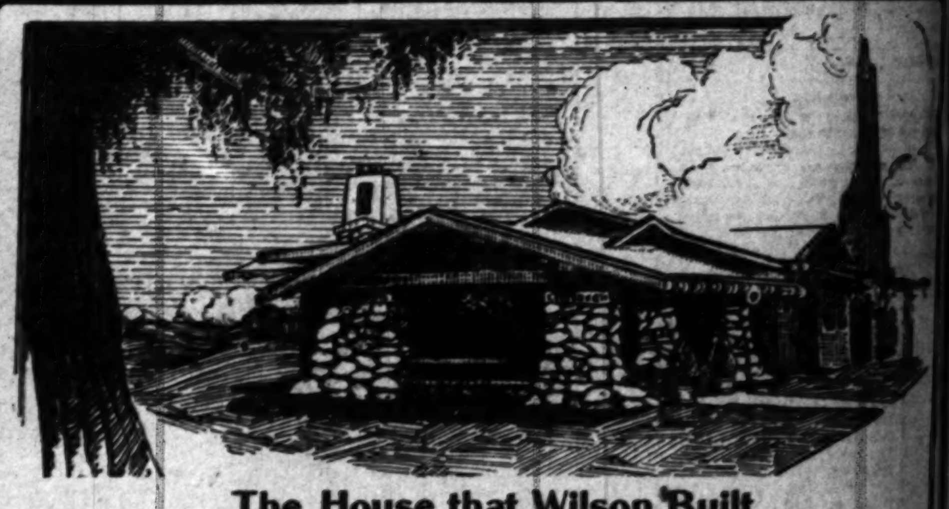
Thirty-seven five, six and seven-room bungalows and chalets have just been completed in Southland Park tract and twenty-three more are to be built within a short time by the Western Building and Investment Company, according to a report made to stockholders at the annual meeting last Thursday. One of the operations of the corporation within the year was the purchase of 130 acres of land near Tropico, on the Glendale line. Sixty-six acres of this was resold. The remaining acreage is to be subdivided into 400 lots and covered with moderate-priced homes.

Vermont Heights tract, 131 acres at Vermont avenue and Figueroa street, is another property to be developed. At Torrance the company has just finished twenty-five houses for the Dominguez Land and Water Company and twenty others for its own purposes.

Ten new houses are now being built on Westland tract. [illegible] houses have just been completed on Peckham's Moneta-avenue [illegible] tract.

REPORT OF SALES.

The Southwest Land Company reports sales in New Vermont Square as follows: W. J. Sloan, Forty-first place, between Gramercy and Arlington, $925; Alice M. Hindson, [illegible] between Gramerey and Arlington, $1250; Warren Worthington, Forty-first street, between Gramercy and Arlington, $1150; L. R. Hubbard, Forty-third street, between St. Andrews and Gramercy, $1200; Raymond A. White, Forty-third street, between Western and St. Andrews, [illegible]; Maude M. Moore, Forty-second street, between Gramercy and Arlington, $1000; John Benson, Forty-first place, between St. Andrews and Gramercy, $1250; Bertram E. [illegible], Forty-second street, between Vermont and St. Andrews, $1150, and John Bloom, Forty-third street, between St. Andrews and Western, $1200.



The House that Wilson Built

I am reproducing today the second of my series of 25 bungalows to be built on OUR LOTS at SANTA MONICA and ALHAMBRA. This superb, little bungalow surrounded as it will be by MATURED ORANGE TREES and PALMS and in full view of the wonderful SIERRAS, will make some home-lover the dearest [illegible] on earth.

MR. WILLIAM HOXWORTH POTTER (in charge of my building department,) and I have been going over the plans of this bungalow for several days.

We will build this complete, including a 50x150 FOOT LOT in the SWELLEST neighborhood in ALHAMBRA for $3550.00—10 PER CENT. DOWN and the balance LIKE RENT.

I want to say that MR. POTTER, the man whom I have selected to handle the building for this Company is a man of varied experience in building bungalows in Southern California.

COME IN and talk with him and you will find out that the company has made a wise selection.

On last Friday the first of our series was advertised in the press. I expect that this particular style of bungalow has been sold by this time.

FINANCING OUR COMPANY
I Offer (While they Last)
LOS ANGELES BUILDING CO
Shares at 5 Cents

BUILDING COMPANIES FINANCE their operations by offering the public their shares. THESE COMPANIES ARE BIG DIVIDEND PAYERS.

You ask probably—how will the LOS ANGELES BUILDING COMPANY make their money? By [illegible] choice property, building artistic homes and selling them on easy terms. They will make builders' profit, the sales profit and the money loaners' profit.

MY OFFER to the public is unparalleled in the history of Los Angeles—The ORGANIZERS of any company are the people who make the BIG PROFITS. Organizers get their stock usually at 50 per cent. BELOW PAR while the public are asked to subscribe for the shares AT PAR. This is true of three-fourths of the building companies of this city, I believe, and still they are great successes.

I DECIDED when I organized the LOS ANGELES BUILDING COMPANY to give the public the same opportunity to buy shares AT THE SAME PRICE as the organizers paid for their shares—but the public MUST ACT NOW and judging from the inquiry and the thousands of shares sold daily, MY OFFER is appreciated.

There are only 250,000 shares of this organization stock. When that has been sold the shares WILL BE ADVANCED TO PAR. In a few words—

THIS IS MY PROPOSITION

Buy a block of this stock at 5 cents a share—the 7 per cent. CUMULATIVE, PARTICIPATING PREFERRED STOCK (par value 10 cents.) This also includes a bonus of 10 per cent. of the common stock.

I have been asked, I guess, by a hundred people, HOW CAN YOU DO IT, MR. WILSON? (It is such an unusual proposition that it makes some people wonder.) My reply is that you are getting in with the organizers, you are one of the underwriters.

This same proposition is being made daily by every new company that is organized, only the proposition is given to a few and the public is never allowed to take advantage of it, but the public are asked to pay 100 per cent. more for their stock, than did the organizers.

I WANT YOU TO JOIN WITH ME TODAY. I want to close the stock-selling end as soon as possible. I want to spend my time with the BUILDING DEPARTMENT and the LOT DEPARTMENT, building and selling bungalows. I want to build the 25 bungalows of this series within the next three months.

TO THE MAN or WOMAN who joins me in this enterprise on the strength of the statements that I make—they must ACT AT ONCE—Enter your order for stock NOW, and if within a reasonable length of time after a thorough investigation you decide you do not want to continue as a stockholder I will return your money.

This GUARANTEE is backed up by the company as well as by my personal resources. I HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFUL. One of the companies with whom I have been associated with since its organization is paying today 12 per cent. dividend and its stock is worth more than par.

Come in and see me today or tomorrow. Or if you are out of town send your subscription by mail.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

QUERIES FROM AND ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

An Odd Rock.

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 27.—Q.: I mail you today by parcel post a sample of a ledge of some kind of mineral which our local assayers say they do not know, and they tell me there is neither gold nor silver in it. I take the liberty, for the first time, to ask you to let me know what it is and if it has any commercial value? If you will be kind enough to do this you will greatly oblige a long-time reader of your valuable paper.

R. H. L.

A.: Glad to hear from you. You need not hesitate to ask favors of this department of The Times, and the fact that you are a member of the "antlered herd" is not a very serious objection.

The sample is a regular "E Pluribus Unum" sort of substance, and carries [illegible] matter, gypsum, calcite, quartz crystals, black iron oxide, titanic-iron, trace of lead, and trace of antimony. Material represented by the sample has no commercial value.

Alabaster.

LONG BEACH, Jan. 31.—Q.: Under separate cover, I am sending samples handed me by a friend and wish to learn if they contain anything in the way of potash or potassium salts. The samples are from some point in Arizona, and the exact location I am not able to give.

F. A. F.

A.: The white samples are alabaster (gypsum) and not suitable for ornamental carving, being too soft. The grayish samples are calcareous sulphate, with potash present in low percentage; nitrates absent. As commercial gypsum the white samples represent a fair grade of lime sulphate, suitable for manufacture into plaster of Paris.

Massive Garnet.

[illegible]FTON, Jan. 29.—Q.: I am mailing you today a sample of yellow [illegible] found near Danby. Will you please state whether it contains any [illegible], also name it?

M. A.

A.: Samples are made up of fractured and altered chrome-garnet, [illegible] (yellowish,) and cinnamon garnet of no commercial value, but of interest mineralogically. The prospect could be prospected somewhat in the hope of finding garnets not weathered, and more transparent, etc.

Geode.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30.—Q.: Please give me some information on the samples herein. They were found [illegible].

W. H. B.

A.: Samples consist of geode matter with chalcedony crystals, chert and lime carbonate present.

Bituminous.

TEHACHEPI, Jan. 31.—Q.: Two samples for classification.

O. L.

A.: The small package contains [illegible] with bitumen present. The specimen is low grade (probably [illegible]) bituminous matter of no commercial value.

Almandine.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1.—Q.: Kindly tell me what this is?

S. K. G.

A.: The samples are massive iron-alumina garnet, and one of the samples is in large crystal form equal to the Salida (Colo.) garnet, so much sought after by mineralogists. If you have some of these large crystals for sale we would like to purchase a few for our mineral collection.

Quartz.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Q.: Ore found piece of ledge six miles north of Saugus, Cal., near second road to right, Township 4 N., Range 13 W.

M. P. S.

A.: The sample is a mixture of smoky quartz with ferruginous quartz. It was not tested for gold, and does not look like good gold-quartz.

Quartz and Epidote.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Q.: From Mexico. Kindly tell me what there is to these stones?

T. K.

A.: The black and white specimen is granite, quartz and biotite. Gold present, with microscopical sulphides sparingly through the mass. The greenish sample is feldspathic (porphyritic,) with epidote present.

Dolomite.

CORONA, Feb. 2.—Q.: From Maracopa county, Arizona. Prospectors would like to know if this ore has any value?

D. S. B.

A.: Ore represented by the sample is of doubtful value. It can be confused with scheelite, but there is no tungstic acid in it. The specimen is dolomite (mountain limestone,) and carries a low per cent. of strontium. Lead present a trace.

Carbonates Absent.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Feb. 3.—Q.: I am sending you a sample of, I name, carbonate ore. Please tell me what it is and if it is of value. It comes from north of here, in this county.

W. S.

A.: While the sample looks like "carbonate ore" (sand carbonates of Leadville, Colo., for instance,) there is no lead present in the mass. It is sugar quartz with greenish epidote. It carries a good looking pyrite (microscopic) that can be easily concentrated. The brownish microscopical specks are pseudomorph after pyrite, oxidized pyrite, as it were. Pan some of the sulphides and have them assayed for gold.

Borax Test.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Q.: The enclosed samples are from the Plomoso Mountains (near Vicksburg, Ariz.) No. 4 is from a large dyke, which crosses the country, and lies in a schist formation. It may be borax. Would you kindly give a field test for borax?

E. C.

A.: No. 1 is a mixture of lime carbonate with magnesium present. Trace of soda, borax absent. No. 2 is quartz with trace of magnesium, iron oxides, and has a thin coating of aragonite (a variety of lime carbonate.) No. 3 carries impure smalt-blue dumortierite (a silicate of aluminum,) iron oxides and manganese dioxide present. No. 4 is a grayish-brown slate, with lime present. No. 5 is red iron-oxide streaks in talcose matter.

Borates in powdered form heated with a little sulphuric acid and alcohol added to the mixture, then lighted with a match, or with blowpipe flame, gives a decided green color to the flames, and there are some boron present, minerals that will give the reaction with 95 per cent. alcohol and the flame without acid.

Low-Grade Cement.

PASADENA, Feb. 2.—Q.: Please test this and let me know if it will make cement.

J. C.

A.: Samples are impure grayish aluminum silicate, with lime carbonate, and iron oxides trace only.

Very Doubtful Prospect.

GILA BEND (Ariz.) Feb. 4.—Q.: Am sending samples of new claims. Would like to know if they contain tin, vanadium, tungsten or any other valuable mineral. Do you think it advisable for me to become interested in these claims? All of these samples come from one group of claims.

MRS. J. C. R.

A.: No. 1 is cellular quartz carrying various iron oxides and manganese. No. 2 is iron carbonate (siderite.) No. 3 is impure iron carbonate. No. 4 is crystallized calcite (lime carbonate.) No. 5 is impure pegmatite (graphic granite,) with mica and red iron oxide in separate streaks. No. 6, impure iron and manganese oxides. No. 7, iron oxides. No. 8, porphyritic rock, with quartz, calcite, iron oxides and iron carbonate. Nos. 9 and 14—in one assorted lot—iron alumina garnet, volcanic glass, lime carbonates, iron oxides, iron carbonate and trace of potash in the gray samples. No. 11, mica schist. No. 12, impure quartz. No. 13, ferruginous quartz. No. 15, friable feldspathic (altered) rock, with trace of potash. No. 16 (in green paper,) three samples iron oxides, and the greenish sample is epidote. One of the three samples carries iron oxides, including magnetite. None of the samples is of commercial value, and the elements, suggested as being present by you are absolutely absent. A poor showing, indeed.

Phosphoric Acid Present.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—Q.: White sample from Perris Valley. Ledge 12x13 feet. Silicate?

M. J. M.

A.: Silica and lime carbonate are present in the mass.

Halotrichite.

SANTA ANA, Feb. 5—Q.: I am sending you a sample of, well, I do not know what. It was taken from a bank close to here. Does not dissolve in water, but dissolves fairly well in turpentine. It is clear and looks like gum camphor. When first taken from the ground has an acid taste. Please analyze it and name it for me, and kindly tell me if it is of any commercial value.

E. E. B.

A.: The sample is impure iron alum, and it is mineralogically named at the subheading. Halotrichite, even when pure, has a very doubtful commercial value.

Ruddle.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Q.: From Arizona.

"MINER."

A.: The samples are our old mineralogical friend that is claimed to be a "rich aluminum oxide." Such is not the fact. The samples are aluminum silicate combined with red "iron chalk," and known as ruddle (reddle.)

Honeycomb Quartz.

SILVER LAKE (Cal.) Feb. 7.—Q.: Will you kindly inform me what the specimen contains? Samples from a locality six miles from Silver Lake, San Bernardino county, in the Shadow range of mountains.

F. G.

A.: The samples are honeycomb quartz. The dark-colored specimens carry manganese, "peacock iron," and matter (iron oxides) that resembles native copper somewhat. The yellowish coating, on one of the samples, is ferrous and ferric oxides.

Not Good Paint Material.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7.—Q.: This specimen is from Acton, Los Angeles county. I want to know what it consists of, and is it good for paint, or filler for fertilizer?

I. M. P.

A.: The sample is not paint material, and as a matter of fact one can use a number of substances for fertilizer "filler," but with questionable results. The sample is a granular, impure hematite, with quartz, magnetite traces, and aluminum silicate.

Hornblende and Calcite.

ACTON, Feb. 7.—Q.: Please classify the samples.

N. D. S.

A.: No. 1 black-hornblende carrying iron oxides, iron silicate, and green epidote. No. 2 white lime carbonate, in part dolomite (magnesium limestone.)

Phosphoric Acid Trace.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—Q.: Will you let me trouble you just once more? This piece of rock was found in the mountains near Elizabeth Lake. Please tell me if there is anything in it of value?

M. M.

A.: The sample is a variety of lime carbonate. Glad to hear from you.

Variety Trachyte.

PIOCHE, (Nev.) Feb. 9.—Q.: Found by me near Pioche, Nev.

M. J.

A.: In the trachyte we find a crystal of Topaz, and the yellow matter in most of the samples is ferrous and ferric oxides. In one of the specimens, however, there is a decided trace of yellowish Autunite, carrying uranium. Part of the sample matter is pseudomorphic after pyrite, galenite, and antimony. One sample is red-iron oxide.

Lime and Iron Oxides.

VICKSBURG, (Ariz.) Feb. 9.—Q.: I am mailing you under separate cover one sample of rock. Would like your opinion as to what it contains, and what mineral should I have it assayed for—if any? This rock comes from the Plomoso range of mountains, about 20 miles west of here near a large lime reef.

F. P. M.

A.: The sample is of the deceptive mineral variety, and scheelite (lime tungstate) might be suspected. It carries no tungsten values, and is lime carbonate with iron oxides.

Silver Absent.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 26.—Q.: Once more I am sending you a sample of ore that is said to be "absolutely new." It is certain that no one that I know can tell me what it is. It comes from a friend who got it in Sonora, Mex., and he sent 500 pounds to smelter at El Paso, thinking for sure that it was almost pure silver, but when the returns came back there was so little silver that it came to nothing, almost. Now I believe that it is rich silver ore, and I am at a loss to account for the low smelter return. Will you please test this and report in usual column?

F. B. A.

A.: Glad to hear from you. There is not a trace of silver in the sample and it is our, very old, mineralogical friend Darwinite.

In the early part of the last century, Darwinite was supposed to be silver-bearing, but when it was submitted to chemical analysis its true character was established. In some Darwinite, however, silver is present to the percentage of 0.24, but there is not a trace of silver in the specimen sent in by you.

The sample is massive and has no cleavage. In fresh fractures a semi-metallic silver-gray luster appears and when the mineral is exposed to the action of the elements it acquires a tarnish of a yellow-brown color, often taken for vanadates. The file-streak of the mineral is metallic, and the sample is brittle.

"Darwinite receives an indentation from a hammer." (Many other substances possess the same physical phenomenon, heads for instance.) The fracture of the mineral is uneven, but it can be filed to a cube. Hardness, 3.5. Sp. gr., 8.60. Composition: 88.31 per cent. copper, with 11.69 arsenic.

Darwinite often puzzles the mining boys in the hills, and if a chunk of the substance is thrown on the coals of a blacksmith forge, and draft supplied under the coal, a garlic-like odor is at once detected (odor of burning arsenic.) In a little while, subject to high temperature with burning coal, a mass of impure copper will be obtained from the mineral. In fluxing the reaction is for copper only.

A Great Alfalfa and Stock Country

Maricopa county, Arizona, is the e to raise alfalfa. That is, to it profitably. There are lots of s where you can raise alfalfa, either the climatic conditions or ater make it possible to make ig money from the crop.

farmer who comes to the great iver Valley, located in the very of Maricopa county Arizona, me here expecting to get bump- s and a good many crops each off the same land. He will re "good growing weather" for ten months in the year. You have to buck against unfavor- conditions in Maricopa county.

lfa has been a staple crop here irty years. Although thousands ns of alfalfa hay are shipped out ally, selling on the cars from ten sixteen dollars a ton, still the biggest returns this miracle crop earns for us is in the fattening of nearly fifty thousand head of cattle for the Los Angeles market annually.

The feeding of eighteen thousand dairy cows, supplying milk to Phoenix and other home towns and making possible the great butter, cheese and condensed milk output; the pasturing of eight thousand ostriches and the big profit it has made for the horse, mule and sheep breeders. Here is what they say:

"My first three crops of alfalfa on 35 acres, baled 180 tons, and my year's receipts were over $75 an acre. Last year my six crops earned over $65, and as I will have a still better stand next year, I will surely get ten tons per acre. I think this is doing pretty well on 150 acres of land."

Another man writes that "$65 is the lowest returns per acre and $85 the highest from our alfalfa ranch the past three years."

A Buckeye farmer writes: "An eighty acres which I have in alfalfa I pastured pretty closely with a bunch of steers up to April 1st, then I irrigated the land thoroughly and cut a hay crop early in May. After irrigating again, I let it go for seed, this crop being made the last of July. It threshed over thirty-two hundred pounds of seed, or over $69 worth per acre, besides the straw. I then made another hay crop, and on half of the land made a second seed crop in October, which averaged 130 pounds per acre."

A Swiss who has lived in the Salt River Valley eight years and who has been in the dairy business all his life writes: "I never have seen a country where stock does so well and matures so quickly as here. I came here from Kansas, where I was in the dairy business. Because my milch cows are on green alfalfa pasture the year around, and because I have no money tied up in expensive barns and feeding pens such as are necessary in cold climates, I figure that I make 6c a pound more net profit, selling butter-fat at the same price that I got in Kansas." And prices average higher here, too.

If you want to know more about this wonderfully rich country, write Vernon L. Clark, Commissioner of Immigration, Maricopa County, Dept Five, 406 Fleming Block, Phoenix, Arizona.

New Anecdotes.

jump the claim of an honest miner. The judge would notify the miner to appear at Nome and defend his rights. At the trial of the case, the jury would return a verdict against the rightful owner of the property.

"A Swede told me that his claim had been jumped and that he had been ordered before the court. 'Stay in your cabin,' I advised him, 'and keep away from Nome.' He accepted my suggestion and was assassinated. I hitched up my dog team and brought his body in and buried it. That was the last of him.

"I called a meeting to discuss the situation, but the crooks got there first, filled the hall, and sat on the platform. The room was so crowded that I had to stand on a bag of coal just inside the door. A man was making a speech. He called me a meddler and a hypocrite. A number of miners said the speaker was a liar. Before I realized what was happening, the miners were lifting me up and passing me over their heads toward the platform. I began to address the meeting. The crooks left the room, but 600 men remained.

"'There is serious work to do,' I said. 'Those who have families to support or have any one depending on them had better go away.' Half of the audience withdrew. I picked out a committee of sixteen miners whom I knew. They were told to watch eight men—and I named them—night and day, and to kill them when the shooting began in Nome. Then I went out into the country and got all the miners in the neighborhood to come to town.

"'We are going to drive the thieves out of office,' I said, 'and replace them with square men. The judge,' I declared, 'is the chief of the gang.'

"It was said in Nome that I was bringing death to the town. 'As I shall be the first one killed,' I replied, 'the blood will not be on my hands.'

"Another meeting was held. I suggested that the judge be ousted from office forthwith. It was done. 'The others,' I said, referring to the Mayor and Chief of Police, 'have simply been his tools. We shall let them serve so long as they are just to all and obey as well as uphold the law.' The meeting loudly agreed. And so Nome was 'cleaned up,' as the saying goes these days."

IT MAY SOLVE FUEL PROBLEM

Prolific Eucalyptus Looked Upon as Blessing.

Railroaders and Lumbermen Making Use of It.

State University Develops Its Good Qualities.

BY C. B. IRVINE.

The University of California has published a bulletin dealing with the eucalyptus in California, and in this the statement is made that "the eucalyptus trees were first set out in California as a curiosity on account of their rapidity of growth and as ornamental trees around gardens and buildings, with a possibility of their supplying the owners with fuel and fence posts. In these respects they have fulfilled the original planter's expectations, and more, for in a few localities the sawmills are now sawing the largest logs into valuable hardwood lumber."

As a foreword to this booklet devoted to the history of eucalyptus in this State, its editor sounds a striking note. He says the importance of eucalyptus culture from a commercial standpoint has reached a stage which can no longer be overlooked, while the growing scarcity of hardwood fuel and lumber, poles, ties and other forms of timber, makes certain an increasing demand and price for any material which can supply this want.

"The almost incredible rapidity of growth of certain species of these trees, their thrift and hardiness under conditions unfavorable to most cultivated plants, and the general appreciation of their value as wood and timber, which is rapidly coming about," adds the compiler of the bulletin, "have created within comparatively recent times a great interest in eucalyptus culture, amounting almost to a 'boom.'"

The fact that many groves are being planted on a greater or less scale, that railroad companies are investigating the possibilities of this timber as a source of supply for ties, poles and timber; that lumber companies are taking up the matter and several large stock-selling corporations have been formed for planting and selling eucalyptus groves, has served to emphasize the need of comprehensive and reliable information as to the possibilities and methods of growing these trees, the commercial qualities of the different species, their adaptation to conditions in the various parts of the State and the quality and amount of the product which can reasonably be expected from them.

DEMONSTRATING HERE.

The investigation recently carried on under the auspices of the State has had to do almost entirely with the commercial and economic side of the question. The possibility of producing this wood in California in almost unlimited quantity is shown, and if the statements appearing almost daily in the public press are to be believed, the imminence of a hardwood famine in this country may be averted through this source. Certainly great possibilities are open in this industry if it should be demonstrated peradventure that species of eucalyptus are equal to native hardwoods as lumber.

It is for the purpose of demonstrating the quality and uses of the wood of the most important species in a more definite manner than has hitherto been done, that the State University is now experimenting at the Santa Monica Canyon station with more than seventy varieties of this tree.

Norman D. Ingham, foreman of the University's forestry experiment station in the canyon says the eucalyptus were first introduced into California from Australia and adjacent islands, several species being planted in the vicinity of San Francisco Bay prior to 1860. Other varieties have been introduced from time to time until today there are perhaps more than one hundred species in the State. From this collection it is possible to select species that will grow on nearly any soil in a frostless region. While there are a few that will endure a temperature as low as 18 degrees without injury, there are others that can stand extremes of temperature from 20 degrees to 120 degrees, and at different altitudes; but with these trees as with any other there is one certain location best adapted to the greatest development. It may be near the coast in a foggy atmosphere, the river bottom lands, the inland valleys, the desert, or in swamps.

COMMERCIAL PROPOSITION.

It is the belief of Ingham that eucalyptus planting has passed the experimental stage and may be considered without question as a commercial proposition. The value of the crop and the possibilities of growing it in California have been sufficiently demonstrated to make judicious plantings even on a large scale perfectly safe, with an assurance of sure and reasonably large profits. Ingham suggests, however, that it is of greatest importance for the planter to take into consideration the market which he will seek to supply.

As a source of fuel supply, the proposition is at first glance of attractive appearance, considering the prevailing prices; but, says he, "many glowing prospectuses are offered to the public on this basis. It should be remembered that the production and use of natural oil is rapidly increasing; that gas and electricity for heating purposes are cheap in the cities, and that all three are coming more and more into use every day in the place of wood. In fact, wood as fuel is rapidly becoming a luxury, and there is no reason for expecting any increase in its use as fuel by the general public." For these reasons, he believes it unprofitable and unwise to enter upon eucalyptus planting with the sole idea of raising wood for fuel.

The profits to be derived from this timber in the future will be found, according to Ingham, in hardwood lumber, implements, railroad, coach and house finishings, furniture, ties, telephone poles, and bridge and building timber for wagon work; farm and other bers. For any of these uses, products of trees of at least ten years' growth will be required, and of course the older the trees the greater the profits.

The wood of the different species varies from wood as soft as that of the pine to very hard, close-grained and variously-colored kinds the equal

Owing to the irregular grain of the lumber cut from many of the species of this tree, there is a tendency of the wood to chip, and this makes the lumber more costly to cut and mill than any of the other native hard woods. All varieties are more or less liable to be injured by season-cracks at the ends of the logs, and on this account it is the custom to cut the logs a foot or two longer than the finished product is required to be. The logs should be cut and sawed while green, and the seasoning is the better accomplished by piling in high tiers to obtain weight. The logs should also be protected from the sun and wind.

Under ordinary conditions from eighteen to twenty-four years are required to grow a fifty-foot pile that will measure ten inches in diameter at the small end. Such a stick of timber is worth from $10 to $12. Results from a grove of eucalyptus trees grown for purposes of fuel are more rapid. Under favorable conditions a grove of Blue Gums five years old, set out 6x6 feet apart, should yield from 50 to 80 cords of wood per acre, while the same grove at ten years of age may be expected to yield from 80 to 150 cords. The expense of working up standing trees varies considerably with the age and species of the trees, but most of the eucalyptus grove owners estimate that the cost of preparing the fuel in stove lengths is equal to one-half of the market price of the product.

IMPORTANT BY-PRODUCT.

One of the most important of the by-products is eucalyptus oil, which is highly efficacious in the treatment of stomachic troubles as well as for rheumatism and many of the other ills to which the human flesh is heir. The amount of the oil that can be distilled from a certain number of pounds of leaves and twigs varies with the locality and species. Only the smallest twigs and leaves are used. The leaves from the brush of ten cords of wood, cut from five-year-old trees, should distill from one and one-half to two and one-half gallons of oil. Two tons of leaves and twigs will produce from three to four gallons of oil, which sells for about $4.50 per gallon.

There is a prevailing idea that the growing of eucalyptus is exclusively a proposition for cheap, dry or poor land. While it is true that certain species will live and grow fairly well under conditions where no other crop could be considered, and if the object is merely the utilization of such land to the best advantage eucalyptus planting may be wise and [illegible] but far more profitable returns will be secured on the investment by reason of the enormously more rapid growth and greater wood production of the trees, where the planting is on irrigable land or that which is naturally moist and therefore capable of culture. It should be stated in favor of the planting of eucalyptus on a commercial scale that the investment is a comparatively safe one, since the harvest of the crop may be profitably postponed until such time as the market price of the output is satisfactory.

There is another [illegible] feature about the business in the fact that the second cutting shows an increase in quantity. The number of cords of wood per acre at the second cutting is greater for the same length of time because where there was originally but one tree, there have grown a large number of sprouts. These, if properly trimmed, will make a more rapid growth than the parent tree. This is due to the fact that the stump has a fully developed root system which is capable of supplying the food to a mature tree. The stump supports from two to four trees for the second growth. There is no known species that fails to sprout at any time of the year after the trees are cut down. The growth made by these sprouts is phenomenal. The record made by one ordinary stump is cited. On May 3, the tree was felled, leaving a stump 7½ inches in diameter. Five months later it had twenty-one sprouts, the largest of which was forty-five inches in height.

Each species of the eucalyptus has more or less value as bee pasture when in bloom, and from the large number of varieties it is possible to select a group that will furnish bloom for the bees to work on during every month of the year. However, the author of the bulletin [illegible] prospective planters to use caution in selecting species on the basis of their reported behavior in Australia or other distant regions. Experience has demonstrated that some of the species most highly recommended in Australia do not behave the same in California and vice versa.

SUPPLY INSUFFICIENT.

In a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture, the statement is made that the wood of the eucalyptus has not been extensively used by manufacturers in America because the supply has not been sufficient to establish a market. Blue gum has competed with black locust for insulator pins and has given satisfactory service in chisel and hammer handles as well as for wagon tongues, axles, hubs, spokes and fellies, being hard, strong and tough. It is the fastest growing species, fifteen-year-old trees not infrequently attaining a height of 101 feet and thirty-inch diameter. The fastest-growing species are shown by kiln-dry tests to be the strongest. A comparison with [illegible] service tests on hickory shows that thirty-year-old blue gum is stronger than XXX hickory, and that [illegible] year-old sugar gum is nearly as strong as black hickory and [illegible] per cent. as strong as hickory of second growth.

That the growth of the tree from the seed is rapid, is shown by records kept at the Santa Monica station. Trees planted when they were but fifteen inches high were found after five years (or less than six years from the seed) to have attained a height of thirty-two feet and a girth of measurement of twenty-three inches.

Scenting the approach of a timber famine, the Santa Fe Railroad Company has taken time by the forelock and acquired an [illegible]-acre ranch in San Diego county which it expects to eventually cover with eucalyptus trees. The purpose is to use them for ties, piles, bridge timbers, [illegible] and in the manufacture of [illegible] considerable start has already been made in the planting. One agent has been sent to Europe to make a study of the methods employed there in the cultivation of the trees, while another is now in Australia to investigate the tree in its native habitat.

SETTING OUT ORCHARD.

Fourteen thousand pear trees, mostly of the Bartlett variety, are being planted on sixty acres of the Nuys-Lankershim lands near the town of Marian, for H. J. Whitley, general manager of the Los Angeles Suburban Homes Company. In the town and its vicinity there has been much recent development, according to the Janss Investment Company.

Montana Tonopah continues to increase its ore reand the announcement of the cutting of a new ore-body on the 615-foot level is accompanied by the statement that it is maintaining its width and values. This ore-body is from fifteen to sixteen feet wide and the east and west drifts are carried in full faces of ore which is of an excellent milling grade with bunches of very high-grade ore through it.

An important development has occurred on the 515-foot level from which a raise followed a spur from the Triangle to the Martha vein and encountered a flat fault. It has now been picked up, however, above the fault and has been started on from three to four feet of good mill ore.

In the Tonopah Extension the Lower Contact vein, which promises to break into a great ore body about fifteen feet wide with a foot of very fine ore in the face of milling grade.

In prospective tonnage the mine is a revelation in every respect and it is expected that the western workings will show large bodies of ore. The chief new developments on the 500-foot level are in what is known as the middle block of the south vein, about 500 feet west of the shaft and comprising a block about 400 feet long, between two faults. This now has been drifted on for 350 feet, the last 70 feet averaging $20 a ton. This drift has been connected by a raise with the 600-foot level.

Excepting for the production of sufficient ore to cover current expenses activity in the Merger mine centers on the development of ore on the lower levels. It is expected that at the 1170-foot level the ore will prove to be of better grade than on the 980 and 1070-foot levels. The main shaft has reached the new level, having been sunk 100 feet in the remarkably short space of twenty-eight days. At this point station holes are drilled and the shaft will then be sunk another fifteen feet for a sump and then a station will be cut. The west drift on this level in the vein was advanced the usual distance during the week in mill ore. Shipments from the Merger have averaged fifty-five tons every other day.

The Mizpah Extension has started on a very vigorous plan of development at a greater depth in the belief that the vein opened on the 1000-foot level will continue deeper and carry better and more regular values in the trachyte formation. The winze connecting with the Belmont workings is sunk to reach this formation under the dip of the Tesuro fault and, it is estimated, that it will have to be sunk a further 150 feet before doing this. To expedite this an electric hoist will be installed.

Work at the Halifax is now restricted to the 1400-foot level in the north cross-cut near the Belmont line, in which excellent progress is made in trachyte formation. Cross-cutting in the big vein on the 1000-foot level has been temporarily discontinued. Sinking of the main shaft continues to make good progress at a depth of 1550 feet.

Start Work on Mill Soon.

water, and naturally the work cannot be conducted as rapidly at this great depth as nearer the surface. It is said, however, that the formation indicates the near approach to the ore that has been exposed on the 1300-foot level.

Of almost equal interest is the work that is conducted by this company on its Combination claim, where a crosscut is driven at a depth of about 250 feet to tap the great ore body exposed a short time ago on the 130-foot level, and which, on this level alone, is estimated to have added over $500,000 to the net value of available ore reserves.

Development work of the greatest potential importance is carried on by the Merger Mines Company at a number of points in its large territory which adjoins the Consolidated on the east, and has the extension of the largest and richest veins of this property and of the Jumbo Extension.

The New Jersey Mines Company operates at two points in the Goldfield district, the work being under the direction of Henry Ernest. This company has a long-term lease on the property of the Goldfield Imperial Mining Company, adjoining the Blue Bull group on the east, and owns a group of claims in the eastern central part of the district, where there has been some development. On the Imperial property work has been in progress for some time, and the main shaft is down 300 feet. This work is in line with the pay streak of the camp and good results are expected by the management.

Among the active properties of the Goldfield district—and by that is meant properties where work is steadily in progress, and where results of an interesting character may be reasonably expected—are the Goldfield Oro, the C.O.D. estate, the Booth, the Blue Bull, the Lone Star Consolidated, the Silver Pick Consolidated, the Vernal, the Sandstorm-Kendall Consolidated, the Diamondfield Black Butte, and one or two others. Besides, of course, there are the Goldfield Consolidated, the Merger Mines Company, the Atlanta Mines Company and the Florence Goldfield Company.

In the Goldfield district today there are more men employed than one or two years ago. The stand-patters are game and they begin to see daylight through the clouds. It is apparent to all observers that Goldfield is destined to take rank as one of the deep-mine camps of the country. The surrounding districts, like Hornsilver and Klondyke are also developed in a manner that will redound to the benefit of this camp.

RICH STRIKE NEAR BIDWELL.

SAMPLES INDICATE HIGH GRADE OF ORE.

Long and Tedious Search Is Finally Rewarded—Finding of Rich Vein of Quicksilver in Mad Canyon Is Reported—January Weather Bad for State Lines.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

NEVADA CITY, Feb. 20.—A rich strike has been made in the Sunset Mine, near Ft. Bidwell, an eight-foot vein, which is said to assay from $50 to $200 per ton, having been uncovered. Judging by some of the samples the strike should be very valuable. It is said that the finding of the ore was a long and tedious task and that the miners were several times on the point of giving up the search. Finally, however, they located what they expected.

John Parr, one of the old-time mining men, is employed as superintendent of the Pioneer Mine, near Dutch Flat, where, it is reported, a large body of low-grade ore, assaying about $5 per ton has been found. Parr proposes to operate this mine on a large scale.

Word has just been received that a rich vein of cinnabar (quick-silver) has been found by L. H. Stanley and others in Mad Canyon, near Middletown. The vein is said to be heavily mineralized but, owing to the heavy snow, its length could not be estimated at the time of the strike. The operators were doing assessment work on the claims and found the vein only four feet beneath the surface. It is well defined and runs along a contact of hornblend and talc.

In the Champion Mine, near Nevada City, which has recently been taken over by the North Star, it is reported that a large body of ore has been located and blocked out on the 2400-foot level. Preparations are being made to mine and mill this.

There has been very little snow or rain about Nevada City this month. The weather has contrasted quite favorably with January when the weather was very inclement. In the higher parts of the mountains the snow was six or eight feet deep part of the time during January, interferring with and forcing the cessation of mining operations. Many of the men left the camps for milder climate and more congenial work. The deep snow caused one or two bad accidents on the Downieville stage line. In one instance a stage was wrecked and several people were injured. The depth of the snow necessitated the putting of snowshoes on the horses.

SYNDICATE BONDS GROUP OF CLAIMS.

MAMMOTH GOES TO ENGLISHMEN FOR LARGE SUM.

Lewissohn Syndicate Takes Bonds on Many Claims—Prospecting Active in Helvetia District—Arizona Copper Company Plans Extensive Improvements.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Feb. 21.—The Mammoth group of fourteen claims has been bonded for $150,000 by R. R. Richardson to an English syndicate headed by Clement Guion. The property carries copper and silver, but has not been developed to any considerable depth. It adjoins the Montezuma mine, owned by the Chicago McCormicks, and the ore found is believed simply an extension of that which has been developed deeply and satisfactorily within the Montezuma.

A large amount of prospecting is done in the Helvetia district, though the promised revival of extensive operations on the Helvetia mine itself has not materialized. Work is prosecuted on the Tip-Top group. A. G. Brandt and W. B. Cleary are working on a promising group of copper claims and the Santa Rita Copper Company is developing its mines in a small way.

The Lewissohn syndicate has taken bonds upon a large number of claims around the old Rosemont property, acquired by the syndicate some time ago.

The plans of the Arizona Copper Company for the modernizing of its smelter plant at Clifton are extended to cover surface improvements of every kind on property owned by the corporation. New locations are to be provided for practically all the officials, new freight and passenger depots are to be built and a new company store is to be constructed at a convenient location near the new smelter. It is understood that the improvements are even to have consideration for the Mexican employees, who are to be given sanitary dwellings instead of the miserable shacks now generally occupied by them.

Matt Quenner, inventor of the Quenner dry washer, has returned to Arizona from a prospecting trip along the west coast of Mexico. He spent three weeks among the Papago Indians in the locality of Port Libertad, 200 miles west of Hermosillo, and was guided across the desert by Papagos and shown some fine copper-bearing ground upon which he has filed. The Indians have hitherto kept secret their knowledge of these copper croppings.

If the district could be reached readily from the water side transportation troubles in the workings of the mines would be minimized.

Quenner has bonded to the Holt Brothers the Sierra Prieta mine, twenty-five miles south of Nogales. The Holts already have struck a vein of copper ore, averaging only 10 per cent. and expect to begin shipping soon.

At a depth of 350 feet a new ore body has been struck in the Creston de Cobre mine, thirty miles west of Hermosillo. At last accounts a cross-cut was still in ore after thirty feet of penetration. The same ore-body has been found on upper levels and its continuance at depth has now been demonstrated.

In the United States Court at Phoenix, Judge Sloan has affirmed the finding of Referee F. H. Bernard of Tucson in the bankruptcy of the Tombstone Consolidated Mines Company, rejecting the application of the holders of special contract bonds on the ground that they did not constitute a fixed liability as evidenced by a judgment or an instrument in writing.

LITTLE JESSIE MINE REVIVED.

VIRGIN STRIKE IS MADE IN ONCE RICH PRODUCER.

Ore Found in Property, Which Now Belongs to Ohio Mines Company, Shows Indications of Equalling Old-time Product—United Verde Preparing for New Upraise.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Feb. 21.—Years ago the Little Jessie property in Chaparrel Gulch was considered one of the richest in Arizona, with a large body of sulphuret gold ore, remarkably tractable to the ordinary processes of reduction. The property is now owned by the Ohio Mines Company, managed by John S. Jones, who owned the mines in their palmy days. He has reported a new strike on virgin ground near the surface, where in the process of assessment work has been uncovered a twelve-foot body of gold ore, showing the same characteristics of the ore of earlier times.

Gold ore assaying $1000 a ton, in samples taken from a four-inch pay streak, has been found in a prospect owned by T. C. Hill in Thumb Butte district, near Prescott. The locality has been known as a rich gold field for forty years and in the gulches around have frequently been found gold nuggets of considerable size.

The old mill of the Climax Company on the Hassayampa is rebuilt and will be in operation within a few days on gold ores. The company has ten men with three machine drills busy upon work on the 500 level.

The Cass copper group near Copper Basin has been bonded to an eastern company for $17,000.

Gun Catchers.

STOP-WATCH CREATES TERROR.

CAUSES CELESTIAL TONG MEN TO GIVE UP REVOLVERS.

Bright Idea of a New York Policeman Brings Peace to Chinatown and Collects an Arsenal for the Police Station From Men Who Habitually Carried Guns.

[New York Sun:] The Sabbath calm that prevailed over Chinatown yesterday and many, many Sundays past for that matter, led a visitor to the three tortuous streets that, woven together, make up the town, to ask where was the excitement of other days. For it used to be a dull Sunday indeed that saw no ambulances swing into Mott street, that heard no boom of rr's, or the bored voice of the hospital doctor pronouncing some Four Brother or On Leong dead.

In Elizabeth street there is a certain little Irishman who has beneath his tip-tilted derby knowledge stored up since the time when as a boy he used to play around the old gambling-houses in the town. He knew Chinatown when there were real perils for the visitor, and he knows the new town of the gaping tourist and sight-seeing automobile as well. He told the inquirer yesterday the story of the policeman and the stop watch, and gave this as one of the most important reasons for the unwonted quietness of the Tong fighters.

Policeman Kirkpatrick had a post in front of one of the Tong headquarters. It was not the most quiet spot in the world. Did Policeman Kirkpatrick saunter round the corner to converse with a friend, did he as much as glance heavenward to see the pigeons whirling round the eaves of the Italian church, then immediately out of dark alleys shuffled Chinamen with their hands up their sleeves, and the next Kirkpatrick knew bullets were pinging past his annoyed ears and Chinamen were sitting down on the pavement in front of him coughing blood and calling on their gods for vengeance. His activities after a shooting were perforce confined to diving under beds and bringing up sleepy and to all appearances innocent Chinamen, who would later swear in court that the dead man was their nearest relative and not for all the world would they harm a hair of his queue.

Policeman Kirkpatrick saw that no honor would come out of wholesale arrest after a shooting and he sat him down to think how he might forestall the rain of bullets, gain a little peace for himself and the neighborhood, and at the same time collect evidence that might lead to conviction in the Criminal Courts building.

One day he went on post smiling. If you knew Kirkpatrick, said the teller of this tale, you would have kept a long way from him had there been guilt on your soul. He had the gloom of the Celt, with little of his cheery side, and when he smiled it was purely a business affair.

Kirkpatrick went into a certain fruit store on his post, and in the back of it, sitting on a box, he found a very old and very wise Chinaman, with the expression of a cherub after Raphael and the hidden disposition of Apollyon. He was the law and the prophet of the Tong that at that time was doing most of the shooting and was furthermore importing hired men quick on the trigger from San Francisco.

The policeman and the Oriental talked of many immaterial things, with the guarded politeness used by diplomats from St. James's to Pekin.

After a bit of this Kirkpatrick yawned, gave a sidelong, calculating glance at the man on the fruit box and then pulled out his watch. It was a stop watch. The figures were raised on the face and were of steel.

"You see this, John?" said Kirkpatrick.

The Chinaman looked at the watch idly.

"That's my gun catcher," said Kirkpatrick casually. The Chinaman looked at the watch with signs of awakened interest and then shot a glance of inquiry at Kirkpatrick.

"Yes," continued the latter, "I get bad men who carry guns in their sleeves and under their jackets with this here watch."

John was all attention as Kirkpatrick, as though telling a child, explained to the tong leader the wonders of his watch. He told him that all he had to do was to shove it against a man who had a revolver in his pocket and the hands would stop. John had heard, to be sure, of magnetism, but he was more than interested when Kirkpatrick set forth just how it was that the steel in the hidden revolver acted magnetically upon the steel of the figures on the watch so that they stopped the hands in their courses the moment they felt the call of the steel of a .44.

John, still a bit sceptical, demanded proof. He had no gun. Kirkpatrick was sure of that, so he pressed the watch against the Chinaman, and the hands went on. As the breathless John gazed with bulging eyes Kirkpatrick swept the watch over his hip pocket where John knew he carried his revolver. They both bent over the watch. Its hands had quivered to a standstill.

Kirkpatrick went out whistling. John sat on his box thinking, and presently he too glided away. Out of the corner of his eye the policeman saw him slip down the block, stopping every now and then to drop a few warning words in a Chinaman's ear.

How well John had spread the news Kirkpatrick saw the next day. Two Chinamen who he was pretty sure were tong men, but whom he had never been able to catch with revolvers in their possession turned the corner and came toward him. At the sight of the man with the "gun catcher" they came to a hesitating halt. Kirkpatrick walked toward them. Ostentatiously he drew out his watch. They broke and ran and the policeman pounded after them. In a blind alley he caught them both. One swift run of his hands over their silken jackets and Kirkpatrick took them both to Elizabeth street. For some days Kirkpatrick was busy pursuing Chinamen who fled at the sight of him, gun carrying Chinamen all of them, who had heard of the marvels of that watch.

The Elizabeth-street station acquired an arsenal, Kirkpatrick got many convictions, peace once more reigned undisputed on the gun catcher's post.

COST OF THE BALKAN WAR.

Three Hundred Thousand Dollars Every Day Was Spent by the Allied Nations Warring Against the Turks.

[Denver Republican:] The cost in money to all the nations of the Balkan war has been millions upon millions, and the expenses are all going upward day by day. The reports as to the killed and wounded include only the period up to the proclamation of the armistice.

England, of the great European powers, not actually engaged in the war, has escaped with the least expenditure. Almost all the extra expenditures by the British government were for naval movements, and this outlay has been officially estimated at $300,000. There was no mobilization of troops by England.

Exact figures from Belgrade are hard to get, but the following are partly official. The Servians contributed 300,000 men. Of these 50,000 stayed at home for service there. They lost 22,000 killed and wounded. Of these they assert only 4000 were killed and the rest wounded.

The Bulgarians sent to the field 300,000, with the 50,000 on the northern frontier. They lost in killed and wounded 80,000, and at Kirk-Kilisseh alone they lost 20,000.

The Montenegrins sent 75,000 men to the field, of whom they lost between 650 0and 7000.

The Greeks contributed 120,000, tween 5600 and 7000.

Servia was spending $100,000 a day from October 18 to December 23, making $6,600,000. She mobilized her army sixteen days previous to the outbreak of the war, which cost her $1,800,000. She has a reserve fund enough for her fight four months longer without borrowing.

Bulgaria for sixty-six days has been spending $120,000 a day, making $7,920,000. Her mobilization cost her another $2,160,000.

Greece has paid out $3,600,000 up to the time of writing; that is about $60,000 a day.

Montenegro has spent $10,000 per diem and she has fought for fifty-five days, bringing her expenses up to a total of $550,000, all of which was supplied by Russia and Italy.

Servia has captured, according to official information, 308 cannon, 213,000 rifles of various types, hundreds of quick-firing guns, 42,000,000 cartridges and 110 wagons. This ammunition and all the rest of the property is in good condition. Servia gave to Bulgaria $6,000,000 for war expenses, besides much ammunition and the uniforms for 30,000 men.

At present Austro-Hungary's daily expenses for her army are calculated at about $200,000 and those of the navy $60,000. The total daily expenditure is estimated at about $200,000 a day. This outlay has now been going on for ninety days, therefore Austria's total military and naval expenditure to date has been about $23,400,000. The loss in wages and industrial profits, owing to a virtual state of war, is more difficult to compute, but high financial authorities in Vienna put it at $15,000,000.

SURGERY DOESN'T CURE.

Lack of Evidence That Habitual Crooks Can Be Reformed by an Operation.

[Journal American Medical Association:] An interesting after development in a surgical case which attracted much attention about four years ago has just occurred. A prisoner serving a long sentence in the prison at Dannemora, N. Y., was pardoned by Gov. White on representations which seemed to make it clear that he had been cured of his criminal tendencies by a surgical operation. Following the operation, the prisoner's character seemed to change. From being sullen and morose he became bright and cheerful, walked with firmer step, held his head erect and appeared to be a different man. It is not surprising that a few months after the operation the Governor was induced to set him free on parole, and there seemed to be every reason to hope that a useful citizen had been restored to society in place of the criminal that had been taken from it.

Unfortunately the arrest of the paroled prisoner the first week of January of the present year, for a series of burglaries with regard to which the evidence is complete, seems to make it clear that the improvement was only temporary, or that the operation and his subsequent good conduct were steps in a scheme to obtain his release from prison. It is, of course, only what might be expected. There is no trustworthy evidence to show that changes in moral character, independent of mental deterioration, result from pressure on the brain. Sensational announcements of improvement in such cases after surgical intervention, like those that used to be made after various surgical procedures in epilepsy, need to be controlled by the subsequent history of the case. Immediate improvement in such cases is usually mental rather than physical, and successes reported before many years have tested their permanence are liable to produce false impressions.

OPEN GOTHAM PARK.

A large number of persons attended the opening of Gotham Park, the latest tract of the Commonwealth Home Builders, last Sunday. Aviator Grover E. Bell made several flights during the afternoon. There was also a band concert. Gotham Park is situated between Harbor boulevard, San Pedro street and Manchester avenue and consists of forty acres of level land.

HUGE PLANT PLANNED.

The Edwards & Wildey Company reports the sale of 210 acres of hill and canyon land in the Watts subdivision of Rancho San Rafael by the Oak Forest Land and Water Company to the Pacific Light and Power Company. The purchasing corporation will erect on the property a transformer station to handle the high voltage power coming down from its Big Creek project. This station, when completed, will handle nearly 300,000 horse power. The property embraces the upper end of Eagle Rock Canyon and adjoins Eagle Rock Park, recently acquired by H. E. Huntington.

Other sales reported by this company are: Elizabeth Hoffman, five-room bungalow, No. 162 East Ellenwood drive, $2750; C. W. Simpson, Glen Eyrie, near Forest avenue, $575, five-room bungalow to be erected on property.

HOW THE EARTH LOOKS.

A Gazer From the Moon Would See an Inspiring Sight With the Outlines of the Continents Defined.

[Harper's Weekly:] Were we transplanted to the planet Venus a peculiar set of views could be obtained of our earth, enabling us to see ourselves, to some extent at least, as others see us. Venus is about the same size as the earth, is somewhat closer to the sun and has more atmosphere than the earth.

When the earth and Venus are nearest together they are, of course, on the same side of the sun, and, in consequence of this, the earth does not see more than a very small part of Venus illuminated, but Venus, on the other hand, sees all of one side of the earth illuminated, and, therefore, able to claim she has something that takes the place of a moon, for the earth to Venus at this time looks very large and bright, almost as much so as our moon does to us.

But to our own moon we appear in the best light as a moon. A full earth as seen from the moon, according to Todd and other astronomers, is a very inspiring sight. It can at once be seen why this is necessarily true. The earth is several times larger than the moon, and would appear in the heavens as a disk about fourteen times the size of the moon. It would probably shine with a variable light, due to the shifting clouds of the earth, though the light is, of course, reflected from the sun, and the reflection is due in part to the upper surface of the clouds.

The outlines of the continents of the earth appear very clearly to the moon as if they were formed in papier-mache on a globe. Cities of comparatively large size could be made out with ease in case observers were there to make them out. The intensity of the reflected earth light would be as much as fifteen moons and would enable the Selenites, if such there were, to read or work in comparative daylight.

It is a dry year and harder than ever to get water. A wide gulf separates the Spring Valley Water Company and the city government. A difference of $500,000 in the purchase price is still unsettled. Both sides are willing to arbitrate but they will not agree on who is to do the arbitrating.

Gillette's Regent Square

Right along—day in and day out, during the past two weeks since the first announcement, we have been making reservations, and showing investors this beautiful property.

Particularly noticeable is the fact that the number of lots selected each day is increasing. Evidently, to be able to have first choice is a pleasing experience for many.

Ever stop to think that with autos, good roads and fast electric railway lines, it's really poor policy to live in the dusty, overcrowded city.

Figure out what an investors' stampede will mean to the San Vicente-Santa Monica district. It is headed this way. Nothing will stop it. This section is coming into its own. During the next few years phenomenal buying, selling and development activity will take place. Which side of the fence will you be on—profit or loss?

Don't spend any more time aimlessly trying to select a home-site or investment opportunity. King C. Gillette went all over Los Angeles and suburbs, literally "with a fine tooth comb." He decided that this property (now Gillette's Regent Square) was the best in all respects. Mr. Gillette took his pick. Now, you show your foresight by taking your pick of Mr. Gillette's property.

WHAT KAYO AND RIVERS BOTH SAID AFTER THE FIGHT.

BY JOE RIVERS.

I could not use my injured right much. I was afraid to cut loose for fear of breaking it. I followed Levy's instructions and felt Brown out until I thought I had him measured, before I started to land on him. I made several swings before the real one landed. When I landed with my right and he went down, I thought I had broken my hand, but followed up the advantage, taking every chance, until I won. He didn't hurt me at all.

BY KAYO BROWN.

Rivers won by landing on me as we came out of the clinches. I couldn't get from his right as we broke. He is a great fighter and I have nothing but the best to say for him. I am going after Jack Britton, and after I have put him out of the way I am going after Rivers again and will show him up. He is a clean fighter and the actual champion as Ritchie won over Wolgast on a fluke.

Poor Kayo.

JOE RIVERS'S SECONDS COACHED IN SPANISH.

Mexican's Wonderful Showing Indicates that it Will Be Long Time Before Any one of His Class Beats Him. Both Boys Were Down to Weight and in Perfect Condition.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

JOE RIVERS knocked out Knockout Brown in the tenth round of their twenty-round go at the Vernon arena yesterday afternoon after putting him down four times.

The first two times Brown landed on the floor from a hard right to the jaw. The third he went down from a left swing to the jaw when he was a little off his balance. The fourth was another hard right to the jaw and each time he took the count of nine.

When he went down from another right to the jaw the last time he landed squarely on his back and after Charlie Eyton counted a few seconds he very cleverly stopped the bout and declared Rivers the winner. Rivers boxed up to all his old-time high-class form and this was owing to his grand condition. It looked at times to many at the ringside that he was not as good as of old, but this was owing to the fact that Brown held his right hand forward and was a puzzle to Joe.

It was also noticed that after the fourth round he did not use his right hand as often as he was expected to do and it looked at times that he was suffering from a sore hand. This was verified by Joe Levy, his manager, who said after the contest that he hurt his hand in the third round and was nursing it.

HIS FIRST KNOCK OUT.

For Knockout Brown it might be said that he is one of the toughest and hardest lightweights to knock out in the country. It was a new experience to him to be knocked down so hard and often, but he showed good judgment in taking the full count every time.

He is also one of the most aggressive boxers ever seen in this part of the country and as game as any man who ever drew on a boxing glove.

Brown landed many hard punches on Rivers that hurt. But there were many that Rivers blocked with his gloves and arms that appeared to land. Brown's best blows were with his left hand. While he landed many straight blows with his right they did not appear to worry Rivers much.

A full house greeted the boys as they entered the ring, in fact one of the largest crowds that ever attended a Vernon scrap.

Both boys weighed in balancing the scales at 133 ringside. Brown was the first to enter the ring and was quickly followed by Rivers. Dan Morgan won the toss for corners and contrary to the custom, took the northeast corner which was the sunny one. This was a god move on Dan's part as it was a chilly day and the sunshine helped Brown.

COACHED IN SPANISH.

Brown was seconded by his Manager Dan Morgan, Adam Brown, Young Marino and Kid Yokum. Rivers had his Manager Joe Levy, Roger Cornell, his brother, Andy and Abdul the Turk. His brother, Andy, was of great assistance to him in his corner and coached Joe in Spanish during the contest, and neither Dan Morgan or Knockout knew what he was saying. This must have got Dan's goat as he likes to hear what anybody has to say about Brown.

Eddy Burnell, a little hunchback boy, was also in River's corner as a mascot for Rivers.

Both boys appeared in perfect condition and were very cool while waiting for the introductions and pictures.

RIVERS BOTHERED.

In the first round Rivers made the water run from Brown's eyes from punches on the nose. But Brown bothered Rivers by holding his right hand out.

In the second round, Brown rushed Rivers all over the ring and landed some good blows and seemed to have Joe puzzled, but it finished about even on points.

The third was all Rivers's round. He used his right often and landed as often as he let it go.

The fourth was all Rivers's but Brown was a tough boy to stop.

The fifth, sixth and seventh were pretty near even. There was not much damage to either boy.

The eight was Brown's. He crowded Rivers all through this and was the aggressor from the start.

In the ninth Rivers acted as though his right hand was sore and looked worried at times.

SENSATIONAL FINISH.

The tenth was all Rivers's from start to finish, but Brown had a dangerous punch until the last if he could have landed it.

It was one of the most sensational boxing contests ever seen in Vernon and the Knockout boy made many friends by his game showing. Both boys were warned at times for holding and not breaking away when ordered to do so. But the contest as a whole was clean and fair.

Referee Eyton's rulings met the approval of all present. It was a fine

OLDFIELD IN FRONT AGAIN.

Speed King Easily Annexes Imperial Road Race.

Tetzlaff Car Wrecked on Track at Holtville.

Lyon's National Car Turns Over at El Centro.

BY BERT SMITH.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

IMPERIAL, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Barney Oldfield in the Fiat won the Imperial Valley Road Race here today, making the 203.1 miles in 4 hours, 41 minutes and 11 seconds. Driving a race over a slippery course, with one of the fastest cars on earth under him, the champion speed king came into his own and swept across the tape through a long lane of spectators and won $3200. Frank B. Good on the Studebaker was second and S. A. McKee on the Cadillac, third.

Thrills came early in this race below sea-level. Ed Lyons, the local favorite on a National, shot away into first place at the end of the first lap. Minutes separated the National, with Lyons driving like a fiend, and Oldfield who was bouncing over the course at a terrific pace.

TEDDY WRECKED.

Teddy Tetzlaff was the favorite and his first ten miles, which were made in ten minutes, sent him into a lead at Brawley which was increased at Holtville, where Tetzlaff's machine was wrecked as it struck the railroad track, almost throwing the driver from his car.

NATIONAL TURNS OVER.

Flying along at eighty miles an hour in an effort to overtake Tetzlaff, the National was driven at a pace that kept every one guessing. After leaving El Centro for the last few miles of the first lap, Lyons came into the stretch toward El Centro, not know that Tetzlaff was out of the race.

In his desperate effort to catch the leader the National was overturned and Lyons had a narrow escape. The fact that he had won last year, made many of the Imperial Valley fans confident Lyons would repeat the trick, but he failed.

With the National hitting on only three cylinders, Lyons came bouncing to the tape and went into the second lap with a severe handicap. He had injured his car when it was overturned. This gave Frank B. Good on the Studebaker the chance he was looking for and he jumped away at a pace that sent him into second place.

M'KEE IS CAREFUL.

S. A. McKee on the Cadillac took third money, after a remarkably consistent race. He kept a steady pace, turning off mile after mile with his son as mechanician. Always in the running for place, though never driving recklessly enough to worry Oldfield, McKee kept circling the course and came to the tape at the end of the third lap about ten minutes ahead of DeLovelace on the second National.

This race was spectacular. It followed the roads through the larger towns of the valley and the cars were sent skimming along beside the irrigation ditches. There was not a mishap. In spite of the fact that a heavy rain almost caused the officials to postpone the contest, the race was run with thousands of citizens and farmers lining the course and proved one of the best speed battles ever conducted in Southern California.

Oldfield won the race by his heady and consistent work. He proved that he is one of the greatest race drivers in the world and kept his car in the running every second. The hard luck which followed Tetzlaff did not worry Oldfield, and though Tetzlaff made the fastest ten miles of the day, Barney was not drawn out, but kept a consistent and winning pace.

Ed Lyons on the National made the fastest lap of the race. He drove too fast for the condition of the roads, however, and was practically out of the running at the end of the first lap.

The work of the Studebaker was one of the thrills of the race. The little car was running close to Oldfield right up to the finish of the battle, but a mishap almost put Good out of the race when only ten miles from the goal. He came to the finish, however, a good second place winner and McKee took third honors gracefully.

Excited spectators crowded close to the course for miles and miles through the level valley. The bridges and ditches made a world record impossible, but the average of forty-three miles an hour made by the winner is remarkable when the condition of the course is considered.

The starting point at Imperial was

RIVERS' HAND WAS IN BAD SHAPE.

BY JOE LEVY.

I do not consider this to have been Joe's best fight, but he did remarkably well in the circumstances. His right hand was in bad shape.

After the third round is hurt him so badly that all he could do was to send in a sort of side-wise chopping blow. Although Knockout handed him several severe body blows, he wasn't hurting Joe any.

After the third round it hurt "Joe, the next is the tenth. This boy hasn't been accustomed to fighting more than ten rounds. Sail in this next round and take a chance and finish before your hand gets any worse." And Joe did it.

Brown isn't in Joe's class as a boxer, but I want to say that he is the gamest little lion I ever saw inside a ring."

WOLGAST AND MURPHY BOTH CLAIM VICTORY.

BY HARLEM TOMMY MURPHY.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Wolgast is a good, tough boy to beat, but there was no time when he had me in distress. Several times he was all but out. That last round ought to have give me the decision. I am entitled to the next chance at Willie Ritchie.

BY AD WOLGAST.

I guess I have to be satisfied with the decision. I thought I shaded him, but I was fighting under a handicap. It is awful to have to hit when your arm pains you so severely. As early as the fifth round my left arm, which was broken a couple of years ago, started bothering me and I could not rip in punches. I guess I could have been in better shape, too. That fellow Murphy surprised me. The Irishman can fight, and is a hard man, for he is always doing something.

TROJANS SWEEP FIELD IN GREAT A.A.U. MEET.

Sherman Indians Win Marathon, Ray Breaking National Record—Beebe of Anaheim High Stars in Distance Races—Gillette Wins Sensational 440—U.S.C. Team Shows Wonderful Strength.

BY OWEN R. BIRD.

THE University of Southern California track and field team swept all before it in the annual A.A.U. cinder classic yesterday afternoon on Bovard Field. The Trojan knights made more points than all the rest of the contestants put together, coming out of the struggle with a score of 72, while the combined scores of the other teams only totaled 54.

Pomona came second with 21, Anaheim High School took third with 10 units, due to the wonderful work of that prep school star, Beebe, who won the mile and the 880-yard run; Occidental took third, with 6 points; Pasadena High got 5, L.A. High, 5; Hollywood High, 1; and the L.A.A.C., 1.

RAY WINS MARATHON.

The Sherman Indian school scored a remarkable victory in the annual L.A.A.C. marathon road race, taking first and second. Albert Ray was first, finishing the ten miles of the course in the fast time of 57 minutes and 10 seconds, breaking the national record of 58 minutes flat. Zeyouma, the other Indian, tow second, with George Haggart third, and Brewster of Pomona College, fourth. The race belonged to the two native sons from the crack of the starter's pistol to the tape. Ray led out with a great burst of speed and was never headed. Zeyouma was second all the way and was never in danger at any time from the other contestants.

Ray got off the course on entering the last leg of the road portion of the race and was forced to run two extra laps around the track to make up his lost distance; however, he covered the even ten miles in record-breaking time and proved, beyond a doubt, that he is the greatest long distance runner in the history of athletics in Southern California.

Zeyouma made a great showing, breaking inside of 59 minutes and also proved that he is the next best runner at the long grinds that has ever put on a shoe in the South.

A.A.U. MEET STARTS.

When the last straining marathon runner had crossed the finish line, the A.A.U. meet was started with the grammar school 100-yard dash, which went to a youngster from Burbank, Palmer by name, in 10 and 3-5 seconds. He is some little goer and if he does not burn himself up before reaching High School, will be another Throop or Johnson.

The open 100-yard dash developed Waldo Throop of U.S.C. as the winner, with Larry Gillette of Pomona second and Bradley of U.S.C. third. Bill Carrigan figured in this race until the final 25 yards, when his legs went back and he did not place. Gillette was last man at the 50-yard mark, but pulled up to second place before the tape was reached. Throop won an easy race, coasting in at the finish, but proving that he has come back and will be one of the Trojan track features this season.

Clemmer Johnson of L.A. High, waded through the High School 100-yard dash winning his heat and also the final without any apparent effort. Clemmer is coming this season and should make some of the big ones hump before he is through.

The first real sensation of the afternoon came in the mile run. For three laps, Sturgis of Pomona, led Beebe, the Anaheim boy, and it looked as though the collegian was going to win easily and that Torrance of U.S.C. would take second, as the Trojan was running without any apparent trouble.

BEEBE STARS.

When the runners came through the gate on the fourth and final lap, Beebe jumped into the lead with a terrific sprint, which he started easily 250 yards from the finishing tape. He kept up the pace and won in a canter, with a lead of twenty yards and running fresh.

The little fellow was cheered to the echo for running two varsity men off their feet. Linton Smith of U.S.C., was unable to enter, as he was taken ill the night before the meet, but even the mighty captain would have had to run his best to win yesterday.

While speaking of this Anaheim wonder, it might be well to tell how he won the 880-yard run, defeating Tipton, the U.S.C. veteran. Beebe finished in 2 minutes, 1 and 4-5 seconds, running his first lap in 57 seconds flat. This was what turned the trick.

There was one other big thrill and that was the battle royal between Gillette of Pomona, Hodge of U.S.C., and Jackson of U.S.C., in the 440-yard dash. The three stars went through the gate in a dead heat and when they came out on the other side of the field, Gillette had forged to the front by a terrific sprint.

All the way down the back stretch the three struggled with only three

Tommy Murphy Holds Him to a Draw.

Wolgast's Face Badly Battered by Harlem Boy.

The ex-Champion Played for the Body.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—Ad Wolgast, once lightweight champion of the world, literally fought himself to the point of collapse to gain a draw decision with "Harlem" Tommy Murphy at the Daly City open arena in a gruelling, twenty-round battle this afternoon. Murphy, too, was tottering about a blood-bespattered arena as a result of his unceasing aggressiveness, but it appeared that his reserve was greater than that of his antagonist.

Wolgast, it was freely acknowledged by ring experts, fought the best battle since his illness of two years ago, but it was as freely acknowledged that the old-time dash and stamina had gone, never to return. Right and left drives to the body after having been in the first ten rounds of milling, slowed his opponent considerably and enabled Wolgast to earn a division of honors which seemed to please an assemblage that packed the arena.

Throughout the fight there was little if any idle time. Murphy took the offensive at the outset and it was not long before he had battered Wolgast's face almost into a pulp. His rapid fire right and left facers, delivered at close range, seldom went

RIVERS AFTER WILLIE RITCHIE.

Joe Rivers last night issued a challenge to Willie Ritchie for the lightweight championship. "Wolgast and Murphy boxed a draw yesterday," said Levy, "and Rivers stopped Brown, who once beat Murphy in one round. He has also beaten Mandot. There is no one left for him but Ritchie. I am willing to cancel every match, except the one which has been arranged with Leach Cross, if Ritchie will consent to box Rivers on or before July 4."

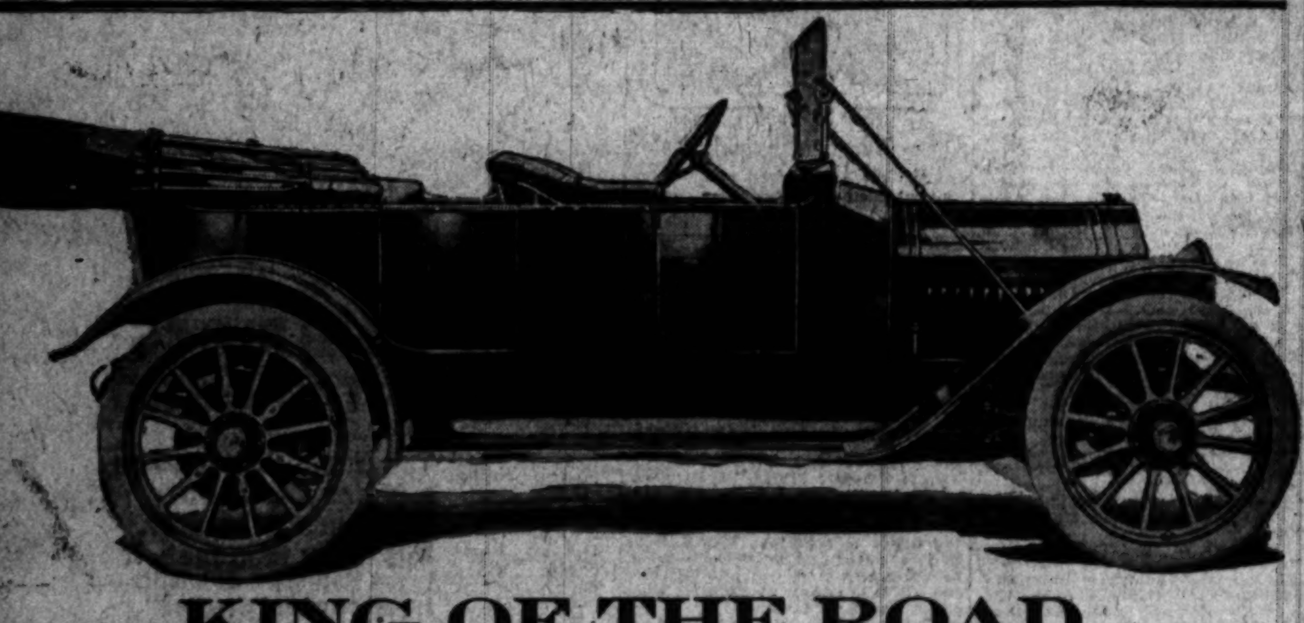
Dreadnought Moline



KING OF THE ROAD

Electrically Self-Starting Electrically Lighted

100% Right at all times in latest practical principles of construction, the Dreadnought Moline M-40 is now both Electrically Self-Starting and Lighting, equipped with the already world-famous Ward-Leonard Electrical System.

Universal interest has quickly been shown in this particular selection of an electrical self-starting and lighting system for the Dreadnought-Moline M-40, because of the recognized country-wide engineering reputation of the makers of this car and their unfailing good judgment which has kept it in the lead for reliability during ten seasons, with nine victories to its credit in the hardest official contests.

The Sensation of the "Big Shows"

Claims are the easiest things in the world to make. Automobiles that will live up to them are, as Kipling says, "Another story." One of the most common remarks among the big corps of experts maintained at our factory is, "If the public only knew."

Here's a car that has a claim on your interest—not on what we think it will do—but on what it has already done. No car can approach the Dreadnought-Moline's record in the country's most important Reliability and Economy Events.

$2100 Never Bought More Car Value

From its famous long-stroke motor—the first of its type built in America — to its smart appearance, the Dreadnought-Moline will please you. Its ample power meets every emergency. In design, in construction and in finish the Dreadnought-Moline is built to satisfy. And its 10-year record of success proves that it does it. $2100 never bought more real automobile value than is represented in the Dreadnought-Moline M-40.

Knox-Martin Tractor Attached to Fifteen-ton Ash Wagon.

The Borough Development Company of Brooklyn, N. Y., have three of these unique machines in daily service. The Vance-Canavan Motor Company, California distributors of Knox products, expect to receive their first carload of tractors this week.

Novel Test.

KNOX TRACTOR DELIVERS GOODS ON LONG HAUL.

A KNOX MARTIN tractor recently figured in a novel test, which proved severe and also showed to great advantage the pulling powers of the motor. The tractor belonged to a California lumber company in Sacramento. The large derrick on its new wharf was out of service, and the nearest one at that time available was sixteen miles away. Its length was over seventy feet and would have required two flat cars to move it by rail. The tractor easily pulled it out of its location on a large heap of scrap iron and delivered it at the wharf in one and one-half hours.

The derrick was so firmly imbedded in the scrap iron that the tractor had to drag it through ten feet of the pile before it was free. The demonstration was remarkable as it was found that the big machine had averaged over four miles to the gallon of gasoline on the trip in spite of its heavy burden.

FOUR COUPES IN TWO HOURS RECORD SET BY HUDSON.

MANAGER H. L. ARNOLD of the local Hudson Sales Company believes his selling force created a new record last Tuesday, when four Hudson coupe models were sold to well-known residents of Los Angeles and Southern California within two hours.

If any of his competitors ever has outdistanced this fast pace, Mr. Arnold avers that he is willing to be convinced.

"Doc" Green, the manager of the Hudson sales forces, was visibly worried early Tuesday morning. Four Hudson coupes—meaning a carload lot—were on the railroad tracks and there was no room for them in the Hudson salesrooms.

"Why don't you sell them, and keep them out of the salesroom?" suggested Manager Arnold.

"Gee, immense scheme! Here you"—calling to Salesman Leslie—"grab these names and get busy on the 'phone." Leslie was supplied with a a list of four Hudson coupe "prospects."

And then, within two hours and working with the one coupe model already on the floor, this popular type of Hudson car was sold to James Schultz, the well-known lumber dealer of this city; Dr. Edward Janss of Los Angeles, J. B. Mathers of Pasadena, and Dr. Thurlson Levengood of Ocean Park.

The only time any of this quartette of new Hudson coupes was even within hailing distance of the salesrooms was when the machines were taken into the garage portion of the Hudson quarters, to be supplied with oil, gasoline and water.

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM GOODYEAR MAN.

"The future of the automobile industry lies with the dealer," said H. S. Quine, of The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O., at a recent convention of automobile dealers gathered in New York. "Without the dealer's desire to give satisfaction, and service and to save the consumer money the industry will suffer. And service consists in having what the motorist wants, where he wants it and when he wants it. For that reason the garage owner should handle accessories, and tires and all the many things motorists need. The logical place to look for automobile necessities is the garage, where the man bought the car, and if he is not enabled to get them he is disappointed.

"It is unfortunate that many garage men aim only at the large profit. They do not seem to realize that success lies in having a large volume of sales with small profits. But there is a new dealer today. He is a liberal user of newspaper space; he advertises and goes out after the buyer. He applies system to his garage and knows what turns over quickly and what does not. And money is made on turnovers and lost on leftovers. This man applies modern merchandising plans to his business—and he never complains that business is going to the dogs."

Shettler's Partner Returns from Chicago Sales.

The Leon T. Shettler Company, distributors for the Apperson car, made an interesting exhibit at the Third Annual Orange Show at San Bernardino last week. Their exhibit consisted of a stripped chassis of the "Four-Forty-five" Jackrabbit [illegible] with an electric motor, a fully equipped "Four-Forty-five" touring car and an 1895 model Apperson, two-cylinder surrey, which was shipped to C. It is a great curiosity and is attracting very large crowds. It is interesting to note that the ignition on the old-style "make and break" [illegible] motor is a two-cylinder opposed motor, similar in design to the [illegible] later used by the two-cylinder [illegible] and Buick company.

... Los Angeles sponsors for the ... Moline will not confine ... enthusiasm for their car to ... music, but are surrounding it with tributes of a more material nature. Three concerns will minister to the car in the big new building just erected for it.

The building will contain a factory branch of the Moline Auto Company in charge of O. J. Root, one of the creators of the car, formerly of Moline, Ill., but now of Eagle Rock. It will also house the Benrich Motor Company, George B. Easton, manager, the sales agency for the Moline, and a public service station and garage.

The structure has a frontage of 100 feet and involves an expenditure of $30,000. The front elevation is striking, being constructed of Los Angeles paving brick and green tile set off by large black joints.

Three large offices and salesrooms occupy the front, the back of which is a garage with a capacity of forty cars. Behind the garage and separated from it by a brick fire wall are the shops of the factory branch, completely equipped with up-to-date machinery. In the rear of the building will be a large paved court for open-air washing of machines and other purposes.

Attractive features are [illegible]-rooms and shower baths for men, vacuum machines for removing dust from the clothes of autoists, parlors for women and a lounging-room for men.

The claim of the Moline to public consideration rests upon its record in reliability runs, according to Mr. Root.

"We are enthusiastic believers in reliability runs," he said. "When we placed the Moline on the market we had great confidence in its ability to make good. How to prove this to the public, however, was a problem. We solved that problem and at the same time perfected the car by entering every reliability run possible.

"The fact that we have been entering reliability runs consistently since 1909 and have never lost a contest and never entered a car that did not finish is an incontrovertible demonstration to the public that our faith in our car is well founded.

"Reliability runs have also been of great value to us in that they have brought out the weakest points in the car and enabled us to correct them. We have not hesitated to subject our cars to the most grinding punishment on bad roads, long runs and other conditions designed to bring out any latent weakness. No expense has been spared to remove any such weakness in all cars manufactured after its discovery. We have sought to profit by experience, and let the consumer benefit also in the increased reliability of the product."

NEW LIGHT FROM KISSEL MAN ON OUR MOTOR SHOWS

W. L. KISSEL, secretary of the Kissel Motor Car Company, is one of the outspoken manufacturers who believe that the annual national automobile shows, held in New York and Chicago, ought to be abandoned. Kissel believes that such exhibitions, if held at all, should be under the auspices and management of local dealers, thus relieving the makers of the trouble of carrying on this work at a period when all their time and attention is demanded in taking care of factory affairs.

"It is all wrong," declares Kissel. "If the shows were held in the summer when the new models are first announced, there might be some excuse for them, but as a matter of fact, they come so late that very little is shown that the public has not already become perfectly familiar with. Of course there is a great deal of business transacted at these annual 'round-ups,' but when you come to analyze it, it appears very doubtful whether much of it is business that was not headed your way regardless of the shows.

"Relieved of the responsibility of the New York and Chicago exhibitions, the manufacturers could lend more aid and encouragement to the dealers' shows in the smaller cities. These shows are becoming more important every year and their success is a fine tribute to the ability of the dealers and the best possible indication that the dealers of New York and Chicago would be successful in managing any exhibitions that might be arranged in those cities. I do not care to have this construed as a reflection on the management of either of the national shows. It has in both cases been very able but I do think that as a national affair, the show has survived its usefulness."

AMERICAN MAN OUT WITH NEW ARGUMENT.

A unique method was employed recently by Vice-President D. S. Menasco of the American Motors of Indianapolis, Ind., to demonstrate the desirability of underslung construction in a motor car. Menasco illustrated his point as follows:

"The constant effort of university football coaches is to get their men, individually and collectively, to run low. In runs and charges and bucks, in offensive and defensive playing, it is continually being pointed out to the men that they offer less of a target to the enemy if they play close to the ground. 'Lower' and 'lower,' 'down' and ever 'down' is the cry of the men who turn out the marvelous fighting machines which win fame for our big educational institutions on the gridiron. The reason for all this drilling and gruelling in 'near-to-earth' playing is that the coaches well know that their men are less apt to be upset. The same is true of a motor car such as our famous underslung models. The closer a car is to the road, the less likely it is to turn over and spill its occupants; the more easily and comfortably it rides. In short, underslung construction presents the best illustration of practiability we have in the automobile industry today."

May Win.

The factory stands all the expense connected with the entry of one of their racing cars. They are satisfied with the knowledge they get from racing events and are among the first to enter their cars this season.

"Demountable rims and wheels remove the last objection many men have had to driving their own cars. In case of tire trouble, the flat tire and its rim are easily removed, and the inflated spare tire and its rim mounted on the wheel. There is no necessity to struggle with a casing rusted to the rim, or to pump up the tire after the new tube has been inserted. Manufacturers are turning in the right direction in taking advantage of the convenience afforded by these accessory devices. I believe that the principal development of the motor car in future—at least until some

HUDSON MOTOR CARS

Appearance vs. Service

WHILE all motor cars are automobiles in appearance, it does not necessarily follow that all motor cars will be satisfactory to you. A motor car may have a splendid surface appearance, just as some men do, but when put to work would show up miserably.

Take care and do not buy SURFACE value; get SERVICE value. Investigate past performances.

The HUDSON car is serving satisfactorily many of the most critical owners in America. It is built in one of the most modern plants in the industry. It is built under the direction of a board of 48 engineers—the greatest engineering staff maintained by any automobile factory in the world. Each one of these engineers is an expert—a man at the top in his particular line.

In the HUDSON are combined sturdy construction with beautiful appearance. A simple, dustproof motor of ample power, with the best of materials. A complete equipment, including Delco electric lighting and self-starting system, with the most luxuriousness and easiest-riding qualities of any car on the market, regardless of name or price.

It is the car you should investigate.

Leave the Junk Alone!

—Ask any automobile owner who has owned a car for more than one season what he thinks of guaranteed and unguaranteed tires. It may be safely ventured that the reply will be: "Leave the unguaranteed junk alone, if you don't want to get badly stung!"

Any of the big tire companies that guarantee tires may be depended upon to live up to the terms of their contract with the purchaser. They cannot afford to do otherwise, for the officials of these concerns are keen enough business men to know that a satisfied customer is one of the best advertising assets they could possibly obtain.

We chance to know of many instances where tire manufacturers have made replacements and have done so without protest, when there seemed no doubt that they might have refused to do so with justice.

There can be no doubt that any motorist who has a valid claim for adjustment for a guaranteed tire gone wrong because of some fault in material or manufacture will receive a square deal from any of the leading tire companies.

Real Dope.

FROST WAVE DIDN'T HURT.

Motor Industry Stronger Than Ever Say Records.

Man Who Knows Gives Inside Dope on the Panic.

Prominent Railroad Man Tells of Big Shipments.

BY W. S. WHEATON.

Now that the effects of the recent cold snap has about worn off, and by the way, it was the worst in thirty years, actually the first of any consequence in that entire time, business has taken on that activity and energy peculiar to everything in Southern California. As was predicted, things are not half bad and the automobile business, more than anything else, goes to prove this.

Contrary to the general opinion the amount of good done by the "cold snap" has been incalculable, millions of dollars worth of benefits of a kind not previously considered will follow, one of the most important of all being the opinion that we had nothing but oranges and climate. Oranges are today but one of several great factors. Climate is beyond challenge and this with our unmatchable resources which insures immediate recovery of every kind of growth, as is evidenced on all sides, goes farther and does more than otherwise could have been possible toward demonstrating what a wonderful place Southern California really is.

At the outset Automobile Row was inclined to be blue, but the present volume of business and indications all tend to show that by the time the 1913 season draws to a close a majority of the agents will have a record for sales far in excess of any previous year's business. What has been lost from citrus shipments is fully made up with the wonderful increase of every other kind of business occasioned by the greatest number of tourists and visitors ever recorded.

MANY TOURISTS.

Some idea of the rush of tourists to our State may be obtained from the fact that in spite of the large numbers of apartments and hotels built in Los Angeles and surrounding territory in the past few months, waiting lists are the rule at most places, a reason in itself for looking forward to much business.

The outlook for the next two years is such as to warrant the assertion that the years 1914 and 1915 will far exceed the most conservative of estimates, not less than 100,000 machines will be sold in the State of California following the close of the 1913 season. Prices are not going to change materially. Purchasers will probably get an improved idea of accessories. Body lines could hardly be improved upon. Commercial trucks are going to be sold in great numbers and the automobile is going to take its place as a necessary farming implement.

Possibly the general practice between the manufacturer and agents will undergo a change. In the interests of fairness to the agent it should. The value of the motor car in every line of employment is so securely established as a part of our daily life that the present season will close with the satisfaction of having been settled for all time. We know now the utility of the automobile as a necessary part of our daily requirements.

FINE RECORD.

Detroit, Mich., which is the hub of the automobile industry, manufactured and shipped more than 4500 carloads of automobiles in the month of January, 1913, as compared to 2700 carloads shipped in the month of January, 1912. Los Angeles and Southern California have added nearly 14,000 machines to the list of owners since the beginning of the 1912 season. Several of the popular makes have made no attempt to supply their trade with the new models and with all this the half is not told, because, regardless of all figures showing the per capita ownership of automobiles in California the rapid growth of our population plus the constant increase in the variety of employments possible and made valuable by the addition of an automobile is such as to insure the certainty that for several years to come the question of demand will care for all the supply in sight. In short the normal is as yet from three to five years off.

About the only reactionary element remaining in an attempt to check the advance of the automobile industry is associated with the banking interests. Ever since the automobile came to the assistance of the masses, and took from the curb millions in dollars, deposited at low rates of interest, speculators have enjoyed their fling, and soon began buying automobiles that they themselves might enjoy some of the intended pleasures of living. Millions of dollars have been placed in circulation through the thousands of workingmen's pockets on account of the new trend of affairs. The cry of the wolf has been sounded, but happily with lessening vigor. All because the automobile as an implement of necessity, has met every demand and upset every anticipated trouble, we owe much to the automobile.

DEALERS VISIT AUTO SHOW AT SAN DIEGO.

J. H. Grundy of the Grundy Motor Sales Company, drove to San Diego yesterday to take charge of his firm's exhibit of Cole and American cars at the San Diego Auto Show. C. Fred Grundy announces that his first regular shipment of two carloads of Cole 4s will arrive in Los Angeles Monday.

Rand & Chandler, representing the Alco Motor Sales Company, are other Los Angeles exhibitors at the San Diego show. Ralph Chandler reports that the branch office his firm has recently established in the southern city has sold six motor trucks thus far this month.

Although Belgium is an automobile manufacturing country of considerable importance, the native manufacturers are outnumbered by the French, the number of French car makers having stands at the recent show in Brussels being twenty-one; Belgians, sixteen; German, seven; English, three; Spanish, one, and America, four. The New Cowl Dash Car

ONE of our most popular 1913 models is our cowl dash touring car. This is one of the season's "six best sellers." Wherever it has been shown it has met with immediate approval.. The graceful cowl adds a touch of completeness and finish to the body, which distinguishes and separates it from the average run of touring cars.

This model is a great favorite abroad—particularly in the big European metropolitan centers, where the demand is always for something more unique without loss of practicability.

The chassis of this car is the same as our famous Model 69—the brief specifications and equipment of which are given above. You can have either a four or a five passenger body.

Our allotment of cowl dash touring cars is very limited. We would advise you to have our local dealer give you an immediate demonstration so that if you do not want your car at once, you can book your order for delivery when you are ready for it.

This, like all Overland cars, costs you 30% less than any other similar car manufactured. If we built less than 40,000 cars a year, this model would cost you just that much more.

The four-passenger phaeton was one of the late arrivals and this is the first car of this type to be exhibited. The limousines and coupes are certain to be unusually attractive to the women. They are elegantly finished. For the man or woman who desires to drive, but still have the inside comfort, the coupe is proving ideal. It seats four people and as it can be started and lighted from the inside it is just the type for women drivers.

This has been a wonderful year for coupes and limousines. Don Lee has always held that this was one of the most promising ends of the automobile business and the time would come when there would be almost as many inclosed cars sold as open machines.

Lee has just returned from Sacramento, where he attended the opening of the new branch there. Within a short time he will leave for San Francisco to be there when the new five-story building is formally opened.

SCHWAEBE MAN TO ROUTE TOUR.

Lewis Schwaebe has been asked to act as minister plenipotentiary to Indianapolis in an effort to bring the proposed ocean-to-ocean tour over the old Santa Fe trail to Los Angeles and then to San Francisco. If prominent men in this city who have the interests of a transcontinental highway at heart have their way Schwaebe will leave the early part of March for the seat of war.

The Premier agent has a host of friends among the motor-car manufacturers. He is a personal friend of John J. Monahan, who will select the route. He has been closely associated with Carl Fisher of the Indianapolis Speedway, who proposed the long tour, and he is a business associate of Harold Smith of the Premier factory.

While Schwaebe has not decided the matter is to be placed definitely before him this week. He will then act in the matter, and it is believed that the prominent business man will consent. He is the logical man to make such a trip, and, with Schwaebe at Indianapolis, it is believed the tour would be routed through Los Angeles.

In order to handle the increased business of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) postoffice two automobiles have been added to the delivery equipment.

Due to the government appropriation of 1,000,000 bolivars for the improvement of highways near the capital city of Venezuela, a much greater demand for automobiles is expected.

It was a revelation to the users of Packard cars. Others who have become interested particularly in the upkeep of machines were given many object lessons.

On the upper floor men were at work taking out the parts of the Packards. This was also a novelty. The gears, the transmission case, the differential, the rear axle, the motor, were all shown. The cam shaft was operated for the curious and the abandon with which every part of the Packard was displayed won many friends for the high-grade car. There was nothing to hide.

The offices of the Packard home were also thrown open and the storage garage was ready for visitors. The spick and span appearance of the entire place was also something new, as the public saw by a practical demonstration that it is possible to maintain motor cars and sell them in a home that is scrupulously clean.

When Manager Ryus was at the Olds Motor Works ten days ago he found that the engineers had made plans for a large output this year. He showed the Olds people a list of unfilled orders for this "Little Six" and urged them to rush his deliveries so that he might be able to satisfy at least the more urgent ones. He was assured that the cars will be shipped steadily from now until the end of the present selling season.

This same "Little Six" will be a feature of the Olds exhibit at the Chicago Motor Salon which opens February 1. The Olds Motor Works will have a complete exhibit which will include the "Autocrat" and the "Defender." The six-cylinder "Limited" will not be shown, as it has been decided to discontinue the building of this car. It became a question of weight and rather than sacrifice the wear and tear on tires it was decided to substitute a lighter car with a power plant at a maximum capacity.

In a dispatch to the Olds Motor Works from C. H. Larson, New York distributor for the Oldsmobile, the autoist congratulates the management on turning out what he terms "The finest car ever seen in New York." Here is the dispatch:

"Accept from us hearty congratulation on having turned out finest car ever seen in New York. The new 'Six' in appearance, finest detail and style, is absolutely beyond our expectations. Made an instant hit. Must get immediate delivery. How many more cars can we have immediately? How soon can we get fifty? You have certainly made an achievement. How They Line Up.

COAST LEAGUE CLUBS TO BEGIN WORK NEXT WEEK.

Local Teams Are Stronger in Every Department and Should Finish Higher Up the Line Than Last Year. Venice Tigers' Catchers Are Unknown in Coast Ball Circles.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

BY HAP HOGAN,

Manager of Venice Tigers.

It requires only a glance at our 1913 roster to show that the Tigers are stronger than last season, when Oakland barely nosed them out for the pennant.

I figure that we are 50 per cent. stronger in reserves, or substitutes. No chain is stronger than its weakest link, and this applies to baseball teams. Last season we had no regular extra outfielder, and were forced to play Hosp in several different infield positions.

We are now splendidly fortified in all positions. The pitching staff is fully 25 per cent. more formidable than that with which we started the 1912 season. The Tigers, as usual, will be in the running.

BY FRANK DILLON,

Manager of Los Angeles Club.

The Angels will be stronger in every department than in 1912, barring possibly shortstop and behind the bat. The catching staff remains the same. It is doubtful whether we will be able to improve on Berger at short, but there is a possibility that he will return to the club.

Gill, at first, is a very fast man. He twice led the American Association in stolen bases. Maggert is a whirlwind, both in the field and on the paths, and it would not surprise me to see him lead the league in stolen bases. Ellis, while not exceptionally fast, can go some, and will be found among the leaders in hitting.

Our pitching staff is the best that we have had in several seasons. Barring a run of hard luck, the Angels will be fighting close to the top all through the race.

"P-L-A-Y B-A-W-L." This familiar cadence, old but ever new, will soon be heard through the length and breadth of the land.

The Coast League managers have rounded up their crews (on paper,) and a week hence we shall see the 1913 cohorts in the flesh. Spring training will start on March 1. Next Tuesday the two local clubs and some of the others will play at spring training, but the sure-enough stunts will not start until March is the top sheet on the calendar.

It has been a case of strengthen all along the line. Oakland is the one exception. The pennant-winning Oaks are intact. They have a number of new men coming, and these will be ready to slip into the shoes of any of the veterans who display symptoms of hitting the slide. Changes or no changes, Oakland should be as strong as a year ago.

FRANTIC EFFORTS.

On down the line, however, there have been frantic efforts to strengthen. The five clubs which did not win the flag have been falling over each other in their scramble for talent. Berry, Maier, Ewing, Atkin and McCredie have cut their purse strings, and given their managers practically carte blanche in the pursuit of new players.

Time has healed the wounds inflicted last season. The heart-burnings that were left in the wake of that nerve-racking race have been cured, and all are looking forward to the future hopefully and with a stiff upper lip. The geek who said that "hope springs eternal in the human breast," or words to that effect, undoubtedly was inspired by constant comingling with baseball magnates. Like truth, you can crush the general run of magnates now and then, but they will rise again in all their glory, and proclaim their right to inherit the earth and all its pennants.

MONEY THROWN AROUND.

It is about time for us to get acquainted with the two local clubs. Messrs. Berry and Maier have been throwing money around rather prodigally for the past five months, and there will be a number of strangers responding to the clarion call for spring practice.

There are now twenty-seven players on the Los Angeles roster, with the possibility of more coming. The clubs will be required to reduce to twenty players, exclusive of manager, thirty days after the season starts. Dillon is included in the twenty. He does not expect to play regularly, if at all.

Harry Vernon is not expected to return to the club, while young Hewitt, the Portland phenom, is not regarded as a fixture. This means that Dillon will have to rid himself of but four players, and this greatly simplifies the pruning process.

ANGELS STRONGER.

With the possible exception of shortstop the Angels look stronger than a year ago. Fahey, who comes from the Athletics, is slated for Berger's place. He may excel the Dutchman in some departments of the game, but he will be a wonder if he equals him in all-around effectiveness, and especially in fielding.

Berry has a string on another shortstop of major league experience, and will land him if Fahey fails to meet the requirements.

GOOD OUTFIELD.

Despite the loss of Daley and Heitmuller, the outfield looks fully as strong as last year's. Ellis, who comes from the St. Louis Cardinals, figures to hit .300 in this league any old day. Maggert, last season with the Athletics, is a hard hitter, and one of the fastest men ever seen in this circuit. Moore, in right field, figures to hold up his end of the argument with either of his mates.

Charley is fast as a bullet and a hard and timely hitter. Then there is Lober. This lad has the best whip in the league, and is improving each year. He will give Ellis, Maggert and Moore a stiff fight, and if he fails to land a regular berth, he can fill in during emergencies without appreciably weakening the outfield.

Wotell, recruited from the New York State League, is something of an unknown quantity here. According to the advance notices his middle name should be "Speed," but he is rather a light hitter.

The versatile Ivan Howard will be available for utility duty in any old part of the patch, and there is the possibility of him taking a strangle-hold on the shortstop's job.

Page is regarded as a fixture at second base. This handsome bow-legged young man gave a good account of himself when played regularly near the close of the season. George Metzger "you all" know.

Dr. Warren Gill, at first base, looks like the goods. Gill formerly was with the White Sox. He will feel right at home in fast company. Last season he hit .303 with Minneapolis, and two seasons he led the American Association in stolen bases. He was dissatisfied in the East, and welcomed the deal that sent him here. This should be a banner year for him.

Walter Boles, Clarence Brooks, Hughey Smith and Harry Hoffman is a fine and dandy backstopping corps bequeathed to us from last season.

Slagle, Nagle, Chech, Perritt and Tozer are the 1912 pitchers still with us. The experiment will be tried of making "Babe" Driscoll back into a pitcher. The new ones are Jackson of St. Joseph; Rogers, of San Antonio; Ryan, of St. Paul; Crabb of the Athletics, and Hewitt, a southpaw sandlotter from Portland.

WHAT BERRY THINKS.

"It does not require much figuring to show that the Angels have been greatly strengthened," said Berry. "The club is one of the fastest ever assembled in the Coast League. Our catching staff is intact, the pitching staff is stronger, the outfield will outclass that of 1912, and I believe that the infield will be better, even should we fail to get Berger back. We will start the season with a regular first and second baseman—something that we did not have last year.

"I have every reason to believe that Fahey will fill the bill at short. It is hardly likely that he will equal Berger as a fielder, but he may offset this in other departments of the game. Rest assured that the Angels will have short plugged up snug and tight. If Fahey fails and Berger does not return, I will have a major leaguer on the job. I can place my hand on this player on a moment's notice."

Nothing in that to indicate that Mr. Berry is one bit downcast over the 1913 outlook.

TIGERS BETTER.

The Tigers also have yielded to the influence of the strengthening process. Maier and Hogan appear to have improved on last season's club, which was strong enough to scare Oakland out of a three-years' growth.

Hap figures that the club is 50 per cent. stronger in the utility department, 25 per cent. stronger in the box and more potent generally, through having been kept practically intact for three years.

The catching department is the only one in which the club can possibly fail to measure up to or surpass that of last season. Last season's staff was lifted bodily by the majors, Agnew being drafted by the St. Louis Browns and Brown being sold to the Boston Nationals.

TWO NEW CATCHERS.

Elliott and Tonnemann, new people in these parts, will fill their places. Hogan believes that they will be an improvement on Agnew and Brown. Agnew was the veriest kind of a "busher" at the start of the season, but developed rapidly under Hogan's tutelage. The club really started the race with only one dependable catcher, and that was Brown. He was on the hospital list a good part of the season.

This year the club will start the season with two seasoned catchers. Neither Elliott nor Tonnemann are experiments. They are true and tried veterans, and rated among the best in the Southern Association, whence they come. Elliott was purchased from Nashville, and Tonnemann from Mobile. The latter was formerly with Boston. It caused a lot of surprise in the Southern circuit when Elliott was overlooked by the big leagues last season.

MANY PITCHERS.

Hap has eleven pitchers on his list, with one more to come. The latter will be a right-hander of major league experience. Look 'em over: Baum, Edmondson, Stewart, Hitt, Gray, Raleigh, Koestner, Harkness, Olson, Brackenridge and Griffin. These are the men now under reserve. Some of them will have to go. Gray and Brackenridge have been mentioned several times in reported deals and releases, but nothing definite has developed yet. Olson is a San Bernardino boy who was highly recommended by Agnew and "Kitty" Brashear.

If Hogan had been equipped with a staff like that at the beginning of last season it would have been a gallop for the Tigers. Baum and Edmondson may be regarded as new men when it comes to estimating the increased strength of the staff. They worked only the fag end of the season, but those games were sufficient to win them the regard of the fans. Hap is now dickering for another right-hander.

SEVEN INFIELDERS.

The infielders are Patterson, Brashear, Litschi, Hosp, Hallinan, McDonnell and Butler. Burrell is the only absentee. The newcomers are Hallinan and Butler. Hallinan was purchased from the St. Louis Browns. He is slated for short, but he will not be permanently placed until after the spring workouts. There are several infield combinations possible with this array of versatile talent.

McDonnell can play either first or third; first base and second look alike to Brashear; Hallinan has starred at short and third; Patterson has played a number of seasons at second as well as at first, while Hosp has variously illuminated short, second and first. Wherever these men are finally distributed, Hogan is sure of having two dandy infield utility men, which means that injuries will not seriously impair the effectiveness of the club in this department. Butler is a graduate of the local sand lots.

Carlisle, Kane and Bayless you know. Last season they loomed as the speediest outfield trio ever assembled on the Coast, and they promise to repeat. Thomas, a Redondo amateur, will be out to dispute their right to remain on the job. Hogan has been promised an outer gardener from the Boston Red Sox, and will avail himself of the opportunity.

The fans will agree with Hogan that the Tigers look better than a year ago, and they were good enough then to grab the pennant.

BEAVERS ARE STRONG BUNCH.

McCredie Thinks He Is Sure to Have Good Team.

Nine Pitchers Are Already on the Long List.

Hagerman Is Expected to Be Star Twirler.

BY WALTER McCREDIE,

Manager Portland Beavers.

"I am making no boasts about what the Beavers will do in 1913, but I feel confident that I have given Portland a first-class team for the coming campaign. The club is a better hitting one and the pitching staff is far superior to that of 1912.

"I have worked hard all winter building up a team to make the fans forget the disappointment of last season, and unless luck strikes us hard and often in the wrong spot the Beavers will be up and fighting for the pennant from the opening of the season to the close."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After [illegible] statistical offerings for several [illegible] Portland fans believe, with [illegible] McCredie, that the Beavers of [illegible] will be fully as strong as the championship teams of 1910 and 1911.

Last year's team, which looked promising on paper, but performed so indifferently that it finished fourth, is exceeded in every department by the 1913 squad. In batting strength alone, the team looks 25 per cent. stronger than in 1911.

But the Beavers hit the ball better last season, from fourth place position, than they did in 1911—[illegible] against .262. The pitching department was the weak point in the defense of the Portlanders, but the figures which gave the Beavers the [illegible] over any other club in the [illegible] batting, place them at the [illegible] pitching strength.

MANY PITCHERS [illegible]

With such pitchers as [illegible] James, West, Krapp, Higginbotham, Hynes, Carson, Stanley and [illegible] all of whom are expected to [illegible] strenuous fight to become [illegible] the hurling squad, and a [illegible] shows a fat average of [illegible] on past performances and [illegible] sistently, McCredie is ready to [illegible] Visalia for the brief training [illegible] which precedes the season [illegible]

The Beaver boss expects Hagerman, purchased from [illegible] for $2500, to prove the [illegible] sation of the league this season. Hagerman, along with Krapp, who [illegible] back from Cleveland, and [illegible] West, who pitched for Toledo last season, are expected to prove the [illegible] winners of the Beavers, with [illegible] botham and Carson, with [illegible] of the other new [illegible] regular berths.

Hynes was drafted from [illegible] Stanley is the pitcher who [illegible] the Philadelphia deal for [illegible] ley, and Wilson is the [illegible] recently via the waiver [illegible] son, incidentally, is the [illegible] hander on the staff.

FOUR CATCHERS.

As for the catchers, [illegible] veteran, Riordan is a [illegible] lege boy of promise, Loan [illegible] man who came to Portland [illegible] change for Howley, [illegible] by waivers, was drafted [illegible] from San Antonio.

Derrick and McCormick [illegible] from Toledo, are [illegible] playing first base and [illegible] shortstop. Kores was [illegible] the Western League, where [illegible] star short fielder. [illegible] drafted from Canada. [illegible] St. Mary's College third [illegible] Peters is the San Jose [illegible] chant who did not play [illegible] on account of illness.

The Story of a Different Test

POSSIBLE only with a Regal Underslung is a special demonstration. The construction of the car—the frame below the axle—allows a test that's different.

Like other demonstrations, this one includes a ride in the car. However, it is a different ride.

First you will be carried, swiftly, surely, safely over city pavements. You will experience how comfortable an Underslung carries its load, how easily it turns corners and then how it does these other things that other cars cannot do.

The driver will cause his car to "run-up-and-off" a high curb. His object will be to show you that this "safe" construction allows ample clearance above the road. He wishes you to see that this car can go anywhere another car can travel and also where many cars cannot.

With perfect confidence in his car, your driver will take you where only an Underslung car can go. The trip leads along the side of a steep embankment and is intended to demonstrate the "angle of safety." Regal factory experiments show that an Underslung car can be tilted to an angle of 63 degrees before it will topple over. An ordinary car falls when tipped 43 degrees.

Additional features of this demonstration include explanations of Regal spring suspension and motor design. Your driver will also offer you the opportunity to examine the mechanical make-up of this Regal car. He will explain why all Regal Underslungs are economical in gasoline consumption and how their spring suspension relieves side sway and makes them easier on tires.

In the course of this demonstration you will have occasion to admire the appearance of this car. Its low, attractive design, with the equipment of nickel-plated trimmings and electric lights, makes it a car any owner would be proud to drive. The body is roomy—the upholstering is deep and soft.

To conduct this special Regal Underslung demonstration we employ trained salesmen. These men make possible a personal relation which contributes to both the profit and pleasure of the ride. They are prepared to answer any and all questions about Regal cars and to explain the advantages of Underslung construction. Call for one of these men. Try this demonstration.

How About 'Em?

MORE THAN TWENTY SEALS TO BEGIN WORK TUESDAY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BY DEL HOWARD,

Seal Manager.

I will not predict any pennants. All I ask is for a chance to whip the team into shape. If it wins games I want the credit and if it loses the burden of blame will fall on my shoulders. I will be candid and say that I am not satisfied with the present aggregation. We need a couple more experienced pitchers and a couple of infielders. Negotiations are under way for the new men and when they are secured we will have a team that will be right up in the fight. I am not acquainted with managerial duties in the West, but saw enough of the Seals and the other teams last year to be confident that we will have a winner. When a team gets off to a good start it makes all the difference in the world, and we are figuring on getting into the won column early this season.

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Tuesday afternoon, Del Howard, the new manager of the Seals, will have some twenty-six Seals on the train to Boyes Springs. When all the players report, there will be about thirty-five trying out for positions, as Ewing [illegible] pitchers Pat Harkins and Mas[illegible] and Outfielder Hap Smith on [illegible] without going through the formality of signing contracts. This [illegible] to keep within the thirty-[illegible] limit demanded by baseball law.

HELP FROM SOX.

Much is being staked on the two pitchers and two infielders promised by Comiskey when he begins to weed out the White Sox. At the present writing, only first base, with Manager Del Howard and shortstop, with Roy Corhan, are filled. Wuffli is holding out and candidates for third base are mighty scarce.

It is the same at second base. Wagner, Colligan, the second sacker from Des Moines, who is reported as suffering with a fractured ankle, and [illegible], the veteran from [illegible], are the only ones in line. There are a number of bushers, but little can be depended upon them.

SIX HOLDOVERS.

Howard will have six pitchers left over from last season and it looks as if "Rusty" Thomas from St. Paul of the American Association and [illegible] from Spokane may prove of much assistance. There are a couple from the Western Canada League, a Class D organization, and a busher, but the two cannot be figured too [illegible].

Of pitchers, Walt Schmidt seems to be the only one to be relied upon. [illegible] Berry will go and "Tub" [illegible] is an uncertain quantity. [illegible] do not look any too bright [illegible] the help from the White Sox is needed badly.

The Seals will start with but one department that looks anywhere near up to the standard of Coast League [illegible]. That is the outfield.

[illegible] Hofman, the former Oak, and [illegible] Hogan of the St. Louis Americans, together with Mundorff and [illegible] should fill the three [illegible] to a nicety.

FLYING SPARKS OF MOTORDOM.

An automobile club has been formed at Wabash, Ind. Particular attention is to be paid to obtaining better roads.

More than 40,000 persons attended the automobile show given in the [illegible] building at Toledo, O. A large percentage of the visitors were farmers and persons living in small towns within a radius of fifty miles of the city.

An automobile dealers' association has been formed in Peoria, Ill., to [illegible] the association formed two years ago. The new association has [illegible] plans for a big exhibit of motor vehicles to be held at the [illegible] on March 12 to 15, inclusive.

The Army and Navy Departments are preparing to consider the fuel [illegible] though mostly fuel oil is [illegible]. The navy is preparing to ask Congress for an appropriation to develop [illegible] oil fields in California, [illegible] to a reserve oil supply, if the price of fuel oil goes much higher.

An order issued by Superintendent [illegible] Robinson of Philadelphia prohibits automobilists from using [illegible] siren horns. The order [illegible] the new automobile fire [illegible] is equipped with the high-[illegible] private automobilists [illegible] from using such warning [illegible].

[illegible] trophy tour between [illegible] Automobile Club and [illegible] Athletic Club and a [illegible] with the Chicago Automobile Club are being figured out as the principal touring events of the Milwaukee motoring organization which this year, for the first time, intends to engage in competitive touring.

Another bill of interest to automobile owners has been introduced in the Indiana Legislature. It provides that the tail lamp shall be arranged to illuminate the registration numbers after night. The bill is the result of several instances in which pedestrians have been run down after night and drivers have speeded ahead.

Wisconsin municipalities which have been using oil for laying dust and preserving macadam streets and roadways, are wondering if the recent action of the Standard Oil Company in sending the price from $2.50 and $3.50 to $3.50 and $6.00 will affect that grade of oil used for street work. The material is the final residue of petroleum after distilation.

"On the Quiet," William Collier's success of a decade ago, is to be staged by the sophomore class February 28.

Stanford has acquired a top-notch twirler in Ray Maple, who registered this year from Peoria, Ill. In the last game with Ireland's Independents, he fanned Swain, the Sacramento center fielder, and Kennedy of the Oaks, in succession.

ATKIN WILLING TO SPEND MONEY FOR GOOD TEAM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BY HARRY STERLING WOLVERTON,

Manager of Sacramento Club.

I am not making any comparisons of my team with any other in the league. I have enough trouble to figure out what I've got without bothering about other teams. Later on, when the season starts, I will begin making up my mind what is doing in the other squads.

I will have a strong pitching staff—build your ball club around a strong pitching staff, is my motto. I am satisfied with the pitching staff and catchers.

The Sacramento outfield will be unusually fast; Kenworthy, Moran and Shinn will make a combination hard to beat. They are all good hitters—Kenworthy never hit under .300—and I intend to develop them into good base runners.

Several more infielders is all that I need now, but I am well enough fixed to start the season and plug along until the major leagues open up and turn back some of the youngsters.

You can say for me that the Sacramento Wolves will be fighting all the way this year; they will keep themselves in condition and give the club the best that's in them, or there will be some new Wolves.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With a new sobriquett, and a new manager, the "Wolves," erstwhile, the "Senators," face the coming season more hopefully than ever before. Local enthusiasm, which was at zero point when the season closed last fall, has revived wonderfully. This has been due, first, to Jack Atkin, who has lately emerged as the actual owner of the team, and secondarily, to Harry Wolverton, engaged by Atkin as manager for this year.

Wolverton proved a disappointment as the manager of the Highlanders last year, but the fans here have not forgotten his great success of the previous season with Oakland, and they have great faith in his ability as a playing manager.

HARRY NOT GUESSING.

Wolverton himself puts the curb on predictions, and refuses to say that he expects to win the pennant with Sacramento, but the Sacramento fans dope out their team to be as good as the best. A large bonus fund is being raised here for the members of the team, if they finish in first place, with graduated percentages for second and third.

There has been a complete change of policy with the advent of Atkin in the role of majority owner. Heretofore, the fans have complained that no money was forthcoming for the purchase of new men, and the failure of the team, year after year, has been generally ascribed to a parsimonious policy. Atkin announced last fall that he intended to spend all the money necessary to build up a winning aggregation. The fans are convinced that he is doing it. This was all that was needed to restore confidence.

MANY GOOD HEAVERS.

It is believed that Wolverton will open the season with the strongest string of slabmen in the league, and it is upon this promising bunch of boxmen that Sacramento's hopes are mainly based. There are better outfields, and infields, too, probably, in the league, at least on paper. The outfield and bases are to be strengthened with new material now in hand, and behind the bat, Sacramento has no reason to feel any misgivings. This was a weak spot in last year's team.

OAKS SURE OF WINNING AGAIN.

Mitze Will Have Very Good Bunch of Men.

Fans Will See Practically Same Old Faces.

Seven of Last Year's Players Are Holding Out.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BY CARL MITZE,

Oak Manager and Captain.

I can't figure how they are going to keep us from the first division. We have the same line-up which won the pennant last season, with the exception of Patterson, and in addition, have a number of new men who will add speed and hitting strength to the team.

The advantage of a year's play together will also help the team work and win many games for us that were thrown away last season. Our infield is intact and you will see the boys play together better.

I have two good outfielders for left field and go on record now as saying that we will be hard to beat.

Besides, we are going to have one of the finest new parks in the league, which will be a factor in our favor. Watch for the champion Oaks to repeat.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] On Monday Manager Honus Mitze will head about twenty Oaks to the training camp at Livermore, thus ushering in the training season for 1913. By the end of the week he expects to have the full club roster of twenty-seven players.

Seven of the champion Oaks of the 1912 team are holding out and it may interfere with Mitze's plans. The men still unsigned are Pitchers Killilay, Gregory and Christian, Gus Hetling, Bert Coy, John Tiedeman and Al Cook.

All have expressed a desire to talk over their difference with the club, so that Mitze expects all will be in line shortly.

The fans on both sides of the bay seem to agree that the Oaks look pretty good with their old line-up almost intact, while little enthusiasm has been stirred up by the Seal aggregation.

ONE GAP TO FILL.

Manager Mitze has but one gap to fill in his line-up and that is left field, where the unfortunate Claire Patterson held forth. For candidates for the job Mitze has Abbott and Ward of the 1912 team; Schirm, the fielder purchased from Buffalo of the International League, and Jess Becker, a big fellow from the Virginia League, highly recommended by George Bigbee, the former Oakland first baseman. Bert Coy and Elmer Zacher will look after the other two gardens.

STRONG STAFF.

In the pitching department Mitze has his staff intact and little fault can be found with such capable slabsters as Killilay, Gregory, Malarkey, Christian, Parkin, Pope and Olmstead. Behind the bat will be Mitze, and if Tiedeman decides to play ball and Cook gets in line, the infield will be the same as last season.

Guest, a shortstop, and Ness and Gardner, first sackers, will be the recruits. Taken as a whole, the Oakland team looks even stronger than last season and must be figured in the race.

VISITOR FALLS DEAD.

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 22.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mr. Brighton of Akron, O., dropped dead this afternoon near the Southern Pacific drawbridge. A card found in his pocket had written on it the information that he was suffering from heart failure and on his way to Los Angeles to meet his wife at No. 334 Francisco street.

"The Mojave Maid" is the name of the junior opera that is to be produced here during junior week, next month. Miss Emily E. McCord of San Diego, wrote the opera. The leading part is to be played by W. S. Burns, '14, son of Detective Burns.

Jimmy Fitzhugh, '16, who entered Stanford from Occidental this year, is showing up well in the quarter-mile run. In the last meet he won a heat of the 352-yard dash, his time being 41 3-5s.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

43% in New York

At the New York Show, 43 per cent of all cars on exhibit were equipped with Goodyear tires. No other had half such a showing.

Our average lead in the seventeen shows held up to this writing has been 74 per cent.

Such is the 1913 verdict of the men who know tires best.

Two Million Sold

The present demand for Goodyear tires is based on 13 years of experience.

It comes from users who have had experience with two million of these tires. Or from men those users told.

It comes from men who want tires which can't rim-cut. And who know that No-Rim-Cuts—our patent tires—are the only satisfactory tires of this type.

It comes from men who know that 10 per cent oversize adds an average of 25 per cent to the tire mileage.

These men are saving some 48 per cent by using No-Rim-Cut tires.

They know this fact by mileage records—by the cost of tire upkeep. For men are watching tires.

Your figures won't differ from their figures. Your experience will be like theirs.

Goodyears now by far outsell every other tire. Today's demand is seven times larger than two years ago.

Last year's sale by far exceeded our previous 12 years put together. For your own sake, learn the reason.

Write for the Goodyear Tire Book—14th-year edition. It tells all known ways to economise on tires.

The MOON Safety Factor
Is a Factor of Safety!

By "factor of safety" engineers measure excess strength.

A factor of safety of two means double strength in parts subject to strain.

Instead of two, the MOON factor of safety averages five! This is higher than some may think necessary, but the road demands on a car are extreme—great strength is needed at critical moments.

This high factor of safety is achieved in MOON cars by the intelligent use of fine chrome, nickel, carbon and vanadium steels—scientifically heat treated.

The same high engineering standards control every detail of MOON construction.

MOON Cars Are Right!

The MOON electric cranker spins the engine at 92 revolutions per minute—no matter how stiff the engine nor how cold the day. The storage battery carries ample power for all the lighting as well.

yards between them, but Gillette won the race to the pole on the last turn.

Here Hodge began to pick up the distance. Jackson had been running on the outside all the way, and instead of taking the pole ahead of Hodge on the last turn, called to his team-mate to close up. If he had sprinted in front of Hodge, he would have boxed him at that stage of the race, and the result would have been disasterous.

However, the three came into the home stretch with Hodge picking up the distance a foot at a time, but at the finish Gillette still had six inches to the good, so won the race by a scant breadth. Jackson ran a great race and deserves a world of credit for helping his team-mate out.

The two-mile went to Swigget of U.S.C. During the first six laps he was having a great time with this Indian, Ray, who had been entered at the last minute, but at the end of the sixth lap, Ray misunderstood the sign of his trainer and stopped, thinking the race was over, leaving Swigget to win by at least 200 yards from the rest.

IMPERIAL BRIEFS.

IMPERIAL, Feb. 22.—A thirty-inch concrete floor is being placed in the new twenty-five-foot section at Hanlon's heading, that has been constructed with a sill eight feet lower than the original gate. This massive concrete work is necessary because of the poor quality of rock upon which the gate rests. It was supposed that the rock was solid granite or diorite, but at the depth reached by the new cut it was found to be broken and soft. When the new section is completed all the water required may be taken through the twenty-five-foot opening and the old gates will be closed.

awry, and when the contest was half over the Harlemite seemed to be winning.

WOLGAST CAREFUL.

Meanwhile Wolgast seemed content to husband his strength although his more-infrequently landed punches, mainly devoted to the body, carried greater force than those of his opponent.

Wolgast finally realized that his only hope of victory lay in this direction, and from the tenth round on he devoted his attacks almost exclusively to Murphy's mid-section. Time and again, after being worsted in heart-breaking rallies which all but carried the men outside of the ring, he would reach the pit of his opponent's stomach with powerfully driven right and left smashes. Try as he would Murphy could not escape these onslaughts, although they served only to accelerate his fighting spirit.

In the nineteenth round Wolgast, fighting viciously, landed so frequently on the stomach that Murphy welcomed the sound of the bell, while Wolgast smiled to his friends about the ringside as best he could through his puffed face and split lips.

REAL SLUGGING.

The last round resolved itself into a question of the survival of the fittest. Science and all else was forgotten. The fighters battled all around the ring, head to head, and shoulder to shoulder, and slugged away at one another as if the fight had just begun, with Referee Griffin frantically essaying to pull them apart.

WOLGAST MURPHY ROUNDS.

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

DALY CITY (Cal.) Feb. 22.—Referee Jim Griffin cleared the ring and time was called at 3:46.

ROUND ONE.

They went to close quarters at tap of the gong, Wolgast bringing his right hard to the head several times. Murphy retaliated with a trio of left and right facers. They fought at close range, Wolgast lunging fiercely with right and left body punches. Murphy closed the round with a left to the face. Wolgast bled slightly from the mouth. Wolgast's round.

ROUND TWO.

They fought fiercely against the ropes, Wolgast first having the advantage and then Murphy. Murphy landed heavily twice to the jaw. Wolgast backed to the ropes. Murphy hooked twice with left to the jaw, Ad countering with a vicious clip to the jaw. Again the Harlemite forced the one-time champion against the ropes, landing several face punches. Murphy had an advantage.

ROUND THREE.

Wolgast forced his man about the ring, fighting carefully. After Wolgast had put several short-arm blows to the body, Murphy cornered his man, but Wolgast broke it up with a terrific left to the pit of the stomach. Wolgast took his chair with an abrasion over his right eye. Even.

ROUND FOUR.

Wolgast landed on the stomach, Murphy countering with two lefts to the jaw, the first of which was a telling punch. Close-range fighting characterized the contest with even results. Murphy drove a fierce left to the jaw and Wolgast fought back like a wild man. Murphy soon had his man holding, however, landing several telling punches. Murphy's honors.

ROUND FIVE.

They fought at close range. Referee Griffin frequently parted them. Wolgast landed two good lefts to the face as they broke. Wolgast fought his man against the ropes, but the latter wriggled out and forced the Cadillac fighter into his corner. No serious damage. Honors equal.

ROUND SIX.

They fought one another about the ring, Murphy excelling, notwithstanding Wolgast landed repeatedly on the body. Wolgast spat blood freely and he drove his left to the solar plexus with such force that Tommy grunted. Murphy landed a straight left flush on the mouth, causing Wolgast to live up to his name and fight like a wildcat. Murphy's facers cut Wolgast's face severely. Murphy had much the better of the round. Betting, 60 to 50 on Murphy.

ROUND SEVEN.

The usual close-range rally opened the round. Murphy put two good lefts to the face, Ad rewarding him with a series of short-arm body-punches that caused no inconvenience. Murphy backed his antagonist against the ropes, peppering his face with short-arm blows. Ad backed into his own corner, and an exchange of vicious punches followed, Murphy landing repeatedly on the face, while Wolgast found the body several times. Wolgast's lips were badly cut. Murphy had a shade.

ROUND EIGHT.

Murphy found his man's face three times in quick succession with straight punches. Wolgast, however, evened it up with a tremendous left to the stomach. A series of close-range blows followed without effect. Ad backed again against the ropes and delivered a volley of punches. Murphy had the advantage of a featureless session.

ROUND NINE.

Ad rushed in with his head down and drove his left to the stomach with great force. They then fought against the ropes without damage to either man. Wolgast seemed content to let Murphy do the bulk of the work and the latter busily obliged him, finally planting his left to the jaw three times in quick succession. As they broke a clinch, Tommy staggered his opponent with a left hook to the jaw. He backed Wolgast against the ropes and closed the round with several good face wallops. Murphy's round.

ROUND TEN.

Wolgast chatted with a ringside admirer during the minute's respite. After a rally in the corner of the ring, Ad whipped a hard right to the jaw which aroused the Irishman's ire and caused him to fight with his arms going like flails against Wolgast's face. Murphy swung his right to the head. Wolgast appeared to be conserving his strength. Murphy started a busy center-ring rally during which he landed time and again on the wildcat's face and body.

ROUND ELEVEN.

Murphy opened the round with a left to the face and he added to it a left to the body. Wolgast stopped Murphy's rush with his left which landed solidly on the stomach. These were Wolgast's best blows but Murphy took them without apparent distress. After exchanging lefts to the face, Murphy started a round-end rally, several times finding Ad's face with lefts and rights. Even.

ROUND TWELVE.

A long session of ineffective [illegible] fighting ended by Murphy [illegible] driving his left to the jaw [illegible] staggering his man. Murphy [illegible] elected to mix it, and was [illegible] worsted. Wolgast opening up with [illegible] fierceness that would not be denied, finding Murphy's face and body. Again Murphy rallied, stopping Wolgast's rush and taking the advantage of the round.

ROUND THIRTEEN.

The faces of each presented a battered appearance as they came to the firing line. Murphy smothered Wolgast, fairly fighting him off his feet with the force of his face punches and speed. Ad drove two rights to the stomach which started a yell of delight from his corner. Once more Wolgast sent his left hard to the body and both spat blood after a round characterized by terrific fighting with Murphy countering. He had the advantage.

ROUND FOURTEEN.

Careful fighting opened the round, Wolgast playing for the body, which he reached with great [illegible]. He also opened a slit over Murphy's eye and appeared to be freshening up. A right delivered with great [illegible] found Murphy's ear and Murphy broke ground, much the worse for wear. It was Wolgast's round by a big margin, his stomach punches slowing Murphy to a great extent.

ROUND FIFTEEN.

Wolgast rushed across the ring seeking to rush matters, which, however, developed nothing more than a clinch. Murphy was still full of fight and Ad soon discovered that he had better use care. Murphy swung right and left to the jaw but Wolgast [illegible] then evened matters with one of his non-stoppable body smashes. They went in close, Wolgast uppercutting to the stomach time and again and Murphy again slowed up. Wolgast's round.

ROUND SIXTEEN.

They came up as full of fight as at the outset, Wolgast driving [illegible] lefts to the pit of the stomach [illegible] pushing his man through the ropes. In these body punches, Wolgast seemed to scent victory and he devoted his attack almost entirely to Murphy's stomach. Again Wolgast's left and right found the stomach and Murphy wilted, falling into a clinch. Ad kept in close, part of the time resting and then fighting for the stomach. Both fell out of the ring as the gong closed a big Wolgast round.

ROUND SEVENTEEN.

Wolgast almost rushed Murphy through the ropes twice, so fierce was the onslaught. He seemed inclined to take all that Murphy [illegible] now in order to find his opponent's unprotected stomach. A [illegible] period followed, Wolgast taking the opportunity to lay his head on Murphy's shoulder and smothering [illegible] blocking the other's attempts to [illegible]. There was little fighting in the round and if any honors, they were [illegible]

Murphy started a rally by [illegible] the ex-champion with left and [illegible] to the face as they closed in. [illegible] instant Wolgast forgot his [illegible] tactics and slugged it out with [illegible] tough antagonist. A [illegible] found the stomach, but Murphy [illegible] took up the fighting and [illegible] man severely before they went [illegible] clinch. He crawled to his knees, shook his head, surveyed his surroundings and decided to continue the battle at the count of nine.

Rivers was now on the job for fair and dropped Brown in his tracks for the count of three. Rivers crowded him into a neutral corner and clip went his right to the jaw. Nine more seconds for Brown. "K. O." refused to surrender, and stopped another right cross. He was on his feet again just before the fatal tenth had been tolled off.

Rivers was now impatient and decided to finish the thing without further delay. He resorted to a haymaker. His right started from some place below his hip, caught Brown on the nose and found a final resting place on his chin.

It was a Homeric swipe, and convinced the referee that Brown had taken all that was coming to him.

The boys played to almost a capacity house. The total receipts were $20,148.

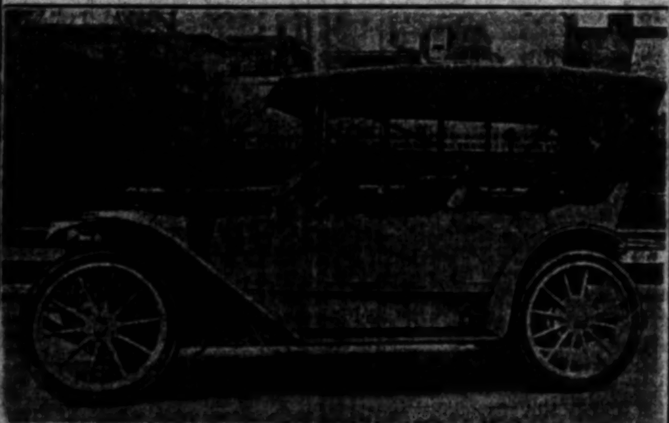
BENTON TAKES ON M'FARLAN SIX LINE.

Louis Benton, erstwhile agent for the Mercer car, has taken the agency for the McFarlan "Six," a high-grade low-priced machine which is just being introduced into this territory. Benton has opened headquarters in the former salesrooms of the R.C.H., at No. 1242 South Flower street. The demonstrator is here.

The career of Benton has been fraught with much disappointment. He started well with the Mercer and sold a number of cars. He was the high man in the West. Then came a misunderstanding with the factory officials at Trenton and Benton gave up the agency. He cleaned up every car on his salesroom floor and then began looking around for a new line. He seems to have landed right.

Those who know Benton speak highly of the McFarlan agent. He has a host of friends here and seems to be in line to do a big business.

COLBY
The Particular Car for Particular People



Little Things Are Necessary to Make Big Things. Brakes and Steering Gear are two of the Vital points of the motor car.

All COLBY cars are equipped with famous Gemmer steering gear—the steering knuckles and spindles are made of heat-treated drop forging. Brakes are adjustable from seat and are lined with non-burn Raybestos lining.

These important features together with the underslung construction, large wheels, long wheelbase and straight line drive go to make the COLBY a care for the discriminating motorist.

The Age of the Motor Truck

There is an old saying that "What was good enough for father is good enough for me." Suppose everyone in the past had acted upon that saying. We would still be carrying loads on our heads—just as our forefathers did in the Stone Age. Every generation tries to be more progressive than the one that went before. We are today doing not only all our father did, but more. We have a much better chance than our fathers.

Father did not have electricity or electrical power. He rode to business on a horse car. His goods were hauled in a horse and wagon. He could not reach persons quickly by telephone as we can today. He used the telegraph only as a last resort.

Today we annihilate time and shrink distances in many ways. We haul our goods to customers by motor trucks in one-half the time. We extend our area of business more than three-fold by using the motor truck. We haul larger and heavier loads. We load our motor trucks quickly and unload them quickly. We do not waste the time at either end of the line that father used to waste. We save time and save money.

This is the spirit of the business generation of today. It is a motor trucking generation. There are 40,000 using motor trucks.

Many of these are Alco trucks. Among the larger business houses the preference is for the Alco—due to a considerable degree to the fact that it is built by a large and responsible company. Of the Alcos now serving 62 per cent were purchased on reorders. That is the expression of judgment of those who have tried Alco trucks. The reasons why you should select an Alco truck are perfectly expressed in this way:

Experience—movers of the world's goods since 1835—78 years.

Capital—$50,000,000.

Sales—increase in one year 205 per cent.

Agencies—increase in one year 364 per cent.

Engineering—line includes 6½ ton, 5 ton, 3½ ton, 2 ton trucks.

Transportation—Transportation Cost Bureau supplies expert transportation engineering advice to prospects and customers.

Send for the new 112-page book about the Alco. It is illustrated with 204 views. It is one of the most valuable documents ever issued on road transportation.

Comfort Luxury and Reliability are Developed to a Superlative Degree In the New Model 22
HAYNES

For twenty years the Haynes automobiles have been approaching that degree of excellence—for twenty years the Haynes Automobile Company has been striving to design a car on sound engineering principles, combining the maximum factor of safety at every point in its construction. Today the result is the superb Model "22" without a peer in its class. It is a car which eliminates comparison, unless one turns to machines which incorporate power and price twice that of the Haynes.

In every respect Haynes Model "22" is everything that the discriminating buyer demands in a car—everything a high-grade car should be. It is

Electrically Started and Lighted

It is serviceable and durable, and comfortable to a degree of luxury—it is safe, reliable and economical. And in its final touches not one convenience that the fastidious owner may desire has been omitted. In every detail it is complete.

Throughout Southern California the Haynes car is generously represented by owners who use only the best the market affords. This argument is, however, not a local one, but one which is manifest everywhere. Ask any Haynes owner. You'll find them all pleased and satisfied.

It has taken twenty years of time—twenty years of skillful workmanship—twenty years of energy and integrity to perfect the Model "22" Haynes. It is offered the prospective owner as a car par excellence—the car which will fulfill one's every desire in the shape of an automobile. Haynes Model "22" has no apologies to make. It presents itself on its own merits and is deserving of your most careful consideration.

HUDSON MODELS IN SOUVENIR POSTALS.

One of the handsomest sets of souvenir postal cards ever issued has just been prepared by Manager H. L. Arnold of the local Hudson Sales Company. All who call at the Hudson salesrooms or who send in a mail or telephone request can get the complete set.

The main point about these Hudson souvenir postals is that they are not encumbered with a lot of advertising matter—they are the finest specimens of artistic printery seen in a long time and are free to everybody who cares for such a fine collection.

Just to prove what the Hudson factory at Detroit thinks of Arnold's enterprise in publishing these beautiful reproductions of the Hudson models, C. C. Winningham, the general advertising manager of the Hudson factory at Detroit, as soon as he saw the souvenir postals, placed an order with the Los Angeles printing house for 300,000 of the souvenirs. This represents 50,000 sets of six each and is not only a neat little compliment from the Hudson's advertising expert to Mr. Arnold's artistic idea, but an eloquent admission that Los Angeles print shops turn out a product that is quickly recognized for its high artistic value.

The Hudson souvenir postals include beautiful reproductions of the following popular 1913 Hudson models: Four-cylinder roadster, four-cylinder five-passenger touring, six-cylinder phaeton, six-cylinder Limousine, six-cylinder, seven-passenger touring, and four-cylinder inside drive coupe.

Arnold has had his souvenir postals put up in sets of six each, in envelopes. He says he is ready for the deluge of postal card collectors and inasmuch as they are free for the mere asking, it is a pretty safe betting proposition that the Hudson cards will not last many days.

ROUND TEN.

Brown put a right swing to the body and Rivers a left to the body. Joe put a right to the head and they clinched. Joe lets a hard right go to Brown's jaw that lands and puts him down for the count of nine. When he arose he was downed by another such punch and took the count of nine again. When he got up he landed a left to his chin and he went down and took the count of [illegible]. Joe got a little excited, but kept away from Brown so he could get at him and finally dropped him again for the count of nine. As Brown got on his feet Rivers dropped him the fifth time and after counting a few seconds, Eyton gave the decision to Rivers as Brown was all in and it would have been brutal to let him fight any longer.

GOOD PRELIMINARIES.

The first preliminary between Danny Lyons and Gene Rado was won by Lyons at the end of the fourth round on a decision. Rado dropped Danny in the first round and it looked like he might win. Rado took the place of Kid Marino, who had a [illegible] boil on his back and could not appear. Rado deserves a lot of credit for the showing he made on short notice and he and Danny would make a great go when both are in good condition. It was an exciting and good contest.

The second preliminary between Solly Burns and Babe Picato was stopped at the end of the fourth round, when Burns discovered that he had his jaw injured so badly that it would have been foolish for him to continue. In the first round Burns carried the going to Picato, but was away off in his judge of distance and missed a lot.

The second round was slow but was about even.

In the third both landed good blows to the body and face and it also ended about even.

The fourth was Picato's. He landed hard on Solly's jaw and it ended in Picato's favor. Solly did not seem to box up to his usual form, but this was owing to the fact that Picato is a very much improved boy and will be heard from in the lightweight class if he continues to improve. He made a heady contest from the start.

Atkin Willing.

Bliss, who comes from several years' experience with the St. Louis Cardinals, plugs up the gap behind the plate, while "Rowdy" Cheek, the mainstay of last year, will make an efficient understudy for him.

Two of the new pitchers come from the strong International League, one of the fastest eastern minors. The International produced such stars of last season as Jeff Tesreau, Bedient and Lavender. Chic Gandil, once with Sacramento, received his finishing touches in the same company, as did Bud Sharpe, last year's Oakland leader.

Drucke, who comes to Sacramento, played with Toronto in 1912, but was obtained from the Giants. He was with McGraw in 1911. Pitcher Stroud, who comes from Buffalo, is touted as the find of the lot. Jack Lively, now from Detroit to Sacramento, is well-remembered on the Coast with the Oaklands of two years ago. Schultz may prove the phenom of the year—then again, he may be as much a disappointment as he was when taken from the college brush to the Philadelphia Nationals.

As a college twirler, with the University of Pennsylvania, he was the wonder of his time. Some reasonable explanations have been made for his fiasco in big league company, after a good year in the International, his first professional season. He is young, and did not get enough work last year to prove much, one way or the other.

GOOD HOLDOVERS.

Of the holdover slabmen, most reliance is placed, of course, in Frank Arrellanes, while Munsell is expected to do better than his record of eight won and eight lost, last year. Alberts and Harden, who finished the season with Sacramento, were hardly up to the advance notices of their good work in the Central League, but like the most of the others of the string, are young and regarded as comers. Frink is touted as the sensation of the Washington State League of last year.

PATSY ALMOST SURE.

Patsy O'Rourke is about the only one of the holdovers in the infield who is thought to have a cinch on his base. Wolverton thinks well of Ireland. Miller at first is not regarded as quite as strong as is desirable. Stark, formerly with Brooklyn, and with Newark and Buffalo last year, is a very likely candidate for third. If Sacramento gets Berghammer, drafted from Lincoln by the Chicago Cubs, as seems probable, he will go to short. It is among the possibilities that one of the superfluous outfielders will force Miller off first.

Dressau, utility first baseman, outfielder and pitcher from Salt Lake City, is expected to develop into something good.

Wolverton thinks he has a fast and a heavy hitting outfield, although he has not indicated his regulars yet in the bunch of six. While [illegible] Swain is expected to retrieve some of the reputation he lost in the [illegible] weeks of last season. [illegible] of one of the gardens. [illegible] Van Buren are too good to let go. Deacon's stick work, especially, being valuable. Yet there is room for both Kenworthy from Denver and Moran from Chattanooga, if they make good. Kenworthy is in the same class with Van Buren. It looks like the two last-named, with [illegible] the third in the outfield, as regulars.

One thing is certain, Sacramento must be reckoned with this year. Wolverton knows what he is [illegible] and he has put the right spirit into the team, while Atkin has put up the money and stands ready with more. There is only one possibility of a bad collapse in Sacramento's prospects, and that is the chance that the sweet looking string of pitchers may go wrong, after all.

BOXING FOR BAKERSFIELD.

Bill Huddy Will Open the Game There in March with a Bout Between Jack Geyer and [illegible]

The boxing game is to be opened in Bakersfield on March [illegible], after having been closed for a number of years, according to an announcement made last night by Bill Huddy.

INNOVATION STARTED IN MOTOR TRUCK TRADE.

An innovation in the [illegible] truck business has [illegible] started by the Lord Motor Car Company. Nearly everybody [illegible] for a motor truck has the [illegible] purchase one if the payments [illegible] be made so as not to be [illegible] a drain on their working [illegible]. Most business houses [illegible] keep all their working [illegible] ing to its limit. It is for [illegible] son that when it comes to [illegible] out of say from $4000 [illegible] truck equipment it [illegible] a rather serious matter [illegible] matter for a business [illegible] the switch to motor [illegible] the time they desire it.

It was with this in [illegible] that the Lord Motor Car [illegible] outlined and put into [illegible] whereby prospective truck [illegible] can secure trucks with [illegible] payment down and [illegible] is paid from the [illegible] truck. This policy has [illegible] great number of sales [illegible] pound and two-ton [illegible] proving quite a boon [illegible] merchants in and [illegible]

PAIGE 36

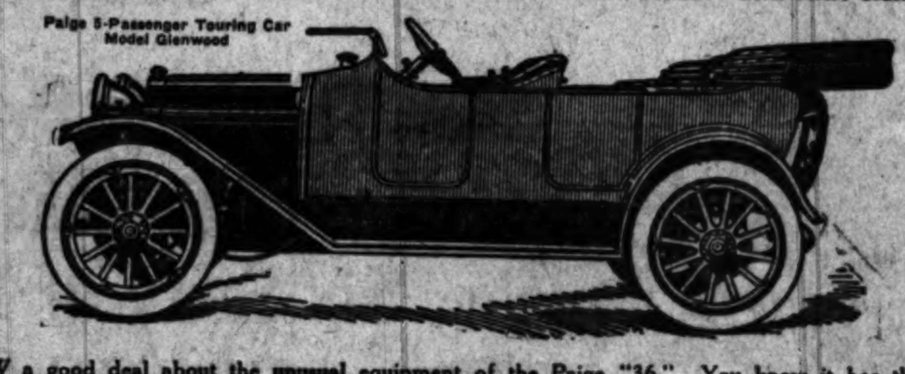
Gray & Davis Electric Starting and Lighting System—116-inch Wheel Base—Silent Chain Driven Motor Gears—Left Side Drive—Center Control—Cork Insert Clutch.

Paige 5-Passenger Touring Car
Model Glenwood



YOU KNOW a good deal about the unusual equipment of the Paige "36." You know it has the famous Gray & Davis Electric Starting and Lighting System. That point of itself is enough to mark the Paige as a distinctive value in its price field. You know it has the Bosch Magneto, for ignition. No better to be had. Then think of all the rest of the equipment—ventilating windshield (built into the body,) silk mohair top (tan lined,) top boot and curtains, Stewart revolving dial speedometer, 12-inch electric headlights, electric side and tail lamps, five demountable rims, robe rail and foot rails, extra tire irons, license bracket and all the incidental equipment such as horn, pump, jack, tools, etc. The trimmings throughout are of heavy nickel.

But now we want to emphasize this one fact—that this EXTRAORDINARY equipment is not one whit more extraordinary than the CONSTRUCTION of the car.

IT IS generally conceded that we have accomplished a great work in being able to produce and sell the Paige "36," with such splendid equipment, for $1390.

It IS a great work because, leaving aside any consideration of the equipment, the car itself is an extraordinary car.

The quality of the car, from any viewpoint, measures right up to the quality of the equipment. If anything, above it.

This statement is easily provable.

We want your primary consideration on the CAR, not the equipment.

The Paige motor has made the Paige reputation. For the Paige motor is right. We build our own motors in our own modern plant, and we could not build them more carefully or test them more accurately if we were building them for a $2500 car.

The Paige "36" motor is a powerful, quiet, economical 4-cylinder engine. It has a 5-inch stroke, with 4-inch bore. The cylinders, of gray iron, are cast en bloc, giving the utmost rigidity and perfect alignment, with the highest degree of simplicity.

We do not simply bore and ream our cylinders. We bore and ream them and then we season them for weeks. And after they are seasoned we grind them to a hair-line precision. It's a high-price practice but it contributes to Paige motor efficiency.

Paige water jackets are large, and Paige owners never have trouble with an overheated motor.

The intake manifold is of aluminum and very short—made possible by location of gasoline tank in the dash. This eliminates condensation of gas vapor in the manifold and gives most effective carburetion.

The connecting rods are drop-forged from high-carbon steel, and very long — 10½ inches. These long connecting rods, together with the fact that the cylinders are off-set in the direction of rotation, reduce side-thrust to a minimum and eliminate unequal wear in the cylinder walls.

The heavy crank-shaft is made of very strong, drop-forged and heat-treated steel and runs in three extra long bearings—front bearing 3 inches, center bearing 2½ inches, rear bearing 4 inches.

The Paige "36" motor is as quiet as the watch in your pocket. We believe it is as quiet as any motor ever built. Our chain drive for camshaft and pump shaft help make it quiet.

The aluminum crankcase is light and strong, as a crankcase should be.

Paige "36" lubrication is a feature of this unusual car. In no other detail of Paige "36" design do we feel greater pride. It is perfect and constant lubrication for every working part.

If there is any more efficient clutch than the multiple disc cork insert clutch we don't know it. That's why we use this clutch which is found elsewhere only on higher priced cars.

There is strength all through the Paige "36." Strength in the 4-inch deep pressed steel frame. Strength in the drop-forged front axle and the floating type rear axle—axles that are strong enough for a car of twice the weight. Strength in the drop-forged steering knuckles. Strength in the big 34-inch wheels. Strength in the brake control.

There's strength and safety in every part and every detail of the Paige. And there is sturdiness, too, in the sheet steel body and the heavy, firm fenders.

We have given you here just a few hints of the nicety of Paige construction. We can't tell you all about it in space like this. We want you to see the car itself, to take it all apart, figuratively speaking, and see for yourself that it is just as good as its equipment, or better.

There are five body types of the Paige "36," each a distinctively stylish, serviceable car—touring car, roadster, raceabout, coupe and sedan.

PAIGE 25 $1050

The Paige Line also includes Paige "25," a most excellent car for those who want a smaller car than the Paige "36."

Paige "25" is just as remarkably priced. We do not believe any other manufacturer ever offered such value at less than a thousand dollars.

Careful construction and painstaking workmanship have made the Paige "25" a leader in its field. These same qualities will keep it in its leadership.

Two popular types, Model Brunswick, 5-passenger touring car, and Model Kenilworth, a snappy, graceful roadster, both at $1050.

Regularly equipped in nickel trimming, with rain-vision windshield, silk mohair top, top boot and curtains, Stewart speedometer, 5 nickel and black enamel lamps, Prest-O-Lite tank, 5 demountable rims, tire irons, horn, pump, jack, tools, etc.

thronged. The crowds wanted to see the start and finish of this race and it was a battle royal all the way. The Howdy Special was held at Imperial, but this did not prevent many of the motorists from driving to Brawley, El Centro and Calexico to watch the cars fly through these towns.

John S. Mitchell was the official starter. He sent the racers away four minutes apart. There was not a hitch as the men came to the line, though Conant, on the Buick, arrived only thirty seconds before Starter Mitchell sent the cars away.

P. S. Greer, president of the Automobile Dealers' Association of Los Angeles, was referee and represented the Western Automobile Association, under whose rules and sanction the race was held.

Many of the Scottish Rite Masons were here today to watch the race. Among the visitors were Champ Vance of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, Assistant Postmaster Ed Dishman, Frank X. Pfaffinger and Sim Crabill.

Allan Kelley was one of the timers. He was assisted by Orvie Overall and W. M. Murray and G. E. Heber.

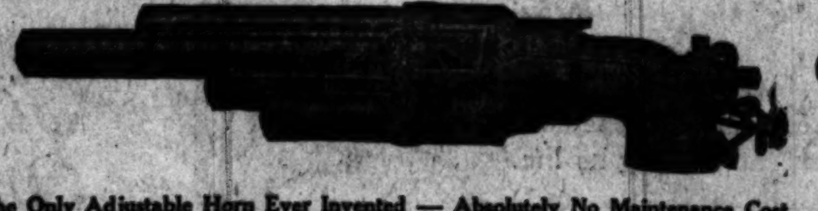
The judges were Charles Nolan, P. P. Hovely and C. D. Hartschorn.

COURSE IS ROUGH.

George Hill was mechanician to Oldfield. The Fiat stopped at the pits only once. The course, according to Hill, was terribly rough. He says Oldfield drove a wonderful race. The little Ford, with Ed Carlson at the wheel, was in the running for two laps, but the driver was disqualified.

Conant, in the Buick, kept the crowds guessing. His speed made him a contender every minute. De Lovelace, on the National, had hard luck in the first lap when he struck a ditch, but he made up his lost time and finished within a few minutes of the third-place Cadillac.

The Big 4 Exhaust Horn



Self Cleaning

Can't Clog

The Only Adjustable Horn Ever Invented — Absolutely No Maintenance Cost.

The greatest novelty of the 1913 season is the BIG 4 EXHAUST HORN, with its ADJUSTING DEVICE. This feature makes it possible to produce the DESIRED TONE on any car, regardless of the pressure of the exhaust, thereby preventing the chug, chug effect when the car is running slowly and the screeching sound when running at a high speed.

THE BIG 4 HORN is artistically, compactly and simply designed. Being made almost entirely of aluminum, its strength and minimum weight insure it absolutely against breaking loose from its connection, or being damaged by the jar and jolt of the car.

THE BIG 4 HORN is constructed and slotted on the order of the PIPE ORGAN, the oldest and most successful method of producing a soft, melodious, yet penetrating sound.

The Big "4" Horn is Clog-proof against either mud or soot, and can be blown at any speed.

Prices complete with attaching fixtures:

No. 1, for cars of 30-h.p., or over	$12.50
No. 2, for cars of 20 to 30-h.p.	$11.25

Castle and F. F. Baldwin Shine for the Visitors.

BY R. D. WYNNE.

In a spectacular game of polo played at Tournament Park, the Pasadena team yesterday defeated the crack Hawaiian team by the score of 5 to 4 3-4.

By winning yesterday's game, the Pasadena team secured permanent possession of the famous Hogan cup, having won it twice before.

Easily the one spectacular figure of the game was Robert Neustadt of Pasadena. In the sixth chukker he got the ball when his own goal was threatened and drove it in three strokes the full length of the field and scored a goal. Mounted on his wonderful horse, "Muggins," he was able to leave the famous ponies of Hawaii in this spectacular run.

Hobbs of the Pasadena was also a wonder at back, and in the first period caught the ball almost on the toss-in and by splendid riding scored the first goal for his team. Castle and F. F. Baldwin for the Hawaiian teams were the particular stars, making practically all of the goals for their team.

Pasadena lost one point on two safeties and one foul, while Hawaii was penalized one and one-quarter points for two fouls and one safety.

The teams lined up as follows: Pasadena—No. 1, Neustadt; No. 2, Reggie Weiss; No. 3, Carleton Burke, and No. 4, Johnny Hobbs. Hawaii—No. 1, A. H. Rice; No. 2, Harold Castle; No. 3, S. A. Baldwin, and No. 4, F. F. Baldwin.

About 2000 of the school children of Pasadena were admitted free to the grounds.

The finals in the Maryland cup matches will be played Monday, between the Santa Barbara and Pasadena teams. The finals in the Pasadena cup matches between the [illegible] team and the Hawaiian team will be played at Riverside this week.

BULKLEY READY FOR NEW MOTOR TRUCK.

A new motor truck will enter the Los Angeles field within a week. [illegible] S. Bulkley, who has been handling Autocars at Main and Washington streets, has taken the agency for the Smith-Milwaukee truck. Sample machines are now on the rails westward bound.

Although the new car has been on the market only a year, it is not the product of "prentice hands." It is manufactured by the A. O. Smith Company of Milwaukee, a concern with forty-seven acres under one roof, which has been engaged for many years in the production of pressed steel parts for high-grade cars. It has the heaviest hydraulic presses in the United States and claims to manufacture 80 per cent. of all the pressed steel frame parts used in the country.

EXTRA AIR ROOM IN NEW DIAMOND [illegible]

The Diamond Rubber Company of Akron makes the announcement for the first time of their new tire, which has just been put on the market. It is called the "extra-air-room" tire and is said to give a greatly increased mileage, and permits of carrying greater weights in a car without the fear of a blowout. They are built in all sizes and do not differ from other types except that they have a greater air capacity.

The new tire has been constructed on the theory that the weight of the car is carried on the air in the tire. The greater air room is said to decrease the internal friction and therefore give greater mileage with more ease in riding, and gives a greater carrying capacity of the tire. There seemed to be only one solution to the problem of reducing the internal friction and thus the short life of a tire. The Diamond Rubber Company believe they have solved the problem, which will give all these advantages without weakening the side walls or decreasing the thickness of the tread.

SHOW HAS EFFECT ON MARMON SIX SALES.

The effect of the Chicago and New York automobile shows is being felt distinctly in Los Angeles, according to C. H. Gilhousen of [illegible] Brothers. He states that a number of wealthy eastern people have called at his Olive-street salesroom, who had seen and been attracted by Marmon and Marathon cars at the eastern shows, but who preferred to buy them out in the sunny Southwest.

"We have sold five Marmons and three Marathons in the past week," said Gilhousen. "We have also been favored with a surprising number of offers for exchanges since we received our new six-cylinder car. In that time, two and a half months, we have had no less than ninety-seven such offers."

REO CHIEF HERE TO REMAIN TWO WEEKS.

R. M. Owen of New York [illegible] president of the R. M. Owen Company, general sales agents for the Reo Motor Company, arrived at the Raymond Hotel, Pasadena, Wednesday, and expects to spend from two to three weeks seeing the sights and visiting old friends.

The big Reo man reports business prospects throughout the East and Central States as being exceptionally bright and states further that this year will be the biggest year in the history of the sale of Reo motor cars.

Mrs. Owen accompanies her husband on his many sightseeing trips to this land of sunshine and states [illegible] dead much pleased to have [illegible] [illegible] here to remain [illegible] [illegible] from the weather [illegible]

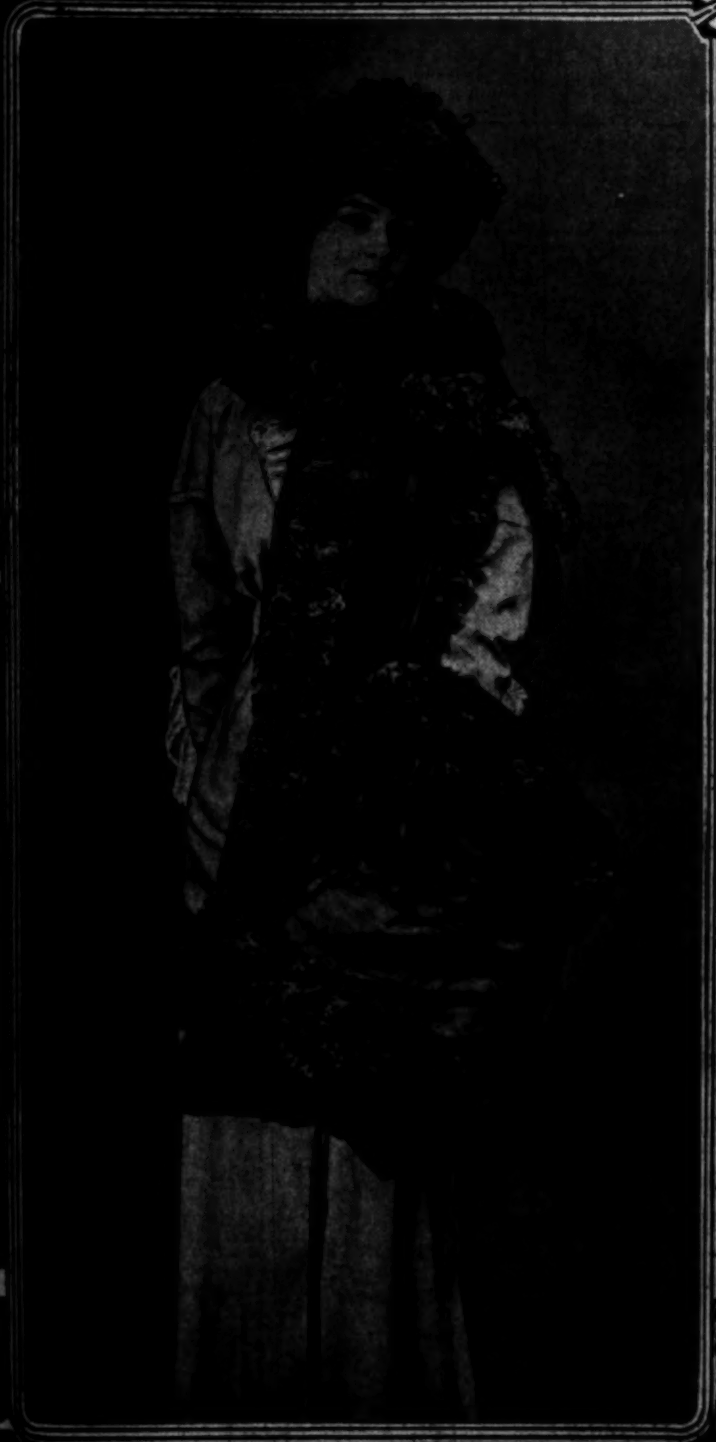
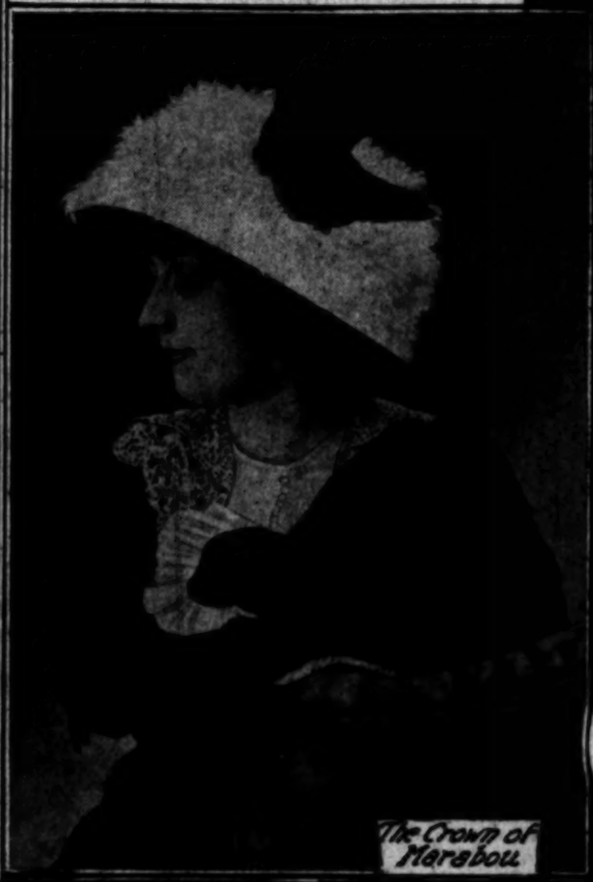
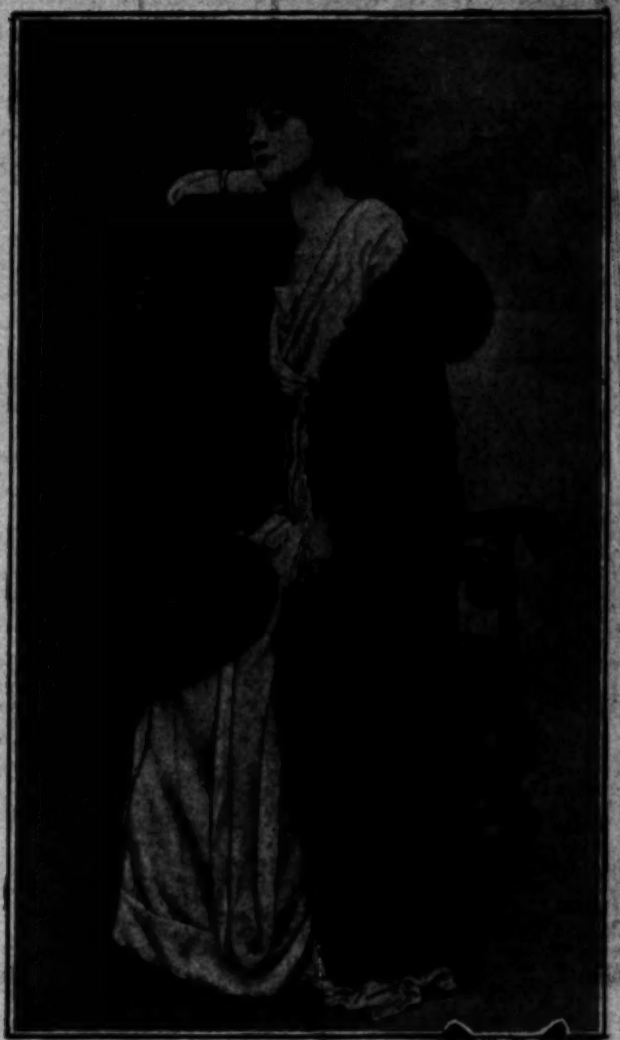
SUBSTITUTES FOR FUR



Ostrich Bands on a Set



The Crown of Marabou



Marabou For the Wrap

IT IS natural that in this season of fur there are charming trimmings to take the place of the expensive article, giving an effect that is stylish with a cost that is moderate. There are many fabrics that have been designed to furnish warmth and a furry look, such as marabou, the various forms of ostrich and woven material that imitates caracul, Persian lamb and some of the smooth-haired furs. Zibeline, for instance, has been made with unusually long hair, and when incorporated in a garment resembles coney.

In the scarf and muff set ostrich bands play a very important role. The huge pillow muff has an outer chiffon case shirred over white satin. Black satin covered with chiffon edges the muff and the scarf beyond the bands. The scarf is a long straight style, parallel rows of shirring crossing it at regular intervals.

Light in weight, warm and very much less expensive than marten, which it imitates, is the dark marabou on the handsome black brocaded wrap. This forms a deep collar and revers and continues around the outer edge of the wrap and sleeves. In brown and white this successful substitute is equally effective.

The evening train need not be edged with ermine. Ermine is expensive and beyond the purses of most women. Why not swansdown? In its white, soft form it gives an excellent line of furry trimming at a pleasing fraction of the cost of fur.

With a perfection in effect, brown plush has been substituted for seal in the charming little chiffon evening wrap. Here it is used in bands two and one-half inches wide, and it edges the sleeves and forms an irregular line on the panier tunic. The heavy richness of this substitute is an artistic contrast for the filmy fabric of which the frock is made. This plush can be combined in muffs, scarfs and in millinery with great [illegible]

Instead of a fur crown of coney or ermine, marabou has stepped into place and forms the entire top of a velvet hat. The surface is broken by a black mercury wing, posed at the side.

Brown marabou is used on exquisite Persian chiffon over satin. It is a wide band that edges the wide scarf, which, you will observe, is short, resembling the pelerine of grandmother's day. The ends are finished with deep brown tassels. The furry trimming gives warmth and is undeniably lovely.

Scarfs of material so well woven that the deception is hard to detect are made of black that gives a baby Persian-lamb effect without the cost and the horror. Inset panels, cuffs and collars are now being made not of fur, but of these substitutes which have come to fashion as a result of the demand and the restricted supply. Cleverness is an asset of present dress making. No one can deny that the effect of fur trimming, although obtained vicariously, has attracted attention and applause.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

KEEPING CLEAN VERSUS GETTING CLEAN.

DOES any one among my readers recollect the Gypsy Breyton books? They were written many years ago, and made charming reading for young girls—and for old girls, too.

Gypsy was a harum-scarum, lovable hoyden, full of impulses to fun and mischief as well as to good works, and one of the most interesting chapters tells of her effort to put her room in order after her mother had talked to her of the effect of slovenliness and carelessness on the character.

When the chamber is finally cleaned, the bureau drawers reduced to tidiness, the rubbish cleared out, Gypsy surveys the result and wonders how long the place will look like that!

Don't you sometimes have the same feeling when you inspect a room or a closet that has just been cleaned and straightened? And do you ask yourself why it is that things can't always be in order?

I don't want to turn this talk into a series of citations from children's books of a past period, but I cannot forbear to quote, as I have done often before, from the rule laid down for Rollo by his mentor, Jonas, that when once order has been established you cannot take anything out of place and fail to put it back where it belongs without "breaking the spell." I don't know a more valuable precept than this, which emphasizes the difference between keeping neat and clean and getting neat and clean.

The latter course is that of the untrained houseworker, the former is the plan followed by the woman who puts her brains as well as her back into the care of her house.

We have all seen illustrations of the way in which the ordinary maid runs her department. Don't you know her kitchen after she has made a baking, prepared her Sunday dessert, and cooked her dinner? It is little short of chaos. All her utensils are soiled, usually all her dish towels are damp or dirty, her kitchen sink is piled high with unwashed dishes, scraps of food cumber the plates heaped on the table, odds and ends of all sorts are scattered about "in most admired disorder."

When everything is at its worst, after she is weary with the toil of the morning, she turns in and "makes a big killing," to use a sporting phrase, and scrubs and scours until the kitchen is spotless and she herself is worn out.

Now I admit that sometimes it is impossible to avoid a certain amount of confusion and dirt, but I do hold that this should be an unusual experience and not an every week or an every day occurrence. How do you other seasoned housekeepers feel about it?

How One Girl Managed.

In all the years I have been manager of my home and the employer of maids I have found but one servant who followed the plan I would myself have pursued in washing the dishes from a meal. Oddly enough, she was what some one of my friends called "a wild Irish girl," a feather brained little thing, who was an excellent worker and most industrious, but lacked balance and judgment in many ways.

Yet the fashion in which she managed her dishwashing might have served as an example to older and more practiced workers. She started her dinner in good time and washed her utensils as she finished with them.

While we ate the soup she had served she took up the rest of the dinner, brought it in to us, did the necessary passing and waiting, and as soon as she returned to the kitchen attacked the soup plates. By the time we had concluded the meat course and were ready for our salad or dessert she had only clean dishes in the kitchen, and she washed the pieces she had brought out from the dining room while we ate the final items of our dinner.

Before our coffee was done, if we lingered over it, she had eaten her own meal in a tidy kitchen and washed the dessert plates. Her dishwashing was all out of the way almost as soon as the dinner was at an end.

I am not sure if she could have managed so well if we had had a larger family. There were only three or four of us, as a regular thing—but I am inclined to think that even then she would not have left a great pile of dishes to wash during the evening.

Often I have tried to induce other maids to follow the same plan, but they have their own ways, which they like better, and as no principle of great importance is involved I am willing to let them do their work as they like best.

If you do your own housework you cannot adopt the practice of my "wild Irish girl," and yet you could learn a lesson even from her—a lesson to apply to other branches of home making. Why is it necessary to leave work of cleaning or of putting to rights to accumulate until there is a big task to accomplish, instead of doing it as it comes? Why not keep clean instead of getting clean?

Consider such a simple matter as the state in which you leave your room in the morning. I take it for granted that you have hung your skirt and waist to air when you removed them the night before, and that you have left your shoes out of the shoe bag for the same purpose.

Do you put them away, all of them, when you take from the closet the garments you are going to wear in the morning? Do you lay your comb and brush back on the tray and your nail file in its place? Do you hang your towels where they belong, or do you let them lie where you have thrown them down, with the idea that when you come to make the bed, or when your chambermaid comes to do it, everything can be gathered up and put where it belongs?

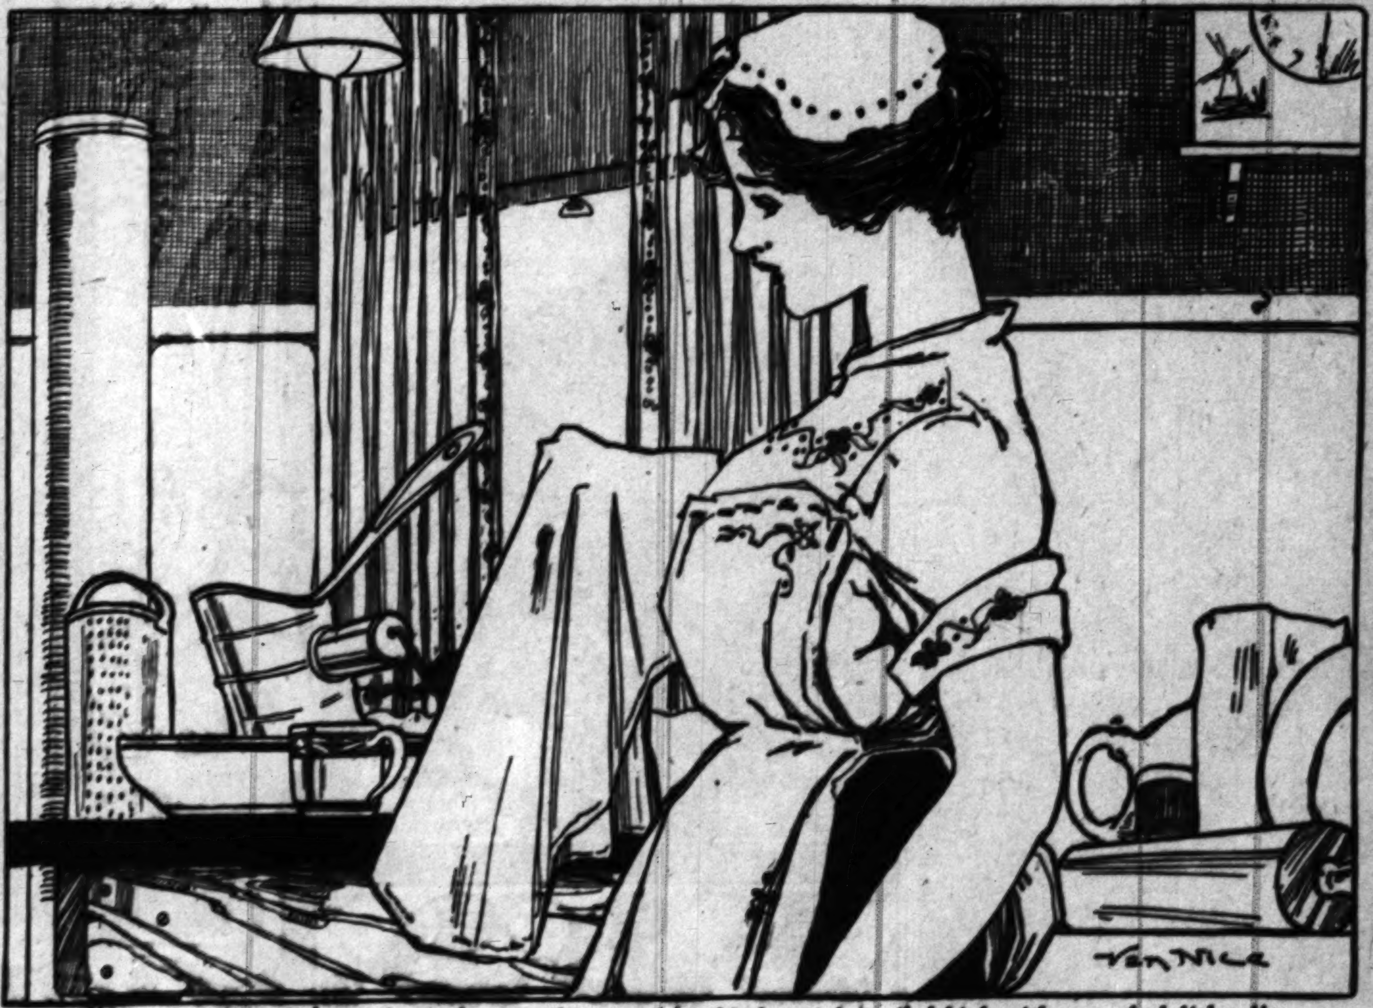
Orderliness Makes Less Work.

When you come in for a walk, what is your habit? Do you put your hat in its box, your coat on its hook, the gloves in their case, or do you toss them all on the bed, and leave the business of stowing them away until a more—or a less—convenient season?

These are trifles, but they will show you what I mean and will indicate in a measure the way in which you conduct your whole mode of life. If you are untidy in one direction, you are likely to be untidy in another.



"Usually all her dish towels are damp or dirty, and her kitchen sink is piled high with unwashed dishes."

"Oh, don't bother to put your desk straight!" I heard a woman say impatiently to another not long ago. "What is the good of a rolltop desk if you can't slam it shut and hide the disorder? Leave all that picking up until you come home."

"It won't take a minute," said the other, gathering together letters, envelopes and stray papers as she spoke and putting them into neat piles. "I just want to make things look decently in case I should get run over by an automobile while I'm out. I'd hate to be brought home on a stretcher and have my desk looking like destruction!"

I was convinced after that this girl kept her bureau drawers in a state of comparative neatness and I was prepared to learn that she had hangers for her clothes and certain hooks on which to put certain frocks!

When you come to examine this habit of orderliness from the standpoint of the time it takes I think you will find that it demands less leisure and labor than the custom of permitting everything to get messy before you make a business of restoring cleanliness and neatness.

A few weeks ago I missed a pair of little curtains from one of the windows and on inquiry found that the maid had washed them out and was pressing them off. She explained her course.

"They got dirty before the others did because that window is open more than the other windows, and I thought I'd just rub them out instead of waiting until I had to wash them all," she said.

That is the sort of thing I mean. You recognize its value in many places. You would not wish your room to get in a hopeless state of dirt and dust before you touched it with a broom. On the contrary, you run a carpet sweeper over it in the morning, just as you take a dust pan and brush to the corners.

Keep Little Things Picked Up.

You feel it is a poor housekeeper who omits this sort of thing, as you have a contempt for the cook who does not scald out her dish towels once a day instead of waiting until a great pile of them is soiled and sour.

Carry this principle throughout your daily employment, and see how it lessens labor and saves time. When you have finished your mending do you put the needles in their book, the thimble and spools in their pockets, the tape and buttons in their own receptacles, or do you drop all into the basket at random? When you clear away your dishes do you have a place for everything and everything in its place, or do you stick the different items just where it happens to be convenient at the moment? When you leave your bathroom after "tubbing" is the wash cloth hung up to dry, the soap dish rinsed out, the towels in their proper place, the water spilt about the basin wiped up, or is the room in confusion because you plan to come in after breakfast and put it all to rights at once?

Not all the care and planning will save you a general cleaning once in a while. No matter how careful you are dust will accumulate in out of the way corners, dirt will be rubbed into the carpet and rugs and hangings will become dingy and grimy. But you may postpone that evil hour, you may stretch the intervals between regular cleaning bouts if you will only clean as you go.

And it doesn't really take any more time, or as much.

"But I can't stop to do all that picking up when I am in a hurry to get to breakfast or to keep an appointment, or something of that sort," I hear you protest. "If I did I would keep other people waiting and make everything late and inconvenient."

Not if you planned your work with the extra two or three minutes in mind.

Of course, emergencies arise sometimes when it is impossible for you to keep your house as you would like it kept, when a sudden call drags you off, leaving disorder behind you. But this is the exception, not the rule. That may be the habit of putting things away when you have done using them, of picking up the odds and ends when their use is over, of throwing the soiled clothes into the basket or bag instead of on the floor, of laying the handkerchiefs or the gloves in the case instead of on the bureau, of sticking the pins in the cushion, instead of dropping [illegible] this.

All little things, as I have said, but have you ever noticed how small a disorder, how slight a dust or [illegible] takes to make a room look untidy and slovenly? If not, think about it and [illegible] effect upon the impression it gives you [illegible] you go into your kitchen and find a soiled spoon, the unwashed dish left [illegible] after the work of the day is done and [illegible] place should be spotless. Don't you [illegible] an instant sensation of [illegible] appointment? The maid who has [illegible] or who has left her stove [illegible] crumbs or spotted with grease [illegible] not brushed up the floor [illegible] beside the bag, undoubtedly [illegible] it made no difference, since she [illegible] to give the room a good "[illegible]" next day. Yet, to you the [illegible] all the difference between good and "sloppy" housekeeping. Apply the [illegible] the manner in which you [illegible] of your own room, your own [illegible] own sewing equipment, and see if [illegible] the same truth of the advantage of keeping clean, rather than of making [illegible] does not run all through your [illegible]

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

BECAUSE of the enormous number of letters sent to the department I must ask contributors to limit their communications to 100 words, except in cases of formulas or recipes which require greater space. I want all my correspondents to have a showing in the Corner, and if my request in this respect is complied with it will be possible to print many more letters.

Attention is called to the fact that Marion Harland cannot receive money for patterns, as she has no connection with any department that sells them. Marion Harland.

"I READ the other day that one of the readers of the corner has sheet music to give away to some one who wishes it. I would gladly call for it anywhere in town if I could get it. I have just purchased a piano with my saving money and cannot afford to buy sheet music as yet. CLARA R."

The music to which you refer may have been given away before this, but I am sure there are other musicians who have sheet music they will be glad to give you. I can guess that the payment for a piano may have made so heavy a drain upon the "savings money" of which you speak that you may feel the necessity of denying yourself expenditure for music for a while. The freemasonry which prevails, according to my observations, among music lovers everywhere ought surely to move some one of our corneritos to meet this appeal. I shall hope for several applications for Clara R.'s address, which I hold in readiness.

Asks for Canary.

"I have a dear little daughter of 16 who is sick with tuberculosis and cannot leave the house. Time hangs heavily on her hands and she longs for birds and flowers. I saw a while ago a notice of some one who had a canary she would give away and we would love to have it and would take care of it. My little girl would also love to have some quilt patches if any of your readers could spare some for her. I am a widow and in poor health and cannot get books and papers for my child to help her pass the time. Do you suppose some of the friends in the Corner who do so much to help others could pass on a little amusement and pleasure to my little sick girl? "M. D. H."

This is the sort of appeal which always touches me closely—I suppose for one reason, because the circumstances at once make a picture in my mind. I can see, almost as clearly as if she were before me, the sick girl, cut off by her malady from the enjoyments natural to her age, prevented by slender means from having the comforts and diversions which wealth provides for the afflicted, sitting day after day, yearning for a living pet, like the canary, or for fresh growing things, like plants and flowers, or for some employment to busy her fingers and occupy her mind, like piecing a quilt or reading or looking at pictures. Can't you see her? And don't you want to do something to enliven her dull days, to make the weary hours pass more pleasantly?

I have never known such a plea as this to be disregarded. Not all of you have canaries or growing plants to give away, but there may be some one among you who can supply one or two of these, and there are surely even more who can send a few quilt pieces or a couple of magazines or other reading matter or can write a cheering letter. I am sure that before long the requests for the sick child's address will pour in and that you will be able to rejoice in the thought that you have made one sad spot in the world bright and happy by your loving thoughtfulness and eagerness to bear another's burdens.

Dampfnudeln.

"I have seen a request in the Housemothers' Exchange from B. L. of Montclair N. J., for 'dampfnudeln' and I am glad to send it. I was unable to write it earlier because of an injury to my arm. 'Dampfnudeln' is made up of the two words, 'damp,' which means 'steamed,' and 'nudeln,' which in English would be dumplings. Here is the way to make them:

"To one and a half pounds of flour add half a yeast cake, an even teaspoon of salt, one egg beaten into lukewarm milk, and mix just as you would bread dough, using enough milk to bring it to the dough consistency. After you have kneaded it well divide it into four parts and set it to rise. When it is ready for the oven put the dough into a deep earthen dish, using enough to cover the bottom, adding to it first a teaspoon of salt and two heaping tablespoons of lard. Cover the dish and leave it in the oven for half an hour. The bottom will be brown and the top of the dough white. Slice and eat it as you would warm bread, with stewed prunes.

"I have another recipe for a dish which we make and eat as we would bouillon. For this put a quart of milk over the fire in a double boiler. When it is boiling add to it a teaspoon of cornstarch mixed to a smooth paste with cold milk, two even tablespoons of grated horseradish, and an even teaspoon of salt. Boil up together for three minutes and serve. MRS. L. P."

I should think the last recipe might have the name of cream of horseradish soup, and that it might be a little hot for the tender palate. But I am glad to have these recipes, for we have many German readers who will hail with joy directions for making the dishes they used to eat in the fatherland.

Two Recipes Wanted.

"I will greatly appreciate it if you will print a recipe for Spanish chicken and one for making tutti-frutti cake. E. A."

I wish I could help you, but if I know these two dishes it is by other names than those you have given them. Is "Spanish chicken," perhaps, what I have eaten—and cooked—as "Creole chicken"? Won't you give me a description of this and of tutti-frutti cake? Then I may be better able to help you out. Or if any of the many good cooks among our constituency have recipes for either or both of these dishes, won't they expedite matters by sending me the recipes that I may print them here, not only for the benefit of E. A. but for the many others who are on the alert for good new dishes?

"The Rose of Baltimore."

"In answer to the inquiry of Mrs. F. L. S. I would say that the poem 'Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight' was written by Rose Hartwicke Thorpe.

"Now, I have a request to make on my own behalf. Can any of the readers send me the words of an old time song and the name of the author? It was called 'The Rose of Baltimore.' Perhaps some of our southern sisters may remember it. My mother, who has been dead over forty years, was born in Baltimore, and the song was a favorite of hers. It may have been old in her day, but I have never heard it sung since her death. Yet it is constantly singing in my ears, and I would love to get it. I have tried in leading music stores, but in vain. The following is the first verse and the refrain as nearly as I can recall them:

'Twas on a public promenade
One bright October morn,
'Twas there I met a lovely maid
In the tide of fashion borne.
Her lips were like the cherries
Just blushing on the tree,
Her voice, O, it was merry,
Like fairy songs at sea!

O, a lovelier maid I never saw before!
With eyes so bright,
Like stars at night,
The Rose of Baltimore!

MRS. J. F. M.

I print this verse and hope it may bring a response in the shape of the remainder of the song. Nearly every one of us has some such memory as this of songs heard in youth or childhood, and it would be real joy to have them restored to us complete with their freight of early associations. I hold the address of Mrs. J. F. M and trust there may soon be a call for it from some one who can supply her with the words and music of the song her mother sang to her nearly half a century ago.

Bread in Lemon Pie.

"Some one sent a recipe for dandy lemon pie, but did not state the amount of bread to be used. You asked for the general benefit, but I have not seen the answer. But I will give you my experience. I tried with a two ounce slice of bread and this proved to be the right amount, and I want you to know that the pie as made with this is the dandiest of all lemon pies! S. D."

Thank you for the information. It would be a tragedy to have the "dandiness" of the pie lessened by a mistake in the quantity of bread required.

Some Southern Recipes.

"For the benefit of Mrs. P. A. McB. and others I inclose recipes for some southern dishes. I have lived the greater part of my life in the south and so understand the cookery of that section.

"Cow peas [or black eyed peas, which are really beans] I cook just as I would navy beans. Soak them a few hours and put a few slices of salt pork in with them. Grits are used a good deal in the south and are prepared much the same as rice. Put into boiling salted water. Grits should not be washed and rice should be put through at least three waters to remove all the starchiness from the rice.

"Rice purlough is made with different meats and I have forgotten how it is made with tomato. Chicken or rice purlough is fine. When the meat has been boiling until it lacks about thirty minutes of being done you should have a little more liquid than if you had meant to have gravy, and season well with pepper and salt and [illegible] butter. While boiling [illegible] enough rice to make it [illegible]

"STEAMED POTATOES—[illegible] four slices of salt pork and [illegible] enough hot water as it [illegible] pan or skillet (preferably [illegible]) thirds full; then slice into it [illegible] sized or large potatoes. [illegible] and pepper and when cooked [illegible] to brown before taking them [illegible] out. Either sweet or white potatoes [illegible] be used in this way and [illegible] slice a large onion in with the [illegible]

These are good recipes [illegible] I am glad to have them. [illegible] peas are among the [illegible] for when I go back to [illegible] and I was delighted [illegible] that I could find them in [illegible] ket? What you call "[illegible]" [illegible] agine is the dish which is [illegible] "pilau" or "pilaff," and is [illegible] Turkish dish, although it has [illegible] cations. Under any name it [illegible] introduces the variety in the [illegible] we are all asking for. [illegible] potatoes and the Spanish stew [illegible]

Candied Rose Leaves.

"Will you kindly give me [illegible] making crystallized rose [illegible]

CANDIED ROSE LEAVES—[illegible] pound of granulated sugar [illegible] water, and three drops of [illegible] in a perfectly clean [illegible] ring. Test by dropping a [illegible] and when it will break [illegible] your fingers it is ready [illegible] fire. For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

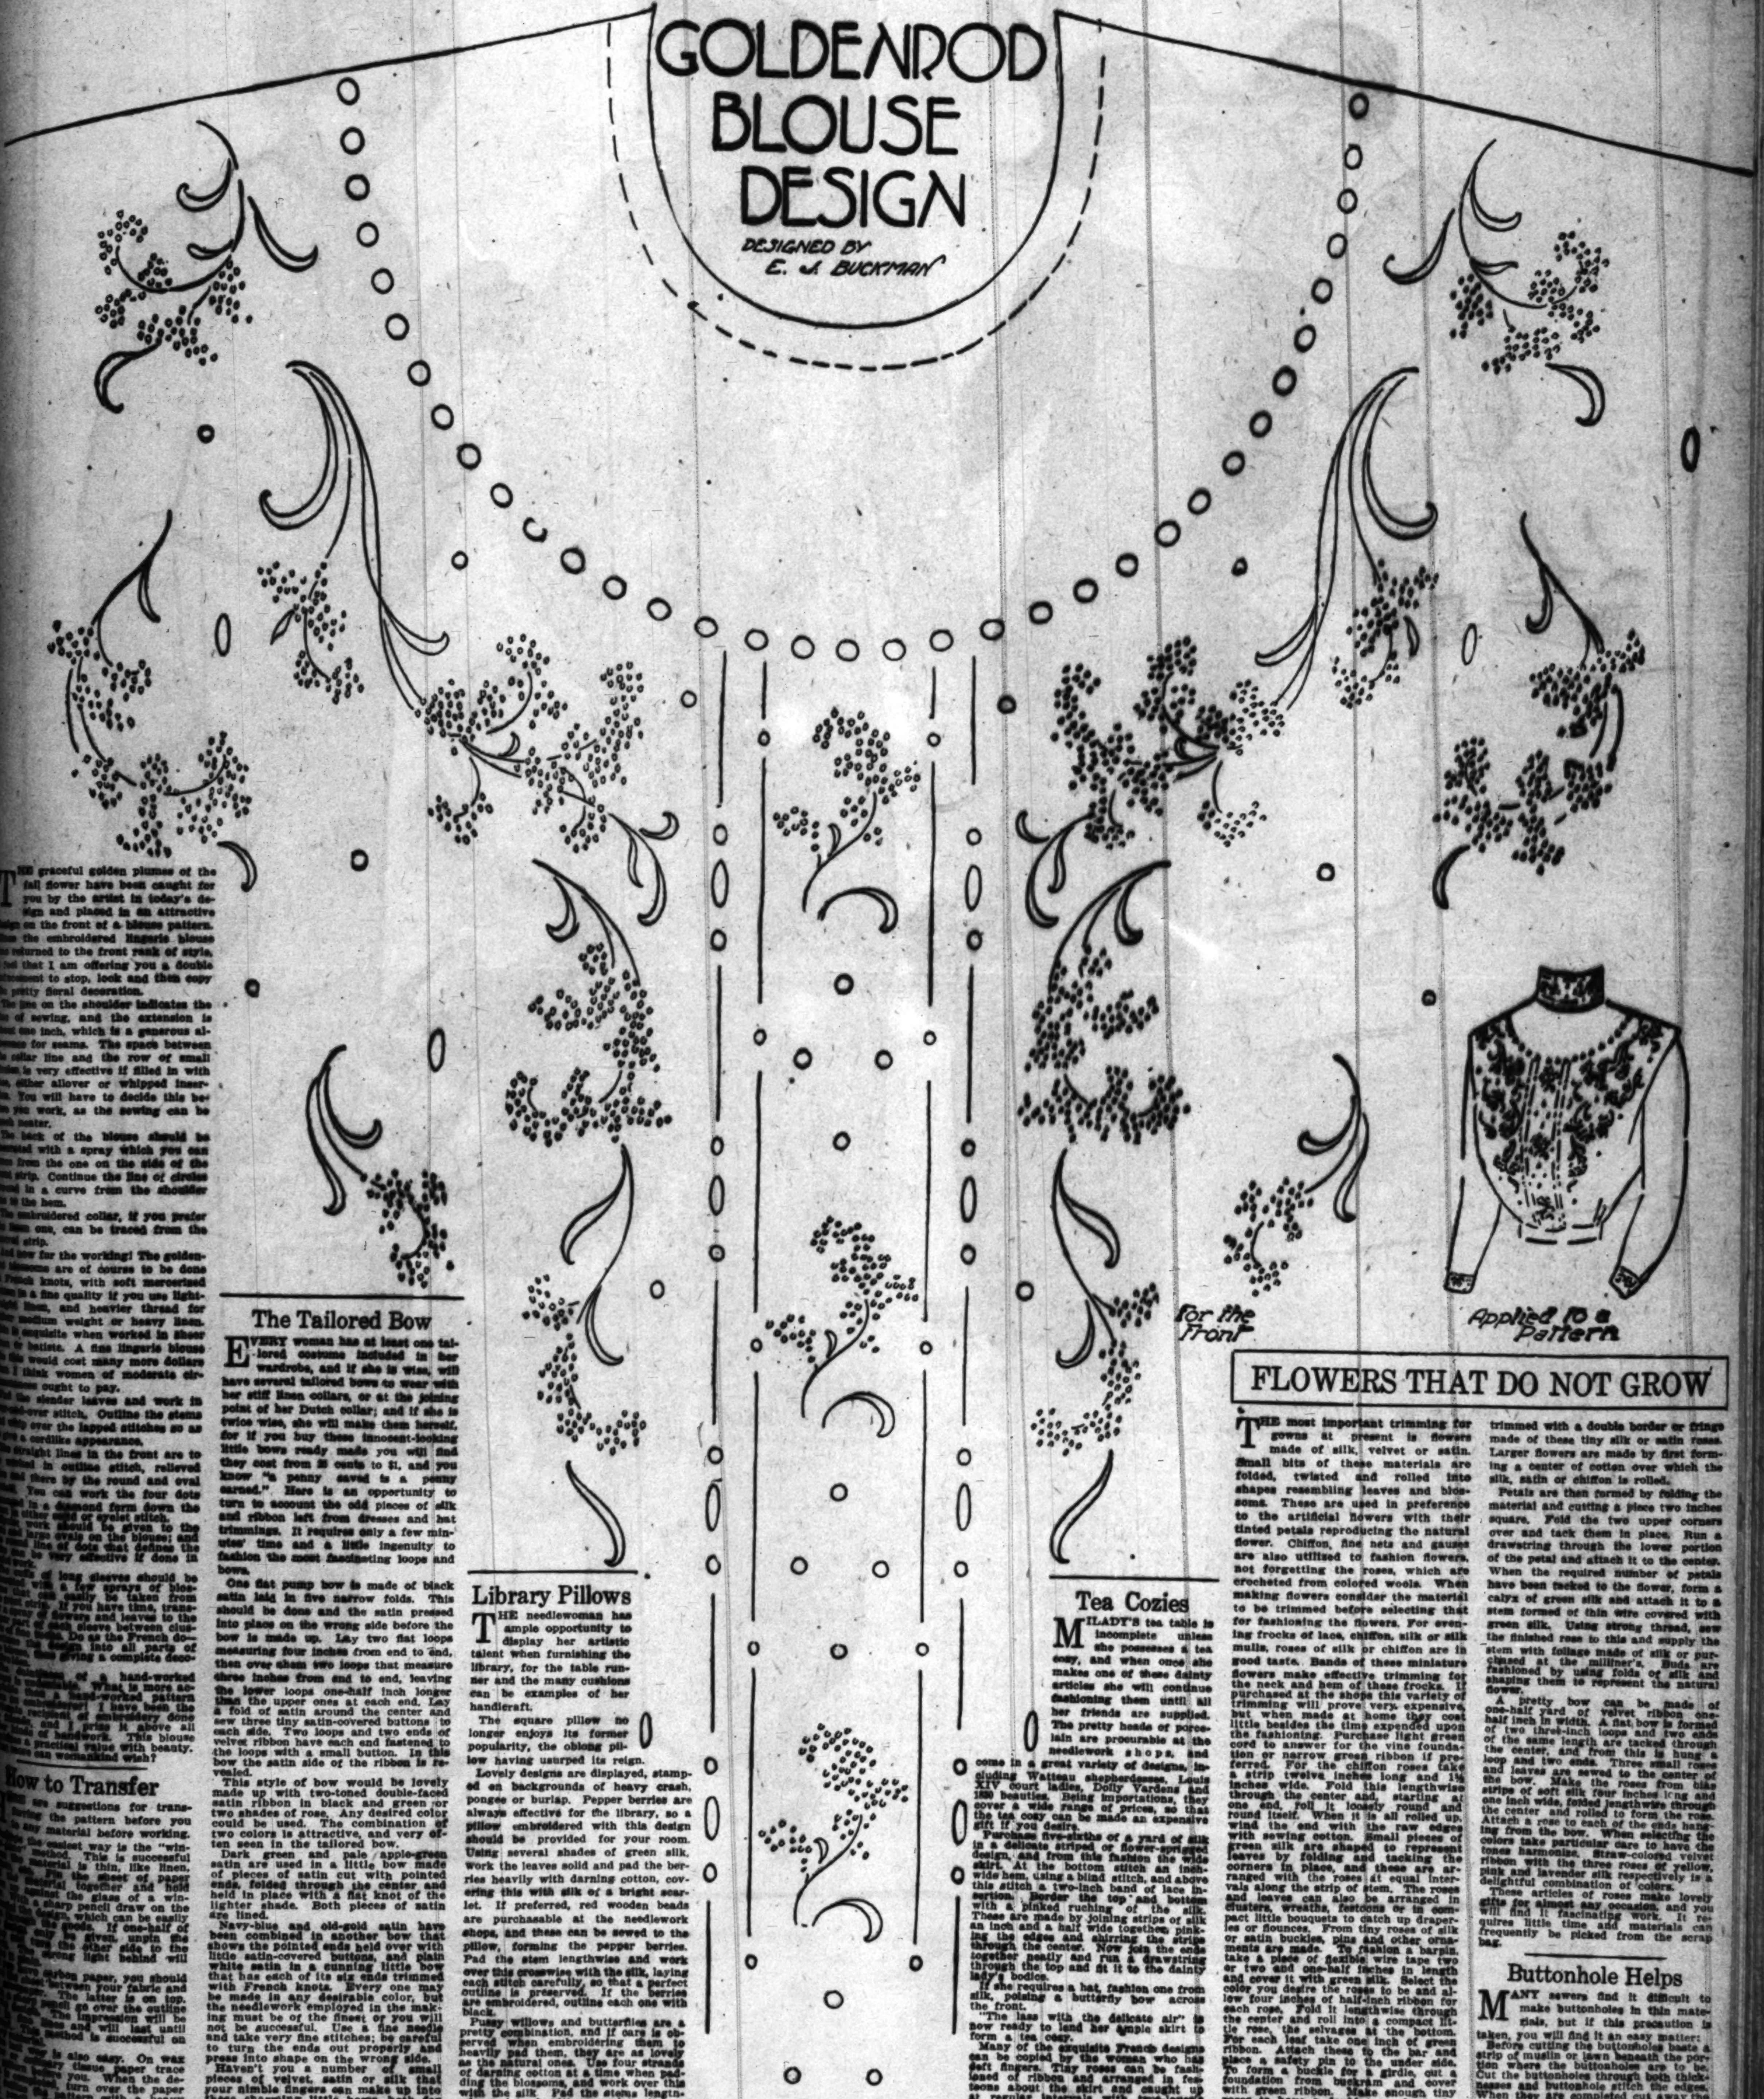
By ADELAIDE BYRD



GOLDENROD BLOUSE DESIGN

DESIGNED BY E. J. BUCKMAN

THE graceful golden plumes of the fall flower have been caught for you by the artist in today's design and placed in an attractive design on the front of a blouse pattern. Since the embroidered lingerie blouse has returned to the front rank of style, I feel that I am offering you a double inducement to stop, look and then copy the pretty floral decoration.

The line on the shoulder indicates the line of sewing, and the extension is about one inch, which is a generous allowance for seams. The space between the collar line and the row of small circles is very effective if filled in with lace, either allover or whipped insertion. You will have to decide this before you work, as the sewing can be much neater.

The back of the blouse should be decorated with a spray which you can trace from the one on the side of the front strip. Continue the line of circles around in a curve from the shoulder line to the hem.

The embroidered collar, if you prefer the high one, can be traced from the central strip.

And now for the working! The goldenrod blossoms are of course to be done in French knots, with soft mercerized cotton in a fine quality if you use lightweight linen, and heavier thread for other medium weight or heavy linen. This is exquisite when worked in sheer linen or batiste. A fine lingerie blouse like this would cost many more dollars than I think women of moderate circumstances ought to pay.

Pad the slender leaves and work in over-and-over stitch. Outline the stems and whip over the lapped stitches so as to give a cordlike appearance.

The straight lines in the front are to be worked in outline stitch, relieved here and there by the round and oval eyelets. You can work the four dots arranged in a diamond form down the front in either solid or eyelet stitch.

[illegible] work should be given to the small and large ovals on the blouse; and the round line of dots that defines the [illegible] can be very effective if done in eyelet work.

The cuffs of long sleeves should be decorated with a few sprays of blossoms that can easily be taken from the front strip. If you have time, transfer a spray of flowers and leaves to the upper part of each sleeve between clusters of fine tucks. Do as the French do—continue the design into all parts of the blouse, thus giving a complete decoration.

The daintiness of a hand-worked blouse is undeniable. What is more acceptable than a hand-worked pattern from an embroiderer! I have been the fortunate recipient of embroidery done by friends, and I prize it above all other kinds of handwork. This blouse combines a practical value with beauty. What more can womankind wish?

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you go to any material before working.

Perhaps the easiest way is the "window" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, lawn, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the glass; the strong light behind will make it plain.

If you have carbon paper, you should place the sheet between your fabric and the design paper. The latter is on top. With a sharp pencil go over the outline of the design. The impression will be in fine lines and will last until worked. This method is successful on any material.

The third way is also easy. On wax paper or ordinary tissue paper trace the pattern before you. When the design is completed, turn over the paper and outline the pattern with a heavy soft pencil. Then place the design face down on the goods and redraw the outline, pressing hard with the pencil. The design will be transferred without difficulty.

[illegible] the way is easy.

The Tailored Bow

EVERY woman has at least one tailored costume included in her wardrobe, and if she is wise, will have several tailored bows to wear with her stiff linen collars, or at the joining point of her Dutch collar; and if she is twice wise, she will make them herself, for if you buy these innocent-looking little bows ready made you will find they cost from 25 cents to $1, and you know "a penny saved is a penny earned." Here is an opportunity to turn to account the odd pieces of silk and ribbon left from dresses and hat trimmings. It requires only a few minutes' time and a little ingenuity to fashion the most fascinating loops and bows.

One flat pump bow is made of black satin laid in five narrow folds. This should be done and the satin pressed into place on the wrong side before the bow is made up. Lay two flat loops measuring four inches from end to end, then over them two loops that measure three inches from end to end, leaving the lower loops one-half inch longer than the upper ones at each end. Lay a fold of satin around the center and sew three tiny satin-covered buttons to each side. Two loops and two ends of velvet ribbon have each end fastened to the loops with a small button. In this bow the satin side of the ribbon is revealed.

This style of bow would be lovely made up with two-toned double-faced satin ribbon in black and green or two shades of rose. Any desired color could be used. The combination of two colors is attractive, and very often seen in the tailored bow.

Dark green and pale apple-green satin are used in a little bow made of pieces of satin cut with pointed ends, folded through the center and held in place with a flat knot of the lighter shade. Both pieces of satin are lined.

Navy-blue and old-gold satin have been combined in another bow that shows the pointed ends held over with little satin-covered buttons, and plain white satin in a cunning little bow that has each of its six ends trimmed with French knots. Every one may be made in any desirable color, but the needlework employed in the making must be of the finest or you will not be successful. Use a fine needle and take very fine stitches; be careful to turn the ends out properly and press into shape on the wrong side.

Haven't you a number of small pieces of velvet, satin or silk that your nimble fingers can make up into these charming little bows, both for yourself and as gifts to your girl friends?

Yes?

Well, then, see how many new ideas you can work out in this ornamental fashion.

Library Pillows

THE needlewoman has ample opportunity to display her artistic talent when furnishing the library, for the table runner and the many cushions can be examples of her handicraft.

The square pillow no longer enjoys its former popularity, the oblong pillow having usurped its reign.

Lovely designs are displayed, stamped on backgrounds of heavy crash, pongee or burlap. Pepper berries are always effective for the library, so a pillow embroidered with this design should be provided for your room. Using several shades of green silk, work the leaves solid and pad the berries heavily with darning cotton, covering this with silk of a bright scarlet. If preferred, red wooden beads are purchasable at the needlework shops, and these can be sewed to the pillow, forming the pepper berries. Pad the stem lengthwise and work over this crosswise with the silk, laying each stitch carefully, so that a perfect outline is preserved. If the berries are embroidered, outline each one with black.

Pussy willows and butterflies are a pretty combination, and if care is observed when embroidering them to heavily pad them, they are as lovely as the natural ones. Use four strands of darning cotton at a time when padding the blossoms, and work over this with the silk. Pad the stems lengthwise and work with crosswise stitches. Blue, green and brown silks are used for the butterflies' wings, while the heads and antennae are embroidered with black. When making these pillows, finish the ends with linen fringe three inches in width.

Tea Cozies

MILADY'S tea table is incomplete unless she possesses a tea cosy, and when once she makes one of these dainty articles she will continue fashioning them until all her friends are supplied. The pretty heads of porcelain are procurable at the needlework shops, and come in a great variety of designs, including Watteau shepherdesses, Louis XIV court ladies, Dolly Vardens and 1830 beauties. Being importations, they cover a wide range of prices, so that the tea cosy can be made an expensive gift if you desire.

Purchase five-sixths of a yard of silk in a delicate striped or flower-sprigged design, and from this fashion the wide skirt. At the bottom stitch an inch-wide hem, using a blind stitch, and above this stitch a two-inch band of lace insertion. Border the top and bottom with a pinked ruching of the silk. These are made by joining strips of silk an inch and a half wide together, pinking the edges and shirring the strips through the center. Now join the ends together neatly and run a drawstring through the top and fit it to the dainty lady's bodice.

If she requires a hat, fashion one from silk, poising a butterfly bow across the front.

"The lass with the delicate air" is now ready to lend her ample skirt to form a tea cosy.

Many of the exquisite French designs can be copied by the woman who has deft fingers. Tiny roses can be fashioned of ribbon and arranged in festoons about the skirt and caught up at regular intervals with true-lover's knots of ribbon. Other skirts are effective if trimmed with flounces of narrow gold lace. These frequently veil pink rosebuds fashioned of silk.

If you enjoyed dressing dolls, the pretty tea cozies will appeal strongly to you, for it is most fascinating work.

FLOWERS THAT DO NOT GROW

THE most important trimming for gowns at present is flowers made of silk, velvet or satin. Small bits of these materials are folded, twisted and rolled into shapes resembling leaves and blossoms. These are used in preference to the artificial flowers with their tinted petals reproducing the natural flower. Chiffon, fine nets and gauzes are also utilized to fashion flowers, not forgetting the roses, which are crocheted from colored wools. When making flowers consider the material to be trimmed before selecting that for fashioning the flowers. For evening frocks of lace, chiffon, silk or silk mulls, roses of silk or chiffon are in good taste. Bands of these miniature flowers make effective trimming for the neck and hem of these frocks. If purchased at the shops this variety of trimming will prove very expensive, but when made at home they cost little besides the time expended upon the fashioning. Purchase light green cord to answer for the vine foundation or narrow green ribbon if preferred. For the chiffon roses take a strip twelve inches long and 1½ inches wide. Fold this lengthwise through the center and, starting at one end, roll it loosely round and round itself. When it is all rolled up, wind the end with the raw edges with sewing cotton. Small pieces of green silk are shaped to represent leaves by folding and tacking the corners in place, and these are arranged with the roses at equal intervals along the strip of stem. The roses and leaves can also be arranged in clusters, wreaths, festoons or in compact little bouquets to catch up draperies or flounces. From tiny roses of silk or satin buckles, pins and other ornaments are made. To fashion a barpin, take a piece of flexible wire tape two or two and one-half inches in length and cover it with green silk. Select the color you desire the roses to be and allow four inches of half-inch ribbon for each rose. Fold it lengthwise through the center and roll into a compact little rose, the selvages at the bottom. For each leaf take one inch of green ribbon. Attach these to the bar and place a safety pin to the under side. To form a buckle for a girdle, cut a foundation from buckram and cover with green ribbon. Make enough tiny roses to have a double row down the center and border either side with leaves.

This makes an effective trimming for the evening gown, especially if the roses are fashioned of a contrasting color.

Sash ends are attractive when trimmed with a double border or fringe made of these tiny silk or satin roses. Larger flowers are made by first forming a center of cotton over which the silk, satin or chiffon is rolled.

Petals are then formed by folding the material and cutting a piece two inches square. Fold the two upper corners over and tack them in place. Run a drawstring through the lower portion of the petal and attach it to the center. When the required number of petals have been tacked to the flower, form a calyx of green silk and attach it to a stem formed of thin wire covered with green silk. Using strong thread, sew the finished rose to this and supply the stem with foliage made of silk or purchased at the milliner's. Buds are fashioned by using folds of silk and shaping them to represent the natural flower.

A pretty bow can be made of one-half yard of velvet ribbon one-half inch in width. A flat bow is formed of two three-inch loops and two ends of the same length are tacked through the center, and from this is hung a loop and two ends. Three small roses and leaves are sewed to the center of the bow. Make the roses from bias strips of soft silk four inches long and one inch wide, folded lengthwise through the center and rolled to form the rose. Attach a rose to each of the ends hanging from the bow. When selecting the colors take particular care to have the tones harmonize. Straw-colored velvet ribbon with the three roses of yellow, pink and lavender silk respectively is a delightful combination of colors.

These articles of roses make lovely gifts for almost any occasion, and you will find it fascinating work. It requires little time and materials can frequently be picked from the scrap bag.

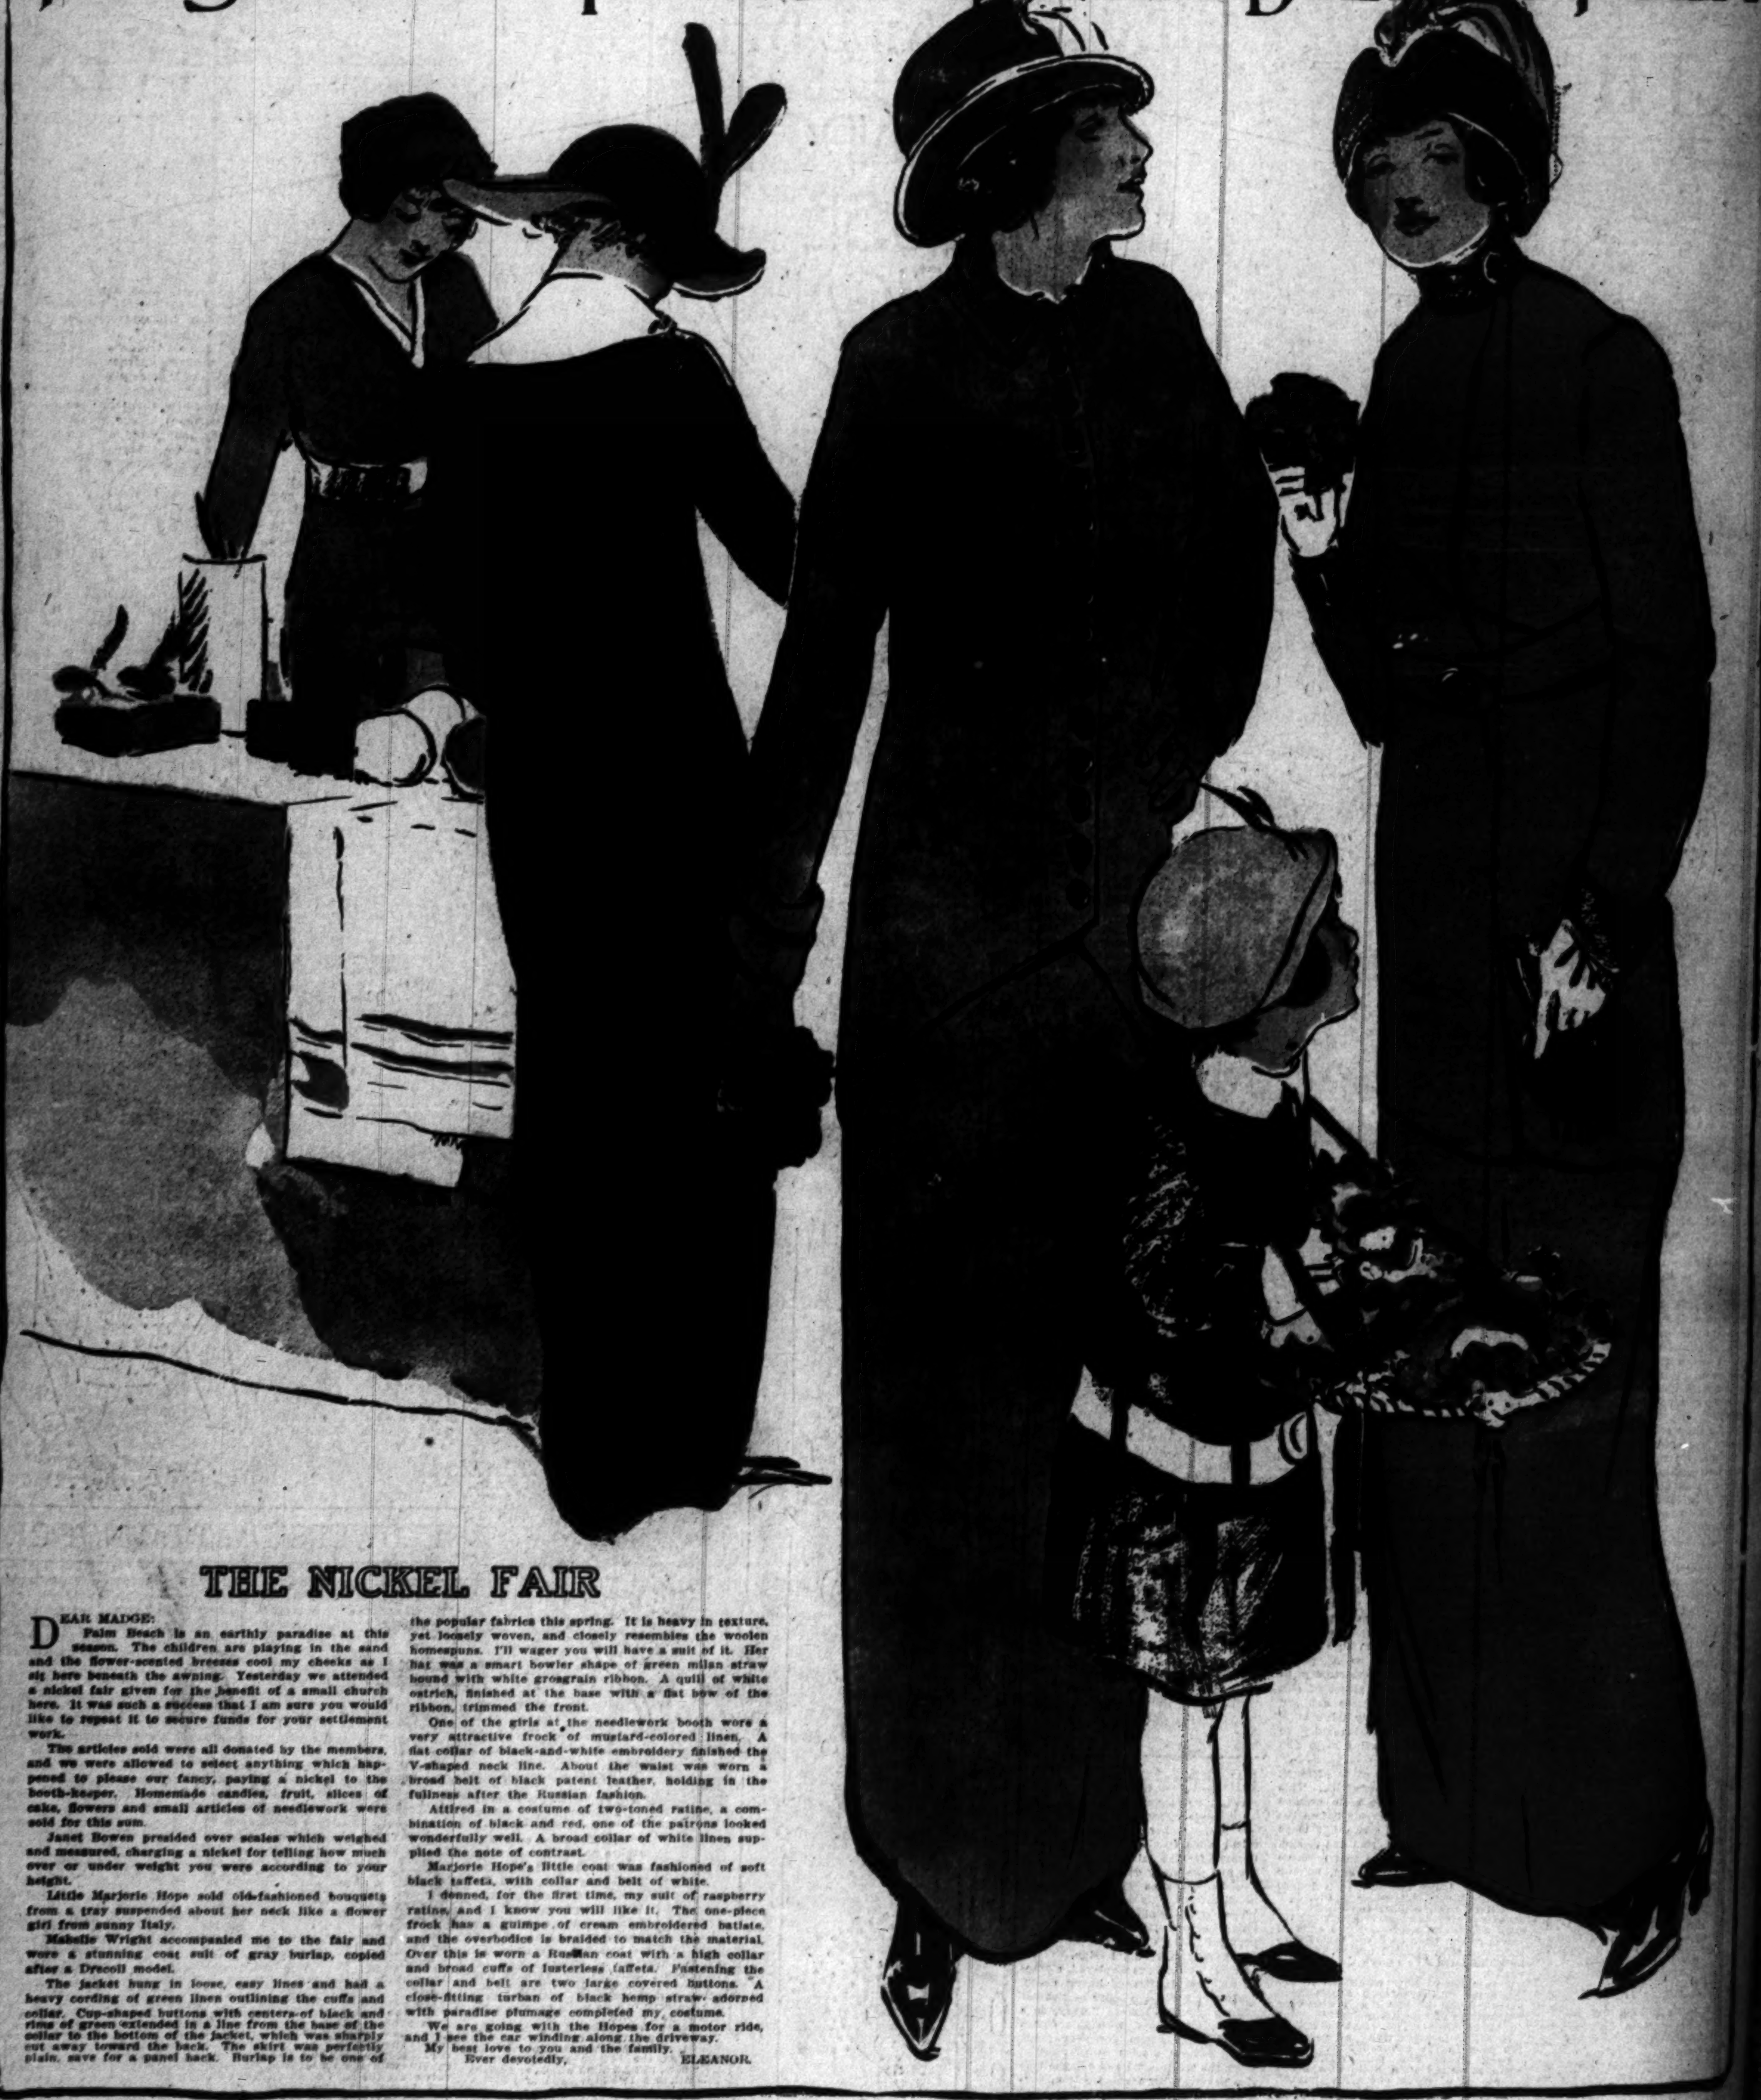
Buttonhole Helps

MANY sewers find it difficult to make buttonholes in thin materials, but if this precaution is taken, you will find it an easy matter:

Before cutting the buttonholes baste a strip of muslin or lawn beneath the portion where the buttonholes are to be. Cut the buttonholes through both thicknesses and buttonhole stitch the edges. When they are completed cut away the material underneath close to the buttonhole, and the result will be a firm, perfect buttonhole.

Rompers for children require a great many buttonholes. If loops of soutache braid are substituted, they will serve the purpose. Fasten the loops securely so that they will not pull out.

THE SMARTEST FASHIONS & WELL-DRESSED FOLK



THE NICKEL FAIR

DEAR MADGE:

Palm Beach is an earthly paradise at this season. The children are playing in the sand and the flower-scented breezes cool my cheeks as I sit here beneath the awning. Yesterday we attended a nickel fair given for the benefit of a small church here. It was such a success that I am sure you would like to repeat it to secure funds for your settlement work.

The articles sold were all donated by the members, and we were allowed to select anything which happened to please our fancy, paying a nickel to the booth-keeper. Homemade candies, fruit, slices of cake, flowers and small articles of needlework were sold for this sum.

Janet Bowen presided over scales which weighed and measured, charging a nickel for telling how much over or under weight you were according to your height.

Little Marjorie Hope sold old-fashioned bouquets from a tray suspended about her neck like a flower girl from sunny Italy.

Mabelle Wright accompanied me to the fair and wore a stunning coat suit of gray burlap, copied after a Drecoll model.

The jacket hung in loose, easy lines and had a heavy cording of green linen outlining the cuffs and collar. Cup-shaped buttons with centers of black and rims of green extended in a line from the base of the collar to the bottom of the jacket, which was sharply cut away toward the back. The skirt was perfectly plain, save for a panel back. Burlap is to be one of the popular fabrics this spring. It is heavy in texture, yet loosely woven, and closely resembles the woolen homespuns. I'll wager you will have a suit of it. Her hat was a smart bowler shape of green milan straw bound with white grosgrain ribbon. A quill of white ostrich, finished at the base with a flat bow of the ribbon, trimmed the front.

One of the girls at the needlework booth wore a very attractive frock of mustard-colored linen. A flat collar of black-and-white embroidery finished the V-shaped neck line. About the waist was worn a broad belt of black patent leather, holding in the fullness after the Russian fashion.

Attired in a costume of two-toned ratine, a combination of black and red, one of the patrons looked wonderfully well. A broad collar of white linen supplied the note of contrast.

Marjorie Hope's little coat was fashioned of soft black taffeta, with collar and belt of white.

I donned, for the first time, my suit of raspberry ratine, and I know you will like it. The one-piece frock has a guimpe of cream embroidered batiste, and the overbodice is braided to match the material. Over this is worn a Russian coat with a high collar and broad cuffs of lusterless taffeta. Fastening the collar and belt are two large covered buttons. A close-fitting turban of black hemp straw adorned with paradise plumage completed my costume.

We are going with the Hopes for a motor ride, and I see the car winding along the driveway.

My best love to you and the family.

Ever devotedly, ELEANOR.
